SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words spanning them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

MANY COTTAGES BUILT AT LAKE

Crowe Lake Shores Are Being Well Built Up.

FAVORITE RESORT

MARMORA, July 28. —, The somewhat extensive advertising of Crowe Lake is veritably bearing fruit. Its shores this summer season present more animated scenes than any season hitherto. A quarter of a mile from the Marmora-Havlock highway, one views the Booster Park whereon the Club erected a very capacious kitchen and equipped it with a stove for the use of any picnic party which might care to utilize it. Other conveniences have also been furnished. Across the road are the farm dwellings of Robert Bonter. Mr. Bonter's children run a first class refreshment booth when picnics of the larger dimensions are held. One follows the south shore of the Lake but a short distance when sounds of saw and hammer are heard. J. Gray, J. Bedore and D. Knox are erecting a very imposing cottage for Mrs. Myrtle Loveless. It is nearing completion. But a short distance away, Charles Burns assisted by Earl Scarlett is working on a roomy cottage for William Kerr, Senior, of Deloro. Though not completed by then, this cottage is expected to be ready for occupation by the beginning of next week. Alongside of the Kerr cottage Jesse Barlow of Bonarlaw has several carpenters engaged in the building of a cottage of pretty design. This work is proceeding under the supervision of Rufus Joyce.

But a few steps further on, Will Bonter, with the occasional aid of his sisters, is in his spare time erecting a domicile for himself.

Arthur Eggletin, near by, is putting the finishing touches to a cottage of charming design. A sixth new cottage on this shore of the of the Lake is to be commenced on Monday for Daniel Frost of Frankford.

At Tipperary House, Mr. James Melgrath has every accommodation of those who would combine restfulness with their enjoyment of the Lake. Coming to the older cottages along the eastern shore, the carpenters hammer is also to be heard. Mrs. H. M. Jones' cottage is being reshingled and repaired to other repairs. Otherwise, renovations are trivial on this side of the Lake. Arriving at Marble Cliff one feels credit is due to A. T. Neal for his enterprise in building on site of the fine pavilion destroyed last winter by fire, another but little its inferior. Nightly, Mr. Neal runs a free bus from Marmora for the benifit of those patronising his Pavilion dances. On the island, the Americans have a little world all to themselves, necessitating a special boat trip, before justice could be done by any chronicler of their doings. All around the Lake children are to be seen in knickers and bloomers revelling in their outdoor pastimes. The diversions of campers are still legion in number It is said that impromptu pastoral plays are sometimes performed of an evening by such there as haye more than amateur talent. The story also goes the round of an enthusiastic lady angler who caught a very fine specimen of bass. It was sent to a neighbouring cottage to be weighed, but before it lay on the scales, children stuffed it with stones so that the lady was befooled into thinking she had caught a 5 lb. fish. The only complaint one hears is, when fitful gusts of wind, as on Thursday, cause the white caps to crown the surface of the waters, and even that lone complaint, made good naturedly, loses its grip with attention being turned to the hundred and one other incidents in a campers life.

PICNIC HELD AT BIRDSALL'S BEACH

Presbyterian Churches of Norwood and Westwood Joined For Day's Outing.

WESTWOOD, July 28.—On Wednesday afternoon the Presbyterian Church here united with the sister church at Norwood and held their annual picnic at Birdsall's Beach, Rice Lake.

A very enjoyable time was spent by young and old. The weather, though cool, was ideal for games and races.

Among different sports, bathing and boating were much appreciated, and altogether it was considered a day well spent.

A Very Good Crop.

TAKE NO ACTION

Alderman Denne— "I wouldn't take it at all."

The Mayor said that it was the duty of the Council to get the best price and submit it to the people. The Aldermen had no right to say, "Yes" or "No." Alderman McIntyre said that nothing could be done until the aldermen had the report they had been promised.

Alderman Greene said that the people affected were the people who had no cars and wanted to know if those people would vote to have it and still pay a seven-cent fare. The city is too small and seven cents blocks people from riding a short distance.

To the Mayor's suggestion that they should think of the possible growth of the City in the future, Alderman Phelan replied that if the H. E. P. C. thought that there was any future for the railway, it would not be seeking to sell it.

Alderman Denne asked why the Hydro was asking the City to buy a dead horse. The Commission had bought it and ought to give service. Mayor Turner said that the Commission was willing to do that but, as it was a purely local afair, wanted the City to stand the loss or take the profits.

Alderman Fife said that he had faith in the future of Peterborough and the question had to be faced, because the City will soon need a public transportation system & does in fact, need one now. He expressed surprise at the action of the Manufacturers' Association, in coming forward with such a short resolution instead of offering helpful suggestion to the Council for the provision of transportation. A deal should be made somehow. The business was to the Council to transact and was worthy of attention. The railway might lose for a few years but it would develop into a paying proposition if handled right. Alderman Greene said that he, too, had faith in the future of the City, but asked if any of the Aldermen would put his own money into the scheme. The Hydro has experts who have [illegible]

Mayor Turner said that the test was too severe. While the $75,000 would not amount to a great deal over the whole city, it would when split among ten aldermen. The experts [illegible] in asking the Commission [illegible] for five years so that the might put the system on a paying basis. Alderman Fife charged that [illegible] the system [illegible] run down without doing anything to stop it.

Alderman Denne said that a City of 22,000 people couldn't make a street railway pay and that the people had too many taxes as it was now.

The Mayor said "The question is this. This is a municipal utility that the Hydro can't operate and the commission brings it to the city. The thing to do is this. First, sift the matter thoroughly and bring it [illegible] to what is a reasonable price, and second, submit it to the people.

Alderman Fife agreed with the Mayor that the procedure outlined was proper and that would be the time for discussion and letters to the press and the people could express their opinion at the polls.

Alderman Greene asked if the Hydro had ever asked for funds from the City to fix up the rolling stock, etc. The Mayor said that at every conference between the city and the Hydro, the Commission had intimated that it would offer the railway to the City when the time came to unscramble the Central Ontario System.

The Mayor suggested that possibly the city had saved money. If the system were paying the Hydro would ask the whole book value of $360,000 for it.

If the city had bought it five years ago the losses of the past five years, which had been lean ones for street railways with the growing motor traffic would have had to be borne by the city.

Alderman Greene asked what was the mileage of the tracks that were set in concrete, so that he could figure a value. Alderman McIntyre said that the report would show that and nothing could be done until the report was on hand. Alderman Denne suggested that the reason Mr Gaby had refused to leave the report, saying that he would send copies down, was because there were things in the report that he didn't want the Council to read. Alderman Fife suggested that a small committee should get all the reports and information and present its decision to the council. Alderman McIntyre suggested appointing the committee after the report had been received.

Alderman Phelan said that he did not think that the Commission would close the street railway if the people should refuse to buy it. Alderman McIntyre said that there should be a report by an independent man to show whether $75,000 would put the line in good shape. Alderman Denne recalled that Mr. Gaby had mentioned second hand cars and said that the city had had enough of them and didn't want any at $10,000 each. Alderman Meyers said that the Aldermen would know better when they had the report and Alderman Denne suggested that another meeting be not called until the Aldermen had had a week to study the report. The meeting then adjourned.

Before discussing the street railway question, the committee gave the Chatauqua permission to string banners across the streets and granted the use of James Stevenson Park to the City League for Civic Holiday (August 10).

MOOSE CHARGED TRAIN

Infuriated at Sight of Engine Bearing Down on Calf.

SASKATOON, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Infuriated at the "iron monster" which she saw bearing down upon her calf, a moose cow, while crossing a railroad track between Hudson's Bay Junction and Prince Albert, recently, bunted the calf off the track and charged blindly at the oncoming locomotive. The moose was killed instantly. So fierce was the force of the cow's charge that a bar of the cowcatcher was splintered.

DISEASE FATAL TO ESKIMO WHO LEAVES HIS IGLOO

Habitues of North Subject to Malignant Attacks of Epidemics.

LAW-ABIDING RACE

Shacks and Huts of Whites Thought Responsible for Condition.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 28 (Canadian Press). —N ot many years will elapse bofore the Eskimo will be exterminated by disease through adopting white men's method of habitation, declared Dr. D. E. Scott, who recently returned to Edmonton after spending one year at Aklavik, in the delta of the McKenzie river. He has been acting as medical officer to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Arctic posts, and working among Indians and Eskimos in behalf of the epartment of Indian affairs.

While this prediction has been made by others in the past, Dr. Scott adds that Eskimos and Indians of the Delta are also suffering from intestinal parasictic attacks, due to eating raw fish, rabbits and other meats. This however, he claims, is not a serious problem to contend with, but such diseases as cancor, appendicitis, he states are becoming too prevalent among Indians.

In the old days when snow houses were their temporary homes, thhe Eskimoos were healthy, states the doctor, but since they commenced living in cabins and shacks tuberculosis has broken out among them, and this dread menace threatens to wipe them out. Among the Delta Indians, Dr. Scott found that in all but ten percent there were symptoms of tuberculosis. Their methods of living were such that the disease was on the increase.

Speaking of law and order in the North, Dr. Scott declared that the Eskimos and Indians of the Western Arctic regions are the most law-abiding people in the world and he could not recollect one police case during the year he was among them. In the Eastern regions, however, where misionaries have not penetrated, an occasional murder was committed, but this, the doctor says is really the Eskimos' own law at work.

Excellent fur catches were reported by trappers in the district, and in the Eastern Arctic, two Swedes have begun shipment of their three-year catch, which is estimated at $120,000. The Eskimos also fared well the average catch being around $2.000.

Dr. Scott plans to return to the North, and after a year in government service will leave for London, England to take up post-graduate work.

The homely and useful Canadian cow numbers nearly 10,000,000, worth $316,000,000.

ILLNESS FOLLOWS SISTERS WEDDING

Change of Faith is Thought to Have Effect on Miss Vanderbilt.

NEWPORT, R.I., July 28 (Special by U.P.).—Friends of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is ill today at Beachmound following the marriage of her sister, Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, to Frederic Church, Jr., are speculating on the influence upon her condition that is being wielded by the fact that her sister forsook the Catholic faith to become a Protestant bride.

Miss Vanderbilt was first reported as indisposed the night before the wedding, but it was then thought that it was an attack of indigestion. Miss Vanderbilt left her room to attend her sister at the wedding ceremony, although it was stated that she was then in much pain.

After acting as maid of honor, Miss Vanderbilt immediately retired to her room and did not take part in the bridal dinner.

SIR THOMAS TELLS BUSINESS SECRETS

Also Remarks Mix-up That May Follow Disregard of Rule.

One of the secrets of success in business, remarked Sir Thomas Lipton recently, is to fill a customer's order exactly as given; for you may be sure that he knows better than you do precisely what his requirements are. A tradesman may err, even with the best intentions.

For instance, continued Sir Thomas, there was the case of the newly-engaged young man who informed the lady of his choice, aged 24, that he was sending her a rose for every year of her age.

To the florist he gave the order to send the lady two dozen of the finest red roses he could procure.

"He is a good customer," remarked the florist to his assistant, who was packing the blooms, "so put in an extra half-dozen."

The engagement was broken off.

ATTRACTIVE BUILDING.

Artistic Touch Supplied By Miss Louisa Bell, Daughter of Lakefield Man.

A short while ago in the City of Syracuse there was opened up what is called the Socony Depot, a new sales station, which caused a good deal of attention because of its artistic design.

"The station is a Colonial red brick building landscaped with Long Island cedars. A crushed stone driveway encircles the offices and allows entry or exit of cars three ways. The artistic touch derived was directed by Miss Louisa Bell, daughter of Mrs. Vivian Bell of this city. The attractiveness of the entire plot has won the commendation of the public as a decided improvement to the street and has been met by deep gratification by residents of the neighborhood."

The Miss Louisa Bell referred to is the daughter of the late Vivian Bell, formerly of Lakefield, who was well known there, being the son of Dr. Alexander and Mrs. Bell.

TREASURE GALLERY FOUND IN OLD CITY

Ancient Greek Vessel Was Discovered in Submerged City.

LONDON, July 28 (United Press).—A treasure-laden ancient Greek galley, apparently filled with gold and priceless vases lies in the recently discovered submerged city between the ancient Roman Jerba Island and the North African coast, according to information reaching Sir Denison Ross here.

RELIC OF RELIGIOUS WARS, NOT MODERN

Paris Paper Calls Bryan an Incomprehensible Figure.

PARIS, July 28 (United Press).—"An incomprehensible figure of austere majesty and puritanism," is the way The Matin today describes William Jennings Bryan. The paper adds he would appear to be a "relic of the religious wars rather than a product of modern days."

UPPER STONEY LAKE REGETTA

The dinghy sailing race, with a silver cup as prize, was won by W Willoughby. Second, third and fourth places were taken respectively by "Keg" Greenwood, R. Willoughby and John Woodcock.

Dorothy and Donald Jory won the mixed tandem skiff race (paddles donated by the Lakefield Canoe Company.) Other entries were: Dorothy Myers and Art Bell (second); Betty Burnham and Marvin Craig (third.)

The boys' tandem skiff event, for boys of 14 years and under) was won by Bill Chapman and John Kennedy (silver pencils), with Orville Raulston and T. Hall in second place.

Men's single canoe (belt with silver buckle): Mark McIlmoyle. Other contestants were Clayton Redpath and Sid Day.

Ladies' single canoe (paddle, donated by Mrs. Jory): Margaret Myers; the Misses Dorothy Myers (second), Dorothy Jory (third), and Isabell Buell (fourth), also contested.

Ladies' single skiff (flash light), Dorothy Gould. Irma Fraser was in second place; Dorothy Jory in third.

The gunwale race, over half the course, provided amusement for the onlookers. The prize, a pen knife, was won by Vaughn Finley. Harry Stabler came second, Don Jory third and Marvin Craig fourth.

The outboard motor race had four entries. The prize, a silver cup, donated by the A. R. Williams Company of Toronto, makers of the "Elto" motor, went to Don Jory. Other competitors were Harrington Owens (second), David Drain (third), and D. Ogle (fourth.)

The ladies' tandem canoe race (cherry paddles), was won by Margaret Myers and Isabel Buell. Dorothy and Violet Myers came second.

The prize for the crab race, an Eversharp pencil, went to Art Corbett. Bill Chapman came second with Marvin Craig, Don Jory and Ross McIntyre also competing.

The boys' swimming race, with a prize of a silver medal for boys of fourteen years and under, was won by Jack Kemp, with W. Pierdon second and Wm. Rogers and H. Rathwell close behind.

Girls of the same age in a swimming race for a prize of a silver medal, were led by Gwen Joy, with Dorothy Gould in second place.

A belt, offered for the men's swimming event, went to Jim Pierdon, with Art Corbett second. John Craig, W. Willoughby and Albert McIlvaney also contested.

The silver cup for the ladies' swimming race was won by Miss Edith Killaly on a toss following a tie finish with Miss Violet Myers.

In the mixed tandem canoe race the prize, paddles donated by the Peterboro Canoe Company, were won by Miss M. Myers and C. Ridpath. Other contestants were Miss D. Myers and A. A. Bell (second), Miss Edith Killaly and A. Sherin (third), Miss D. Gould and J. D. Dow, Miss Pierdon and Mr. White, Miss Dorothy Jory and Don Jory.

The caps and saucers for the ladies' tandem skiff race went to the Misses Betty Burnham and Dorothy Gould.

In the canoe tug of war, the prizes, a knife for the rope man and a cushion for the paddler, went to J. Dow and A. A. Bell. Other contestants were D. Jory and M. Craig, Clayton Redpath and Jim Pierdon, Jno. White and Gerald Sherin.

Lady Byng Collecting Real Canadian Flowers

The secret of Lady Byng's decided preference for the great out-of-doors and the beautiful gardens of Canadian houses rather than the formality which marks receptions in doors was revealed during the visit to Victoria of the governor-general of Canada and his popular lady.

Lady Byng is an ardent lover of flowers and a keen gardener. Since she came to Canada she has collected no less than 400 different varieties for the beautiful gardens of her English home. Accompanying the plants to England have gone careful instructions that they are to receive the best of attention. Of the 400, only twelve have failed to thrive after being transported across the Atlantic and transplanted in English soil.

ACROSS CONTINENT AND BACK ON WAGER

J. E. McCoy Expects to Win $10,000.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 28. — Canadian Press. — Ten thousand dollars is the wager which J. E. McCoy expects to win from the executive of the San Francisco Athletic Club for his hike from San Francisco to Halifax, N.S., and return, touching at Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver. When he reached Winnipeg on his return trip he was seven days ahead of schedule and barring accidents Mr McCoy expects to complete the long hike within the proscribed limit.

McCoy started from San Francisco on October 25, 1924, and arrived in Halifax, April 17, 1925. He has three months to reach his starting point.

According to the stipulation of the wager McCoy must travel only on the highways and is forbidden to take to the tracks. As he could not find a highway along the north shores of Lake Superior, he left Canada at the Soo and went through United States territory until he was able to enter near Fort William. He is entirely dependent upon the charity of people in the districts through which he passes for his sustenance.

In passing through Montana McCoy was held up by bandits but as he had nothing to give him he was released. He lived without food for 8 days and although he came across a number of Indian villages he was unable to make them understand his plight.

The hiker must not accept a 'lift' but must stretch his legs day after day along the dusty road, until he reaches his goal in San Francisco.

Kingston 11 - Belleville 6 - Lakeviews Defeat C.G.E. - Cincinnati In Third Place

PONIES BROKE FAST AT BARRIER WITH SIX RUNS IN FIRST INNING AND ROMPED AWAY FROM TRUNKS

Ten Errors on Muddy Diamond at Kingston—Belleville Booted Seven.

CHANCES WASTED.

C. N. R. Team Appeared Lifeless—Cherry Hitless on Five Times Up.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 28 (Special to the Examiner) — Kingston and Belleville met here yesterday evening on a rain soaked and muddy field. Kingston took the game by the score of 11 to 6. Belleville threatened twice to make a comeback and turn the tables on the locals but they did not have the necessary punch when the time came for them to spring the jump.

Kingston gathered in 6 runs of Keon's delivery in the first innings, this being largely due to the condition of the field. There were only two safe blows made by Kingston in the first innings but the ground was so slippery and muddy that the Belleville players could not get their bearings and before they knew what had happened, the locals had put over six runs. The game was stopped at the end of the first inning for the purpose of putting sawdust in the worst places on the field.

It was a funny game all the way through. For the first time this season Belleville did not seem to have any heart to put up a hard fight and the game became more or less as a foregone conclusion to them. They brightened up in the seventh inning however and by good hitting gathered in three runs and again in the ninth they had a good chance. With only one out, three were on but N. Ross struck out and Keon flied to Scott, who, by the way, handled seven difficult chances without an error.

Del Cherry went the route of five times to bat without a hit. The big Kingston slugger was caught three times on flies and reached the initial sack on the two other occasions on fielders' choice This is the first time in many a game that Cherry has gone hitless.

Keon, who pitched for Belleville, was off in the first frame but soon settled away After the opening splash, the baseball became very good considering the condition of the field. Keon had four strike outs to his credit but Young had only one. This one came in the ninth when N. Ross breezed, just when a little hit might have made serious trouble.

BRITISH TENNIS STARS ON TOUR

Famous Lady Players Are to Play in Canada and States.

TOURISTS, TOO

MONTREAL, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—The last trip of the Cunarder Aurania, was eventful in that on board were the first British tourist parties coming to Canada for a holiday and following an itinerary previously arranged for hem. Besides the party there were a number of tennis champions whose names are household words not only in the United Kingdom but among sportsmen throughout the world. Among them were Miss Joan Fry, the 19-year-old tennis marvel, who reached the finals at Wimbledon last month but was ousted by Suzanne Lenglen, and who is considered to be the all England ladies' champion; Miss Kathleen McKane, last year's all-England ladies' champion and a great factor with whom the Americans will have to contentd when she meets them in the United States in Aug.; Miss Evelyn Colyer, winner of many tournaments, and who with Miss McKane captured the women's doubles at Wimbledon last year; Mrs. Lambert Chambers, another star who is still much to the fore in the tennis world; and J. A. Bottley, manager of the British ladies' tennis team; which is to give exhibition games and play Canadian teams in Montreal, Quebec and Toronto before proceeding to the United States.

PLAY AT WARKWORTH.

Campbellford Team For the Tournament on Wednesday.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28. — Dr. C. B. Bussey, has been appointed manager of the All-Star team of soft ball players that will represent Campbellford in the tournament at the Warkworth field day on Wednesday. The prize is a silver shield which the local players hope to bring home to Campbellford. The doctor has selected the following players, every one of whom is sufficiently distinguished in the game to be entitled to the honour of being designated by his surname only:

Weston, Nesbitt, Ferguson, Holmes, Atkinson, Gay, Tinney, McNaughton, Meyers, Adamson, Ansell and Ibey. Out of that formidable dozen it should be an easy matter to select a team of invincibles.

ALL VETERANS OF THE GREAT WAR

Providence Ring Up 19 Hits Off Pests in Slugging Contest.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 27 (Canadian Press).—Toronto won the first of the series from Buffalo quite easily, the score being 10 to 1. The Leafs hit both Proffitt and Jones hard, but let up with their clubs when Auer mounted the pitching hill. Satterfield kept the Bisons hits well scattered, the one tally registered against him being scored on Webb's two-bagger and Hill's single. Layne, in cathing Hill's long fly in the fourth, jammed his head against the concrete wall and toppled over with the ball in his hands. He recovered quickly and played out the game. Score:

LAKEVIEWS WIN FROM ELECTRICS

SCORE WAS 14-8.

The Junior City League play-off at the Stevenson Arena last night was a mixture of good and bad baseball, so mixed that it would be hard to separate it. All pitchers were liberal, granting four passes each, although Woods showed a definite superiority, striking out seven of the opposing batsmen, and holding the situation well in hand at all times, with the possible exception of the fifth, when he was tapped for three hits and a walk, resulting in two runs.

Marchen with the wood loomed large getting three hits, in five attempts, while Collins of the C.G.E. and Halliday were in pursuit with 2 ringing clouts in four efforts. Four of the errors were committed in the last stage of play, so that darkness, on account of which the game was called, will also come in handy as an alibi.

As a rule the play was clean cut, and decisive, being marred in the last inning by an unfortunate event at the plate. Delahaye was possibly crowding into the batter's territory, and McDonough, wishing to get on by any means, swung his bat back with the possible intention of preparing to hit. The bat, however, came in violent contact with Delehaye's knee, and felled him to the ground. McDonough was granted a pass to first on a technical interference play. Four healthy two base wallops crashed through the inner works, the teams halving the honors in this regard, Collins and J. Jones bringing them for C.G.E. while LeBarr and Halliday were the range finders for the Lakeviews.

The collection of 18 hits might indicate that the password was "Bing 'em on the rind."

Two double plays; a smart Marchen to Johnston to Collins closing the sixth seance, and one Collins to Johnston as the climatic finish of the eighth.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

In the backward and the forward swing of the golf club the clubhead describes one arc while the hands describe a second, or inner, arc. The most effective method is to keep these arcs together, and I urge the player to delay wrist action in the back swing for that purpose. If the wrists break the clubhead back from the ball quickly it is obvious that the arc of the hands is not in step with the arc described by the clubhead

Near the top of the back swing, when clubhead and hands have been kept together all the way up, the clubhead has a tendency to break over the top. It should break over this way some, but this turning of the clubhead up there should be held somewhat in check, so that it comes to a stop just short of a parallel position across the shoulders. Reach out with the arms in starting back.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Petes travel to Kingston tomorrow and a victory would give them a good lead in first place. The Petes have yet to obtain a victory in the eastern city this year. The Ponies will be back here on Saturday for the second game of the "crooshial" series.

* * * * * * * * *

Kingston's victory last night over Belleville brings the Ponies up within half a game of the Petes and puts the Belleville team definitely among the down and outs for this season, as by no streak of luck can they finish in second place. A pair of wins for the Petes in the series with the Ponies this week would just about sew up the league leadership for the Petes and leave Kingston and Oshawa squabbling over second place and the play-off berth.

* * * * * * * * *

The junior series is all tied up once more. Two very one-sided games were put up, the C.G.E. winning the first 17-10 in a very ragged exhibition of baseball and the Lakeviews winning last night 14-5 in another poor game, although not marked by so many errors as the first encounter. With all the bad baseball out of their systems, there will be blood when they meet in the third and deciding game.

* * * * * * * * *

Tomorrow night the Knights and Kiwanis teams meet in the second game of the juvenile final. The first game was a wow, and the second will be equally good.

* * * * * * * * *

Some games that are worth seeing are on the cards for the City League during this week. At Riverside there is the final game of the juvenile series of the City League when the Knights of Columbus and Kiwanis teams meet. At King Edward School there are three games. Tonight, Rotary and Athletes meet in a Bantam series game; Thursday, Kiwanis and Rotary meet in a midget game; and Friday night, East City and Rotary meet in a Bantam game. The juvenile game starts at 5.15, nine innings being played. The others start at 6.00 and will go seven innings. The games still to be played in the bantam and midget series all have a great bearing on the league standing as the teams are pretty well bunched.

PIRATES SQUEEZED OUT VICTORY FROM THE BRAVES IN 10TH INNING

IN THIRD PLACE.

PITTSBURG, July 27. — Pittsburgh came from behind in the tenth inning to-day to defeat Boston 6 to 5. The score was tied at the end of the ninth. Boston went ahead in the tenth when Harris hit a home run. The Pirates staged a comeback, winning the victory with two runs when Moore walked, Cuyler doubled, Barnhart sacrificed, Traynor and Wright walked and McInnis sacrificed. Score:

REDS WIN TWO.

CINCINNATI, Ohio., July 27. — The Reds went into undisputed possesion of third place when they beat the Cardinals in a double-header to-day. Two second string pitchers Rube Benton and Jakey May, southpawed the visitors to death and the latter fanned eight, permitting but six hits in the second game. Score:

MACKMEN SWEEP BOSTON SERIES

ONLY ONE GAME.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27. The Athletics made a clean sweep of the series with the Boston Red Sox by winning the fourth game of the series here to-day, 2 to1. Jack Quinn pitching his first game against his old team mates, held them to six hits and no runs until the ninth inning when Boone and Carlyle hit successive doubles. To-day's triumph marks the fifteenth victory the Athletics have scored over the Red Sox in 19 games. Score:

Boston .. .... 000 000 001—1 8 1
Philadelphia 011 000 00x—2 6 0

SOCCER NOTES

The game for Saturday afternoon is Thistle versus Quakers in the semi-final of the Peck Cup at Nicholls Oval. Kick-off at three o'clock. Referee, Alex. McKinley.

Senior League Standing.

	Goals
	P	W	L	D	F	A	Pts
Woollens	7	6	1	0	13	5	12
Thistle	6	4	2	0	18	7	8
Quakers	7	1	5	0	8	26	2

Two points for a win and one for a draw.

Junior League Standing.

	Goals
	P	W	L	D	F	A	Pts
De Laval	5	4	0	1	15	5	9
C. P. C.	5	4	1	1	18	5	7
Dummer	4	2	1	1	7	5	5
*Warsaw	4	1	2	0	4	8	2
Masseys	7	0	6	1	4	27	0

*Got two points on failure of the Masseys.

Two points for a win and one for a draw.

Down on the King Edward Park C.P.C. meet Warsaw in a league match at three o'clock Saturday. Referee, John Hodson.

Harold Pulley, who turned out for the Thistle last Saturday, has signed for them. This lad put in many excellent games for the De Laval in the junior cup ties and is a credit to local production.

A large gathering of junior enthusiasts turned out last evening to hear both sides of the question regarding Player Fowler, a De Laval man, who assisted the Masseys in a league game. A motion was made "that the Masseys versus Dummer match be replayed;" also "the Executive shall decide the place and date of this match." Rule of local soccer is worth remembering: "(6) Any club playing an ineligible player shall have two points deducted from its score, such two points shall in no wise be added to the score of the protesting team."

Foster, C.P.C., and Frost, De Laval, were censured for their action in the recent fiasco, and clubs were entrusted to carried out the instructions.

After many questions, pro and con, the ex-Mayor Taylor Cup tie replay was instructed to be played on Wednesday, August 5th, at Nicholls Oval. On a standing vote, all the players present agreed that the game be played up at North End. Rufus Payne says the township boys are coming in to see this cup tie.

In a juvenile game Woollens versus De Laval at Nicholls Oval, at two o'clock, on Saturday afternoon.

All Woollen players (juveniles) are requested to be at practice game on Thursday evening at the Oval at 6 o'clock.

Masseys put it over the C.P.C. on Saturday afternoon in a "friendly" game by two goals to one. Masseys broke the ——?

All Massey players are to turn out for a practice game on Wednesday evening on King Edward, at 6.15 p.m.

On Civic Holiday the G. W. V. A. are holding an annual field day and have included a five or six-aside tournament in their schedule, which will give every soccer enthusiast a chance in the old-time pastime. Boys, there is no entry fee and as many teams can enter this competition. All entries must be in by Saturday next, Aug. 1st, to Secretary Sid. Whatley.

League and Cup Tie Games.

Saturday, Aug. 1—Thistle vs. Quakers (Peck).
Thursday, Aug. 6—Open date.
Saturday, Aug. 8—Woollens vs. De Laval (Peck).
Thursday, Aug. 13—Woollens vs. Quakers (league).

PROTESTS AGAINST NEWSPAPER TRASH

Contents of Certain American Weeklies Are "Very Unsavory," Says Mother.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Under the title "Trash that people read" Kathleen Redman Strange, of Fenn, Alberta, in the Journal sounds a warning note to Canadian mothers, ignorant of what their children are reading. She describes fidning her two boys avidly consuming the contents of a certain American newspaper—very unsavory— and on enquiry found they had progressed from the "funnies" to other articles. Mrs. Strange says:—

Women have already succeeded in having some of the unwholesome and unsavory magazines banished from the bookstalls of certain cities in certain parts of the country, and a great deal has been said and written about the growing output of decadent stuff produced by decadent writers for the often decadent young. But it is not of the decadent young—who are, after all, in the vast minority, thank heaven,—that I am thinking. It is of the splendid wholesome-minded, growing Canadian boys and girls, into whose hands such evil literature often falls with such possibly disastrous results.

Our own Canadian magazines and farm journals are clean and wholesole. Why, then, should we find it necessary to admit filthy foreign trash? We can well afford to import the best features of American city life, but we cannot afford to import its filth. Good American literature is welcome, but not its trash. Western farmers may believe in free trade, but western mothers certainly demand protection against foreign muck.

ENGINEERS CONQUER ARKANSAS RIVER

Stream Diverted to New Man-Made Passageway.

PUEBLO, Colo, July 28.—(Associated Press).—Man's battle has been won against the turbulent Arkansas River which in June, 1921, overflowed its banks in an angry flood, wreaking $30,000,000 damage on the surrounding countryside and taking a hundred lives.

The river has been turned recently from its old natural channel into a man-made passageway, lined with concrete levees, and now, according to engineers, there will be no recurrence of the devastating flood disaster. The flood protection project was not scheduled for completion until 1926, but through favorable weather conditions during the winter the major portions of the project were finished recently.

A difficult engineering problem was encountered in the construction of the new channel and building of the levees. The new channel passed through the yards of the Denver, Rio Grande Western Railroad and in order to carry out the project it was necessary to move the railroad yards during the process of construction of the new channel. This was done without interruption to the railroad service.

Of the $4,000,000 expended on the flood protection project, $1,000,000 was utilized in the construction of the channel through the railroad yards.

The flood protection work, engineers said, required the moving of 1,100,000 cubic yards of dirt and construction of 34 miles of railroad track and seven bridges and viaducts.

A concrete retention dam was built across the river seven miles north of Pueblo. The dam will store 21,000 acre feet of water, which can be utilized in local irrigation projects.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A recipe for angel food is from the book of Mrs. R. J. Kidd, 462 Hunter street. This is described as being a delicious large cake, if properly made:

1 large cup egg whites.
1 level teaspoon cream of tartar.
1½ cups fine granulated sugar.
1 cup flour.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Break egg whites into a large bowl and beat slightly. Then add cream of tartar and salt and beat until stiff, but not too dry. Then slowly fold in sugar (sifted once) and fold flour in slowly also. Pour into ungreased pan and bake in a oven of warm temperature increasing later to moderate heat.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE MODE

The season is an ornamental one in small ways. The atmosphere of simplicity, not rigid, but effective, that characterizes the frocks of this year, has its highlights in the bizarre bits of color that are glimpsed in bright bracelets, gay foams of pleated frilling from neck to hem, and gaudy patterns against solid backgrounds.

White footwear is not as popular this year as in other seasons. With the all-white costume, one sees kid and buckskin shoes, but the majority of women are wearing light-colored shoes, with tans much in the foreground.

Novelty brooches and bar pins are in the jewellers' windows; enamelled representations of small scenes and birds, and enamel in bright shades is carried out in the little perfume bottles with their screw tops. One prétty example is in Pompeian red, a coral hue, with an Oriental gentleman in silver design on its rounded sides. The tiny flat enamel perfume bottles that slip so easily into the purse, with their gilt stoppers, and inside contrivance that resembles an eye-dropper, and allows a speck of perfume to adhere to its point, are another convenience, and enamelled holders are being used for the little eyebrow pencils and rouge sticks that are indispensable portions of the modern woman's under-arm bag.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

TAKING A "BEAUTY WALK"

Do you have much occasion for walking?

I ask this question because it is such a very important one in its bearing on health and beauty. Walking is so important and so easy to accomplish, that I wonder it is not more frequently indulged in.

The exercise of walking seems to be unevenly divided. Some people who know its special value and who have noticed its bearing on their health walk a great deal. Others hardly walk at all. Anything which has come to touch upon us personally always means so much more to us than any knowledge imparted second-hand. That's why those who walk and have noticed how much better they feel will not go without their daily walk any more.

Women are divided into various classes in regard to this question. Some of them have the opportunity to walk, and do so; others who go to business every day live too far away to attempt walking and feel too tired after they get home at night to go in for much walking. There are still others who have the leisure, but who have gotten the street-car habit and simply won't walk.

I wonder which of these classes you come in? I hope you've recognized yourself and taken stock accordingly.

The point I want to make is that surely every one of you can squeeze in your walking if you but think it over and decide the way to manage.

For instance, if you go to business every day, can't you manage to take a good brisk walk after your lunch? It is better in some cases to rest and avoid andue exertion after lunch. If this is true in your case, how about a walk before you lunch? If you can't manage it then, could you arrange things so as to walk part of the way to your work in the morning?

Having decided when you can manage it the next step is to be sure you walk correctly when you have the chance.

Now the first thing is to walk healthfully; that is, vigorously and with an elastic step. Never walk for health after you have begun to feel really quite tired, for this is likely to cause too much of a drain on your physical resources.

The best things to remember are that your chest should be out and your chin in. When you take this position, the rest of your body automatcally adjusts itself. Your abdomen is naturallyin and as flat as possible.

Breathe deeply and naturally. You will find, without a doubt, that you gain more pleasure from walking than you ever did before, not to mention greater benefit.

SHE CHATS ABOUT A TRIM UNDERSLIP.

Madame has a young client who comes in for frocks, and whom is always apleasure to greet, she is so nice and affable.

To-day this Miss Hart came in early for her appointment, and she had to wait about awhile for the fitter to come.

I conducted her to one of the little fitting rooms and told her she could remove her frock and someone would be in to fit the lining of the cloth street frock she is buying.

Later I returned to say she would have to wait a minute. Miss Hart then asked me to stay and chat awhile.

My first remark started us off on the subject of clothes, for I said:

"What a pretty underslip you are wearing."

"I'm glad you approve. I always wear these sunproof satin slips with my Summer frocks."

"Pleats on the sides for fulness are so much better than groups of gathers," I remarked.

"Yes, I agree with you," Miss Hart said. "I was surprised that so many of the ready-made slips have gathers at the sides, and often the gathers are just enough to spoil the hang of the frock."

"Then you had this made?" I queried.

"Oh, yes," Miss Hart replied. "I have a little seamstress who makes all my underthings."

"You're lucky to have someone who understands your tastes and is ready to make things for you," I assured her.

"She takes such an interest," Miss Hart returned. "And my underthings are very simple. This season I've had all of them made as straight as possible, and used nothing but silk net bands on the silk things and fine cotton net on the batiste things."

CARE OF THE REFRIGERATOR AND FOODS.

Warm weather is always a trying time for the housewife. Foods mold and spoil easily, milk and cream sour, and in many places ants and other pests make added problems to solve. One way of preventing much trouble is by close buying—only a day or so supply at a time.

The refrigerator should be carefully watched daily. It should be washed and the drain pipe from the ice chamber rinsed down thoroughly with hot ammonia water, and the long wire-handled brush should be run down its length two or three times to make sure no food waste clings to the sides of the pipe. The drain underneath should be well flushed, or the pan emptied regularly and washed out and sunned once a week. The wooden racks holding the ice should also be scrubbed and sunned once a week and dried out. Foods should be put away on clean refrigerator dishes, never in papers or on wooden plates.

Foods kept in the refrigerator should be watched. Berries should be turned out into a platter, so the air reaches them. To keep them at their best. Boiled vegetables should not be kept longer than a day and a half. All leftovers should be used up at the next meal. Onions should not be put in the ice box. Fish that is kept until time to cook should be wrapped in a kitchen binder and placed next the ice. Butter is best in a glass or pottery jar and left without the cover in hot weather. A round or oiled paper can be used instead. Lettuce will keep best rinsed and trimmed, then put into a lettuce bag and placed on the ice.

Foods in pantries should be carefully bottled and corked. Empty preserve jars make very good food containers. Rice and other cereals should be kept in the jars, exposed to light in a dry, airy pantry.

With a clean kitchen and with the windows carefully screened flies can be kept out. If a small piece of flypaper is placed in a window and the curtains are drawn almost down to the bottom the few flies that may have come in will be attracted to the light spot and caught. The use of phosphorous paste spread on slices of potato and placed on shelves will drive away roaches, rodents and other pests. The paste should not be put near open food or where pet animals may get it.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two young girls in love with two nice young men. We are engaged, but have decided that we are too young to get married. But the boys don't want to put it off any longer, for they say they can't live without us. Will you please advise us what to do?

BOOTS AND TILLIE.

BOOTS AND TILLIE: If you feel that you have aims and interests in common with these young men, and you are mature enough to undertake the responsibilities of marriage, there is no reason why you should delay your weddings. As long as your marriage is founded on mutual love and understanding combined with common tastes and interests, you will be happy. My best wishes to all of you.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Let's Talk It Over

AMUSING A BUSINESS GIRL AFTER WORK.

"Why are not our business and social worlds the same? What status has a business girl?" asks Q. E. D.

What I want to know is: Why are not our business and social status the same? What status has a business girl? During the day I am living in almost a dream, or rather I am perfectly happy. The action and quick brain work thrills me. The people one meets are so interesting—people with culture, money and, above all, people who think. If you can prove that you are of their mentality they treat you as equals during business hours.

When the day is over and I go home, what is it like? Dinner in a little crowded apartment. Mother continually chatting over "The laundry didn't come to-day." "I had to run down to the corner, etc.," and then she suggests that I go to some dance for an evening's recreation. The only answer I have is that the people I like to go with don't go there.

And so I take down a book on psychology, religion or government, and pore over it until it is time to go to bed. —Q. E. D.

Well, what can Mother talk about, Pal? She doesn' know anything about big business. When she chatters about the laundry and the corner store she is simply talking about her shop when you talk about yours.

Girls who live downtown in "bachelor apartments or hotels" have a social life all their own—many of them a very delightful social life. However, they get their own dinners or eat at restaurants, and spend many hours washing, ironing and mending, which they might prefer to spend reading "psychology, religion or government."

If they are spared small talk about household affairs, they are also denied certain other things which you enjoy. You can't have everything, my dear. So long as we have homes we'll have problems. Most of the beautiful poems and touching songs about home and mother were written by folks who had put lots of distance between themselves and home, sweet home. When you are right on the premises you are inclined to note the defects.

But while you're noting those defects my dear, has it ever occurred to you to weight the love of the dear, dull, tired mother against the lonely emptiness which more brilliant chatter gives? Thousands of us, little girl, would gladly give up our brilliant evenings if we could hear mother's voice complaining about the tomato catsup or scolding Jimmy for not wiping his feet.

But why sit like Cinderella waiting for a fairy godmother to take you to the ball? Use the common sense that has made you a business executive and build up a little social life of your own. You don't have to be Mrs. Biltmore Astor to start something.

There'd be more contented brides making biscuits and frying bacon for breakfast if there were more bungalow aprons and fewer satin breakfast coats in our trousseaux to-day. When a girl has prepared herself to sit pretty and be a lady, it naturally makes her sore to find she's expected to be the hired girl. Which brings us to J. T.'s contention that the engaged girl has a perfect right to inquire into her intended husband's financial status and discover just what is expected of her before she says "I will."

I don't blame girls for the frank expression of opinions on what they expect from a husband before they marry. I admire and respect them for it. I believe that when engaged couples settle the all-important question of money matters before they marry they will taste the joys of a happy married life. From what I hear of the experiences of others, it seems to me that a high percentage is directly and indirectly laid at the altar of God.

During the courtship a man puts up a front with his lady love for one evening a week, which gives her the impression that he is financially able to take care of her in a reasonably safe and efficient manner. The rest of the week he lives on doughnuts and coffee.

After the honeymoon the "front" drops, the real article emerges, and if the young lady is disappointed—"then the fun begins." —J.T.O.

FOR AN AFTERNOON TEA.

Afternoon tea served on the porch in Summer may have more novel touches than when it is served indoors in the cool weather.

Applesauce Cake.

Cream together one and a half cupfuls of sugar and three-quarters of a cupful of butter. When creamed, add a large beaten egg, then a cupful of a half of good smooth applesauce. Mix together two and three-quarters of a cupful of flour, a saltspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, a half teaspoonful each of cloves and ginger, and a little grated nutmeg. Add the juice and grated rind of a fresh lemon to the sugar mixture, then stir and beat all smooth. When beaten, add a cupful of seeded raisins and a quarter cupful of finely chopped or ground nuts. Turn into a buttered baking pan and bake in a medium oven.

Victoria Sandwiches.

Mix four ounces of sugar with the yolks of three eggs until creamy. Add a quarter cupful of soft butter and mix well. Sift in six ounces of flour with a saltspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix and add milk little by little until the mixture drops readily from a spoon, then fold in the beaten whites of the eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into a shallow buttered square pan and bake about twenty minutes. When done, cool and split. Spread with soft jam, put on the upper half, then cut in sandwiches two inches wide and three inches long dust with powdered sugar.

Seven million acres of prairie sod was broken in the last five years. Based upon a 20-year average of 17 bushels of wheat per acre, this additional tilled area could have yielded a hundred million bushels if all sown to wheat. ONE GOAL DRAW IN SOCCER FINAL Nanaimo and Ulster Will Play Third Game on Wednesday.

BRILLIANT PLAY.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 28. — (Canadian Press). — Third game will be necessary to decide whether an Eastern or Western team will win the Cannaught Cup, emblematic of the Dominion Football honors. In the most exciting game that has been played in this city for years, Nanaimo, representatives of Western Canada, and Toronto Ulster United, champions of the East battled to a one goal draw in the second and what was to have been the final game, on Carruthers Grounds last evening. In the first game, the teams played a scoreless draw. The third and final match will be played here on Wednesday night. Four thousand fans were treated to football that one really sees. The contest was crammed full of brilliant plays, exciting incidents and tense moments that had the spectators in a wild turmoil for the entire one hour and a half of play.

HORSE RACING AT FIELD DAY

Committee Meets G.W.V.A. To Arrange Programme of Events.

FLOWER SHOW.

The G.W.V.A. Sports Committee met last evening to make further arrangements for the field day to be held at the Exhibition grounds on Civic holiday. The chairman of the committee, Vice Commander J. Abraham presided and welcomed Messrs. C. Graham, Gus White, Art Blade and J. M. Brooks, representing horse racing, and Mr. Young, representing horticulture.

It was unanimously decided to include horse racing in the programme and the above named gentlemen who offered their services were appointed as a committee together with Comrade M. McGill to take charge of the event.

Mr. Young addressed the meeting respecting putting on a flower show. This was agreed upon, and an invitation will be sent to the Horticultural Society to co-operate.

The committee discussed other features and will meet again tonight to complete arrangements.

START UNION MOVE FOR MONTREAL VETS

Brig.-Gen. McCuaig is Temporary Chairman of Committee.

MONTREAL, July 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Brig.-Gen. C. E. McCuaig was appointed provisional chairman of the committee to endeavor to bring about unity of Montreal's several war veterans' organizations, at a meeting here yesterday.

On the invitation of Field Marshal Earl Haig, president of the British Empire Service League, who is just completing a tour of Canada in an effort to unite all the veteran organizations of the Dominion into one strong body, representatives of the various veterans' organizations in Montreal attended the meeting.

Out of seven and a half million families in England and Wales, nearly half contained no children at all under 16, according to the last census.

"Glad To See You Go," Col. Peck's Farewell

This might be called an anecdote of Field-Marshal Earl Haig or of Colonel Cyrus Peck or both. The well known and bluff Canadian Victoria Cross hero acted as chairman for the distinguished soldier, leader of the British forces in the Great War, when the Field Marshal addressed a crowded theatre of Victoria war veterans on his plan for amalgamating ex-service men throughout the British Empire At the end of his speech Colonel Peck remarked.

"And there's one other thing. I want you all to be on hand to say adieu to Earl Haig when he leaves Victoria to-morrow afternoon. I know that it will be a pleasant duty for all of you."

Earl Haig was the first to seize the joke and lead the laughter.

"I am always making breaks like that," commented the Colonel. "You know, someone telephoned me to ask if I would be a pall bearer at the funeral of a friend the other day, and I replied that I would be delighted!"

NEW POSITION.

Former Pastor of Mark Street Church Gets Appointment In Vancouver.

J. G. Lewis, B.A., who was here as pastor of the Mark street Methodist church, about twenty years ago, has been appointed associated minister of the United Church of Canada, in Vancouver, B.C., in a church which has one of the biggest congregations in the city. Rev. Mr. Lewis is very favorably remembered by many of the older Mark street members, as well as by members in the rural districts.

The following appeared in the church announcements of the body with which he is now identified:

"Our congregation extends a most hearty welcome to Rev. J. G. Lewis, B.A., who at the invitation of our board assumes to-day the relation of associate minister of the church. Mr and Mrs. Lewis are not strangers to us but have been actively engaged with the work of our conference and city for several years, and both are known for their devotion and efficiency in the Master's work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Lewis were visiting in the city in the early part of last spring renewing many acquaintances of former years."

RUBBER CONTROL IN BRITISH HOUSE

High Price May Stimulate Planting in Other Countries.

LONDON, July 28. — Canadian Press. — L. S. Amery, the Colonial Secretary, in the House of Commons on Monday, declared that it was the government's view that only after a careful inquiry would it be decided whether it was advisable to modify the rates for the release of rubber under the Stevenson restriction scheme. He made no reference to the American governments representations on this subject, though he alluded indirectly to the American interests wh. he said the government was well aware that continued high prices would stimulate planting in other countries.

The secretary's general argument was that reasonable prices would the British industry in the Malay Archipelago and Ceylon, where production has been limited, the best opportunity for holding its own against the industry of other countries.

The low level prices of 1923 and 1924 proved he said that the present soaring prices were not due to the Stevenson scheme but to speculative operations, and there was nothing indicating that the present high level was anything but temporary.

REV. PAUL ROY IS NEW ARCHBISHOP

Coadjutor Of Archdiocese Is Successor to Cardinal Begin.

IN HOSPITAL NOW.

ROME, July 28. — (Canadina Press). — Successor to Cardinal Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, who died July 18th, will be Most Rev. Paul Eugene Roy, coadjutor Archbishop of Quebec.

The succession of Monsignor Roy to the Archibshopric of Quebec was automatic when he was appointed Coadjutor of the Archdiocese some years ago, a papal bull provided that he would succeed Cardinal Begin in Quebec. Monsignor Roy is confined to the hospital by illness.

BRING BODY HOME.

Remains of C. P. R. Official Being Sent From London This Week.

LONDON, July 28. —(Canadian Press).— The body of G. M. Bosworth, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamship lines, who died in London on Sunday, following an operation for appendicitis, will be conveyed to Montreal towards the end of this week.

Canada has still plenty of room for the right sort of people and much to offer them.

MAY YET AVERT MINERS' STRIKE

Believe Mine Owners May Respond to Plan of Baldwin.

NO WORK STOPPAGE.

LONDON, July 28. — Canadian Press. — Some feeling that the threatened British coal strike may be averted modified to-day the previously prevailing pessimism.

After a lengthy cabinet discussion of the situation the belief increased that the coal mine owners might respond to Premier Baldwin's plan whereby the workers and owners would resume negotiations and the strike order for July 31 be rescinded.

This hope was reflected on the stock exchange where this morning's market showed a more confident tone.

Present working agreements expire July 31. The owners issued notices for lower wages and longer hours effective thereafter. The workers refused these conditions and ordered a strike for July 31. Mr. Baldwin is attempting to persuade the owners to withdraw their notices if the workers will continue temporarily upon the present scale until the conferences can agree upon new working conditions.

BOY AND MOTHER ARE ELECTROCUTED

Boy Picked Up Live Wire Which Had Blown Down Mother Tried to Save Him.

KINGSTON, July 28. — (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Clapp of Picton was electrocuted during a storm on Sunday when she attempted to free her little son who had picked up a live wire which had been blown down. The boy is so severely burned that very little hope is held out for his recovery.

EIGHT INJURED AT FIRE NEAR HAVANA

Six Warehouses Were Burned With Loss of $2,500,000.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 28 (Canadian Press)—Eight firemen and citizens were injured yesterday and today in a fire which destroyed six warehouses on the waterfront of Regla ,across the bay from Havana The loss is estimated at $2,500,000.

TEMPLARS' CONCLAVE.

Forty Special Trains Carry Knights to Seattle.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 28 (Canadian Press).—Forty special trains in addition to two steamships yesterday poured Knights Templars into Seattle to attend their 36th triennial conclave this week.

Knights from Pittsburgh, Pa., were planning to journey in one party to Dawson, Y.T., and in another to British Columbia at the close of the meetings.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Dressmaker from Paris" is one of those features that women delight in. It shows a wonderful fashion parade and is a real extravaganza of lovely clothes.

Leatrice Joy is the heroine, Fifi, the little French midinette, who becomes Paris' foremost fashions designer, and Allan Forrest is the hero, Billy Brent, the American army officer with whom Fifi falls in love, just before he is ordered to the front.

After the war, Brent becomes junior partner in the Emporium, a department store in Clarion, Illinois, owner by Ernest Torronce, as Angus McGregor. Brent's ideas on selling are radically different to those of this partner, and he sends for the famous Madame Louise to stage a fashion show in the Emporium and bolster up trade. It is this fashion show which makes one of the dazzling bits of the feature picture.

Madame Louise, of course, is Fifi, his old sweetheart, and the two complicate matters terribly when Brent tried to explain to her that he is engaged to McGregor's daughter, and when she tries to live down a rakish past that has been manufactured by an energetic press agent to give more color to her eminence as a fashion designer. Two of Madame's manikins become involved in a roadhouse scandal, and the consequent indignation of Clarion is intense against the "foreign women." There are fourteen beautiful models in the picture, all hand picked, to add to its general atmosphere of colorful entertainment. With a good heart interest theme, beautiful girls and gorgeous gowns, combined with a great deal of comedy in the various situations, it is an interesting production.

AT THE ROYAL.

"LOST—A WIFE."

FOUND: That "something different" in motion pictures you've been looking for.

If ever there was a movie out of the ordinary, it is the William de Mille-Paramount production, 'Lost—a wife," which is the feature at the ROYAL Theatre.

'Lost—a Wife," is an adaptation by Clara Beranger of Alfred Savoirs Broadway stage success, "Banco." Adophe Menjou, Greta Nissen and Robert Agnew are featured in the leading roles in the cast.

The story is one of Tony Hamilton a young American travelling in France. Hamilton (Menjou), known at "Bet-a-thousand" Tony ,is happy only when he has a wager on his hands, and if there's nothing else to bet about he'll bet with friends on whether it is going to rain or not or something equally as foolish.

Anyway, he meets Charlotte Randoph, being dragged unwillingly across the continent by her mother in search of a title. Hamilton first sees her name on the hotel register and after losing a thousand dollars when he bets that "her face is awful" —this before he sees her—he becomes deeply interested in the girl and it isn't half an hour before he's betting friends that she never marries the duke her mother has picked out for her and even goes so far as to wager that he will marry her himself that very night. His friends take the bet, thinking he is crazy. Ensuing scenes, however, prove otherwise.

There's a honeymoon at Monte Carlo, a misunderstanding,a divorce followed by a reconciliation in some of the most unusaul scenes the screen has ever seen—perhaps the most unusual of these being when Menjou arrives at the church too late to prevent Miss Nissen's wedding to the count. It's a real laugh —not for Menjou, of course.

"Lost— a Wife" is notable for the fact that it marks Greta Nissen's first screen appearance. Paramount has done a lot of talking about this Norse newcomer lately, and when you see the picture you'll agree that they have something to talk about. Menjou gives his usual finished performance in this one, and Bobby Agnew is a convincing juvenile.

Edgar Norton as the count who marries Miss Nissen when she throws Menjou over, gives a great comedy characterization. Others in the cast are Mairo Carillo, Genaro Spagnoli, Eugenio di Liguoro, Henrietta Floyd, Toby Claude and Marcelle Corday.

KIDDIES 5 CENT MATINEE AT ROYAL—THURSDAY.

On Thursday, the Royal management have another treat for the children. The matinee on Thursday will be five cents. Jack Hoxie in "Flying Hoofs" and Jack Dougherty and Eileen Sedgwick in "The Fighting Ranger" will be the main attractions.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Marked Increase In Number Transactions In New York

NEW YORK, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Heavy profit taking in motors and a few tobaccos interrupted but failed to check the general uptrend of prices in Wall Street during the morning. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, sales in the first hour running well over a half million shares. New 1925 high records followed each other in quick succession, additions to the industrial list including Remington Typewriter, Brown Shoe, Montgomery Ward, General Motors, Case Threshing Machine, American Ice, Hayes Wheel and Chrysler. Rails also were in brisk demand, new peak prices in that group being established by 'Frisco Preferred, "Katy" Preferred, Atlantic Coast Line and Sea Board Line Common. Steels gave a good demonstration of group strength, with some of the buying influenced by expectations of an early increase in pig iron prices. White Motors, Sears Roebuck and Commercial Solvents A fell back 2 1-2 to 3 1-4 points, while Pierce Arrow Common and Preferred, Maxwell B, Tobacco Products and United Cigar sold a point or two below yesterday's final quotations. Call money opened unchanged at 4 per cent.

Active Trading In Mines With Gain In Most Issues

TORONTO, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was very active this morning, transactions numbering 164,515 shares. Cons. West Dome Lake was fractionally higher at 14 3-4 and McIntyre advance ten cents to 18.95. Teck Hughes was one down at 178 while Vipond Con. advanced two points to 12. Crown Reserve was down a half to 18 1-2, and Keeley advanced six points to 183. Mining Corporation was also strong at 257.

Crop Damage In Europe Send Grain Prices Up

CHICAGO, July 28.—(Canadian Press).— With reports at hand telling of untimely wet weather in western Europe, the wheat market here developed decided strength to-day after a wavering start. Crop damage in France from the recent rains was estimated at 30 per cent., it was pointed out, also that the price of Chicago Sept. delivery of wheat has declined in the last 6 weeks whereas an advance of 19 cents a bushel took place in the corresponding period a year ago. Chicago opening prices which ranged from 1c lower to 1-4c gain, Sept. 148 1-8 to 148 7-8 and Dec. 149 3-8 to 149 3-4 were followed by a rise to 150 1-8 for Sept. and 151 3-4 for December. Continued lack of adequate moisture led to higher prices for corn. After opening unchanged to 7-8c up. Sept. 104 1-4 to 104 1-2 the market scored a material advance all round. Oats were easy influenced by reports that yields in Iowa are better than expected.

Starting at 1-8 off to 1-4 up. Sept. 43 1-2 to 43 3-4, the market underwent a slight general sag.

Lower quotations on hogs tended to weaken provision markets.

Majority Of Issues Advanced Moderately

TORONTO, July 28. —(Canadian Press).— Though some natural recessions from the advance scored yesterday were in evidence, the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange was not materially weaker this morning, the majority of issues advancing moderately. Smelters continued the dominating stock with interest also centered in F. N. Burt. Burt's rise to 58 1-2 was a feature, though it receded to 56 at noon, unchanged from yesterday. Smelters sold up within a point of the peak at 115 then likewise receded closing at noon two points lower than yesterday at 112. British Columbia Fishing, next in activity climbed a point at 45, Atlantic Sugar strenghtened 3-4 at 34 3-4 and Winnipeg Rails 7-8 at 51 7-8. City Dairy and Canners common both eased off a full point. McIntyre featured the mines with a 35 cent gain at 819.

Just a Small Settlement of Log Cabins Near the Forest.

In the City Clerk's Office there is an engraving which pictures Peterboro as it was nearly a century ago. It is a reproduction of an etching by W. H. Lizars, drawn possibly between 1825 and 1830. Described under it is the caption "Village of Peterboro, in Upper Canada." On the right lower corner is the artist's name and opposite are the words "Drawn with the Camera Lucida, by Captain B. Hall, R. N."

The picture was framed by Mathias of the Artcraft Studio, and Mr. Armstrong says that it will be presented to the Public Library.

The foreground of the sketch shows a rail fence while in the middle distance there are several log cabins drawn up in a line, showing some semblance of a street.

The background is occupied by a dense forest.

"I have had this drawing etched merely on account of the interest of the spot itself, not on account of its picturesque effect. Peterborough is the name given to the headquarters of the emigrants sent out by the government in 1825. As that experiment has been eminently successful I have thought a sketch of a village might interest some people, particularly as its appearance is very characteristic of the raw aspect of these scenes.

"Five years ago the spot on which this thriving village is erected was a solitary forest. It is now busy with shops of all kinds, mills, schools, churches, markets and all the bustle of an active settlement."

STILL HOPE FOR ARMAMENT TALK

President Coolidge Sees Foundation in European Security Pact.

CALL AT RIGHT TIME.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 28 (Canadian Press).—The consummation of the European security pact, in the opinion of President Coolidge, would lay a broad foundation for further disarmament. Published reports that the President had given up hope for another armament conference were denied today at the summer White House, although it was pointed out that conditions in Europe are not yet propitious for initiating a definite move for a conference.

It was stated that there had been no change in the status of the proposal which thus far has been confined to preliminary and rather indefinite suggestions from the administration that it would make an effort to have a conference called whenever there appeared to be any likelihood of its going through to a successful termination.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS GILGOUR.

Thomas Gilgour, well known and respected citizen, died yesterday. He was founder of the baking business now known as T. Gilgour & Son, which he started 15 years ago. Mr. Gilgour came to Peterboro from Bobcaygeon where he had been farming and intended to retire, but instead he took up the occupation which has identified him in the city.

Mr. Gilgour was a member of St. Paul's church, and leaves to mourn his loss his wife, daughter, Mrs. Robert Candage of Seattle, son, Herbert, one brother, James, and one sister, Hannah, all of this city.

The remains will be at the chapel of D. Belleghem & Sons until Friday noon, July 31.

The funeral will be from the family residence, 633 George street, on Saturday, at 2.00 p.m., conducted by Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville. Interment will be at the Little Lake cemetery.

Montrealers Gaze At Miss With Gaudy Painted Legs

MONTREAL, July 28 (Canadian Press) — The first pair of painted legs to appear on the city streets astonished Montrealers this morning when at a busy crossing, a girl of about eighteen appeared with a gaudy design painted from her ankles to her knees.

MISLEADING SIGNS ON BORDER ROADS

United States Towns Try to Divert Tourist Traffic.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—A road war between the towns in the United States just across the International border, on the highways of the tourist route to Winnipeg, has been declared, it has become known here.

A sign reading, "road to Winnipeg impossible" erected at the junction of trunck highways, leading out of Crookston, Minn, Carlstad and Lancaster, for several days continued to be a source of trouble to motorists on their way to the Manitoba capital. This proved the firebrand, necessary to launch a road war.

Officials of the local Motor League to went to the Manitoba border to investigate discovered that the sign has been erected as the result of a misunderstanding, arising out of the keen competition by border towns, seeking to divert the tourist traffic. The road cautioned against was found to be in excellent condition.

PECULIAR FORTUNES.

The will of another man contained the clause, "I bequeath to my monkey, Jacko, the sum of £100 per annum, and to my faithful dog Shock, and my well-beloved cat, Tib a pension of five pounds."

A Frenchman left his fortune to his tortoise, and an old lady left her parrot to Queen Victoria on condition that 'her majesty publicly exhibits it before her court twice a year to prove that the person entrusted with its care has not wrung its neck.'

The Scottish national gallery came in for a windfall on one occasion. A man died and left a large fortune, and at least one picture he valued, called in his will, "Dear Old Dog Callum with a Dead Rat." This he offered to the gallery on the condition that it be hung in a conspicuous place, and, this condition being observed, the gallery received the residue of the testator's property.

Around The City.

A Detroit car will remember its visit to Peterborough. While rounding the corner at McDonnel and Aylmer at 5.30 yesterday evening the driver cut the corner, ran up on the sidewalk with brakes screeching and was stopped by a hydro pole. A lady was cut by flying glass from the shattered windshield and the driver had his face cut. Several other passengers escaped unhurt.

The fire department has enjoyed comparative peace since Friday as there have been no calls sent in.

GIRL SERIOUSLY HURT IN ASSAULT

7 YEARS OLD.

MONTREAL, July 28 (Canadian Press) — Seven year old Stella Littlejohn is in a serious condition in a hospital as the result of being brutally assaulted and forced to jump to the street through a second floor window to escape her assailant, Jack Barrable, who was charged today in police court with the offence and remanded until August 4th.

According to the evidence, Mrs. Barrable, wife of the accused, was confined on Sunday and asked Stella to come in to help with the housework while she was in bed. Last night, it was alleged, Barrable came home and attacked the child. His wife crawled from her bed to frustrate him but fainted on the floor. Breaking away from the man, Stella rushed to the window and jumped to the street. She may not recover.

PLANE RUM RUNNER.

Police Found Liquor in Airplane Forced to Land in Michigan.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 23 (Canadian Press).—The forced landing of an airplane near here has started an investigation of what officers believe is a conspiracy to transport liquor from Windsor, Ont., to Chicago, by air. The plane crashed in a meadow and the pilot fled. Sheriff Jerome Borden found more than 100 quarts of whiskey in the craft.

NEW DIRECTORS.

Two Montreal and One Ottawa Man on Montreal Bank Board.

MONTREAL, July 28 (Canadian Press)—Thos. Ahearn, of Ottawa, and J. W. McConnell and F. W. Molson, of Montreal, were elected directors of the Bank of Montreal at a meeting today of the bank.

NO DECISION FOR ELECTION AT SECOND SESSION OF CABINET

HON. CHAS. STEWART GOING TO GENEVA.

OTTAWA, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Tuesday's prolonged meeting of the Cabinet was productive of no announcement relative to an election. It is doubtful whether the Prime Miniser and members of the Government pursued the matter farther than to exchange views and discuss the situation in the country. At any rate, when the meeting broke up, after four hours of deliberation, covering most of the morning and part of the afternoon, the Prime Minister had no announcement to make. He left shortly after for his summer home not far from the city, and may not return until the Cabinet is again convened. The date for the meeting has not been announced.

The silence of Premier King on the question of an election was not unexpected. While it is practically certain that he and his ministers had a frank discussion in regard to the advisability of dissolving parliament and going to the country in October and November, it is very unlikely that anything is decided yet. Probably the final decision will await the result in New Brunswick, although even that may not prove a deciding factor. On the other hand, it is no doubt considered advisable to be prepared for anything, and this may account for the presence of Duncan Marshal, chief Liberal organizer in Ontario, and also a number of members of Parliament and supporters of the Government in the Capital.

Premier King announced that Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, had been chosen as one of the Canadian delegates to the League of Nations which meets at Geneva early in September. No election significance attaches to this, however. With Mr. Stewart will go Hon. R. Dandurand and Hon. P. C. Larkin, both of whom have attended the League meetings before. In the event of an appeal to the country, Mr. Stewart could be recalled, leaving the two other Canadians to represent the Dominions.

Long Distance Nose.

BELFAST, Ireland, July 29 —(United Press). — The Irish Civic Guards boasted today that they have in their ranks a man who can "smell a drink a mile away.

Because of his unusaul olfactory sense the Guards and Ulster police raiding an 18 mile frontier in the Monaghan-Fermanagh region made record bag moonshiners. The man with the long distance nose was able to lead his colleagues straight to the stills where potatoes were being distilled into potent Irish Whiskey. Girl runners employed by the moonshiners were outwitted.

ROD SPARED BY JAIL OFFICIALS

Court's Order of Ten Lashes Not Carried Out at Windsor.

WILL DEMAND IT.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 29.—(Canadian Press).—William Neville, 30 years old, Detroit, having not received the ten lashes ordered by Magistrate W. F. Cundy in police court at Windsor, July 18, when he was convicted of beating his sweetheart, Dorothy Harris, 23 years old of Hamilton, Ont., a demand will be made today by police court officials that the strap be applied in accordance with the order of the court.

Reports from the Essex County jail at Sandwich from an unofficial source led the officials to believe the court order in so far as the strapping was concerned, has been ignored. William A. Wanless, Governor of the jail, refused to say whether the strapping had been applied to Neville, but attaches intimated no one could be found to carry out the order.

A special leather strap, four feet long, with a wooden handle and a lash two inches wide at one end and tapering to a point at the other was ordered when it was found the jail equipment did not include an instrument of punishment.

In addition to the strapping ordered by the court, Neville was sentenced to 30 days in the jail.

LABOR PARTIES SUPPORT INDIA'S AUTONOMY PLEA

Conference in London Favors Demand of India For Self Government.

J. SIMPSON THERE.

Toronto Labor Man Says Canada Backward in Adopting Labor Agreements.

LONDON, July 29.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The conference of representatives of Labor parties in Great Britain and the various dominions, which is being held in Westminister, passed a resolution Tuesday supporting the demand of India for immediate self-government.

A discussion of international labor legislation ended without a resolution being passed but the chairman, W. Simpson, a South African delegate, submitted as the opinion of the meeting that for future conferences the international labor office at Geneva should be pressed to give representation to the crown colonies and protectorates in mandated territories.

In the course of the discussion James Simpson, Toronto, said he was sorry to say that Canada was one of the most backward nations in the world in the ratification of the most important conventions. The federal government of Canada, he said, denied that it was responsible for this, and the provincial governments also denied that they were responsible, so between the two there was practically no hope at the present time. Nevertheless, he believed in the potentialities of the international labor conference and he pointed out that these could be rendered more valuable still, as could also those of the league of nations, as the constituent countries moved in the direction of electing labor governments.

The stores that carry well known lines in stock and persistently advertise that fact, find sales greater and more easily made, because their goods give better satisfaction.

WAR LOSSES IN A NUTSHELL.

LONDON, July 29.—(United Press).—After several years' work, the League of Nations has finished the first complete assessment of the material losses of the World War, officially compiled from all the nations that participated.

Known dead	9,998,771
Presumed dead	2,991,800
Seriously wounded	6,295,512
Otherwise wounded	14,002,039
Direct cost of the war	$186,333,637,097
Property loss of the war	29,960,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of life	33,551,276,280

In assessing the capitalized value of life loss the League figures the value of a human life for war purposes at $4,720 for Americans; $4,140 for British; $2,900 for French.

TERRIER FREED HURT BUT SAFE

Doomed Dog Discharged From Police Station This Morning.

INJURY ATTENDED.

The terrier that was brought into the Police Station, yesterday, was reclaimed last night by its owner, J. Bell, Bethune Street. The police officials seemed to be very much pleased over its escape from the impending execution that had been set for to-day, and were quite enthusiastic over the friendly and cheerful demeanor of this dog, was brought in with a broken leg. A veterinary was summoned during the afternoon and bound up its leg, the dog licking the hand of its benefactor after the operation. A citizen who was in the Station at the time reached into a generous pocket and paid the expenses of the trip.

TREATY FRAMER AS PACT CRITIC

Ex-Premier Nitti Forsees That Versailles Treaty Will Be Revised.

MORE ARMED MEN.

LONDON, July 29. — (United Press). — Ex-premier Nitti of Italy, one of the framers of the Versailles Treaty, forsees that its revision will come.

He so wrote, the United Press today, responding to a request for his reaction to the utterances of Admiral Von Rebeur Psachwitz, ex-Kaiser Willhelms aide which showed that Wilhelm was convinced that the treaty 'must be scrapped." But Nitti enroute to lecture at Cambridge, declared in no uncertain words that it "is not Wilhelm who should tell us what to do."

"We cannot forget his responsibility," wrote Niti, recording his thoughts on this the eleventh anniversary of the firing of the first shot in the world war.

"I have criticized the Treaty of Versailles, "wrote Nitti. "Even Clemenceau has avowed it was conceived as a method of continuing war. To continue war is not peace.

"There was only one Alsace-Loraine, but after the war there are six or seven. There was only one Austria-Hungary now there are six or seven.

"We have 1,000,000 more men under arms than before the war.

"There are absurdities like the Danzig corridor that can be maintained."

WALES IS ON WAY TO SOUTH AMERICA

H.M.S. Repulse Will Call at Isle of St. Helena En Route For Montevideo.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 29. — Canadian Press. — The Prince of Wales and his party departed today for South Africa on board H.M.S. Repulse.

Before leaving by motor for Simon's Town to board the Repulse, the Prince had luncheno with the Governor General, the Earl of Athlone, and the Countess of Athlone.

The Repulse will call at St. Helena on August 3rd, leaving there two days later for Montevideo, Uruquay.

It is expected that the battleship will drop anchor in the outer roads of Montevideo on August 14th.

SURRENDER OF BANKRUPT MUSIC PUBLISHER IN WINNIPEG END OF LONG HUNT ON TWO CONTINENTS

Gave Statement to Newspaper, Then Offered Himself to the Authorities.

HAS NO MONEY.

Jos. X. Hearst Declares He Can Account For Every Cent.

WINNIPEG, July 29. — Canadian Press.—Hunted by the police of two continents for more than seven months, Joseph Xavier Hearst, the former head of the defunct Hearst Music Publishing Company of Canada, surrendered to the local authorities yesterday.

With a casual greeting to the chief of police the writer of popular songs, and reputed financial wizard, introduced himself: "I understand that there is a warrant out for my arrest, and I am here to face any charge there is against me," he calmly declared. He was placed in custody for appearance in court this morning.

Auditing of the firms books revealed a complete financial collapse of the corporation.

According to a statement given by Hearst to the Winnipeg Tribune before he surrendered, the prodigal "Jazz Wizard" declared that he had reached Winnipeg at 11 o'clock in the morning, and had attended to one or two matters in the meantime.

Following is the text of the voluntary declaration:

"I desire to say that it is for the sake of my wife and children that I am surrendering myself. No one can say that I have obtained a cent of this cash, or that I went away with any.

"The situation now is that I have no money; my family has no money, but it is my desire to surrender to the law and straigthen matters out. If I took any money belonging to the company or the shareholders it would have to be proven.

"The account of losses of the company, as I have read them in the newspapers, are greatly exaggerated and in some cases fictitious. I will do all I can to straighten out the tangle."

"I can account for every copper received by the company and also tell where it went. It will be difficult to find where there has been any personal gain for Joe Hearst."

As the result of insistent demands of a number of the company's leading shareholders, the financial collapse of the firm was aired in the Provincial Legislature during the last session. Facts brought out showed that stock had been sold throughout the province at a price considerably above par. An official investigation was ordered with a view to amending the sales of shares act and a means to prevent victimization of the unsuspecting public.

A statement issued by the authorized accountants after the crash indicated that the huge business reported as having been done by the company was almost wholly fictitious. The books se the 1924 business at $733,000, of which $542,000 was declared to be bogus.

The assets of the company were placed at $30,023, with liabilities of $46,854. Among the general creditors was the Dominion government with a claim of $11,353.

Ottawa Conservatives May Offer Meighen Nomination

OTTAWA, July 29.—(Canadian Press)—The Journal prints the following news story Tuesday afternoon:

"As a solution of the problem of selecting an English-speaking candidate to carry the Conservative banner here in the coming Federal election, the suggestion has been made to the Ottawa Conservative Association that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Opposition, be offered the nomination. The suggestion, it is reported, meets with favor among some of the leading members of the party organization. Mr. Meighen now sits for the County Grenville, where a seat was found him after his defeat in his old riding of Portage L. Prairie at the last general election. It is not known whether Mr. Meighen has made up his mind as to the seat he will contest in the coming election. He and his family have been residents of Ottawa for some years."

PORT ALFRED MILLS GET TIMBER LIMITS

Pulp and Paper Company Purchase Virgin Spruce in Peribouka Watershed.

MONTREAL, July 29. — Canadian Press.—The Port Alfred Pulp and Paper Corporation was a successful bidder at a sale of the timber limits in the Peribonka River watershed, held in Quebec, by the Provincial government this morning.

The limit, in Peribonka aggregate 1500 square miles of virgin spruce, which it is said practically assures Port Alfred Mills of a perpetual supply of pulpwood. The transaction will bring close on a million dollars in revenue to the province.

QUAKE PROPHET SUPPRESSED IN OWN HOMELAND

Italian Government Discourages Predictions of Prof. Bendandi—Ottawa is Skeptical.

NO RECORD SUNDAY.

Has Prophesied Tremors in Japan on Thursday, July 30.

OTTAWA, July 29. — Canadian Press. — A statement issued Tuesday from the office of the Dominion Seismologist, E. A. Hodgson, criticizes the earthquake predictions of Prof. Bendandi, of Italy. It reads:

"The newspapers of July 23 announced that Prof. Bendandi of Italy predicted severe earthquakes in Alaska on July 25-26, and in Japan on July 30. The evening papers of July 27 gave out the news that Bendandi's seismograph recorded a distant earthquake on Sunday morning, July 25. Presumably he wishes this to be considered as a fulfilment of prophecy.

"However, the seismographs at the Dominion Observatory, sensitive enough to record any earthquake in the world which could be termed violent or even moderate, and in continuous operation, gave no indication of tremors at any time during July 25-26, not even at the time indicated by Bendandi. This does not imply that the earthquake was not recorded in Italy, but it does prove conclusively that it was a light one, and certainly did not occur in Alaska.

"Agamennone, the Italian seismologist, says: 'Bendandi evidently works on the laws of chance and predicts enough earthquakes to have a fair average of success. He asks 24 hours' leeway in his predictions, and with this and the number of tremors that actually occur he could scarcely fail to be right sometimes.

"Since January 1, 1925, two hundred and nineteen shocks have been recorded at Ottawa, epicentres being located in the various seismic regions of the earth. Over a period of 30 years, 38 earthquakes a month have been recorded in Italy. Japan has 1500 shocks a year or four a day. It will be interesting to see whether Japan manages to avoid having an earthquake next Thursday, July 30.

"The Italian government has suppressed Bendandi's predictions so far as Italy is concerned. He has thus transferred them to other areas farther afield. It is unfortunate that his guesses are noted—the failures forgotten. He attempts in his last bulletin to bolster up his predictions by a statement, true word by word, but misleading nevertheless."

U. S. Quota Immigrants Assembling At Windsor

WINDSOR, July 29. — (Canadian Press). — Immigrants from Belgium, Holland and Germany flocked to the border-der yesterday to enter the United States in time for the August 1 quota. Most of them arrived at Quebec, taking special trains for this district. Those who planned to take up farm life in the Peninsula comprising Kent and Essex stopped at Chatham and Kingsville and other points in the district.

NO ELECTION SIGN SAYS G.N. GORDON

Cabinet Members Do Not Seem To Have Early Appeal in Mind.

COAL CRISIS.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M. P., was in Ottawa yesterday and said he met all the members of the Cabinet except two. Every member of the Government seemed to be looking well, and the Minister of Customs appeared as if he had made a complete recovery. The Federal member said that the only election talk seemed to be in the newspapers, because the various members do not seem to have in mind that there will be an early election.

Mr. Gordon said that the disturbed conditions in the coal mining districts is causing the Government grave concern, because if the strike continues in large proportions, in England, the result will be that the coal would go from America to England and the Canadian consumers might have difficulty in getting supplied this winter, in view of the fact, that there is a coal strike threatened in the West, and the Nova Scotia coal strike is still continuing. Everybody according to Mr. Gordon was getting in his coal to be ahead of any danger that might take place.

CHARLOTTE STREET MERCHANTS JOIN GEORGE STREET PROTEST AGAINST STREET CAR PURCHASE

Pithy or Lengthy, Chorus is Unanimous Against Proposed Deal.

SOME SUGGESTIONS.

Bus Service Would Be More Flexible and Might Be Diverted.

All the Charlotte Street merchants who were available were interviewed this morning on the question of the proposal that the City should take over the street railway service. The following are their expressions of opinion

J. Lonergan said he was willing to abide by the decision of the majority, even though it meant travelling on foot or horseback.

V. J. Tully said: A firm seldom desires to part with a paying business. The City has enough liabilities at present, and is not in a financial position to enter into any speculations.

S. Whatley's reasoning was: The system is not paying. The Hydro can't make it pay and I don't see how the City can. There are not enough cars and not a good enough service to make the thing pay its way."

N. M. Henry gave the result of personal observation: On Sunday I saw five cars pass without a single traveller in them. The City has no right to take the railway over under such conditions."

A. H. Fisher believes buses could cope with the transportation problem better than the street railway is doing. They are just as quick and are handier and their upkeep would be less expensive. The City should own the buses. In slack times in the City, on holidays for instance some of the buses could be diverted to holiday routes, making trips to nearby resorts like Chemong."

C. V. Dunston, manager of the Dominion Store, expressed himself Not in favor. I think the proposal if carried out will mean more expense to the town.

Many Big Questions

M. J. Maher, an ex-Alderman, said "Conditions are changing. If a man owned a livery in the town and found himself being put out of business by the increasing use of automobiles, and made no attempt to adapt himself to the changed conditions, he would not be justified in going to the city asking it to purchase his business and get him out of a difficulty he had got into through his own apathy. This is just what the Hydro is doing. In Woodstock the stockholders and shareholders, realizing the day of the street railway is over, have decided to junk the system in which their money is invested. The same is true of Meridian, Connecticut. I heard of other two towns just about the size of Peterboro that are also scrapping the street cars. Our debenture debt is high enough. We have the sewage plant on our hands, and a big school question coming up before us soon.

"If the Hydro can't work the street railway let them put it up on the market and some enterprising private corporation might take it up. I am opposed to the city touching the project in any shape or form. The question of running buses instead of the cars is one that should also be considered."

A. Pearson's comment was "I don't think it a good proposal. I wouldn't buy the system if I had the money."

R. G. Sturgeon was brief and emphatic. "No damned good," was the opinion of the matter he left at his place of business for the Examiner.

G. Irwin counsels the city "not to take it at all. People soon won't be able to live here for paying rent and taxes."

F. W. White said "The system is killing itself. Let the service be reduced and the cost lessened!" He

MIXTURES DRIVE MOSQUITOES AWAY

Department of Agriculture Recommends Varnishing Tourists' Pelt in Wilderness.

Certain protective mixtures applied to the skin are of great value in warding off mosquitoes, black-flies, and similar pests, especially when the insects are very numerous. A number of formulas for such mixtures are given in a pamphlet on the methods of protection against mosquitoes, just issued by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

A mixture recommended by the author is composed of 3 ounces of oil of citronelle, 1 of spirits of camphor, 1 of oil of tar, 1-4 of an ounce of oil of pennyroyal, and from 4 to 6 ounces of castor oil.

Another mixture consists of 2 oz. of oil of citronella, 1-8 an ounce of pennyroyal, and 2 ounces of castor oil. The castor oil is included to prevent injury to the skin. Tallow may be used instead if it is desired to have the mixture in the form of a paste.

When the insects are abundant it is necessary to apply the mixture at least once every half hour, using liberal quantities and rubbing it thoroughly over the hands and face. Care should be taken to have a sufficient quantity of a mixture when on an extended trip in the woods. At least an ounce per person per day is necessary if the flies are anyway abundant. The mixture should be carried in a small aluminum flask or a screw top tin, but not in a glass bottle as it is apt to break.

The information contained herein should be preserved for future reference.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

CAMPBELLFORD FIRE LOSS ONLY $1,000 IN FIRST HALF OF THE YEAR

PROVE EFFICIENCY.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 29.—The fire department was called out 25 times during the first six months of the year and the total loss of property was less than $1,000. In the majority of cases the use of the chemical apparatus was all that was required to put out the fire. The brigade did good work outside the corporation, responding to the fire at Peter Bound's sawmill last Spring and helping to save the house and other buildings near the mill from destruction.

Another outside fire at which the brigade did good service was the one that destroyed the residence of William Cock in East Seymour. The Town Council has on previous occasion asked the township authorities for some compensation for sending the apparatus outside the limits, but so far nothing has been received.

The Firemen's Salaries.

The members of the brigade who respond to fire alarms so promptly and whose efficient work has kept the fire loss in Campbellford below that of any other town of equal population in Ontario ever since the new truck went into commission, asked the Council, early in the year, for a slight raise in pay, but they are still working on the old schedule.

There are at present 17 men on the payroll of the brigade and the members voluntarily offered to reduce this number to 12. Chief C. H. Davidson is paid $50 a year, his two assistants draw $40 and $30, and the other members $25 a year each.

The new scale asked for by the brigade for the 12 men was as follows: $75 a year for the chief; $60 for his assistant and $50 each for those in the ranks. If the men were on duty at a fire longer than 60 minues, the chief was to receive $1 an hour and the remainder of the brigade 75 cents each for the extra time put in.

Council's Proposition Rejected.

Councillor Moore, chairman of the fire committee, brought in a new scale of pay which was much lower than the one submitted by the brigade. Consideration of this report was postponed in order that a conference might be held with the firemen. The latter, however, were so unanimously opposed to the schedule that the proposed meeting was never called, and the matter was allowed to drop.

Visits Old Town.

William Kenny, who 20 years ago was an employee of the shoe factory here, and who now resides in Toronto, is on a visit here, the guest of Harry Meiklejohn. Twelve years ago, Mr. Kenny returned to Campbellford, remaining about six months. On a visit to the local shoe factory yesterday, he found working there the majority of the employees who were here when he left, many of whom he had trained in the art of making shoes.

To Judge Horses.

Dr. G. A. Hay has been appointed judge of light and heavy horses at the Fall Fairs, and his first appointment will be at the Morrisburg Exhibition the girst week in August. He will also officiate at the Fair at Carp, near Ottawa, and at Pieton.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Haw of Campbellford spent the week-end at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Haw, Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. John Craighead and daughter, Miss Dorothy, are visiting the former's brother, George Craighead, at Burnbrae, and relatives at Havelock.

DUNK MAY RECOVER.

Brother Returns From Visit To Niagara Falls Yesterday.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 29. — William Dunk, brother of Albert E. Dunk, the young man who has figured so prominently in the press despatches this week, following his experiences at Niagara Falls, returned home last night. With Robert, another brother, Mr. Dunk left on Monday for Niagara Falls, as soon as he learned of his brother's plight. Robert is still with the latter. The two brothers motored from Belleville to Niagara Falls, with Richard Arnott, the injured man's father-in-law.

Mr. Dunk's report is that while his brother is badly hurt, the X-ray examination showed that his injuries are not so serious as was at first supposed. Albert E. has a fighting chance for his life, the chief fear of the doctors being that he will develope a case of pneumonia.

Little importance is attached by the friends here to the conflicting stories that have been told with regard to the affair. The general impression is that no man after such an experience could be expected to give a coherent account of what had really happened to him.

TO KEEP TROOPS IN EGYPT

British Defence Committee Says Their Presence There is Vital.

LONDON, July 29.—The Daily Express says that the Committee on Imperial Defence, to which Ramsay MacDonald referred the question of British military policy in Egypt, has reported that it is of vital strategical consequence to maintain adequate British forces on the banks of the Suez Canal, adequate naval patrols on the canal itself, and that with a review to insuring the safety of these forces the present British garrison at Cairo must be maintained as it is now.

The paper adds that the Cabinet has accepted the report, which will form the basis of the British policy.

JUDGE HUYCKE HEARS APPEAL

JUDGMENT LATER.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 29. — His Honour Judge E. C. S. Huycke, of Peterboro, was here on Tuesday to hear the appeal of Arthur Tripp against assessment made by the Town Council on his property for the construction of the Napier and Kent Streets sewer. The only witnesses examined were Town Clerk McGregor and Mr. Tripp. G. A. Payne appeared for the plaintiff and Town Solicitor Lynch looked after the interests of the municipality. After the evidence had been taken it was decided to have the lawyers submit their arguments in writing to Judge Huycke who will render his decision later.

A Complicated Case.

Some time ago, the town purchased from E. C. Bonnycastle who at that time owned the property in question, the right of way for the sewer in order to get an outlet. Mr. Tripp claims that the sewer is of no benefit to him. He appealed to the court of revision and his assessment was reduced by nearly 50 per cent. but he refused to accept this finding. Hence the appeal to the judge.

Funeral of James Linn.

A large number from here attended the funeral of the late James Linn, of Rawdon, held yesterday afternoon to the Burnbrae cemetery. After the internment; the pastor, Rev. D. A. McKenzie, assisted by Rev. Hugh Shaw, conducted religious services in the church.

The pall-bearers were four sons and two sons-in-law of the deceased, Bogart Robert, William and Alfred Linn, and Jonhathan Thain and Samuel Wallace.

Officers on the Alert.

Two members of the Provincial Police were here taking samples of the 4.4 beer which is on sale locally, these samples he sent to Toronto for analysis. Residents who are season in sumptuary matters are ready to confer the crown as an expert analyst upon the man who by minute scientific examination can detect anything bearing the faintest resemblance to a kick in the new beverage.

Personals.

Mrs. Margaret Massie of Wilton, Maine, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Moir, Centre street, and with other friends in town and district.

Miss Fay Hind of Toronto, is visiting her uncle, A. P. Hind, Front street.

PALLISER TOURIST PARTY HOME AGAIN

Campbellford's Deputy-Reeve Motored Two Weeks.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 29.—Deputy-Reeve Palliser and Councillor W. J. Abernethy, accompanied by their families and the former's brother, have returned from a two-weeks' auto trip through Western Ontario. They travelled in two cars, camping out at night, and visited all the chief points of interest on the way. The returned tourists, like others who have made the same journey, say that in no place are the crops as promising as in Central Ontario. There has been a lack of rain west of Toronto and pastures and spring grain have been shriveled by dought, but fall wheat looks well everywhere.

FOR THE AUTUMN SEASON

The Parisian designers have all but completed their models for the coming autumn season and will formally place them on display the first day of August. Above are two suggestions for the coming season. At the left is a new creation of the popular printed crepe in mauve and cream with collar and a "V" neck throat opening. The tie is of black ribbon and falls almost to the hem of the skirt, which is seen to be of much longer than on current models. At the right is a trimmed with black fox on the nar- straight-line coat of grey Bolivia row collars and cuffs.

STAPLES FAMILIES RE-UNION ON AUG. 5

Meeting of Clan Will Be Held in Cobourg.

CAVAN, July 28. — The following invitation has been sent to the "Staples Families" and all descendants:

"Big reunion of Staples Clan:

"You are cordially invited to attend a big re-union of the Staples Clan in Cobourg on Wednesday, Aug 5, 1925. A decoration of the grave in St. John's cemetery, Cavan, of Thomas Staples, father of the clan in Canada, will take place on Sunday, August 2nd, at 3 p.m.

"Be sure and plan to attend and see that all members of your branch of the family who possibly can will be there.

"Kindly notify any member of the Staples clan who may be near you, or anyone who is connected with the family so that no one will be overlooked.

"Wellington Staples, President,
"Baltimore.
"Edgar Staples, Secretary,
"Enniskillen, Ont."
"A. J. Staples, Secretary and Treasurer, Orono, Ont."

It is expected that there will be a large gathering.

Mr. Edgar Fallis and family have moved up from Millbrook to live with Mr. L. Hutchison on his farm.

Mr. Charles Miller and son Earl, who have spent some time with Mr. Hutchison, have gone to visit Mr. Miller's sister.

Miss M. Billings, Aurora, is visiting Miss Kelly.

Mr Norman Gillis visited his sister Mrs B. Ballantyne, Toronto, at the week end. Mrs. Ballantyne is in a hospital, critically ill.

The many friends of Mr. A. Fisher, Cavan, will be pleased to know that he has so far recovered after his operation in Dr. Turner's private hospital Millbrook, as to be able to return on Saturday to his home in Cavan village.

Harvesting of Excellent Crop Is Seriously Delayed.

TORONTO, July 29—Agricultural anxieties were greatly increased in some parts of Ontario yesterday by the heavy and long-continued showers which fell all through the southwestern end of the province. Central Ontario was also well soaked. In many of these districts, as also in eastern Ontario, the weather has been so wet this summer that hay crops have lain for weeks in the fields, the farmers being unable to get them dried and into the barns between showers. The harvesting of fall wheat, which promised generally a good crop, has also been seriously interfered with. There are hundreds of acres with the grain in stook, and also considerably more over-ripe for the mower.

Dry Spell Needed

Unless these parts of the province are soon treated to a fair spell of dry weather the consequences to the season's crops will be very serious.

Meantime, of course, pasturage is improving greatly with the copious showers and growers of vegetables and fruit are benefiting considerably. It's very ill summer weather that helps nobody's garden in Ontario.

MODESTY?

And speaking of modesty, as most people do at one time or another, was it or was it not de Pachmann, the famous pianist, who summarized world conditions by declaring: "Chopin and I—we still exist. What else really matters?"

POLES EVICTING 35,000 GERMANS

Bloodless War on the German-Polish Border—Even Under Ground.

GERMAN REPRISALS.

BEUTHEN, Silesia (On the German-Polish Frontier). July 29. — Here, where the League of Nations cleft a zig-zag line, perhaps the craziest and most erratic national boundary in the world, an artificial border line already glowing red hot with hatred, sinister sparks are flying in a tariff and economic war between Germany and Poland.

Although bloodless, this war is not without much attendant suffering, and scenes that remind of war days. Poland has served notice on 35,000 Germans living in what was former German territory, but now Polish, to leave the country because they voted to remain German citizens.

Four-Day Time Limit.

The first 15,000 must be across the line into Germany within four days, and 20,000 more must leave their home by October 1.

On the German side 10,000 Poles are being mobilized to be shoved across the crazy line into Poland in reprisal, although no official orders for this exodus from Germany have yet been issued.

Multiply the troubles of moving one family by thousands of times and add to it that the majority know not where to put their meagre belongings out of the weather, and you get the merest glimpse of the miseries of some of these peoples and of the difficulties of the authorities on both sides of the border to take care of their respective nationals.

At another point the line splits a big iron works. The rolling mills are in Poland and the manufacturing end is in Germany. An old woman complained:

"My chickens run across into Poland and I have to have a passport to gather my eggs."

On the German side extensive preparations are being made to care for refugees, as the column of groaning, cracking, rickety covered wagons, a miniature replica of covered wagon days out west, lumbers across the line.

Double Search.

The movers are first searched by the Polish and fifty yards further by the German frontier guards.

Besides the wagon parade there is a thin line of men, women and children, carrying bundles, dribbling over into Germany, twice stopped and twice searched.

A neatral strip from fifty to a hundred yards wide separates the two lines of guards, who seldom speak to each other.

One feels here that even the vast coal fields are smouldering with sullen resentment, and in fact some of their tunnels have been amputated deep under the ground where iron gates mark the German-Polish frontier.

The discussion on illuminated signs brought up the question of those which are not illuminated in cord with the by-law, the City Engineer asking for instructions. Alderman Greene contended that, while the attention of the merchants should be called to the fact that the signs should be illuminated half an hour after sunset until ten o'clock, some judgment should be shown in enforcing it, owing to the poor business conditions and the fact that it would cost a considerable sum to fix the signs so that the night watchman could urn off the power at 10.00 o'clock.

A letter from Gordon and O'Brien called attention to the fact that water runs on the property of Mrs. Clegg, on Benson avenue. It was claimed by the members of the committee that the water follows its natural course and that the hole through the sidewalk on Benson street only permitted the water to pass under instead of over the walk.

The G. Walter Green Company wrote charging discrimination in the purchase of manhole covers, on which, the letter said, the Green Company's price is lower than that paid by the city. It was said by Mr. Parsons that this business was given the Green Company for years until it was decided to send it around a little and at the present time the Adam Hall Company gets the business because, averaging the price on manhole and catchbasin covers, the Hall price is a little lower. The difference in price is because of slight differences in weight, said Mr. Parsons, the price per pound being approximately the same.

The Board recommended to the council that it concur in a resolution forwarded by the Oshawa City Council asking for relief from the construction of suburban roads. A letter from three ratepayers on Armour road protesting against the construction of a sidewalk in front of their properties was received and no action taken, as the time for protesting had been advertised. The Board recommended to the council the construction of a sewer on Crescent street and the obtaining of an easement from Crescent street to Ware street to provide for it.

Paving was the subject of quite a discussion but nothing was done, the matter being left to the council. The construction of a cinder path across Victoria Park with curbing and gutter would cost about $450, said Mr. Parsons, and the work was recommended to be done when there is money to do it, probably next year. After the meeting a number of the Aldermen went to view the sidewalk in front of the White House, Messrs. Gordon and O'Brien having entered a complaint on behalf of Mr. White, because water flows over the sidewalk into his cellar.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD A. PAYNE

Richard A. Payne died this morning at his residence in North Monaghan after a protracted illness having attained the age of 55 years, 6 months.

He leaves to deplore his loss his wife, two sons, Earnest and Kenneth of Monaghan and one brother E. L. Payne of this city.

The funeral service will be held on Friday at 2.30 p.m. under the direction of Commandant Smith. The body will be taken from the late residence to the Salvation Army Temple, thence to Little Lake cemetery.

GUESTS OF FARMERS.

WINDSOR, July 29. —(Canadian Press).— Sixty fruit growers of Lincoln County were the guests last night of Essex County farmers at a banquet in Leamington.

MONEY SALVED MOTOR MISHAP

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast Injured on Trip to London.

OMEMEE, July 28. — (Canadian Press).— Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast, of Omemee accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Lethangue, her husband and their young son, of Ballyduff returned on Saturday from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Poast, of London. The party, who motored from Omemee, a week ago, had a miraculous escape from death when a large car collided with theirs near Mimico, at 9.30 a.m. on the first day of their trip. The other motorist who was driving on the right, instead of the left, struck the Omemee car with such force as to wreck it almost completely. Mr. Poasts' shoulder was injured, Mrs. Poast is suffering from a swollen and injured foot. The suit case, which was in the back of the car was split in two as was also the straw hat worn by Mr. Lethangue. Other members of the party were uninjured.

The careless motorists who, by the way is a man of some prominence in Toronto, proved himself a gentleman in his courtesy and treatment of the party, paying all expenses, which all told amounted to nearly three hundred dollars. The party were taken in a taxi back to the Union Station where tickets to London and return were secured for them. The car was repaired, during the week and the party arrived safely home thankful that their adventure ended without more serious injury.

BOY DROWNED.

Bathing Close to Piers in the Rouge River at Pickering.

TORONTO, July 29 (Canadian Press)—Alfred Joseph Souray, aged nine years, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Souray, Toronto, was drowned while bathing close to the piers of an old bridge in Rouge River near Pickering, on Monday afternoon.

WOMAN'S CURIOSITY.

Removed from office for tampering with mail, the postmistress of a town in Pennsylvania confesses: "Just a woman's curiosity led me to open letters that came into my charge." She has been held for trial by a United States commissioner.

A grotesque mistake by the postmistress led to discovery of her misconduct. In her haste, after taking two letters from their envelopes, she put the wrong letter in each envelope. A Catholic priest, in an envelope addressed to him, received a love letter from a woman in New York intended for a man who, in turn, received the very proper letter intended for the priest.—New York American.

THE ADVANCING MOTOR BUS.

(Kingston Whig)

The abandonment of the Ingersoll, Woodstock and Thames Valley Electric Railway signalizes another triumph for the motor bus. All over this continent both steam and electric street railways are feeling the increasing competition from this new form of transportation. The Minister of Railways intimated to Parliament a few weeks ago that automobiles had taken $24,000,000 from the steam railways of Canada in 1924. The loss of revenue in the United States was more than ten times that amount.

We are, in fact, in contact with conditions, through the introduction of the motor bus, which create an acute problem for the railways to solve. They are losing revenues on a rising scale in both the passenger and freight departments. Public interest in the matter attaches to the vital question of rates. To maintain adequate service it may become necessary to increase the tolls. In some instances the railways are trying to save themselves by abandoning branch lines and substituting a motor bus and truck service. In others they are carrying on both steam and auto services. We are evidently going to see important changes in the transportation realm as time proceeds.

SCRAPPING THE RAILS.

From many quarters one hears bad reports of electric railways—reports of deficits, of suspended services, even of the rails being torn up and scrapped. The latest line to succumb in this Province is the Woodstock-Ingersoll Electric Railway, which has served those two towns and the intervening territory for twenty-five years. The company which operates it has decided to scrap the whole equipment and operate a line of motor busses instead. Its franchise will automatically cease when it stops operating.

In return for its franchise the company has contributed to Woodstock's revenue in the form of rental as well as taxes. This revenue will now be lost. That is a rather serious feature of the failure of electric traction to compete with bus service. Bus lines can never be as fruitful a source of municipal revenue as are local electric railways. Hamilten's street railway contributes more than a hundred thousand dollars to the city in percentages, mileage and tax revenue. Were the company to abandon its rails and cars and operate motor busses, as was rumored recently, the city would lose most of this revenue.

However, competition from busses and private motor cars has so lowered the value of electric railway franchises that it is not to be expected that, if the street railway franchise be renewed, the city will be able to negotiate an agreement so favorable as the present one.—Hamilton Herald.

NO RAILWAY REMEDY IN THIS.

Ottawa is filled with rumors of a new plan, to be sponsored by the Government, which will remedy the railway problem. Despatches from the Advertiser's Ottawa correspondent, E. C. Buchanan, have indicated an expectation in political circles that such a plan is to be offered as an election issue for approval by the people of Canada.

For the success of the plan, if there be one, as well as for the safety of national interests, it is to be hoped that it is not based upon the railway proposals of the Senate.

The Senate Committee would solve the railway problem by amalgamating the C. N. R. and the C. P. R. under a joint directorate of fifteen members, five to be chosen by the Government, five by the C. P. R. and another five by these ten.

The selection of this directorate is risky enough, the real nigger in the woodpile emerges in the ...nent guarantee of a dividend to the C. P. R. ...to that which it now enjoys. After this was ...he Senate would give the C. N. R. similar divi... possible, and if there were then a surplus it ...be divided between the two. In other words, ...P. R. would be better than a preferred stock... ...ecause it would hold a prior and guaranteed ... the earnings of the partnership plus the com... ...ckholder's chance of a split in the surplus.

...e Senate's plan is unsafe. In effect it would ...se than selling the C. N. R. outright to the C. ... Under any Government, particularly under a ...vative Government, it would be likely to mean ...R. domination of the joint board, an improper ...ization of the C. N. R. on which the public's ...d would be calculated, safety and an assured ...d for the C. P. R. with all the risks assumed ... Government and thus by the taxpayer.

...o such plan touches the fundamental cause of ...lway problem. It lies neither in bookkeeping, ...in financing, nor in systems of organization. It ...sists of the simple fact that Canada has a duplica...on and even a triplication of miles of railway for ...hich no nation of Canada's population can supply ...fficient business. These duplicated and triplicated ...les of railway are taking money from Canadian ...kets, be they C. P. R. tracks or C. N. R., and the ...edy must deal with the elimination of the losing ...es. The Senate's plan merely divides the money in ...or of the C. P. R.—London Advertiser.

CANADA'S GLORIOUS OPPORTUNITIES.

Canada steps to the fore again. This time it is in the aluminum industrial field. The recently announced deal between Mr. J. B. Duke and the Aluminum Company of America will bring millions to this country, and eventually establish the Canadian plant as headquarters. In other words, it will bring Canada to the forefront of the world in aluminum.

Estimates differ on the estimated capital it will bring, but the lowest says $100,000,000. That is a Montreal figure. A Toronto paper, less conservative and more eager, perhaps, to justify existing policies in the country, says a half-billion eventually, with an initial outlay of $100,000,000.

The new industry will be established on the Saguenay River, in Quebec, and will need from 600,000 to 750,000 horse-power of hydro-electric energy. It will create a city of $50,000 according to estimates, and will provide business for a steamship line plying between Canada and British Guiana, where the raw supplies are secured.

The first point that strikes home is that at this rate Canada will be able to keep up with all her power development. She need not and should not export hydro power to the United States in the future, beyond existing contracts.

That leads on to other arguments. It was the available hydro-electric power that could be developed at comparatively low rates, which proved a primary lure to the aluminum interests. Canada's resources play the first role in getting her a reputation. The next step is her forests. Canada should be without question the foremost country in the newsprint industry. Her resources are immense, and the demand is enormous and close to home. Policies alone will not raise the already great newsprint industry to greater heights, but they will help.

Having gone so far, Canada might well concentrate on conserving another—her greatest—resource, which is her man power. We cannot do our best if we keep on allowing native sons to leave for other lands. There is no law to stop them, nor could it be done by law. But it can be done by counter-attractions. The opportunities here are as good as anywhere in the world. Many Canadians who have left their country are finding that out now, and are coming back. The best way to bring more of them back and to keep all our native stock is to make living conditions as attractive as possible.

And the best way to do that is to reduce taxes. Economy thus becomes an active building force.

There are many ways of making this a greater country—so many, in fact, that sometimes one might almost think those in power don't know which to do first.—Border Cities Star.

EMPIRE'S MISSION.

The debates at the Institute of Politics, now in session in Williamstown, Mass., took a bearing yesterday which is of peculiar interest to Canada, as a member of the world-wide British Empire. Dr. A. C. Coolidge, professor of history at Harvard University, raised the question as to whether the Empire was a benefit or a threat to the rest of the world, expressing his own view that "during its intermediate stage," at least, it was likely to become a menace. The reason for this opinion is that other nations may become jealous and suspicious to the point where "concerted opposition" is resorted to. Moreover, the fear was expressed that the British Commonwealth might abandon its traditional free trade policy. On this point Professor Coolidge said: "We have got to remember that protective tariffs, though legitimate enough, are not ways of making friends, and that imperial preference between Canada and Britain will not be welcomed by the United States. Again, such things as trying to limit the amount of rubber produced in the world, although one may see good reasons for it, are not the way to make the power that controls the product popular with its neighbors." The Institute of Politics exists for the free discusion of international questions of interest and importance, and it is the candid expression of views before influential authorities that makes the Institute of such great value. Discussions such as that which took place yesterday in Williamstown are welcome, especially to Britishers who want to know just how other nations regard developments.

What are the grounds for the "jealousy and suspicion" referred to? It would be impossible for any nation or combination of nations to show so lofty a public spirit as that displayed by Great Britain and the Empire since the conclusion of the war. The story of the Mother Land is a story of self-abnegation throughout the whole chapter, and the dominions may justly take pride in the splendid record. As for the limitation of rubber production, with the consequent advance in price, that surely does not constitute a legitimate grievance. Protectionist America can hardly find fault with the Empire even if it should follow suit and turn protectionist also. Self-preservation is the law of life, and all these tendencies are merely in the line of self-preservation. By dint of severe economy and the imposition of oppressive taxation Great Britain manages to pay her way honorably, but not without difficulty. What if the improved price of rubber should balance the payment of the war debt to the United States; the money has got to come from somewhere, and why not rubber, which is, after all, more or less of a luxury? The receipts do not go directly into the British treasury either. They merely benefit British trade, which sorely needs supporting.

As for Empire obligations, they are justly termed the "white man's burden." The bulk of that burden falls on Britain, and it is questionable whether any other country in the world would be prepared to assume it, even if it were as capable of diong so, from the standpoint of administrative genius and experience, as the Empire is. For the most part what Britain gets in return for her efforts, in the more undeveloped portions of the British protectorates, is ingratitude and mistrust. In these days of nationalistic assertion, especially, it is not a thing to excite envy or jealousy, but rather satisfaction, that there can be found a world power willing to undertake these onerous and responsible duties for civilization and the cause of humanity at large.—Hamilton Spectator.

A THOUGHT.

For Your Own Good.

Being good-natured and agreeable wins many friends. Be good-natured to those under as well as to those over you. Once in a while the congregate opinion of the lower stratum permeates the upper, and then you are about due for an ill-natured dismissal. Your good nature and pleasantness will bring you friends—and friends bring business.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

SPIRITISM AND OREGON TEST.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

In Monday's news the newspapers gave an important position to a column titled "Spirits Fail to Give Cue." The concept of man as spirit is too valuable to the human race to be treated as the negligible or unprovable quantity which a reading of this article would convey. A gentleman of Portland, Ore., appears to have advertised that he would give $500 to any medium who would reveal to him a certain password known only to himself and his wife, recently deceased. I would like to point out that if I put an adertisement in the papers tomorrow offering $50 to any medium who would tell me which of my back teeth was filled with gold I should get at least 200 answers, though my dentist does not waste gold on the back teeth. This may prove the value of advertising, but it does not disprove spiritism.

It is also a popular though gratuitous supposition that all spirits are necessarily good. Death naturally endows the soul with graces it never possessed in life, but they lack reality and are merely the pious hopes of bereaved and forgiving hearts. If a man had a malicious turn of mind and was a bit of a humorist in life, he probably posseses those qualities still. All genuine investigators are faced at times with these Pucklike personalities and spiritual spoofers, and it is to be feared The Scientific American has opened a door and issued a wide invitation to their activities.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has told us of spirits in tweed suits, but it remained to The Scientific American to suggest they possessed trousers pockets in which they could stuff $2,500. A financial reward for a proof of immortality is about as sensible a proposition as trying to bribe the devil with a carload of anthracite.

Centuries of spiritual cowardice has probably unfitted man for direct revelations. A well-told ghost story will send the majority sleepless to bed, and our friends who have passed beyond may hesitate in sorrow before the futility of our well-known and incurable terror. Without a personal communication—too dreaded to be desired—the proof the gentleman from Oregon wishes to obtain from his wife would be no proof at all, even if he obtained it. If he is a genuine Spiritist, as he claims, he will know that Professor Hyslop some time ago stated that the medium in a seance reads the mind of the subject. The cue, or password, which he has locked up in a vault for safekeeping is known both to himself and his wife, now in the spirit. As it is in his mind it can be read if Hyslop's explanation of spirit phenomena is true. If it has not been read, then Hyslop is wrong, which kicks a prop from under the scientists; our friend has been in touch with very poor mediums, or good mediums have been tricked by spoofing spirits lured to humor by his offer of a lump of anthracite.

Frankly, the story does not appear to be genuine. The hero of it does not speak like a Spiritist, and he certainly does not act like one. I see the hand of Esau, but I fail to detect the voice of Jacob. I fear he is another outside investigator on trouble-making bent, who cannot visualize that the concept of Man as Spirit is too valuable to humanity to be treated as a negligible quantity.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 29. — (Canadian Press). — Wheat scored a sharp upturn in price to-day, owing largely to decreased marketing of winter wheat and to unfavorable crop reports both from south and north of the Canadian boundary, as well as from western Europe, especially France. Closing quotations for wheat were strong, 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 cents net higher, September, 1.51 5-8 to 1.51 3-4 and December 1.53 to 153 1-8, with corn at 1 1-8 to 3 cents gain, oats at 1-8c decline to 3-8 to 1-2c advance, and provisions varying from 17 cents setback to a rise of 2 cents.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, July 29. —(Canadian Press).— Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 1-4.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 29. (Canadian Press).— The only business of importance reported in the domestic market was a sale of 25,000 bushels of Manitoba No. 6 wheat at $1.05 1-2 per bushel, C. I. F. Montreal. Owing to the advance in prices for oats in the Winnipeg market the local market for car lots was stronger at a gain of one cent per bushel.

A very firm feeling prevailed in the market for old crop winter wheat flour owing to the limited supplies available on spot and the very light shipments from Ontario millers on account of the scarcity of wheat. There was some demand from local buyers. White corn flour was steady with sales of odd cars at $7.60 to $7.70 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

The feature of the mill feed situation was the stronger feeling that prevailed in the market, but no actual change in prices was announced. The demand from the United States for supplies was good and in consequence all the surplus stock is finding cutlet in that direction at better prices than can be realized on spot. The market on the whole was fairly active with sales of straight car lots of bran at $28.50 per ton in some cases, but the ruling figure was $28.25. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices were unchanged at $3.65 to $3.75 per bag of 90 lbs., delivered to the trade.

BUTTER STEADY.

There were no further developments in the butter situation, the undertone to the market being steady and prices unchanged. There was some demand from foreign and domestic buyers which resulted in sales of some fair sized lots being made, including one lot of 2,000 packages of Ontario pasteurized creamery butter, and one lot of 500 packages of eastern townships No. 1 creamery for local account. On the whole the volume of business transacted was fair.

The receipts of cheese were 11,506 boxes, as compared with 13,047 for the same day last week, and 21,004 for the corresponding day a year ago There was an improved demand from local buyers for supplies and some fair sized lots changed hands, but the trade over the cable was again reported quiet owing to the fact that the prices asked were not in line with some exporters views. The tone of the market was easy, but prices on spot showed no further change.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 28.—It was the usual Tuesday's quieter market, following Monday's activity. Fresh receipts were small, but there is a carry-over of stale cattle from last week's over supplies.

Rogers & Maybee were picking up a few odd lots of exporters, making their total purchase in the market about 600. These, with the cattle bought in the country, and about 200 carried over from last week, will about fill the quota required for this week's eastern shipment. Prices have averaged 15c to 25c higher than last week. Export heavy steers, $7.60 to $8.50 lighter weight export $7.50 to $8.10. Bulls, export, $4.50 to $5.

There were not many choice butchers in the market this morning. Choice baby beeves sold up to $11 and choice handy weight butcher steers and heifers $7 to $7.50.

Cows barely steady at $4.25 to $5, the bulk going around $4.50 to $4.75.

Calves a little firmer at $11 tops.

Lambs 25c easier at $14 to $14.75 tops.

In the collection is a shillelah from Ireland, a complete set of specimens of pressed wild flowers of Australia, crystallized fruit and an ostrich fan from Africa, with a history of South Africa and gold mounted miniature temperance banners of Denmark and Finland.

DR. INGE ADVOCATES LIGHT AND BATHING

Thinks People Should be Permitted to Run About Minus Clothes.

LONDON, July 29.—By way of a change from religious and philosophical topics, Dean Inge has entered the realms of hygiene. Presiding at a dinner of the Sunlight League, which aims at the abolition of smoke and slums, he said in his opinion sea bathing could be employed to the betterment of health.

"The present practice," he continued, "of mixed bathing, with the body completely clothed may be an agreeable social function, but hygienically it is practically useless. I deprecate the absurd restrictions of some of the town council of our seaports in this connection. I suggest that at certain hours of the day on certain parts of the beach men be encouraged to run about with the minimum amount of clothing, an exceedingly healthy recreation.

"As for women, another portion of the beach, properly safeguarded from intrusion, might be reserved and enclosed for their similar recreation."

VESSELS RACE RUBBER MARKET

JULY DELIVERY.

NEW YORK, July 29. — A race with time and the market between Singapore and New York is on. Three freight ships— the Kansas, the Siberian Prince and the Menelaus—are crowding on every pound of steam possible in the endeavor to make port by Friday, July 31, at 12 p.f. If they can win the race, they can deliver 6,500 tons of crude rubber to those who have sold rubber for July delivery. It probably will mean a large additional loss on their contracts to those who must deliver "July rubber" if the vessels fail to arrive by the hour these contracts expire.

The prospects that this additional crude rubber will reach port during July and the certainty that it will soon be available for buyers for delivery on contracts were a factor in the decline of rubber Monday, although it was not the entire force behind the decline. Another was the fact that the American Government has made strenuous representations to the British Government about the runaway market which has followed the restricting of rubber shipments under the "Stevenson scheme" of limiting exports. Still another was the fact that the rubber market probably has been overbought. Spot smoked sheets dropped 5 cents a pound to $1.10 while other leading grades ran off from 2 to 6 cents a pound. Even this price is some 90 cents a pound above last year's level.

According to reports received in the rubber trade, the Siberian Prince, the Kansas and the Menelaus are endeavoring to make the trip under twenty days, against an average voyage time of twenty-four days. They are bringing approximately 13,000,000 pounds of crude rubber grown in the Straits Settlements and valued, at current market prices for spot, at some $14,300,000. The latest reports on these vessels were from the Siberian Prince, at Port Said on July 10, the Kansas from Port Said on the same day and the Menelaus from Penang on July 23. Their route has been via the Suez Canal, through the Mediterranean and thence across the Atlantic. Originally the vessels were scheduled to touch Boston first, and in fact, the Boston cargo is on top of the rubber. In view of the market situation and the fact that a quick voyage would save much money, they have been diverted to this port, and the Boston stop will be made after the rubber has been put ashore.

If the rubber arrives by midnight of July 31, it will be possible for those who have "sold July contracts" to notify those who hold them that the rubber is at dockside. Otherwise, they must go into the open market and bid for rubber to be delivered on these contracts, or make other arrangements for delivery. The three vessels have more rubber aboard than the entire port stocks of London. The latter now amounts to 3,892 tons. Imports of rubber into the United States during the entire month of June now total 31,175 tons of crude, Paras included, liquid latex 979 tons and Guayule 274 tons.

The first of the three ships racing to New York from Singnapore to land 6,000 tons of crude rubber valued at $14,000,000 for July delivery has touched American shose.

FIRST AID FOR LETTER WRITER

New Idea Takes the Writing Out of To-day's Correspondence.

PRINTED CARDS.

In another form the ready 'letter writer" is still here. It is not the bethumbed little instruction volume of other days. That has found its way to the scrap heap or the curiosity shop. Nor is it the scrivener who practiced the European vocation of acting as amanuensis for those newcomers who could only make their mark. The twentieth century wants something that saves trouble, yet briefly tells the story on the "wish you were here" plan of the souvenir postcard.

Today's "letter-writer" is merely a selection of cards with printed messages gay with forget-me-nots, roses, homesteads, landscapes and comic characters, and engraved with sentiments to fit every event. One has no copying to do. He has merely to sign his name, address the envelope—or attach a two cent stamp —and his correspondence is done.

Almost as old as letter writing itself are schemes for painless processes in the art. But never was correspondence accompanied with such ease as by the printed card. In the glass case at the stationer's shop are cards expressing thoughts appropriate to every purpose and situation. If a friend neglects to write, there are cards to jog his memory with: "I'm looking for a letter from you." Another card will explain gracefully that you haven't yet had time to send a formal reply. A friend is about to take a journey or has just come home, is facing an operation or recovering from one; no need to write him: just pick out the suitable card. You may say by card, without committing yourself, "No one can take your place," or "I'm lonesome for you."

Condolences, congratulations, notifications, baby's first tooth, thanks for hospitality, invitations to weekends, acceptances—there is a card for every emergency.

EXCHANGE AVIATORS.

Arrangements Between Canada and England.

OTTAWA, July 29.—(Canadian Press).—The exchange of flying officers between Canada and England, which since the war, has been carried on at least to the extent that Canadian officers have gone to England for staff courses, is now to take an enlarged form, if matters under consideration by the Cabinet at present are approved, says The Citizen. Under the new scheme, officers from England will have an opportunity to take part in the Canadian Flying Services which include flying border patrols against bootlegging and drug running, surveying fisheries protection, forest fire patrols and other services, not included in the training of a flying officer in Great Britain.

The exchanges start almost immediately, and officers will be transferred in twos and threes.

EGYPT GETS EUROPE.

Listeners In At Cairo Hear From British and Continental Cities.

CAIRO, July 29.—A number of broadcasting stations in Europe and the British Isles are usually heard well in Egypt, and Egyptians as well as Europeans living here are not slow in taking advantage of the music. The stations heard best are London, Newcastle, Aberdeen, Bournemouth and Chelmsford in England, the Savoy Bands of London relayed on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays being especially popular.

Rome, Munster, Stuttgart and Vienna also are heard and a resident of Cairo can listen to a concert and news in Italian from 8.40 to 9.30 p.m. then get the news and the weather from Stuttgart in German, and before tuning in for the night he can enjoy a late cabaret concert from Vienna.

CHILDREN UNHURT AS ADULTS SUFFER

Runaway Motor Bus Wrecked on Curb in Severe Storm.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 29.—United Press. — Thirty-five men and womes were injured whi' 15 children escaped unhurt, when a motor bus returning from an outing, ran down a hill, skidded and overturned during the height of a storm last night.

Harry Gibbs of Brooklyn, is not expected to live as the result of his injuries.

Those in the bus were unable to explain how it happened that not a single child was injured, while the adult passengers suffered severe cuts and contusions when the bus smashed up against a curbing at the foot of the hill. Firemen with axes had to chop away the wreckage to rescue some of the injured.

CLASSICS TRUE CULTURE BASIS

Source of All Our Modern Civilization—Fully Retained in Quebec.

QUEBEC, July 29—"The system of secondary education in the Province of Quebec has produced results which make many of us in Ontario quite convinced of its superiority."

These were the opening remarks made by Rev. Brother Francis, F.S.O., O.A., who has just completed his second season here doing educational research work for the University of Toronto.

"No influence is so strong in developing the ideals and civilization of a people as education. The study of the classics takes your students back to the source of all our modern civilization—Greece and Rome. Imbued with the traditions of old France they have sought the source and in their story of the classics the ideals they are establishing are those of high culture, refinement, a wider outlook on the important things of life and glimpses of what constitutes a greater happiness for man than mere material success.

"Your system here points with pride to its ancient lineage of three centuries. That success has crowned its efforts is shown by those outstanding men whose early education fitted them to be the leaders in the direction of the destinies of Canada.

"The superficiality of modern systems is too evident and Quebec has shown rare wisdom in maintaining its conservative traditions.

"There is a danger, which I perceive has been emphasized very frequently by your leaders in educational thought, which may result from this training, namely that this system leads to the overloading of the liberal professions. This danger can be obviated by a more extensive and intensive study of mathematics and science during the course without allowing the classics to deteriorate."

STRIKE PARLEYS AT HALIFAX RESUMING

Premier Rhodes Will Continue Peace Effort on Thursday.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 29—Conferences between the government, the British Empire Steel Corporation, and the District Board of the United Mine Workers will be resumed here Thursday morning. Since the close of the meetings in Sydney last week at which a settlement of the nearly five months old coal strike was attempted, the government has had two days of meetings here, Monday and Tuesday, and will continue today.

President Roy Wolvin of the British Empire Steel Corporation will be in Halifax Thursday from Montreal, and it is possible that a number of directors will also be here. It is expected that vice-president J. E. McLurg will be here from Sydney and that entire board of the Mine Workers will attend.

The Government yesterday issued the invitation for a resumption of negotiations on Thursday and both parties signified their acceptance.

Sir John Simon will defend the three Indore officers in their appeal to the privy council against the sentence of death imposed on them for the murder of an Indian merchant during their attempt to abduct Mumtaz Begum, the dancing girl.

TENDERS READ FOR CITY COAL

PRICE WAS $7.84

Coal for the city buildings will be purchased this year from Cooney and Jopling if the coal on which they tendered is satisfactory to the chairman of the property committee and to caretaker George Grange. Several tenders were received by the Property Committee of the City Council last night, four quoting on the grade of coal that the caretaker preferred and the successful tender was $7.84. Other tenders were W. Scott, $8.00; H. B. Taylor, $8.10; and J. E. A. Fitzgerald, $8.20. If the coal handled by Messrs. Cooney and Jopling does not satisfy the Chairman and caretaker, they have power to act in the matter.

A letter was received from the board of health recommending the installation of certain sanitary conveniences, to be paid for in the taxes in five installments. The committee will recommend that this be done when the reports from the city solicitor are sent in.

Permit Sign.

Arthur Blade of the Imperial Oil Company waited on the Board of Works last night with regard to the sign which his company has partially erected on the Duffus Garage. Mr. Blade explained that the Imperial Oil men had started the erection of the sign while Mr. Duffus was away and that he and Mr. Duffus had been unaware of the existence of the by-law regulating illuminated signs. The sign had cost a considerable sum, and permission had been granted by the Utilities Commission for fastening it to the pole. City Engineer Parsons pointed out that the sign projected about 16 feet over the street, whereas the by-law permitted only 10 feet. Alderman Phelan led a group who considered that Mr. Duffus should appear himself even though he had executed a lease with the oil company, as the city would hold him responsible. Permission for the erection will be granted if the council should carry out the recommendation of the board but Alderman Phelan questioned the legality of changing a by-law by resolution.

RUMOR DENIED BY E. B. EDDY COMPANY

Received No Bid From International Paper Company.

OTTAWA, July 29. —(Canadian Press)—"It is absolute nonsense,' No such offer has been made to us, and if it were, it would not be entertained," said Charles V. Caesar executive assistant of the E. B. Eddy Company at the Chaudiere, in reply to a query as to the truth of a current rumor that the International Pulp and Paper Company was bidding for the holdings of the big Chaudiere Company.

Mr. Caesar said he had also heard of the rumor, and did not know where it originated, also one to the effect that the Bank of Montreal had stepped in and taken possession of the Eddy Company

The rumor was to the effect that as the International Company had not gone ahead with the purchase of the holdings of the Gatineau Campany, as the deed was not registered, it intended to buy out the Eddy Company, and erect additional mills.

MARMORA PERSONALS

Dr. Stewart, of Belleville, who has been spending a week's holiday in this vicinity, returned on Monday.

End Catarrh Germs In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex eliminates the germs in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to ten thousand sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it banishes your Catarrh you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER REPORT SHOWS SAVING TO PETERBORO OF $351,104 ON THE YEAR 1924

Says Report Issued by Utilities Commission Drafted From Hydro Accounting for Ye ar—Other Features of the Central Ont ario System.

CITY HAS 5,266 LIGHT CONSUMERS

From the annual report of the Hydro-electric Power Commission of Ontario for 1924 the following information is extracted regarding the Central Ontario system, from which Peterboro along with other municipalities obtains its electric power:

The total power generated in the system was:

	Normal Operating Capacity	Peak Load H.P.	Total Output K.W.H.
Sidney, Dam No. 2	4,020	4,960	17,526,200
Frankford, Dam No. 5	3,485	3,686	14,299,450
Meyersburg, Dam No. 8	6,430	5,965	2,463,400
Ranney's Falls, Dam No. 10	9,650	12,466	42,121,380
Campbellford, Dam No. 11.	4,020	4,128	16,337,350
Heeley's Falls, Dam No. 14.	12,060	15,952	33,612,780
Auburn, Dam No. 19	2,010	2,573	10,024,730
	42,675	50,682	140,782,070

In addition to the power generated, the following power was purchased:

	Peak H.P.	Total Purchased K.W.H.
Campbellford Water and Light Commission..	2,212	2,262,850
Peterboro Hydraulic Power Company	2,915	520,065
Canadian General Electric Company	1,340	196,000
Corporation of Fenelon Falls	375	22,400
	6,842	3,001,315

In the summer of 1924 the general construction work and the installation of the units in the development at Dam No. 8, near Meyersburg, was completed, and started to deliver power to the system on September 11th. It has a normal operating capacity of 6,430 h.p.

Early in 1924 the excavation for the tail-race and power-house substructure was started at Dam No. 9, and since the close of the year the work has been completed. It has a capacity of 4,800 h.p. in three units of 1,600 h.p. each.

The operating account for the year ending October 31st, 1924, shows a total revenue of $1,784,674.83. After providing for interest on capital and making provision for renewal of plant and equipment and contingencies by setting aside $174,984.88 for these purposes, there is a surplus of $132,945.48. In this account, however, provision is not made for sinking funds for the power plants and lines.

The statement of assets and liabilities shows $1,497,644.38 in reserves for renewals, $149,330.34 in reserves for contingencies and $51,801.60 in reserves for sinking funds, a total of $1,698,776.32, which has been set aside in reserves, and a surplus of $10,265.53.

The system has paid operating expenses and interest since it was taken over by the Province in March, 1916, and permitted the setting aside of these reserves during that time.

The report shows that in Peterboro the consumption and revenue received by the Utilities Commission and the number of consumers was as follows:

	Consumption	Revenue	Number of Consumers
Domestic light, k.w.h.	3,119,460	$80,417.54	5.266
Power, average h.p.	4,051	67,445.87	134

Comparing the revenue received on this consumption with the revenue as it would have been at the rates in force in 1914, when the city took over the distributing system, the saving to the people during the year was:

Revenue in 1924	80,417.54
Saving		$137,944.66
Commercial light, 2,411,775 k.w.h. at 10c	$241,177.50
Revenue in 1924	41,591.42
Saving		199,586.08
Power, average h.p. 4,051 at $20.00	$ 81,020.00
Revenue in 1924	67,445.87
Saving		13,574.13
Total saving in the year		$351,104.87

This does not accurately show the saving on power, as the old rates were based, not on average power, but on installed capacity or maximum demand.

On the same basis of comparison the saving to the people in the city using electricity in the years 1917-1924 was $1,815,047.31.

SENSATIONAL ELECTION.

Irish Will Not Get Results Until After Three Months From Polling Date.

DUBLIN, July 29, (Associated Press).—The first election to the Free State Senate, heretofore an entirely nominated body, will take place this autumn. Because of the complicated system of election it is expected to take three months to determine the results. Of the 60 members, 15 are to be elected in addition to four who have been filling vacancies.

The mode of election provides for a panel containing three times as many names as there are are seats to be filled. The Senate nominates one-third of this panel and the Dail two-thirds. In addition outgoing Senators may appear on the panel without nomination so that for the 19 seats the panel will contain 76 names.

The constituency is the whole of the Free State, and votes are limited to persons over thirty years of age. The voting is by proportional representation, and the distribution of preferences among 76 names will take many weeks to count. The Senate has no real power, the maximum of which is to hold up for 270 days any bill, except a money bill, passed by the Dail.

RUMORED NEW NAVAL BASE.

A recent dispatch said that the islands of Dago and Esel had been leased from Esthonia by Britain for a naval base, according to the Russian Soviet government, which expresses alarm at the developments. The report is denied by Britain.

SUB-ARCTIC MISSION IS A DIFFICULT FIELD

Sister Sees Civilization for First Time in Five Years.

REGINA, Sask., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—By canoe and train for six days—through swift torrents, punted along by brawny Indian guides, shooting rapids and skirting cataracts, Sister Carrier of the Grey Nuns' Order recently travelled 500 miles to Regina, primarily to see a dentist.

Sister Carrier comes from that inland mission in the cold hinterland of Northern Saskatchewan, Notre Dame of the Sacred Heart, Beauval mission, five miles west of Lac la Plonge. This is her first peak at civiliation in five years.

"I like my mission so much, I would not like to be transferred to another one, unless I am commissioned to go farther north, to work among the Eskimos," Sister Carrier declared. She gave a colorful picture of life in this outpost.

Beauval Mission and that of Ile a la Crosse, are generally recognized as the two most difficult missions in the North. In the spring and fall, the Mision often is cut off from all except telegraph communication. No mail comes and none is sent out. If the Mission cook runs out of tea or other supplies, members of the community do without. In the summer time only the minimum of travel is attempted on the river, owing to its treacherous rapids. The winter season with its blizzards, and sub-zero temperatures, is the open season for travel and the hauling of supplies.

The expense and labor of haulage, Sister Carrier explained, is tremendous, when it is considered that the Mission feeds and clothes an average of 100 persons. Considerable food also is raised in the district. The wheat fields are large and thriving, while all kinds of vegetables are grown.

The mission workers have themselves installed on electric plant and steam heating system. They also built their own telegraph line and completed the connections.

The only neighbors are scattered bands of Indians. "They are friendly, and 'fire water' is unknown to them," said Sister Carrier. The country which is heavily timbered, is dotted with lakes and threaded with rivers. The fur catch, she said, in winter was usually very good, while the fish catch and wild fruit crop materially adedd to the food supply.

Sister Carrier will return to her post after a short holiday with relatives here.

FAMOUS STEAMSHIP SOLD FOR SCRAPPING

HAMBURG, July 29.—The Deutschland, a former trans-Atlantic pride of the Hamburg-American line, has been sold to a Berlin firm to be scrapped. THURSDAY, JULY 30.

Although generally a chain of adverse planetary positions seem to dominate on this day, yet the trine of Uranus to Luna may prove instrumental in turning doubtful situations into definite success through a radical change or a sudden journey. Abrupt interference of some unexpected nature may swing affairs from ominous conditions. However, disputes, law and indefinite contracts should be avoided, and treachery and fraud shunned. Domestic and affectional matters may also be visited by sorrow or adversity.

Those whose birthday it is may have to face critical situations, which may be rescued by abrupt and unsuspected change or journeys; quarrels and litigation may be annoying and personal affairs give sorrow. Beware treachery and fraud in all directions. A child born on this day may be clever, inventive and original, but its disposition may be rather quarrelsome and lax with the truth unless given early discipline in this respect.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID HAS A PEEK INTO A QUEER LITTLE NEST.

David drew his line out of the water with a sigh. He could see plenty of fish swimming back and forth, but none of them seemed to notice the wiggling worm on the end of his hook.

"Guess they're not hungry to-day," he mused out loud.

"Right that time," laughed a happy voice and David turned to see a tiny little elfin, smiling at his side. "Mr. Stickleback is too busy to eat to-day."

"Oh, is that Mr. Stickleback's family, Squeedee?" David asked. "Does he live around here?"

Squeedee winked, and before David knew what was happening, he found himself standing down on the bottom of the stream beside a funny little nest.

Mr. Stickleback swam over to greet them.

"Mighty glad to see you folks," he laughed. "It sure keeps me busy keeping those youngsters of mine from eating that worm and getting caught. The Mrs. is away just now, and believe me, it's a job watching the youngsters.

"You certainly deserve a lot of credit," said Squeedee. "Look at that little nest, David. Mr. Stickleback built that all by himself."

"I sure did," laughed Mr. Stickleback proudly, "and I carried every bit of grass, straw and moss in my mouth, then glued them together with the glue that comes from my skin by pressing my body against it. Talk about hard luck. I finished the house and went in search of my wife. I found her, playing as usual in a little pool down stream. I'm sorry to say it, but Mrs. Stickleback is very lazy. She plays away most of her time. Well, I brought her over and showed her the lovely nest. She finally, after a lot of coaxing, went inside and left a few eggs. But she doesn't like to sit still very long at a time, so while I was out searching for food, she ran away. I found her, brought her back and she laid some more eggs. Then away she ran again, I found her and she put some more eggs in the nest. Since then I have taken all the care of the eggs and babies. She doesn't like the cares of a family."

"How in the world did you get in and out of so small a house?" David asked. "It isn't larger than a twenty five-cent piece."

"There's a wee little door at the top," and Squeedee showed David the opening in the tiny nest. "I sure wish you could have seen the tiny eggs. They are a bright yellow in color and no larger than poppy seeds."

"I don't blame Mrs. Stickleback for not wanting a family," chuckled Mr. Stickleback, "for it takes just one month for the eggs to hatch, and that's a long time for a restless fish to keep quiet. After they are hatched it takes a great deal of patience to keep the little crowd together. I can't let them get too far away from me, for they are so tiny, I'm afraid they will come to harm. I've watched in front of this door ever since the last eggs were put there, and I'll be here until the youngsters are able to care for themselves. If you'll excuse me, I'll run after those farthest ones," and away the tiny little fish Daddy darted through the water. David and Speedee watched him round up his little family of Sticklebacks, then they hurried out to the back of the stream. David gathered up his fishing pole and ran home.

WHERE THE MAYOR GOVERNS THE SEA

We have all heard of the marriage of Venice to the Adriatic. This ceremony was performed annually in the days of the doges of Venice. The Pontiff would present the Doge with a ring from his own finger and with this ring he would wed the Adriatic.

The ceremony took place on Ascension Day. A state gondola, reserved for this purpose, manned by forty rowers and elaborately decorated, carried the Doge towards the Isle of Lido. When he arrived, he poured holy water into the sea and then, taking the ring from his finger, he dropped it into the Adriatic, saying, "We espouse thee, O Sea, in token of our just and perpetual dominion."

A similar ceremony is performed every three years in Cork Harbor, Ireland. In this case it is a clause in the city's charter that calls for the performance. The Mayor of Cork is also Admiral of the Port, and he must assert his jurisdiction over the sea by throwing a dart into it.

The ceremony is much the same in Ireland as in Venice. Instead of the ring, the Mayor uses a mahogany dart tipped with bronze. Instead of a gondola, the party boards a steam vessel. The members of the town council, the officers and band of the Cork civic artillery several ladies and the Mayor constitute the party.

The steamer makes its way out to sea toward an imaginary line between Poor Head and Cork Head. This is the maritime boundary of the borough. When they reach this spot, the Mayor dons his official robes, and, accompanied by the town dignitaries, makes his way to the prow of the vessel.

It is from this point that the famous dart is thrown, proclaiming that the Mayor is the Lord High Admiral of the Port.

A festive and elaborate dinner follows the ceremony in the evening. The entire thing is one of the most picturesque customs of a picturesque land. Perhaps the brilliant robes and the graceful gondolas make the scene in Venice more beautiful. But the romance of the idea is quite as lovely in Cork Harbor, and surely the Mayor's brave robes must lend a touch of color to the scene.

There is something ages old in this idea of a marriage of the land and the sea. It has appeared all through the centuries and we still find it attractive.

YOUR GARDEN

THE GARDEN NURSERY

A part of the garden set aside as a home experiment station, where new varieties may be tested out, (you will get to know, them better and faster) and as a nursery for propagating plants of special merit, will prove fascinatingly interesting and also profitable.

There are many uses to which such a plot may be put. As you go through your borders in the spring, many small seedling plants of choice perennials may be transplanted to the nursery, where they will get the best of attention until large enough to set out permanently. Otherwise they would have to compete with the larger plants and possibly meet their fate from the hoe. After they have grown and flowered they may be sorted out and the best kept.

When dividing choice peonies and iris there are usually a few small pieces that are not large enough to set out but which if kept for two or three years, will make worth while plants. Cuttings of choice flowering shrubs (the taking of which will be explained in a fall article) may be grown along in the nursery to a good size for transplanting and the planting about the home grounds gradually completed The French hybrid lilacs, the viburnums, philadelphus, barberries and many others can be thus propagated.

The plot will prove particularly useful for keeping up the supply of biennials such as Canterbury Bells, hollyhocks, etc., which must be carried one year to bloom the next. Perennials also may be grown to advantage in quantity but here a cold frame and a hot bed should be added.

Small evergreens and other trees may be carried along to planting size, when they may be set out.

The gladiolus cormlets saved by your self may be grown to flowering size and kept separate from the flowering stock and out of the way. An excellent way of securing a good collection of varieties at a minimum of expense, is to purchase small sized corms from a regular dealer and carry them along in your nursery.

Tulip bulbs that must be removed for the planting of annuals, may be satisfactorily heeled in the nursery to mature for next year's planting.

The hydrangea arborescens is a shrub that may be readily increased by dividing the old clumps. The small pieces or divisions grown for a year in the nursery will give you a number of strong, vigorous, young shrubs. The perennial coreopois and gaillardia are better for being frequently divided in this way.

Last but not least, plants may be grown here also for cut flowers so that your choice flower borders may be spared to look their best.

Anyone starting to build would do well to establish such a nursery in a convenient corner, out of the way of the contractor, where a choice collection for planting out later may be gotten together at a minimum of expense.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ANY LACK OF THYROID CAN BE OVERCOME

Even though there has been a reasonable foundation and experience of health, middle life may witness remarkable failure of strength and vigor. One of the peculiar ailments appearing at 35, 40 or 50 years of age, is known as "myxedema."

This condition is the opposite of goitre. In that disease the gland surrounding the "Adam's apple" in the neck, becomes very much thickened and enlarged. In myxedema this gland—the thyroid gland—withers and grows thin and small.

It is not unusual for tissues which have become greatly inflamed and thickened, to have their blood vessels pressed upon by the new growth. In consequence the blood supply becomes materially lessened. Without sufficient nourishment to maintain the growth of tissue, it begins to wither and grows thin.

The thyroid is one of the so-called "ductless glands." It manufactures a material known as the "colloid substance." This possesses the property of stimulating the brain, the heart and other vital organs. In certain types of goitre there is altogether too much stimualtion.

In myxedema, you see, the thyroid has grown small and hard. No longer does it manufacture the quantities of colloid substance which previously generated energy and "pep." Vital function is seriously impaired.

It is remarkable what changes take place in the very looks of the victims. The face grows broader. The tongue and lips get thick. The face looks heavy and stupid. The skin is sallow and the cheeks are flushed. The hair falls out and the teeth grow bad. Even the hands and feet become big and flat. The skin of the whole body thickens and becomes scaly and dry.

Worse than the physical changes are the disturbances in the mind. Alertness disappears. It is replaced by dullness, slowness of thought and stupidity. There is no love of life left. On the contrary there may be gloominess of spirit and sometimes an inclination to commit suicide.

If myxedema attacks a child it stunts the growth. Dwarfism may result. The face is ugly and may be deformed. This type of the disease is called cretinism.

In operating for goitre great care must be exercised not to go too far for fear of producing myxedema. But whether the disease is due to operation or to disease, it is a serious ailment.

I trust I have made clear that the symptoms of myxedema are due to a lack of the thyroid secretion. This lack is made up by feeding thyroid extract. But nobody should take thyroid extract without the advice of a doctor as to its need and the dosage.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. M. A. H. Q.—What causes me to have pains across the small of my back?

A.—This may be due to a number of conditions. It would be wise to have your doctor advise you in the matter after a personal examination.

M. J. F. Q.—How can one reduce?

A.—Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of self control as ergards diet. For full particulars send stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

A.—If it does not disappear in a reasonable length of time see your doctor about the advisability of trying X-ray to make the trouble less noticeable.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. HELD GARDEN PARTY.

Bethel Church Social Was Featured By Baseball Game.

HASTINGS, July 29.—Bethel United Church of the Hastings circuit held its annual Garden Party on the church grounds on Friday evening.

The main feature of the evening was a baseball game, the Trent River ladies and the ladies of Seymour West. The game was won by Trent River ladies.

On Saturday afternoon the steam-Stoney Lake of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co., docked at the Hastings wharf with an excursion. This was under the auspices of the Peterboro Lock Works, Peterboro.

The splendid crops promised in all parts of Canada this year should go far towards making the country prosperous.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start it by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

NATURE LORE

By WALLACE HAVELOCK ROBB

There, at the edge of the woods, sat Don, where he could think quietly to himself, watch the other boys arriving at the Johnson place, and in short, talk to himself about just who he would be in the Robin Hood band. He mumbled to himself:

Oh who will be Robin Hood?
And who will be Friar Tuck?
If Jimmy Britton is Little John,
I'm going to be out of luck!

I don't want to be that monk,
For he's far too fat for me,
And my chances of leading are punk,
Since I fell down off that tree.

"Why, what's the matter, Don?" said Bill Davis, as he came quietly from behind a tree, "I was just going to jump out and scare you, but you look so sick faced, that I was afraid you would die of fright. You certainly made a monkey out of yourself, not knowing how to look for squirrels, but if you can't be Robin Hood, you might be Little John. I heard you talking to yourself, but Jimmy is going to be Friar Tuck, and I was thinking of being Robin Hood myself, because I am bigger than Wess, and if I become leader, I will make you Little John. Besides, I know where there is a Cherry bird's nest and that's more than the others know."

So that is how it happened that Don and Bill came out of the woods together and joined the band in Johnson's yard, ready for a big day, but refusing to acknowledge Wess as the one and only Robin Hood, leader of the Merry Men of the Greenwood.

The other lads caught on in a minute.

"I'm Friar Tuck," said Jimmy Britton, speaking to Bill Davis. "Who are you going to be?"

Bill looked at Don, seeking support, and Don informed all present, that Bill had just appointed him to the dignity of Little John, which was at once taken by the other boys as a signal of revolt and a contest between Bill and Wess, for the leadership.

Wess was a bit taken back, but hid his feelings, saying, "Nobody can be leader until these onions are thinned out; after that, I don't care who is leader." So the boys attacked the onion bed, completing that chore in quick order.

Bill announced that he would lead the Merry Men to the home of a Cherry Bird, and to "Lots of other deep wood secrets."

The promised tree, home of the Cedar Waxwings, was soon reached. It was a stout cedar and the birds had their nest on a low limb, so that the young could be seen. They were just about ready to leave the nest but Bill did not know that, and he started to climb. The young ones started to flutter and in a moment, all were out on a limb.

The other lads were annoyed, but willing to give Bill a fair chance to prove his knowledge and ability, so, after some grumbling, they again gave him their attention.

Bill made a great bird study lesson out of it. He pointed out the saling wax spots of red on the wings, the upstanding crest, the yellow band at the tip of the tail, and the general well groomed and silky look of the feathers. In fact, Bill was making good, and rising rapidly in the estimation of the band, when Roy Preston, the quiet and deep thinker, took a notion to ask some questions.

"Are the Cherry Birds valuable to Canada?" asked Roy.

Now, Bill had not figured on questions, but he was a good guesser, so he guessed "Yes." But more questions about what the waxwing eats, got Bill into deep water, for Wess had to tell the crowd that the Cherry bird really eats mostly wild cherries, and eats a lot of insects, this helping the country.

Bill had too good a hold on the boys to be embarrassed by one or two slight slips on what the bird eats, and he went on with his talk.

Jimmy and Roy were seen to put their heads together and do some whispering, but Bill did not see it. Roy then said, "Well say, Bill, have you ever heard the song of the Cherry bird, as it sings in the early morn?"

Bill was on the alert for questions, but fearing just such a question, so he was working his wits fast and trying to remember just what it sounds like. He couldn't seem to remember and the other boys began to look suspicious. This was too much for Bill. He did not know the song of the Cherry bird but could not afford to admit it. So he bluffed it.

"Sure, I have often heard the Waxwings singing in the early morning."

Wess looked most astonished, but said absolutely nothing, and Bill took it for granted that he had scored a bull's eye, especially as the other boys looked pleased and Wess looked away. He began to burst with importance and gain all the confidence in the world.

"Sure," repeated Bill, "I have often heard these birds; they sing in the evening, too, a very sweet and pretty song."

There is where he put his foot in it, for the Waxwing has only a wheezy little "Zeeeep," so high and fine that few folks ever hear it. Bill had gone too far, but he did not know it. He thought he was doing just fine.

"Can you imitate the song, Bill," asked Roy, with a grin.

"Well, not exactly," replied Bill, "you see, it is a long, sweet song and impossible of human imitation.

This last bold bluff, which was all wrong, was far more than Wess could stand. He stepped up to Bill, touched him on the shoulder and said, "That's all bunk, and you may be bigger than I am but you never heard a Waxwing sing, because it can't, and all it can do is make a tiny little wheeze. It is a beautiful bird and should have a lovely voice, but it hasn't, see?"

With this, Wess turned his back on the now very glum looking Merry Men of the Greenwood, that is, all but Roy and Jimmy, for they howled and prodded Bill and made a monkey out of him.

Bill was so neatly trapped that he grew angry instead of sensible. He rushed after Wess who was by this time well on the way home, disgusted. Bill invited Wess to a fight but Roy and Jimmy jumped on him and announced that: "Only Merry Men who have been wronged can offer to fight and if Wess would give the word, they would throw Bill into the big pool in the creek."

"No," said Wess, "As Robin Hood, I direct you to release him."

Bill looked thoroughly disgusted with himself and said, "Ah, leave me alone, will you, I know Wess is Robin Hood."

EVIDENCE CHAIN POINTS MURDER

Mrs. Edgar Dunseath Believed Slain By Her Brother-in-law.

HAIRS ARE CLUES

CREEMORE, Ont., July 29 (Canadian Press).—Strong confirmation of the theory that Mrs. Edgar Dunseath of the Third Concession Line, Mulmur Township, was murdered by her brother-in-law, Frank Dunseath, who then set fire to the barn and perished in the flames was obtained by the police yesterday. In the ruins of the barn were found many charred human bones part of a skull, portions of clothing and eyelets of shoes, while in the clenched hands of the dead woman were discovered several red hairs. As Frank Dunseath was red haired the chain of circumstantial evidence appears complete.

There will be a double inquest at Shelburne on Friday afternoon next, one on the body of Mrs. Dunseath, and the other upon the human remains found in the ruins of the barn. From information gathered relations in the Dunseath home had been very strained of late. Frank Dunseath, who no doubt was mentally subnormal had not spoken to his sister-in-law for days.

GIRLS OF OMEMEE WIN ON DIAMOND

Defeat Mt. Pleasant Maidens By 20 to 4.

OMEMEE, July 28—One of the few ball games which have been staged in Omemee this season was played on Monday evening, when the girls' softball team of Mount Pleasant met the locals in a game on the Athletic Park.

The game was rather late in being called owing to the non-arrival of some of the Omemee players, but was very exciting from start to finish. It would be unfair to pick out any one player as each of the local team was a star in herself, as shown by the huge score piled up by the Omemee team, 20-4.

Mr. Harry Jamieson of Mount Pleasant umpired the game in an acceptable manner while a number of both local and Mount Pleasant fans did their share to encourage their respective teams.

After the game, the Omemee girls showed a hospitable spirit and treated the visitors to dainty refreshments, which were much appreciated.

The line-up was as follows:

CURB LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Priest Heads Petition to St. Boniface Council.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29 — A definite and determined campaign for the suppression of illicit liquor traffic in St. Boniface, Man., was launched yesterday by officials and leading citizens of the community.

Headed by Right Rev. Mgr. Jubinville a petition was made to the St. Boniface City Council asking that a police commission be appointed immediately as a means of curbing the activities of liquor law violators. Mgr. Jubinville maintained that the traffic was affecting the morals of the citizens and was a bad example to the rising generation.

The council will deal with the motion at a meeting on August 4.

PARENTS' FIGHT FOR CHILD IS DEFERRED

J. H. Cooke's Action In San Francisco Rests For Month.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., July 29—Judge T. T. Trabuco, in Superior Court Tuesday, continued until August 28, a hearing of application of J. Henry Cooke, Toronto barrister, to obtain on habeas corpus proceedings the custody of his five-year-old daughter Shirley, whom his estranged wife, Hilda Cooke, has taken to Reno.

The continuance was granted because a motion in the case is pending before the state court of appeals. This court denied on Monday a petition by counsel of the wife for a writ of prohibition against habeas corpus hearing, but a motion for a rehearing was filed. Thirty days are allowed to dispose of the motion, but the attorneys on both sides stipulated that if it were disposed of sooner and denied they would go ahead with Superior Court hearing If the court of appeal declines to act, Mrs. Cooke's attorneys may apply to the State Supreme Court, which would delay the custody of the child. Mrs. Cooke fled to the United States with her daughter.

In addition to the matter before the state courts, the father has instituted deportation proceedings which are pending before Federal authorities.

ANOTHER HICK TOWN PLACED ON THE MAP

Commissioners at Arica to Settle Forty-Year-Old Dispute.

By HARRY W. FRANTZ
(United Presse Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 29. — (United Press).—In less than a month a little sun-baked town on the south Pacific, Africa by name, will have become an important center of international events. There the stage is being set for the next act in the drama known to the world as the Tacna Arica controversy.

On the afternoon of August 3 (according to present schedule), a plebiscitary commission representing Chile, Peru and the United States, presided over by General Perishing will hold a first meeting. This commission will arrange for the holding of a plebiscite in fulfillment of an arbitral award made by President Coolidge on March 4, 1925, in settlement of a forty year dispute over the sovereignty of the provinces of Tacna and Arica.

In the subsequent months "Arica" often will flash into the date-lines of the international news. It is destined to become one of those little way-off places which derives world fame from the presence of distinguished men or the proximity of historic events.

There Perishing, ripened by world wide experience and long since crowned with success, will grapple with a problem which has vexed the statesmen of many countries for many years. Of a final satisfactory solution there is no longer any doubt; but the ways and means to this end are certain to be intricate and of the greatest international interest.

Arica Port for Tacna.

The world will hear much of the principals in this drama; but the setting itself should not be forgotten. Arica, says a publication of the United States Department of Commerce, is the principal port of the Province of Tacna and is at the same time the terminal of two railway lines and the point of embarkation and debarkation for a large part of the international trade of Bolivia. It has a population of 9,015; and is situated at the foot of a high cliff on a small but well-protected bay.

The general appearance of the city is attractive because of its cleanliness and well-painted buildings, and is agreeable the year round, in spite of its subtropical location. An evenness of temperature is brought about by the proximity of the Antarctic Humboldt current and high easterly winds.

Aside from the plant life in an attractive central plaza, a few truck farms and sugar-cane patches which extend up the coast about two miles, there is no verdure in or about Arica. Housing is one of the city's greatest problems, as demand for exceeds supply among all classes.

Two Railways.

The activities of the two railways which terminate at Arica furnish the chief business of the town. Transportation service with New York is furnished by regular fortnightly passenger and freight vessels. There are also regular sailings to San Francisco. A Japanese line makes regular stops at the port. The Chilean coastwise trade is, in conformity with the Chilean law, carried exclusively by Chilean ships.

Anchorage of vessels in the harbor of Arica, as in most other South American west coast ports, must be made from one-half to one mile from shore, which necessitates loading and unloading of all freight into liners by means of slings and nets.

THE MODERN GIRL.

One of the teachers correcting examination papers in Toronto this year came across the following definition of an old-fashioned girl, included in a literary effort of one o her ppils: A girl who wears black stockings, carries a white handkerchief, and hasn't had her hair bobbed.

Teachers Learn Lessons They Have Been Teaching

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 29. — (Canadian Press). — Seeing Canada on a six hundred mile, twenty one day tour from ocean, 140 Canadian teachers reached Vancouver, travelling by special train over the Canadian Pacific Railway. Greeted all along the way by Government, civic and educational bodies. Every large city and town many of these pedagogues are receiving their first close up lesson on the various sections of Canadian geography which they have been teaching for years from authorized text books.

FAMILY DESERTED BY THE ROADSIDE

Axle of Car Broke and Man Had No Money For Repairs.

HAMILTON, July 29.— (Canadian Press).—For three days and three nights now, marked by heavy rains and chilly night winds, a mother and six little children have lived in a car at the side of the Greens road, near Ancaster. On Saturday, while enroute from Windsor to Toronto, where the family live, the rear axle of the automobile snapped. The husband and father had not sufficinet money to get repairs. He and his eldest boy set out for Toronto to procure a new axle, leaving the mother and young children in the car. Until yesterday, it is said, they were left in isolation. When their destitue plight became known, however, kindness began to assert itself and warm food was brought. The family originally set out for Windsor in the hope that the father would get work there. This quest proved unsuccessful, though, and the family decided to return to Toronto.

CASE INVOLVES DRUG PROBLEM

R.C.M.P. WITNESS.

TORONTO, July 29 (Canadian Press) — A highly important test case involving the right of doctors to prescribe narcotics to addicts not under permanent observation or control during treatment for the habit was opened before Magistrate Jones in the Police Court yesterday when Dr. E. H. Adams, Toronto physician, who has practiced in this city for more than a quarter of a century faced sixteen charges laid under the narcotic drugs act. The federal department of health is prosecuting. One of the chief witnesses for the crown was Officer S. Robertson, of the R.C.M.P., who told of having been introduced to the doctor through John Charles Noble a former drug addict, who at one time had also been a member of the Dominion police. Witness had told Dr. Adams he had been a drug addict for some years, and having recently undergone a serious operation was in need of drugs to relieve his condition. Noble who was with him, and who was already known to the doctor as a drug addict, also applied for a further supply.

Robertson said that without an examination to ascertain if his story of being a drug addict were true, the doctor had agreed to supply the needs of both men after some discussion, fixing $200 as his fee.

Witnesses identified the number of packages of drugs, which he had obtained, he said, from Dr. Adams which when analyzed proved to be cocaine, hydro chloride and morphine.

FREE STATE HAS LOWER DEFICIT

Only Half Million in Pounds, as Compared With Seven Million in 1923.

SURPLUS THIS YEAR

In the fiscal year which ended on March 31 last, the Irish Free State had budget deficit of 532,000 pounds sterling as compared with a deficit at the close of the previous fiscal year of 7,225,000 pounds. In the current fiscal year to date revenues have exceeded expenditures to such an extent that on May 23 there was a surplus of 2,044,000 pounds for the elapsed two months of this fiscal year. On that date the Free State had a debt of 13,438,853 pounds, made up as follows.

Ways and Means Advances by Public Departments	£1,179,000
Annuities under telegraph acts	202,944
Savings certificates	1,254,200
National loan	9,760,850
Compensation stock	501,850

According to advices received by Bankers' Trust Company of New York, from its British Information Service, President Cosgraves takes an optimistic view of the immediate future of the Free State. The recent remissions of taxation and the increases in the agricultural grant, he states, point to the solvency of the state, and, given fair harvests for the next year or two there is every prospect of prosperous times. Referring to the measures introduced for the improvement of livestock and agricultural products, he pointed out that Ireland's export trade in these commodities was being seriously menaced by Denmark, and consequently that it was necessary to grade up Irish produce to the highest quality.

During the next two or three years intensive propaganda is to be undertaken in the Free State to popularize the use of electricity, and as to the ease with which electrical installations may be made. There is a bill pending before the Dail, known as the Shannon Electricity Bill, which promises the government certain steps in connection with the development of electrical undertakings. In some sections, it is feared that the scheme may not be profitable and may result in government deficits which will have to be met by resorting to taxation. On the other hand it is expected that the Shannon scheme will absorb a considerable number of the 40,000 men now unemployed.

Another government undertaking is a programme to foster the beet sugar industry by giving subsidies to manufacturers. The first factory to be established will receive subsidies for ten years, from October, 1926. During the first 5 years when the polarisation exceeds 98 degrees the payments will be at the rate of 24s. 6d. a cwt., for the next three years they will be at the rate of 22s. 6d. a cwt., and for the last two years, 22s. The payments would vary in the case of other degrees of polarisation. No subsidy will be paid during the next three years unless the minister of agriculture is satisfied that the price paid to farmers for beet root is not less than 50s. per ton for one's year's contract or 54s. per ton where there is a three years' contract. The beets must have a sugar content of 15½ per cent. If this is higher or lower the price paid will vary accordingly. The subsidy to be paid by the Irish Free State is higher than that paid by Great Britain, say on the average 23s. per cwt. as against 15s. 8d. The factory now being erected in the Free State will, it is expected, ultimately produce 15,000 tons of sugar per annum.

Another measure which is expected to promote the prosperity of the Free State in the expediture by the land commission of 200,000 pounds sterling, chiefly in the poorer areas There is a sum of 100,000 pounds available for improvement of farmers' lands, and 25,000 pounds will be expended on drainage schemes. Money will also be spent as a result of housing grants.

STONY LAKE NEWS.

The illuminated Flotilla held last week was not as well attended as it would have been had the weather been of a different nature. A high wind was blowing which accounts for the limited number of decorated boats. A barge belonging to Dr. Heeming, beautifully arranged and decorated as a roof garden captured the first prize, which was a slicker. The Meyers party came second with "The passing of the Beer" very cleverly carried out. They were presented with a lunch lamp as second prize.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goldsmith received a lantern as third prize, their boat carrying a wonderfully well made zeppelin. "Monday, Wash Day" received honorable mention, being the Brewin's float.

Mrs. Mairs, the Misses Mairs and Mr. Maurice Mairs of Toronto are at their island, "Pinehurst."

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bell and family of Toronto are enjoying a holiday at their hospitable island home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grahame and little daughter, Jacqueline, of Cleveland, Ohio, spent a week at "Twilight."

Mrs. W. J. Hopwood of Peterborough has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs Acton of Toronto at their Stoney Lake home.

Mrs. C. W. Collins and Miss Jean Collins, Waterloo, are visiting Mrs. J. D. Collins at "Catamaran."

Mrs. Carnegie, Peterborough, and Mrs. Innis and the Misses Innis of Simcoe are at Victoria House, McCracken's Landing. This popular resort has no spare rooms at present and the pretty spot is much admired.

The Rev. Canon Hedley of Toronto will be in charge of St. Peter's Anglican church for the next few weeks.

Mr. T. H. G. Denne, Peterborough, and Prof. Woodcock, Toronto, have been appointed church wardens for the ensuing year. A splendid cementside walk was laid last Fall between the church and clergy house, and this year the buildings are to be painted. The annual financial statement was most gratifying, there being a credit balance.

Mrs. Lennox McLaren and Miss Rush of Peterborough were the guests of Miss Reinhart last week.

On Wednesday evening the 29th inst., a children's masquerade will be held at Juniper Island Pavilion. As with all children's events, much interest is being taken in this party. Three prizes for girls, and three for boys will be awarded.

The dance on Saturday evening was very largely attended, and was a very jolly affair.

FURNACE BURNS MAN TO DEATH

NOT RECOGNIZABLE.

SARNIA, Ont., July 29 (Canadian Press).An unidentified man leaped into a furnace at the plant of the Imperial Oil Company, Limited, here yesterday and was burned beyond recognition. The employes had observed the man loitering around the plant.

Later they noticed feet protruding from the furnace in which a fire was burning at full blast. The body was taken out, but the clothes were entirely consumed, and the face practically burned off. The man was not an employe of the refinery.

REQUIEM FOR CARDINAL.

Chanted Yesterday in Laval Seminary Chapel.

QUEBEC, July 29—Attended by representatives of the highest civic, religious and military authorities of the Dominion and the Province of Quebec, including his honor, Lieutenant Governor Marcisse Perobeau, Premier L. A. Taschereau, many members of the Provincial Cabinet and Brigadier General J. P. Landry who officially represented his excellency, Governor General, the Viscount Byng of Vimy the solemn requiem mass which had been requested in the Provincial government for the repose of the soul of the late Cardinal Begin was chanted Tuesday morning in the Seminary Chapel which was decorated with full mourning drapes for the ceremony.

INDIAN CHIEFS GO TO LONDON

Seek Redress of Alleged Wrongs Inflicted By Whites.

BIGGEST "CHIEF."

LONDON, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Three Indian chiefs, who carry a mandate for twenty-eight other Indian leaders in British Columbia, arrived in London yesterday. New regulations have been made by their reservations near Shuswap to appeal to "biggest chief of all," King George, for justice, concerning alleged infringement of their rights. New regulations have bee nmade by the white man without consulting the original natives of British Columbia.

FASCISTI PROTEST AGAINST ORLANDO

Attack Candidates Car, But Supporters Rally To His Aid.

PALERMO, Sicily, July 29. Canadian Press. — Rioting broke out here to-day after a political meeting during which former premier Orlando of Italy announced an opposition ticket in the forthcoming municipal elections. The police cleared the streets before serious casualties resulted.

The trouble started when a number of Fascisti eluded the police guard and attacked Orlando's automobile, smashing the glass windows with clubs and otherwise damaging the machine.

The former premier's supporters rallied to him and great confusion existed until detachments of troops arrived.

STORM DAMAGES TREES AND CELLARS

Thought That Standing Grain Crop Might Also Be Injured.

OTTAWA, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Cellars were flooded and trees were blown down during a severe storm which passed over the city last night. No serious damage was reported, however, although it is possible that the standing grain crop will be injured by the heavy rain and wind. The rainfall during the evening was recorded at 1.06 inches.

UTILITIES COMMISSION.

Consider Purchase of New Set of Test Instruments For $935.

A meeting of the Utilities Commision was held yesterday with Chairman Mason and Commissioners Hicks and Bradburn present.

A report applying for light in a house on Braidwood avenue was laid over for a subsequent meeting.

A report was read from the Engineer which dealt with the reconstruction of the distributing system. The estimated cost was $151,000, less $20,000 salvage price, or $131,000. It was resolved that the report be submitted to the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

It was decided to notify the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee that a consultation should be held with the engineer before stringing fire alarm wires on any poles of the electric line.

This was considered as a safety measure and Mr. Bradburn further suggested that no responsibility would be assumed by the Utilities Commission for any mishaps resulting from the placing of alarm wires on the high tension poles.

The purchase of a new set of test instruments was debated. The proposed mechanism had a reputation for infallibility, and would cost $935 ready to set up. Besides being useful in factories it could be used on lines for determining the kilowatt power.

It was decided to meet the Manufacturers Committee and lay before them the plan with the consideration of imposing a nominal rate for the use of the instruments.

SUICIDE IS NOT BROTHER OF SCOTT

Police Do Not Think Description Tallies With That of Missing Man.

CHICAGO, July 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Scant hope is held by police that the unidentified man, who shot and killed himself in a Reading, Penna., hotel yesterday, is Robert Scott, the brother of Russell Scott, under sentence of death for killing the drug clerk in a hold-up. Robert has been sought since the killing, which Russell says his brother did. The description of the suicide, who cut all labels from his clothing and left a note, "I am nobody from nowhere," tallies only slightly with that of the missing Scott.

The dead man was described as about 25 years old, 153 pounds, grey eyes, light brown hair, five feet nine inches tall, gold tooth in upper jaw, small scar on temple.

MAN BEAT WIFE POLICE ALLEGE

Constable Pearson Lays Charge—Doctors Will Investigate Man's Sanity.

HARVEY RESIDENT.

Alfred Bishop of Harvey was brought before Magistrate O. A. Langley by County Constable S. R. Pearson on a charge of wife beating. He was remanded for a week, and in the interval will be examined by Doctors McPherson and Hewitt who will report to His Worship their findings as to the sanity of accused.

J. Ray, a native of France, was charged by the C.P.R. with attemping to travel from Montreal to Toronto without paying his fare. Mr. O'Brien, who appeared on his behalf, said accused had served 3 years in the trenches with the French army. He was unmarried and was the sole support of a widowed mother, who still resided in France. Accused had been working in Montreal, but was thrown out of employment. Receiving the offer of a job in Toronto he found himself without money to pay his fare, practically all his surplus earnings having been sent to his mother. In these circumstances, he boarded the C.P.R. train, endeavoring to beat his way. Accused had never been in trouble before here or in France. He had no money, not even for the lawyer.

PRINCE DUE TO SAIL.

Will Leave South Africa For South America.

LONDON, July 29 (United Press)—The Exchange Telegraph Capetown correspondent reported that the Prince of Wales was due to sail today for South America, after having completed his visit to South Africa.

GARDEN PARTY AT IDA

The Garden Party at St. John's Church, Ida, on Thursday evening was a success. The morning had been dark and unpleasant but before evening the sun shone making the evening so pleasant for an outdoor gathering that there was a good crowd. A good supper was served and the play given by young people from Christ's Church, Bailieboro, was much enjoyed, as was the music rendered by others. The financial side of the evening was quite satisfactory.

CALEDONIAN PICNIC.

Mrs. Sabin Entertains Forty Members at Cedar City, On Otonabee.

About forty members of the Caledonian Club of the city held a very enjoyable picnic on Saturday, when they were entertained at the summer home of Mrs. Sabin, at Cedar City, on the Otonabee. Supper was spread on the lawn, and was followed by a programme of sports and races, also a number of Scottish dances, with bagpipe music played by Alex. Milne.

INDOOR SOCIAL.

Norwood Baptist Ladies Driven to Shelter By Bad Weather.

NORWOOD July 30.—The Norwood Baptist Ladies' Aid held a very successful social recently. This was intended to be a lawn fete but on account of the weather it was held inside. The supper was, as usual, a great success. The programe was given by some of the members of the Murray Street Baptist Choir of Peterboro. Vocal numbers were rendered by Misses Maybee, Scott and Pierson, and Dr. Graham. Banjo selections were given by Mr. Clarke and a short address by Mr. Walter Kidd.

DEMAND RANSOM.

Dr. Howard, Captured By Oriental Brigands and Whereabout Unknown.

PEKING, July 29. — (Canadian Press). — Consular advices say that ransom in money and cartridges has been demanded by brigands who captured Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Rockefeller Hospital in Peking. The whereabouts of Dr. Howard is not revealed.

MEDICAL NOTE.

Introduced To Politics Via a Pair of Scales

When the Chief Constables' Association of Canada was in session in Winnipeg recently, its secretary-treasurer, Inspector William Wallace of Toronto, and a newspaper man from that city, had a pleasant encounter with Sir Hugh John Macdonald, police magistrate of the Manitoba capital.

Desiring to look over some reports they were shown into Sir Hugh John's private office with the assurance that he would not be back that day, but that if he did come in he would be pleased rather than otherwise.

In the midst of their work Sir Hugh entered. There was no mistaking him; his facial resemblance to his illustrious father, Sir John A. Macdonald, is too striking to permit of that.

Then Inspector Wallace recalled an incident that happened just after he had landed in Toronto from Ireland. He was spending a day at the Exhibition and had just stepped off scale which recorded his weight when a gentleman whom he had not previously noticed stepped on the scales, which did not have to be changed at all to give his weight. He chuckled, slapped Inspector Wallace on the shoulder, and said: "I think we'll do, eh?" and passed on, some onlookers in the immediate vicinity applauding him as he walked away.

"That's Sir John A. Macdonald," they told the arrival from Ireland, who thereupon took his first lesson in Canadian politics.

D. C. GRANT Brings The PEDO-GRAPH
To Peterboro

THE introduction of this mechanical device marks a new era in shoe fitting and is part of a well thought out plan of this store to give the maximum in shoe comfort.
By means of the Pedo-Graph, an impression of the foot is made on a paper chart, thus providing an accurate guide to size requirements.

A Specialized Service For Foot Sufferers

The natures of this service, of which the Pedo-Graph is a part, consists of a wide knowledge of foot ailments and an adequate supply of corrective devices.
Furthermore, when standard equipment does not provide for an unusual situation, such as a peculiar irregularity of the arches, this store is prepared to meet it by taking a plaster cast of the foot and fashioning a proper arch from flat sheets of metal.

The first time you are down town, even though you are not ready for an immediate fitting, become acquainted with the Pedo-Graph.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Two years ago I met a young man and fell in love with him. He went away and promised to write to me. He did not do this so I wrote to him. He never answered and I have seen him only once since then.

Last Summer I received a card from him saying he would be down to see me on a certain night. This he failed to do. I wrote to him and asked him why he didn't come and he never answered.

What shall I do? LILY.

LILY: This young man has been extremely rude and discourteous to you, and you should make up your mind to forget him, my dear. He has committed a breach of etiquette by breaking an engagement with you, and by disregarding your letters he has proved he is not interested in you. Make it a point to meet people who value your company and who will not subject you to humiliations. You will not regret this, I am sure.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young fellow of seventeen Is it right that I should tell my chum when I go out with a girl, who she is, and where we go?

Is it right that I may go out with several different girls, and not tell them about it; if I already know that they go out with other fellows. Hoing to see my answer in the paper soon.

Yours very truly,
FRECKLES,
Aylmer Street.

FRECKLES: There is no special reason that I can see for you making your chum a father confessor, unless you wish, as some young men and women do, to exchange confidences about such things, to get "a line on the other fellow's style", so to speak. If you wish to keep your love affairs to yourself, why not do so?

Frankly, Freckles, if your complexion lives up to your name, and you are only seventeen, I don't think you can do anything very wrong Most young men of seventeen who have freckles are extremely nice chaps. I should recommend very strongly that you go out with any number of girls, especially if they make a practise of the same sort of general good fellowship.

"There's safetly in numbers," you know. Only—don't get excited over any single specimen. Avoid moonlight nights with the type of girl who already has several other admirers. As for your capacity to "not tell them about it"—don't worry. Each one will find out soon enough. There is a sort of "grapevine telegraph" system in use among women who are friends of the same man. You won't be able to conceal your philandering proclivities very long in Peterboro. There was a certain young man from England who used to live here and thought he was having a wonderful time with two girls—visiting them on different evenings, and so forth, and fondly imagining that the dear things were each in ignorance of the existence of a rival. He was rather surprised one night to learn that the two had been comparing notes all along, and were getting a good deal of fun out of the situation. But if they don't see the humor in it,— and some women haven't much sense of humor,—look out.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl, still in my early twenties. I am inclined to be wild, both in company and out. I am always encircled by a group of both girl and boy friends.

Now, dear Annie Laurie, would you advise me to still continue being what my own human nature calls for, or should I be more, or at least, act more civilized.

Hoping you will answer through your paper, I am,

Yours,
LOLLYPOP.

LOLLY POP: I thing the very best that you are wondering about your conduct shows that you are not altogether satisfied with it in your mind. You should certainly try to act "civilized" at all times. As you are in your early twenties, perhaps it would be better if you would try to modify your "wildness" to some extent. You are getting slightly beyond the skittish age, don't you think so? However, as long as you continue to reside in the place where you now make your home, I don't believe the consequences of boisterous behavior will be fraught with any great degree of danger. In any case, if you wish to be a lady, you won't act "wild" at any time or place. The old description of a lady as a gentle-woman still holds good.

THE MODERN LORELEI

By Mary Lawson

Long, long ago—so the story goes—the Lorelei sat on a rock and sang beautiful songs and combed her wonderful golden hair to lure the sailors to death and destruction. Folks laughed at the tale and said it never could be true, but the sailors declared it was so and insisted that they had seen the wonderful creature.

And I'm inclined to think it was so. For where can you go nowadays that you don't see some wonderful girl whose marvelous beauty attracts all the males within sight? True the harp of the Lorelei is replaced by the ukulele, and the golden tresses are trimly bobbed —but the lure is still there, only it is the lure of beauty and innocence and love which attracts everyone to her.

And she sits atop the rock secure in the knowledge of her charms and oblivious to all else in the world but the chosen one for whom she waits.

TODAY'S FASHION

By Vera Winston

This cool little frock of white and green crepe has a novel border print that makes it different from the general run of printed frocks.

Instead of an all-over design, there is a printed border of slender lily-leaves, traced in green. These are of irregular height, the ones at the back extending up a little higher on the frock than those in front.

Additional coolness of effect is imparted by a fold of green crepe to finish the hemline. There are matching folds on the sleeves and collar, with tabs from the collar that drop in front.

The coming to the home city of new residents and industries would make a definite addition to the potential and actual wealth of the city.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, 331 Reid street, recommends the following recipe for date muffins:

2 cups flour.
2 level teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 teaspoon soda.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons lard or substitute.
1-2 cup brown sugar.
2 dozen or more dates, stoned and chopped.
1 cup sour milk.

Bake like tea biscuits of muffins. They will remain fresh for several days

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN MODERN GIRL MARRIES

Flappers—no I'm not going to worry about flappers—not any more.

I used to worry about them a lot—Oh, about three or four years ago when they first began to bob their hair and shorten their pettiskirts and wear nude stockings and sleeveless dresses in the day time and paint their cheeks and redden their lips and blacken their eyelashes, right at the table in a public restaurant.

The first time I saw a girl of sixteen smoke a cigarette in a public cafe, I didn't know what to think and when I looked at her closely and saw that she was a nice little daughter of a nice friend of mine, I didn't want to do any thinking at all.

And the first time I heard a little sixteen-year-old call up a man and ask him if she couldn't take him for a drive in her new runabout, I fairly gasped.

When I was sixteen, the men did the calling up and the driving—and they used to make us think that it was a wonderful privilege to take us out and buy us flowers and send us candy.

"What in the world is the matter with the girls?" I thought. "How bold they are! No wonder the men don't run after them. The girls keep the men busy running away from them."

But I have changed my mind since then.

Why?

Well I'll tell you.

The girl with the cigarette was married about three years ago.

I felt sorry for her husband. She couldn't cook and she couldn't sew and she didn't even know how to dust a room and dust it right.

But her husband was a young man with prospects and very little money.

And what do you think the flapper did? She got him to take a little place in the suburbs and she made all the curtains herself and she embroidered things for her table and she learned to cook and she learned to manage and she has the prettiest little dumpling of a baby you ever saw and she is as good a mother and as good a wife as her grandmother ever dared to be.

She is in love with her husband and her husband is in love with her and they are as happy as if she had never worn a short skirt nor used a lip stick in her life.

And then there's the girl who made up her face in public. Do you know what she is doing now? Taking care of an invalid mother, devoting every minute of her day and night to her, without a murmur. She reads to mother. She sings to mother. She plays cards with mother—and any man who gets her to marry him some day will be a lucky man.

It's all on the surface, this painting and short skirting and tearing up and down the streets. In under all the folly and the bad taste—the girls are girls just as they have always been. honest hearted, courageous, fine girls and I am not going to worry about them a minute longer, even if they are flappers.

And that's that.

PETERBOROUGH FANCIES

By Jeannette.

TASSELS AND 'KICK' PLEATS.

To wear a dress that looks like a coat and a suit that looks like a dress, appears to be one of the aims of the Fall styles.

The ensemble dresses that will be so popular this Autumn show the coat influence, whether they are combinations of printed silk slips and filmy overdresses or developed simply in cloths and crepes, and the elongated stole collars, narrow affairs that end usually in a long tassel sometimes descending to the very hem at the front, carry out the same illusion as the wearer being clad in a light coat.

These tassels are immense and costly-looking affairs, and come in foot-long samples in silk and in jet beads. They make an effective finish for the front of any frock.

Circular flares appear to be just the thing also in the new dresses, and there is a suggestion of studied simplicity in the long sleeves with tiny wrist cuffs. Very few high collars are shown, despite the predictions for the return of a portion of the costume that was discarded so many years ago, and seems to be having a hard time in getting back into favor again.

Blacks will be good for Fall wear, with purples, mauves and rusts a close following, and the new cranberry red also in favor.

In the light suit line are the new jersey models in shades of green and grey, with all the appearance of a dress. In fact, they are more of a dress than a suit, as the tops slip on over the head, but the suit idea is developed in the front buttons and the tiny pocket at either side. Plain, rounded collars with a tie and long sleeves with small cuffs finish the tops. The skirts, usually showing the smart little 'kick,' or inverted pleat at the front or a cluster of knife pleats at the sides, are either fastened to a camisole top which is convenient under the light-weight upper portion or come in separate styles.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

Do you know how to give yourself perfect repose?

Alas, this is such a rare gift, and at the same time it is such a necessary one for the obtaining and keeping of beauty.

We all know how disturbing the person who is who seems really unable to curb his or her restless movements. When we dine with them they show their lack of repose by fingering the silver and the dishes on the table. When we sit and talk to them they find something to play with, whether it is the arm of their chair, or an ornament from the living room table, or their own handkerchief, which they ceaselessly twist and untwist.

Now if this person who annoys us so, or this person whom we might see always with us if we were near a mirror, would learn to rest at the proper time, she would be always in better command.

Repose is necessary to beauty. If you really know how to rest, you can refresh yourself in a wonderfully short time by simply resting, and then going on your way in a perfectly calm, unfidgety manner.

Now, my dears, it is within the power of all of us to simply force ourselves to rest whenever we have the opportunity. And by this I do not mean simply lying still in a darkened room. We might do this, and still the body may be taut and tight, and the mind be continually hopping from one agitated question to another.

Lean to devitalize your mind and body at the same time. If you capture this trick, you will not need a darkened room for your resting, though I will admit it is helpful and pleasant. But once you have the trick of perfect relaxation, you can rest even when you are sitting in a crowded street car.

Now I am going to give you one of the best methods of resting in your own room when you have the chance.

Lie straight out on your back on your bed or a flat couch. Do not even have a pillow under your head and let your arms lie perfectly still and limp at your side.

Of course, you will have removed or loosened any binding clothing before you take this position, so you can breathe easily and naturally. I also advise taking off your shoes so as to rest your feet all the better.

Now relax every muscle under control of your will, and at the same time literally stop thinking. If you do this for from one to five minutes, it is surprising the rest your body and mind can receive.

This, I may add, is a perfect way to bring on sleep. If you have trouble going to sleep at night, try this method out. Even if you have to try it every day or night for a month before the trick is completely yours, it will be well worth while for the rest of your life. Learning to rest this way, simply means refreshened beauty to your other [illegible] will stay young

OUR "NEW IDEAS" CONCERNING WOMEN

"Come on, let's hear from you—you may be old but you have young ideas!" says A Sister Flapper, '25, inviting me to lead the band into the battlefield. I may have young ideas, but I want to live to be an old, old lady, so I decline her kind invitation with thanks.

This Flapper War may wage as bloody as the Flaps and Anti-Flaps wish, but they can count me out. I also remark from my place in the safety zone that neither side seems to require any outside interference. Here's a Flapper letter:

I have just a few things to say to you and to the Flappers of '25. I am with you, sisters. I believe in you, and why—because I am a Flapper myself. I am only 17 and haven't seen much of life myself, but just the same I would like to express my opinion.

First, I want to tell the world just a few things. And then I'd like to say a few words to the sweet Old Fashioned Girls. Do you know why they are old-fashioned? They are afraid, yes, afraid of what the World will say. A few cigarettes never killed anyone, and if they may help you to catch the man you want, why not? Worse things are being done every day and not by the Flapper. We just get the blame.

The older generation blame us every day for exactly the things they do themselves. If you don't believe that take a walk down the Main Street of any town. At least two-thirds of the oldsters have their hair bobbed and the other third are thinking of it seriously. And do they paint, smoke or drink? Why, of course not! They wouldn't think of it.

Come on, let's hear from you. You may be old, but you have young ideas.

A Sister Flapper of '25.

Some of your fondest "new ideas" aren't new at all. Plucked eyebrows, bobbed hair and jobs for women have been in and out of style in the world's memory as often as long skirts and short skirts have been in ours Particularly "jobs for women" which Mere Man confidentially classifies as a "new idea." He says:

Just to settle a little argument between me and my better half, how did old maids and the widows get along before women began to take up stenography and real estate? The new idea of women working is all right with me, and we all recognize they do need the work very often. But why in heck didn't the women of twenty or fifty years ago need the work and get it?

Mere Man.

Quite a few of 'em did, Mr. Man. You read all about Benjamin Franklin in your school reader, didn't you? But I'll bet they never told you about Bennie's sister-in-law. It was up to her to earn her own living or eat on Bennie or some other member of the family. So she chose the former means of existing. She became a ship chandler. She advertised that her customers could depend "upon being supplied with the true sort of Crown Soap and Hard Soap, Wax and Tallow Candles by wholesale and retail for Families and Shipping."

This advertisement along with some others has recently been dug out of colonial newspapers by Elizabeth Anthony Dexter.

Druggists, jewelers and dry goods clerks were numerous. Women went from house to house making clothes for families. Others mounted and repaired fans, umbrellas, made artificial flowers and wigs. Still others ran bakeries and did fine cooking. All this data about the colonial women can be found in Mrs. Dexter's volume, "Colonial Women of Affairs," which I respectfully recommend to Mere Man and any others who still cuddle the idea that business ladies are something new.

SENATORS SUFFER DOUBLE LOSS ATHLETICS BEATEN BY TIGERS

Washington Pitchers Flailed By White Sox in Two Games.

RUTH'S 11TH HOMER.

WASHINGTON, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Chicago gave the Washington Senators a severe setback today by winning both games of a double-header. In the first game the White Sox drove Walter Johnston to cover, forced the Harris men to use three other pitchers, and won 10 to 5. In the second contest the Sox, after pounding two pitchers from the mound, won 6 to 2, when the game was called in the eighth because of darkness. Scores:

First Game:

Chicago....	002011006	10	11 2
Washington..	001020002	5	11 1

Lyons, Connally and Schalk; Johnson, Marberry, Russell, Ogden and Ruel, Severeid.

Second Game:

Chicago.....	40110000	6	7 1
Washington	00020000	2	9 2

Detroit 4; Athletics 3.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28 (anadian Press).—Detroit took the first game of the series with the Athletics here today, 4 to 3. A home run into the left field stands by Rigney, driving in Dauss ahead of him in the fifth inning, giving the Cobbmen a lead that the Athletics could not overcome. Poole's wild throw of Cobb's grounder and a single by Heilman scored the winning run in the sixth inning. Score:

Philadelphia..	011001000	3	11 2

Dauss and Bassler; Rommel and Cochrane.

New York 6; St. Louis 2.

NEW YORK, July 28 (Canadian Press). — One old right-hander proved better than two young left-handers today, and New York defeated St. Louis, 6 to 2. Bob Shawkey was more effective than Ernie Wingard and Chester Falk, the latter going to the mound in the seventh.

Babe Ruth hit into the bleachers for his eleventh homer of the year in the seventh, with Paschal on base and he drove in a run in the opening round with a single. He scored himself three times, being forced in Wingard's wildness in the third. The Babe put a climax to the game by picking Hargrave's foul out of a pavilion box for the final out. Score:

St. Louis..	200000000	2	8 0
New York	30000120x	6	8 1

Wingard, Falk and Hargrave; Shawkey and Bengough.

Cleveland 16; Boston 7

BOSTON, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Cleveland found no trouble in hitting Boston pitching today and incidentally won by the overgrown score of 16 to 7. The Indians piled up 24 hits, Sherrod Smith having a perfect day at bat on four trips to the plate. Joe Sewell's playing around shortstop was a defensive feature. Wambsganss, regular second baseman of the Red Sox, played first base as Todt suffered a hurt finger in Philadelphia yesterday. Score:

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

The Play.

There is a runner on first and third and one out. The batsman tops the ball and it rolls down the third base line about a foot in foul territory.

The runners are in motion with the hit, the runner on third being almost over the plate and the runner on first almost to second, when the umpire calls foul ball.

When the umpire so ruled, the ball was a foot foul. It then struck some obstruction along the base path and bounded into fair territory and settled there.

The runners all stopped when the umpire called foul. The third baseman picked up the ball and threw to second, who in turn threw to first and the team in the field claimed a double play, retiring the side.

What about this play?

The Answer.

The umpire erred in calling the play too quickly. He should have waited until the ball lost its momentum or was fielded.

While it was apparent to everybody in the park that the ball was fair, the umpire ruled it foul and he must stand by his judgment, even though he knows it is an incorrect ruling.

To change from foul to fair would have worked a great injustice to the team at bat, since all the runners stopped when the umpire ruled foul ball.

There is nothing for the umpire to do but send the runners back and make the batsman hit over. It would be decidedly unfair to him to make the team at bat suffer for his mistake.

GIANTS GATHER FIVE HOME RUNS FROM THE CUBS

Bentley Allowed Chicago Only Five Hits—Pirates Also Win.

REDS BLANK PHILS.

Luque Fanned Ten as Cincinnati Stretch Wins to Four in a Row.

CHICAGO, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Five lusty home run smashes by the New York Giants gave the champions an easy victory over Chicago, 10 to 3, in the first game of the series. Jack Bentley allowed the Cubs only five scattered hits and never was in great danger as his teammates played great ball behind him. Meusel collected two of the four-baggers and Lindstrom and Gowdy hit their homers consecutively in the sixth inning. Bentley got his four-base smash with two men on in the seventh. Meusel's first homer was made in the first inning with one man on and the other in the eighth. Score:

Chicago....	002000010	3	5 0

Bentley and Gowdy; Cooper, Bush, Jones and Gonzales.

Robins 12; St. Louis 9.

ST. LOUIS, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Duster Mails weakened and Brooklyn defeated St. Louis, 12 to 9. The Robins bunched hits in the sixth and seventh innings for eight runs. Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals increased his season's string of circuit clouts to 26 by hitting into the right field bleachers in the eighth inning with the bases loaded. Score:

Reds 3; Phillies 0

CINCINNATI, July 28. (Canadian Press).—The Reds ran their winning streak to four games when Luque held the Phillies to five scattered hits and shut out the visitors in the first game of the eastern series. Luque was in rare form as he fanned ten Phillies, getting the side in the sixth inning. The Reds also made but five hits, but made them all count in the scoring. Luque has fanned 18 men in the last two games. Score:

BIG SPORT DAY IS ASSURED ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

G.W.V.A. Have Assistance of C.O.B.L. Team and Rotary Club.

EXTENSIVE PLANS.

Plans Assume Bigger Scope as Ideas Are Developed—Worth Attending.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in the office of the secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association for the purpose of further developing plans regarding the Civic Holiday attraction which will be staged at the Exhibition Grounds. J. Abraham presided. Others present were Sid Whatley, N. Crowe, M. McGill, V. Kellar, J. Milby, S. M. McGill and E. G. Hardie.

Judging by the earnestness and effort which the committeemen are tevoting to organization, Augost 10 will be a date which should meet the approval of every sport lover as attractions of track, diamond and gridiron will fill a sport card which will leave nothing to be desired.

For the evening performance a midway, booths and dancing will provide plenty of entertainment for everyone.

Enticing prizes will be offered which should result in a big entry of speedy horses in 2.15 and 2.30 classes and as the Exhibition track has been long recognized as one of the fastest in the Dominion, the races should provide many a thrill for the lover of fast horses. It is quite probable that the local speeders will be augmented by many outside horses.

Concurrently with the horse racing, there will be played baseball games, including a game which the Peterborough C.O.B.L. team will play with some other high-class aggregation, probably from Toronto. There will also be numbers of softball and football games, which will be operated on the elimination system. Foot races and relays will occupy a prominent place on the schedule and athletes of the city will be given an opportunity of demonstating their prowess.

C.O.B.L. Offer.

Tommy Holyman was the C.O.B.L. representative who proferred the co-operation of the Peterborough ball club providng that suitable contenders be provided. After considerable discussion it was decided that negotiations should be developed with Manager Johnston so that a team might be brought down from Toronto and the possibility of having Rasson, of last year's McCormick team, who pitted himself last year in the stirring duel with Whitehouse of the Lakeviews, was considered.

Jack Seals, President of the Rotary Club, presented a number of valuable hints and offered equipment for various midway games. He also offered the whole hearted support of club members providing that no active organizing work be allotted them. A suggestion considered of value was that of an enclosure for pitching quoits, a game which had excited much interest at the recent Rotary carnival.

Plans were also considered whereby tickets might be disposed of and it was decided that a number of young folks be requisitioned for the task. Ten cash prizes are to be distributed as the awards for selling the highest number of tickets. Announcements in this regard will appear later, but it is considered probable that the tickets will be obtainable from Sid Whatley at his office in the War Veterans' building.

The question of food was brought up and it was considered wise not to attempt providing regular meals but that sandwiches would prove of greater value and of less inconvenience in their assembly and disposal. On further discussion it was decided that concessions be let to women's church organizations for a nominal fee and thus relieve the executive of a burdensome responsibility.

As first propounded the baseball attraction might have taken place at Riverside, but after due thought and consideration that proposal was defeated and it was found to be of greater value to have all attractions co-ordinated. As at present arranged there will be plenty to watch as the three ring circus idea has been adopted. Soft ball and football contests will last practically throughout the entire afternoon, so that the spectators' desire for variety will be adequately supplied, as he can in the meantime watch various kinds of race events.

Regarding the matter from every angle the programme is beginning to assume proportions which would make it unwise for any Peterborough citizen to contemplate leaving the city on August 10 until he has thoroughly investigated the possibilities which the Exhibition grounds will afford on that day.

NEW POISON GAS.

Discovered By Japanese Chemist—Made From By-Products of Copper.

OSAKA, Japan, July 29.—(United Press).—While agitation is on in many countries for abolition of poison gas as an instrument of warfare a Japanese chemist has brought forward a new gas which he asserts is the most deadly known.

The chemist, Dr. Kyosaku Takeda, has been experimenting at his laboratory in Sennin Pass, Iwate prefecture, and has completed forty drums of his new gas, described as an arsenious acid derivative made from the by product in cooper or reduction plants.

A quantity of the gas which escaped destroyed trees and all other vegetation near the laboratory.

OLD COUNTRY CRICET

Somerset 158 (McBrien 80) and 67 for three wickets.

M'QUILLAN TO CONTEST SUIT

New York Pitcher Denies Charges of Wife—No Reconciliation.

NEW YORK, July 29—No reconciliation moves marked the appearance of Hugh McQuillan, Giant pitcher, and his wife, Nellie T. McQuillan, Monday in the Brooklyn Supreme Court at a hearing her separation suit filed two days ago. It was said to have been the first time that they had seen each other since she left him nearly a year ago and went to the home of her parents at Worcester.

Several friends and relatives who were in court with the expectation that the McQuillans would find a way for a peace compact to end their domestic disagreement were disappointed. McQuillan announced through his attorney, B. H. Reich, that he would contest his wife's action, and then he served a copy of his answer to her complaint, in which he said:

I deny all of the charges. At all times I endeavored to be a good husband. I tried to give my wife everything her heart desired. There is no truth in her chrage that I drank intoxicating liquor. Everyone knows that all baseball players are watched very closely to see that they do not break training and that they keep physically fit.

"I deny my wife's charges that I was ever over-friendly with Miss Helen Goebbel. I only met her after my wife and I had separated. I know her family intimately, and that's all there is to it."

The hearing was to have been upon question of alimony and counsel fees for Mrs. McQuillan pending the outcome of her action, but when her husband announced he intended to contest the suit his wife's attorney, J. F. Kelly, asked for an adjournment until July 31, which Justime James C. Cropsey granted. Kelly said he required the time to obtain supporting affidavits to Mrs. McQuillan's complaint.

TORONTO ULSTER UNITED SOCCER TEAM TIED WITH NANAIMO

Ulster United Soccer Team, officers and coaches, of Toronto, who played Nanaimo in the final for the Connaught Cup, emblematic of the Dominion Football Championship, at Winnpeg. The first game proved a scoreless tie, and the second game on Monday night in Winnipeg resulted in another draw, Ulster scoring the tieing goal with only two minutes to play. It was the most exciting soccer game ever witnessed in Winnipeg. The British Columbia team qualified by defeating United Weston of Winnipeg.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Del Cherry entered the ranks of the hitless in Monday night's game between Kingston and Belleville, that being the first time this season that the big Kingston outfielder has not connected for at least one safe single. Hughie Keon turned the trick, despite his poor showing here on Saturday, and against the rest of the Kingston team on Monday.

• • • • • • • •

The Petes left this morning for Kingston on their last scheduled journey of the season. They have yet to win in the Limestone City and hope to break the jinx. Jack Nott, writing in the Oshawa Telegram, is so confident that the games will follow precedent that he gives the probable standing of the league after next Saturday's game, calling the Ponies to win tonight and the Petes for Saturday.

• • • • • • • • •

Tonight's local attraction is the second game of the juvenile final and should prove an attraction. The game starts at 5.15, and both teams are right on their toes for the fray.

• • • • • • • • •

For surprising plays the Midget League takes the cake. Last week one runner caught and passed another on the baseline and got away with it, although the opposing team raised a holler. Then on Monday night a pinch-hitter went in and batted for a player, and when the inning was over Mr. Pinch-hitter stayed on the sidelines while his teammate went out and played his position again. No agreement could be reached about the innings the relieved man played in, so all bets were called off and the fight will be resumed another time.

• • • • • • • • •

The date has not yet been set for the third game of the junior playoffs, but whenever it is you'd better be there. For some reason the first two games were worse than the school league usually puts up, and the players are heartily ashamed of themselves and are promising to play ball in the next game.

NEW YORK RINK TO BE LARGEST

NEW YORK, July 28—New York's new ice hockey arena, which will be opened to the public this Fall with the completion of the New Madison Square Garden, will be the largest in the world, both in point of playing surface and seating capacity. This will be good news to the lovers of the thrilling and spectacular sport who still can recall the old days at the famous St. Nicholas Rink and the difficulties they encountered in gaining even so much as standing room at the big matches. The new arena will seat 15,000, a matter of 6,000 more than can be accomodated at the arena in Montreal, which, until the projection of the New Madison Square Garden plant, was looked upon as about the last word in hockey arenas.

In the old St. Nichalos Rink the playing surface was barely up to the then existing regulations, Many a jam and crash occurred in the Sixty-sixth Street arena due to the small size of the rink. The new rink here will be 186ft. long and 85ft. wide, dimensions that were decided upon only after practically every hockey expert in this country and Canada had been consulted. The first desire of the builders was to eliminate the old bugaboo occasioned by the small rink, which proved dangerous and often a handicap to speedy teams. Fearing to go to the other extreme and create a rink too large, the builders weighed the matter for many months, going into the subject very deeply, and finally decided upon a rink 186 by 85 feet, and it is agreed among experts that this is the ideal size.

Cooling System Arranged.

The ice plant at the new arena is to have a capacity of 1,000 tons daily, which will permit of creating an ice surface in seven hours. This will be a great advantage, as it will allow the holding of boxing matches, track meets, etc., on one night and a big hockey match the following night. The ice plant will not be confined to making ice for the hockey rink, but it will be used for cooling the entire Madison Square Garden. Because of this it is very likely that summer boxing shows indoors will be held next year with all the advantages of the coolness of outdoors and the safety from rain that always is a hazard for outdoor amusement enterprises.

Of course, with the greatest rink in existence, the new Madison Square Garden will have to furnish a high class of hockey, and to that end this city is to have one of the strongest professional sextets in this country or Canada, and is quite likely also to back a strong amateur club in an amateur circuit which will be organized within a few weeks.

Before hockey lost popular favor in this city both pro and amateur games here were big attractions. There were many leagues in the city among mercantile and banking houses, and plans are under way to revive some of these old amateur circles. The pro. circuit will be the National Hockey League, which had fine success last season, when it placed a team in Boston. The circuit may undergo several changes before the season opens, and it is likely that Pittsburgh and Cleveland will be among the cities represented in the organization.

To Enlarge Amateur League.

The new amateur league, which probably will share amateur hockey in this country with the United States Amateur Hockey Association is to be organized at a meeting in Soringfield, Mass., on Aug. 3, when plans to take in Boston, one of the greatest hockey centres in this country; New Haven, Springfield, Philadelphia, New York and probably Pittsburgh and two other Eastern cities will be considered.

The present plans are to feature the professional game while the new amateur circuit is gaining a foothold. The professional ice sport is the fastest indoor sport in which man indulges, though the amateurs provide a game that is only slightly less speedy.

Tom Gorman, who won three world's hockey titles among the pros for Ottawa, and who will manage the New York arena and the pro team in this city, already has half a dozen stars signed up and is on the trail of others. Gorman is recognized as one of the leaders among hockey promoters and managers and is certain to put a fine team here to inaugurate the pro. game.

BALTIMORE WIN IN SIX INNINGS

PESTS RECOVER.

BALTIMORE, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Baltimore defeated Reading 8 to 0 here today, when rain halted the pastime after 5 1-2 innings. Porter and Earnshaw drove long home runs into the bleachers in the first and second innings, respectively, to account for four Baltimore runs. Smallwood, pitching for the Keys, lasted less than two innings. Score:

Reading....	000000	0	7 0
Baltimore	31040x	8	11 0

Smallwood, Young and McCarty; Earnshaw and McKee.

Jersey City 1; Providence 0

Jersey City, N.J., July 28 (Canadian Press).—Jersey City emerged from its losing streak today to defeat Providence, 1 to 0. Ellis held the Sweeters to five safeties, but his teammates could do nothing with Sloan. Score:

Providence	000000000	0	9 1

OTHER WINNERS.

OMEMEE, July 28. — Several years ago the Provincial Department of Agriculture launched a campaign, the object of which was to encourage the production of better seed grain in the province. Each year substantial cash prizes are offered through local agricultural societies for the best standing field crops. This year the competitions conducted through the Emily Agricultural Society were well supported, 16 farmers entered that in oats and 22 in fall wheat. The judges sent by the department have made their adjudications and the prize winners are as follows:

CANADIAN PLAYERS BEATEN

SEABRIGHT, N.J., July 29—Willard Crocker and Jack Wright, Canadian Davis Cup players, fared ill in the opening round of the annual Seabright bowl tournament. Monday Wright was unexpectedly knocking out in the first round of the singles by the startling collegian from the west coast, Cranston Holman, while yesterday Crocker succumbed easily to J. B. Hawkes, Australian Davis Cup star, 6-2, 6-1. Wright and Crocker went out of the doubles, 6-0, 6-3, to Lionel Ogden and Cranston Holman, of Leland Stanford University.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

A good comparison for the action of the swing of a golf club is the old trick of childhood days of throwing a ball of mud off the end of a switch. You know how you go about that trick. If the average golfer will take a wood club to the top of the back swing, then start the clubhead toward the ball with the idea that he is going to throw a ball of mud off the end of the shaft as he would hurl the mud from the end of a switch, he will get a new idea—and a correct one—of the clubhead action. It is in exactly this way that the clubhead is accelerated into and through the ball. The action is entirely through the delicate, sensitive muscles of the fingers and hands. You can readily understand that a lunge of the body forward would add nothing to your effort to throw a ball of mud off the end of a switch. By the same token it adds nothing to the action of the golf clubhead.

ORGANIZER VISITS THE STRIKE AREA

Purpose to Make General Survey of Conditions and Make a Report.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 29 (Canadian Press).—George L. Lewis, international organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, brother of John L. Lewis, international president, is here from Indianapolis, to make a general survey of conditions in the Cape Breton coal strike area, and to report there on to the international headquarters of the organization.

Mr. Lewis plans to spend a week in Cape Breton. He states that he is taking no hand in the strike settlement proposals.

CALGARY CALLS OLD WEST BACK

Stampede Brings Back Picturesque Pioneer Prairie Days For a Time.

SOUL OF CANADA.

By Cecile Bunn.

When I went to Calgary it was not only to see the stampede. I wanted to glimpse what I know eludes us in England— the spirit—I might even say the soul—of Canada, shining in patches through and through this sport.

And here, in the heart of the prairies, in the free, wide spaces of the west, I found the thing I sought. The stampede bridged for me the years that lie between 1925 and the days of the early settlers; it gave me a vision of the path through time along which the pioneers and their descendents must have walked. In a cowboy on a bucking horse, and a man lassoing a calf, I saw a page of Canada's history held up before my eyes.

As horses reared and plunged as bronzed, stalwart men dared them to do their worst, I saw a settler's never-ending struggle for existence long ago.

In fancy I gazed at a lone figure on the plains, the face of one who had set out to build himself a home in a world where the forces of nature arrayed themselves against him. His soul, his brain, and his hands were his equipment; to succeed, he needs must be dominant, must conquer and bend all to his will.

How could he travel, without a horse? Till the soil for food, without the brute to help him? How fetch his stores, how keep his larder stocked? A link with the world—servant, friend — all these the horse must have been to the man whose picture came before my eyes.

So it was the pageant of the past, and not the stampede of yesterday, at which looked with English eyes. The plunging, rearing horse was of the "forties; the rider who sternly refused to be thrown was a pioneer bound for Oregon. The man had declared the horse should take him there; the animal held other views, and tried to hurl him from the saddle.

And the rider did not fall.

Rearing on hind legs had no effect. The horse tried standing on his head for a change; he sprang up and down as if receiving electric shocks. Still the man did not fall.

As the rider trotted the horse away .I saw the Red River settler starting on his journey.

When the cowgirl and her steed cleared a car, I saw the plains, a herd of buffalo, and Marie Lagimoniere clinging to the mane of a runaway. And this, because I am in Canada. At home my eyes, I think, were veiled.

The spirit of gaiety hemmed me round in the streets; flags, and streamers flying, waved welcome to one and all. Bubbles of laughter came rippling to my ears; merry talk—cheery smiles—I heard and saw them all the way.

"Buy your stampede handkerchiefs here!" I longed to do so, and tie the brightly colored thing about my neck! But I am fresh from England—I was alone—so I did not dare! Instead, I lingered by the windows, to read what was woven in the silk, and in the threads of the crimson, and blue, and yellow shirts.

"The grandfather of the man who wears this worked hard, and had little time for play. But recreation all must have, and he found his—in the daily toil.

"To be able to lasso a steer was included in the exigencies of life; otherwise he reamed, never heeding back or call, and the prairies swallowed him up. And to bid a neighbour, unversed in the animal's wiles, try his skill, caused fun and merriment unbounded. And then, as the land grew more and more peopled, holiday meetings and festivals were held; the old pastimes were still indulged in, each striving to become most proficient. Holiday mood means holiday attire; to discard workday garb for other, is to slothe one's mind, as fell as one's body, anew. So the gaily-tinted shirt, the wrapper of cheerful hue, made appearance at the frolic. They are part of the joy, of the spirit of laughter essential to life."

That was what I read, as I loitered by the windows of the shops. It is what I understood, when the hoofs went thudding by.

"Ride him! Cowboy!"

Who was the first, I wonder, sent that call across the plains? Was it a Selkirk settler of Kildonan?

7 COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT WITH GOODS

Five Men and Two Women Nabbed With Perfect Bogus Bills.

DETROIT, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Five men and two women alleged leaders of a counterfeiting gang, believed to have been responsible for flooding Chicago, Detroit and other cities in the Middle West with counterfeit bills, were arrested today in a raid on an apartment. The gang is thought to have issued series of bogus $20 bills. The bills taken by the authorities are said to be almost perfect facsimiles of a Federal Reserve note.

PETERBORO' BOYS HAVE LONG CRUISE

Eight in 21 Footer Through Trent Waterway to Georgian Bay.

Eight Peterborough boys have just returned to the city after a two weeks' motor boat cruise up the Trent waterway to Georgian Bay. The crew and passengers consisted of Howard Doner, Bert Budd, Tip Thirnbeck, Jim Wilson, Harold McFadden, Wilson Dunlop, Paul Coster and Harold Doner.

Leaving on Sunday, July 12 from Chemong Park they sped on their way, stopping at Lindsay for one day and also pausing at Bobcaygeon and Kirkfield. At Balsam Lake two eaglets were captured, despite the spirited attacks of the parent birds. These eaglets were despatched back to Chemong Park and presented to Peter Gettas.

The expedition was held up for three days at the canal entrance because of the rough water on the lake, and during that time a number of the boys who had instruments and knew how to work them, played for the hotel dinners. As there were three saxaphones, a trumpet, clarinet, traps, banjo and ukelele, the orchestra was no mean aggregation and won considerable approval from guests.

They were in Orillia at the time of the C. N. R. picnic and took a number of pictures, notably of the new Champlain Tercentenary Memorial.

The orchestra played for a dance at Port Severn, after which the party crossed the Georgian Bay to Midland, Port McNichol and Waubashene. They were stranded for a day on Strawberry Island, but were treated royally by an encampment of fellows from St. Michael's College, Toronto.

The farthest point visited was Midland, which would give a total trip distance of 500 miles, which is admittedly a lengthy cruise for eight youths to undertake in a 21-footer.

While at Orillia the boys were met by Herb Long and Paul Coster, the latter changing places with Budd, who left the boys motoring back with the eagles that had been captured.

Thrills were supplied in crossing Lake Simcoe, when huge rollers threatened to swamp the craft.

One particularly good picture shows a huge spray-capped wave engulfing the tiny craft. The boys said that after the inundation which the picture portrayed, it was necessary to head for shore and bale out.

The boys have scores of interesting snap shots and many little anecdotes with regard to their trip, which will provide entertainment for many days.

AT THE CAPITOL

Leatrice Joy and 14 Beauties in "Dressmaker from Paris".

Matching one's own personal charms against those of fourteen of the most beautiful girls obtainable from all parts of the world is a test for any screen actress.

Leatrice Joy has come through this ordeal with flying colors in "The Dressmaker from Paris," which marks her return to the screen. For the roles of manikins in this Paramount production, Paramount assembled fourteen beautiful girls from all parts of the globe.

There are Latin beauties, Oriental beauties, Norse beauties, Gallic and Gaelic beauties,— the most perfect faces and figures obtainable. In addition to the 'fourteen" is Mildred Harris, recognized as one of the screen's most attractive women.

Leatrice Joy, herself a "perfect 36" with jet black hair, ivory skin and flashing black eyes, is seen throughout the production with the fourteen gorgeous manikins, each of them adorned with magnificent and exclusive creations.

Every gown was designed at Paramount's west coast studio by a style creator, who was brought from Paris expressly for this production, directed by Paul Bern.

Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks wrote "The Dressmaker from Paris" directly for the screen. Ernest Torrence is featured with Miss Joy in the cast. Other big names are Mildred Harris, Allan Forrest, "Spec" O'Donnell, Larry Gray, Charles Crockett and Rosemary Cooper.

'The Dressmaker of Paris' closes its run at the CAPITOL Theatre, To-night.

"The modern aviator is our greatest hero!

"Robin Hood, Dick Turpin, and other notable heroes of romatic history have not accomplished all the great deeds which appeal to popular imagination," announces Fred J. McConnell, one of the co-authors of "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture which opens at the ROYAL Theatre, next Thursday, according to manager McGeachie.

"And of all the daring aviators, Al Wilson is energetically the best, because he will take any kind of a startling risk." McConnell explained.

Wilson has an important role in this series which is directed by Jay Marchant . Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-star. Such well-known favorites as William Welsh, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy support; the latter being one of the most famous feminine aviators in the country.

The story reveals the trickery of a gang of rustlers who take advantage of a man's misfortune and carry away most of his cattle. This gang also seeks to find a fabulous treasure which Indians have buried upon his ranch .

An unknown aviator drops in on the ranch and is aided by the owner's daughter. Daugherty plays the part of the young aviator. Eileen Sedgwick is the ranch owner's daughter and Wilson is a tramp aviator who repairs the plane and aids in the mystery.

REAL THRILLS RISKED IN NEW HOXIE PICTURE.

Bartlett Carre Nearly Lost His Life Recently.

Jack Hoxie's brother—for picture purposes only — in "Flying Hoofs" Universal picture to be shown in the Royal Thearte, To-morrow, is Barlettt A. Carre. Hoxie, the star is a sheriff and circumstanes lead him to suspect his brother as a notorious bandit known throughout the cattle country as "The Raven.' The brother in one of the scenes drives an automobile load of men over a hazardous road and at certain spots the men leap from the speeding machine and vanish in the bush while the brother drives the car to the edge of a cliff and jumps just as it plunges into space.

Carre is 6 feet 4 inches tall; also he is an athlete and he figured he could make the jump from the car without difficulty but his height hampered him a bit in getting ready for the jump and he did not clear the car until the front wheels were over the edge of the cliff. Then he tottered for a second or so while Hoxi's director Cliff Smith, and the camera force looked on in horror.

"Fell farther than that in an airplane once," nonchalantly said Carre as he was being congratulated on his escape. He joined the Royal Flying Corps of Canada at the beginning of the war, quitting De Pauw University for the purpose. The injuries he sustained in the fall caused him to be invalided out of the service before going overseas.

"Flying Hoofs" furnishes many thrills and Hoxie does some of the most sensational riding of his long screen career, on Scout. Universal Ranch Riders are prominent in the cast. There are two charming love interests in the picture and a number of intensely dramatic scenes.

The supporting cast includes Charlotte Stevens, Alys Murrell, Duke Lee, J. Gordon Russell, William Welsh and William Lester.

PEA LOUSE CAN'T SPOIL ALL PEAS

And Practical Man Says There Will Be a Bumper Crop.

Pea louse or no pea louse, there is going to be a bumper crop this year," was the statement made today by a prominent man in the pea business. Only the early canning and fancy peas are affected and the variable weather that has prevailed of late has killed off great numbers of the lice.

Fancy peas have so little straw that after a few days of harboring the pea louse dries up, while the common pea has much more vine and is consequently better able to withstand the attacks of the pest.

"This year's crop is the best in the district since 1922." It is worthy of note that in this statement is seen another evidence of conflict between the theorist and the practical man. The Dominion Entomologist replying to a communication sent him concerning the outbreak in this neighbourhood, advised the cultivation of the early varieties of peas as being more likely to be immune from the visitation of the lice.

OPTIC INJURIES SHOW HAZARDS OF INDUSTRIES

1,049 CLAIMS

Wide Divergence in Means by Which Blindness Results.

NEW YORK, July 28—There is no such a thing as a non-hazardous industry in the opinion of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness expressed in the report of an extensive study of eye hazards in industrial occupations, made public today by Lewis H. Carris, managing director of the committee.

"Of the 100,000 blind persons in the United States approximately 15,000 are the industrial blind—persons who have lost their sight in the pursuit of industrial occupations," says the report, "and there is in addition to the totally blind a much larger number of men, women and children whose vision has been so impaired by the eye hazards of industry that they are handicapped throughout life. Both of these classes, the industrial blind and the workers whose vision has been seriously impaired by the hazards of other industrial environment, grow larger each year."

There is hardly an industrial occupation in America, according to the National Committee, which does not add each year to the steadily increasing number of the blind and the near blind. Referring to the experience of just one insurance company which in three and a half years settled claims involving 1,039 cases of permanent disability resulting fro eye injuries, the report says: "The loss of 82 eyes in the presumably safe occupations of merchandising, farming, and textile manufacture is further proof of the statement that serious eye accidents are likely to occur wherever men, women and children are employed. There is no such thing as a really non-hazardous occupation."

The committee found that although from a national point of view the metal manufacturing industries are the source of the greatest number of serious eye injuries, in Pennsylvania the coal mining industry ranks first as a cause of industrial blindness. In Wisconsin it was found that hand tools constitute by far the greatest single cause of eye injuries, being responsible for 44 percent. As an example of the important part that eye injuries play in the whole problem of industrial accidents the report cites the experience of a large shipbuilding company in whose dispensary 38 percent of all injuries treated were eye injuries. More than 4,300 eye cases were treated in the dispensary of this one company in one year.

Former Strong Spots Lose While Ward B Reaches Peak

NEW YORK, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Selling for both accounts reached substantial proportions around the end of the first hour in Wall Street and turned the course of prices decidedly irregular. Net losses of two to four points were recorded by such recent strong spots as Montgomery Ward, Famous Players, Woolworth, Mack Trucks, Pierce Arrow Preferred, and Household Products. Rubbers fell back in sympathy with the lowering of crude prices, U. S. Rubber Common declining more than two points. Bullish operations persisted in other parts of the list and the market was again headed upward around midday. Brown Shoe extended its gain to 4 1-2 points, touching a new top at 113 and Ward B crossed 70 to a new peak, while International Telephone Remington Typewriter and Moon Motors sold 2 to 3 1-2 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

Thinks $75,000 Radial Might Yield a Profit

In connection with the street railway tangle, J. Douglas, 591 Water Street, comes forward with the suggestion that the City should make a proposal to the Hydro offering to purchase the system for $75,000, a big reduction from the original capitalization of between $450,000 and $500,000. He thinks at this figure the system might possibly be run so as to make ends meet.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Wheat Recovers After Drop With Corn and Oats Uneasy

CHICAGO, July 29. —(Canadian Press).— Wheat averaged higher in price to-day after a sag at the start. Initial declines were associated with a relative weakness of values at Liverpool on the other hand the fact that the domestic movement of winter wheat thus far failed to show any important accumulation at primary points had noticeable bullish influence. Chicago opening quotations, unchanged to 3-4 cents lower, September $1.51 to $1.51 1-2 and December $1.53 to $1.53 1-8 were followed by a slight further drop and then by an upturn that carried Sept. to $1.52 1-4 and Dec. to $1.54.

Corn was irregular, with deferred deliveries easy but with July showing strength. After opening at 3-8c decline to 1-8c advance, Sept. $1.06 3-4 the range widened between July and other months, December and May in particular.

Hedging sales tended to hold the oats market down. Starting at 1-8 lower to shade advance, Sept. 43 1-2 to 43 3-4, the market later underwent little decline all around.

Provisions were firm, sympathizing with the action of hog values.

Toronto Mines Decline After Figuring In Raise

TORONTO, July 29. —(Canadian Press). — A weak feeling that set in yesterday afternoon continued this morning on the standard exchange and nearly all stocks that figured in th recent advance closed lower at noon. Vipond opened strong but weakened during the session closing two points lower at 120 Teck Hughes Consolidated West Dome Lake were steady at 171 and 14 1-2 respectively. McIntyre declined five cents to 18.90 and Dome Mine also receded 10 cents to $14.80. Lorraine dropped two points to 19 while Castle Trethewey was one point lower at 92. Mining Corporation was seven points lower at 200.

Must Pass Rigid Tests and Are Given Very Careful Training.

BY HOWARD MINGOS.

The old-time express messenger, the two-gun man who rode on the stage coach to protect it from bandits in the wild and woolly days of the West, has come into the East with his twin guns and a grudge against all modern crooks who may covet the valuable and exceedingly varied cargoes that he undertakes to deliver anywhere safely. But he is quite up to date. Instead of the stage coach, he rides in an armored car, sheathed in bullet-proof steel and glass and turreted. He is supposed to be immune from any kind of assault, not excepting poison gas. He has even acquired the knack of protecting society women from the loss of their jewels.

During the Winter social season a number of women who like to wear fortunes in trinkets and gewgaws deposited their valuables in banks and had them delivered to their homes in armored cars. A hostess who entertains extensively started the habit and created a new branch of a trade that is expanding rapidly. Guests arriving at her house at night were astonished to find an armored car delivering her jewel case, the contents worth $640,000; departing, they were equally surprised to find that the car was waiting to take them away again. The owner never sees the jewelry except while she is using it.

None Held Up.

No armored car has been held up and robbed, and the late models appear more impregnable than the others, more like the army tank that inspired the peace-time development in the first instance. For the most part the hundreds of young men now entering the relatively pew service were trained during the war. They must be American citizens with spotless records before their applications for jobs are taken seriously. Then they must qualify in intelligence tests and pass rigid physical examinations. Finally, they must be natural marksmen—that is, capable of being trained to shoot revolvers or rifles from the hip if necessary, two guns at a time. One outfit contains four army Captains, eight Lieutenants and ten sergeants.

Watch a squad of them in the city armories where they are in training.

"Now take this dummy here. That's pretty fair shooting, Wilson." The instructor had been a Captain in the A. E. F. "You have put ten shots in his body out of a possible twelve, but you must give him the whole twelve and still shoot from the hip. Don't aim at him. Simply point at the third button on his vest. Now, step back twenty paces and shoot."

Two guns bark as one. The poor dummy registers twelve more perforations where its vest might have been, and another recruit has qualified to be one of the crew of four that goes out with each armoured car on its route.

Crew of the Car.

In charge is the conductor, the messenger. He handles the valuables, the bags and boxes. He is always accompanied by two guards. They never leave his side except that to and from the car one walks a pace ahead and the other a few steps in the rear. The driver completes the quartet. Outside the car all carry their pistols in their hands, ready for action.

One of the cars recently drew up in front of a bank in Manhattan. The conductor was collecting deposits. He had more than a million dollars in cash and securities sealed in the pouches in the rear compartment. The first guard climbed down from his seat next to the driver and took his position on the curb. A key turned in the small door at the driver's back, and as it swung open the conductor emerged. The other guard followed him out and the door snapped shut, closely locked so that even the driver could not get back if he had wanted to rob it. The messenger and his two guards entered the bank, the guards peering in all directions. It was the usual procedure.

As they came out in that formation they found a closed touring car backing up against their front wheels. Five men jumped out and walked back to the treasure car as if to look it over. Two of them paused near the front mudguard. The others stopped a few feet away, thus forcing the conductor to walk between them if he desired to reenter his car. He hesitated only long enough to whisper instructions.

In An Emergency.

One guard walked over to the pair in front, stepped behind them and stood there, his pistol pointed at their backs. The other guard followed the conductor and sidestepped behind the trio of strangers. Then the messenger hopped into the car, grasped a rifle and called to the guards to climb aboard. He said afterward that he could have killed all five had they attempted a hold-up. He thinks they were scouting, trying to learn what the crew would do in an emergency. They learned.

One company has each of its cars insured for $5,000,000. Each member of the crew is bonded for half that amount, a sum proportionate to the average cargo carried over a single route. An official of one of the insurance companies was doubtful of the custodians He followed a crew into an elevator one afternoon, and as it started up he leaned over and justled the messenger. Instantly the muzzle of a pistol was jammed into his side. He received a fracture[illegible]

[illegible] was the only vehicle on the streets that baffles a policeman seeking a lift. The steps are pulled up into the body of the car as the door is closed, and none can jump aboard without permission. It is never granted. No chances are taken anywhere.

When the Federal Reserve Bank was moved from Broad and Pine Streets to its new home at Maiden Lane and Nassau Street some months ago the greatest treasure ever assembled under one roof was transferred, more than $4,000,000,000 in currency, species and securities. Gold and silver alone weighed 700 tons. Such a prize might have warranted a large organization working for months or years to obtain. Nations have gone to war for smaller stakes.

But the regular army was not called out. An armored car company assumed all responsibility and did the job in two days. One car hauled the hoard. It was the middle one of three which would be drawn up to the old building. After it was loaded the others would escort it to its destination. Company guards maintained vigilant watch on each corner. There were four other tanks at each street intersection. Their crews watched the specie car, with instructions to stop it if it should turn off the course. If its crew jumped out they, too, were to be stopped. All hands ate their meals at their stations. Their life resembles that of the army tank corps in many ways. The machines are similar, with the exception of caterpillar wheels and minor details.

Some are small and so designed that they can work their way through crowded traffic more easily than the large ones. In front of the radiator a solid steel facing serves as a battering ram against any obstacles. It is the only thing that will stop some taxicab drivers.

The possibility of having the car surrounded in an isolated neighborhood has not been overlooked. The driver could become paralyzed and helpless, yet the car could not be moved while the rest of the crew were engaged elsewhere. In the rear compartment, the treasure vault, is an emergency brake. When the car stops, the conductor pulls the brake, setting it tightly. Until he unlocks the door and enters the compartment again it is unoccupied. The car remains in its place. The driver is equally well protected. He has clear vision on three sides. Loopholes cover an attack from the rear.

Bullet-proof Glass.

The glass in the windshield and side panels cannot be penetrated by bullets of any calibre. It is actually three panes of heavy plate glass laminated by a specially invented substance, equally transparent. It cannot give way, though badly bruised. It costs about $30 a square foot, and is as difficult to make as light bullet-proof steel. Until recently the armored cars were not bullet-proof. They had been accepted after tests with samples of glass and steel. Later, in similar tests, they proved vulnerable. Now the cars are tested separately; each machine is taken out to the proving grounds and volleys are fired against the armor before the machine is painted. If it breaks under the strain the car is rejected. The rear compartment contains bare benches for the guards and messenger. There are gun racks on all sides and ventilating machines over each loophole. The rifles are generally new-type sub-machine guns which discharge twenty-one bullets a second, and can be adjusted to spit out the entire chamber when the trigger is pulled once. Each loophole is so sheathed that it cannot be shot into. Nor can gas be sprayed through it. Electric fans are so arranged that they can change the air instantly.

Some of the carrying organizations make up payrolls for large construction firms and send their messengers to do the paying off. The contractor has no responsibility, for he does not draw his check for the payroll until his men are paid off. The bank meanwhile has the guarantee of the armored car company, which in turn takes the check of the contractor.

Many Uses for Tanks.

Many public utility corporations use the tanks to collect from branch offices. An electric light company saves the interest on a half million for one day at regular intervals because the collections are made at night and deposited in the bank a day ahead of the closest schedule that could be maintained by other methods.

Receipts of theatres, hotels, the prize fight arenas and the big league baseball fields are handled by means of the tanks.

Shortly after the curtain goes up on any entertainment in the big towns you can see an armored car draw up to receive that part of its load which is only a bit of the treasure gathered in the course of a single trip.

The other day a truckload of valuable paintings, among them a Rembrandt and a Van Dyke, traveled by armored car.

Commercial timber stands range from 8,000,000 to 11,000,000 acres, and those of the commercial saw timber from 33,000,000,000 to 42,000,000,000 board feet. Forest reserves of 18,894 square miles in Alberta, 9,303 square miles in Saskatchewan, and 3,734 square miles in Manitoba have been segregated. Fully 70 per cent. of Manitoba is said to be under forest cover.

BREAK ANOTHER'S RIBS

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 29. —(Canadian Press).— Testimony to substantiate further charges of brutality on the part of police and detectives in handling suspects in the Mary Pickford kidnapping case was promised by defense to-day. Claude Holcomb testified yesterday that virtually all detective work on the case by the police consisted of punching the three suspects to make them willing to confess they had plotted to kidnap Mary Pickford, Jackie Coogan, Pola Negra and many other motion picture celebrities.

Holcomb said that his face had been battered by his questioners at police head-quarters and that he finally signed confession because he was afraid they would "stump me every day until I did." The defense counsel added to this charge that another of the defendants sustained three broken ribs in the detective bureau during the process of making his confession.

House of Representatives Refuse to Pass Prohibitory Amendment.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 29. —(Canadian Press). — Teaching of evolution in Georgia Schools would be prohibited under provisions of an amendment offered in the House of Representatives.

The amendment would provide that any teacher who taught theory of origin of man in contradiction of the Bible's account could not receive salary from the common school approbation.

The amendment designed to prohibit teaching of Evolution in common schools of Georgia to-day was voted down overwhelmingly by State House of Representatives.

was not prepared to say whether the city should buy the system.

C. W. Hall remarked: "I don't think much of it. Leave the system alone, and the commissioners will be forced to give up, and we will then have the system to do what we like with it."

F. C. Webber asked "If the system was paying would we get the offer of it? So we will think of buying it when it does pay. When I see a man anxious to sell his business I want to know why he is selling out. I am opposed to buying a lame duck."

W. E. Franks, while believing that it would be a great pity if the system were scrapped thought the proposal that the city should buy a very poor one.

G. A. Borland said: "Under present conditions it is a poor proposal."

J. A. Simons suggested "Let the other fellow run it."

George Mather thinks all the facts should be available before the people are asked to make a decision.

W. G. Underhay described the suggestion as "an attempt to unload on us something that is losing money every day. Give us the Hydo as well," he said, "and then we might have something for our money."

T. Lansfield said: "Not in favor; we have enough taxes."

J. Reid said: "Taxes are high enough."

L. W. LeBarr thinks the street cars are an end to business, but does not want to see any proposal carried which will increase taxation.

BRITISH RAILWAYS NEXT TO FACE THREAT OF INDUSTRIAL TROUBLE

Proposed Cut in Wages Is Vigorously Opposed — Older Industries Are Steadily Losing Ground—More Efficiency in Younger Enterprises.

PRODUCTION AT HIGH LEVEL.

LONDON, July 30. — British railroads will be the next to pass through a crisis similar to that now agitating the mining industry. The owners' proposals to the workers that they should agree to voluntary reduction of5 per cent. in wages salaries and directors fees, in order to avoid future losses in running the railroads, have been rejected by the National Union of Railwaymen, and the owners are now considering what their next move shall be. It is likely they will take the matter before a concilliation board with the idea of showing the absolute necessity to make production meet working costs and they are confident such a oard will decide in their favor. As the workers demanded an increase for all grades before a reduction was proposed, there is a prospect of a struggle in spite of the friendly relations between the companies and the workers which is sure to add fuel to the industrial fires in the recurrent crisis. However, many see a hope for Britain's future if it can avoid strikes and a lockout, which in the case of the mining industry, would be fatal.

Industries Lagging.

Many British industries which were first in the field after discovery of steam and have fallen behind in the international race for efficiency, such as mining, are now finding they have lost all the advantages they enjoyed internationally 50 years ago. The younger industries were founded on greater efficiency and are able to compete successfully with them in the market.

Costs Have Risen.

It is also hinted that overhead costs have risen enormously and are out of all proportion to the industries and it is said that as a result of the crisis through which they are now passing, these industries will be reorganized and placed on a new basis, which will allow them to recover a postion something like they formerly enjoyed. It is notable that a court of inquiry report on the mining crisis says that the industry is inefficient and that the British industries, such as motors and electrical projects, are prospering, while the old industries are fall ing down.

MODEL CITIZEN A BANDIT CHIEF

Respectable Farmer For Five Years Confesses Murder and Robbery.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., July 30. — Nicholas Filipow, forty-six, for five years known hereabouts as a prosperous farmer of the highest respectability, was revealed yesterday as a murderer, former leader of a bandit gang, ex-convict and one of the most daring criminals in the lists of the police.

Murder of a St. Louis policeman, when he led a guerilla band in that city, was smilingly admitted by Filipow, according to arresting officers. He is also charged with the theft of $10,300 in cash from Joseph Zboyoski, of Benld. Ill.

Taken To Illinois.

Five years ago, Filipow arrived here with his wife and family, all of whom are well educated and highly respected and settled on a 153-acre farm on the State Road near Noshaminy, Bucks County. A skilled farmer, his place soon became known as a model farm, visited by many people.

With his arrest, however, police exhibited records to show that Filipow, listed in police records as Adolph Morowski, had been living a life of spectacular crime.

Counterfeiter Also.

Not only was he the "gentleman leader" of the St. Louis Gang, but records also show him to have served two years in Atlanta Federal penitentiary for counterfeiting. Also, according to his record, he once was a salesman of bogus money-making machines. Questioned regarding the St. Louis murder, Filipow said, according to police:

"Yes, I am the man who murdered him. I may as well admit everything. For five years I have evaded arrest, but now you have me, I may as well tell you I am the man you want."

The farmer-bandit is a man of large stature, standing six feet, two inches and weighing 220 pounds.

HISTORIC CASTLES ARE BEING BURNED

Duchess Charges Plot to Burn Ancient French Chateaus.

PARIS, July 30. — Canadian Press —There is a hint of a plot to burn historic castles following the destruction by fire of the famous Chateau of Randan, near Vichy.

The police are actively investigating the cause of the conflagration, the Duchess of Monthens, who inherited the castle from her husband, who was of the Orleans family, having cast doubt on its origin.

COMMONS VOTE APPROVES PLAN TO BUILD SHIPS

House Rejected Reduction Proposal By Vote of 276 to 140.

TROUBLE IN PACIFIC.

Rt. Hon. Bridgeman Tells of Australia Laying Down Two Cruisers.

LONDON, July 30 (Canadian Press) — The House of Commons last night put its stamp on the Government's cruiser building program after Liberals and Laborites had sought to have the appropriations for new warships reduced on the ground that there was no naval war in sight and therefore there was no need to burden the already heavily taxed country with an additional expenditure of 58,000,000 pounds.

Ramsay MacDonald, former labor premier moved a reduction of the ship building vote, but the house rejected the proposal by a vote of 276 to 140.

There was a great deal of talk about potential trouble in the Pacific, but Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer and other government spokesmen steered clear of this subject in their contribution to the debate. The Chancellor in his official statement said there was only one menace — that the fleet was wearing out.

Mr. Churchill took occasion to repeat one of his most persistent remarks that Great Britain having immensely modified her whole historic position by agreeing to have a navy of the same size as that of another country intended to maintain her sea forces not inferior to those of any country in the world.

Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman evoked cheers in his reference to Australia's generosity in laying down two cruisers. Ramsay MacDonald said surely these were not replacements, and Mr. Bridgeman replied that they were to help the strength of the empire.

Predicting Weather Years Ahead Now Held Possible

PARIS, July 30. — It is possible to predict weather months, years or even centuries in advance by adopting the principle that the solar cycle includes 744 years.

This is the astounding statement made in all seriousness to the Academy of Sciences by the eminent astronomer and meteorologist, Abbe Gabriel.

The discovery of the solar cycle of 744 years is reported by Gabriel as a result of more than sixty years of research, he told the academy.

The cycle includes 9,302 full moons and 67 periods of sun spots The cycle divides into two periods of 372 years or four of 186 years each.

CANADA TO HAVE OWN SHIP LINES

Preston Says Hopes of North Atlantic Line Will Be Extinguished.

HAVE NEW ACCESS.

LONDON,, July 30. — Canadian Press. — W. T. R. Preston, author of the report to the Canadian government on the alleged North Atlantic shipping combine, sailed for Canada to-day on the Melita.

Mr. Preston told the Canadian Press that the hopes of the combine that Sir William Petersen's death blotted out the prospects of a government-controlled system of shipping, will be sadly extinguished. Before the fight is through, he declared, Canada will have a new access to the British markets.

LEAGUE EXPERTS COMPLETE WORK

Will Submit Report Soon on Financial Position of Austria.

LONDON, July 30. — Canadian Press. — The League of Nations experts appointed to report on the financial position of Austria (Prof. Rist of France, and Prof. Layton, editor of the London Economist) have completed their work. Their report will be submitted shortly.

Prof. Rist recommends that preference be permitted between succession stations to the ustro-Hungarian Empire, thus abolishing the value of the most-favored nation treatment assured to Great Britain and the United States under the treaty of Versailles.

The French government is understood is be prepared to back this view before the League of Nations on the ground th the only alternative is agitation for union between Austria and Germany.

CHINESE TROOPS ARE SENT AFTER HARBIN BANDITS

Seek Release of an American, Doctor Howard, Captured Last Week.

DEMAND RANSOM.

Money and Bulls Are Asked For Return of Captive.

PEKIN, July 30.—Canadian Press-The Chinese government has sent 1,000 men to the region of the Morgin Palmer ranch in Manchuria in an attempt to release Dr. Harvey Howard, an American, from the bandits who kidnapped him last week.

Howard, associated with the Rockefeller Foundations Hospital in Pekin was kidnapped and secreted by bandits who raided the Palmer Ranch, and killed Palmer last week.

The sending of the troops followed American consular and diplomatic reports on the incident to the Chinese authorities.

That Howard still lives is indicated by reports reaching here that the bandits now are demanding a ransom for his life. The American Legion understood that they desire money, though there has been no direct communication, and official efforts to find the bandits have been fruitless.

CABINET AWAITS ELECTION RESULT

New Brunswick's Vote on Aug. 10 May Affect Dominion.

OTTAWA, July 30. — Canadian Press. — It is now stated here on good authority that there will be no more meetings of the cabinet until after the New Brunswick elections on August 10th.

In that case, it is improbable that there will be any announcement in regard to the holding of an election this autumn for a couple of weeks.

It has been taken for granted that the government will await the New Brunswick result before deciding whether or not to go to the country this autumn. If it hould prove favorable to the provincial government now in power, it will be a factor in determining the Federal Prime Minister to make its appeal.

If it should be unfavorable it will be an added argument for those who are counselling delay.

For the present apparently the question of holding an election before the snow flies must remain unanswered.

MORE SUICIDES IN SUNSHINE CITIES

The Rate For Self Destruction in Canada is 7.4 Per 100,000.

NEW YORK, July 30. — (Canadian Press).— California cities have more suicides per year in proportion to population than have any other cities in the country, according to statistics compiled by a life insurance expert.

San Diego he says had rate of 45.2 suicides per 100,000 population in 1924, while next in the eight cities he tabulates cames San Francisco with 37.8.

Brooklyn had rate of 10.3. England's rate for 1923 was only 10.3 while a supposedly representative group of German cities had a rate of 50.2 in 1919, the latest year for which figures are available. The rate in Canadian provinces and Newfoundland for 1923 was 7.4.

RIFF ENVOYS ON WAY TO PARLEY

CHATHAM, Ont., July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—James King, of Ottawa, has been selected to fill the vacancy of organist and choir master of Christ Church (Anglican) here. He will assume his duties on September first.

ALIENIST WHO SAVED LEOPOLD AND LOEB SAYS RUSSELL SCOTT IS DREAM VICTIM

Complete Examination Was Made and Reactions Similar to Those of Loeb Were Found.

SCOTT HAS ILLUSION OF GRANDEUR.

CHICAGO, July 30 (Canadian Press) — Alienists who have this week examined Russell Scott, onetime colorful Canadian financier, in preparation for an insanity hearing before Judge Joseph B. David on Monday, are laying their lines for a case which in its scientific aspects may closely follow the testimony of the defense alienists in the Leopold-Loeb hearing before Judge Caverley last summer.

Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, who was one of the alienists whose testimony saved the youthful murderers of Bobby Franks from the gallows visited Scott in the county jail Wednesday with complete apparatus for gland tests, impulse measurements and mental and physical reactions. Today it was learned the examination was in many respects similar to that of Loeb who was declared to have been the victim of a dream life. Dr. Hulbert's conclusion was that Scott was suband was paranoiac. The tentative conclusion is that he has illusions of grandeur believing himself to be a famous actor and the victim of an international conspiracy and prosecution.

HOUSING FUND PROBE INVITED

Involved in Threatened Libel Action By South Australia Minister.

ATTORNEY GENERAL.

LONDON, July 30.— (Canadian Press Cable).— A big surprise was sprung in the Parliament of South Australia, according to the correspondent of the Times, at Adelaide, when Hon. W. J. Denny, Attorney-General and Minister of Housing, announced that he had issued a writ against the leader of the opposition Sir Henry Barwell, claiming £5000 damages for alleged libel and slander based upon Barwell's reported statement that, if the statutory declarations by merchants with regard to the government's thousand homes scheme were true, the government and particularly Mr. Denny stood condemned as endeavouring to obtain by false pretences money and goods for a previous contractor who subsequently failed. Mr. Denny explained that he welcomed the opportunity of finally settling the issues between them and Sir Henry Barwell expressed the hope that Mr. Denny was in earnest and intended bringing the matter into the courts.

CITY EXCHANGE HANDLES 25,000 LOCALS IN DAY

Telephone Office Being Enlarged to Accommodate Increased Business.

NEW OPERATORS.

Marriage Depletes Staff to Alarming Extent— 17 This Year.

District Manager J. M. McHardy of the Bell Telephone Company, in an interview, stated that while the increase of the number of telephones in Peterborough is not as large as in past years a healthy growth has been experienced. In July 1925 there were 4459 stations connected with the Peterborough Exchange, being an increase of 295 since July 1, 1924, while for the last five years the station growth has been 1277 stations.

The stations are divided as follows: Business, 1406; residence, 2688; and rural. 365. Of the residence 2231 or 83 per cent are two party lines and during the last five years the increase is divided as follows: Business 22 per cent;- residence stations 2231 or 83 p.c. are two cent, of the total of additional stations.

At the present time the average local calls number 25,000 and long distance calls 400 out calls, daily handled by 41 operators. Since the first of this year there have been 17 operators engaged. This was made necessary by resignations from the staff, the main cause being marriage.

In order to be ready for the anticipated continued growth the present building in Hunter street is being extended back 35 feet the work on which will probably commence this year. Property has also been acquired west of the present premises on which an extension will probably be erected next year.

Early in 1926 three additional positions are to be placed on the Central Office switchboard in the new building on which some 400 additional lines will be placed. Estimates for new aerial and underground cables mounting have been approved and the new cables will be put in use before the end of the present year.

Stores that are known as friendly stores get the business.

BOOT ON ROAD CLUE TO LOOT

Goods Stolen From Verona Store Found Hidden Near Kingston.

THREE IN JAIL.

KINGSTON, July 30 .(Canadian Press.)—As a result of the police investigations culminating in the arrests yesterday of James Wright, Ross Brawley and Maude Brawley, his wife, all of this city, appeared in county police court before Magistrate Bradshaw, charged with unlawfully entering the general store of Mr. A. H. Craig, Verona, and the theft of the goods and money removed from his store. The trio were committed for trial. The greater part of the stolen goods which are valued at $350 have been recovered, having been cached on the Portland Road, a few miles from Kingston. A new boot on the road was the clue that led to the recovery of the goods.

KILL CANTON STRIKERS.

Eleven Chinese Die When Mob Is Repelled By Bodyguard.

LONDON, July 30. — Canadian Press. — An agency despatch from Hong Kong says that 11 Chinese strikers were killed at Canton by the bodyguard of an official before whose house a mob had gathered demanding a daily cash strike allowance.

The despatch refers to an "influx of Russians from Vladivostock at Canton," and says two Russian ships have arrived at Whampoa, an outport 27 miles from Canton.

JAMES SIMPSON WOULD GRANT TO BRITISH COLUMBIA INDIANS FULL CIVIL AND POLITICAL STANDING

Indian Labor in the Dominion Discussed at Imperial Labor Conference.

CANADIAN VIEWS.

Simpson Deprecates Nationalism as Divisive Factor in Labor Ranks.

LONDON, July 30 (Canadian Press Cable).—The question of the condition of Indian labor in the British Dominions came up yesterday at the conference of the Labor party representatives of Great Britain and the Dominions which is being held here.

James Simpson, Toronto, said that he and his colleague, John MacDonald, Toronto, both of whom represent the Canadian Labor Party, would be glad to do their utmost when they returned to Canada to see that full civil and political rights were extended to the Indians now in British Columbia.

The question of industrial legislation and labor protection in mandated territories, with particular reference to Palestine, was discussed by the conference. James Simpson, Toronto, said the idea was developing that separate education and culture of national aspirations did not conform with the development of international solidarity amongst the working classes.

The purpose of the Labor movement, so far as Canada was concerned, Mr. Simpson said, was not to bother about separate national aspirations, for there were many races represented in their cosmopolitan population, but to build up a new culture in the social order created by themselves and as they did that they realized that purely national aspirations would fade away into the background. National jealousies and distinctions kept the workers apart instead of bringing them together.

A. B. Swales, chairman of the general council of the Trades Union Congress, presided at the conference

First Divorce Granted In Canada's Remote North

EDMONTON, Alta., July 30. —Canadian Press.—His Honor Judge Dubuc, acting as stipendiary magistrate for the northwest territorities, who has returned to the city from Fort Smith, has granted the first divorce ever given in the far north.

Sitting at Fort Smith, Judge Dubuc heard the action of Ernest Comen, Hudson's Bay post manager at Fort Good Hope for a divorce from his wife, on the usual statutory grounds. A decree nisi to become absolute in three months was granted.

Fort Good Hope is on the Mackenzie River, 1300 miles from the end of steel at Waterways, and 1600 miles north of Edmonton.

PLAN MEETING AT BEER NIGHT

Monarchists Would Have Hindenburg, Wilhelm and Rupprecht Meet.

IN BAVARIA.

BERLIN, July 30.—(United Press) —Plans for bringing together President Von Hindenburg ex-Crown Prince Wilhelm of Prussia and ex-Crown Prince Rupprecht of Baxaria at a "Bierarbend"—Beer evening—of the Bavarian Premier are being fostered today by Monarchists. Hindenburg intends next month to go hunting on a Bavarian preserve near which William is now sojourning. Republican politicans hoped the proposed meeting at the Bierabend may be prevented so as to forestall any foreign or domestic controversies over it.

NO GERMS FOUND ON PAPER MONEY

PARIS, July 30. —(Special). — Henri Basset a lawyer recently sent a letter to the French Academy of Medicine asking whether there was danger in health in handling paper money. Basset received his reply to-day. A commission appointed to study the question found microbes were non-existent in paper money seemingly because they abhorred the agitation of constant transfer from one place to another.

GUSHER ON FIRE.

Standard Oil Well In Rumania is Blazing, Endangering Others.

LONDON, July 30.—United Press Press.)— —The Times Bucharest correspondent reports a standard oil gusher, near Bucharest afire, shooting forth flames 200 feet high and endangering neighbouring wells. It was said heavy artillery would be employed to-day to extinguish the fire.

BRYAN RETURNS TO WASHINGTON

Reverent Crowd Met Funeral Train at Early Hour To-day.

BURIAL TO-MORROW.

WASHINGTON, July 30 (Canadian Press).—William Jennings Bryan came back to Washington today to receive the last rites of the church before he begins his long rest in Potomac Hills amidst the great company of the nation's illustrious dead.

The funeral train which had borne him from Dayton, Tenn., where he died last Sunday, reached the Union Station early today, but its arrival found a reverent throng in waiting. The bronze casket was taken from the station to an undertaker's parlor and just before noon was removed to the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church to lie in state until noon tomorrow. The funeral services will be held at three o'clock tomorrow.

NOT A CHANCE FOR MINE SETTLEMENT

So Says Secretary of Mines Convention—Owners Secretary Agrees.

LONDON, July 30. —(Canadian Press).— The chances for averting the threatened British coal strike seemed decreased to-day. The negotiations between coal mine owners and workers meeting separately with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin were resumed this morning in a gloomy atmosphere. Leaders of both sides, after meeting the Premier, spoke pessimistically of the prospect.

'Hope for settlement is farther off than it has ever been before," A. J. Cock, secretary of miners federation said.

W. A. Lee, secretary of mining association of Great Britain representing owners said there was not "Ghost of a chance,' 'that owners would withdraw their demands for two weeks to permit the continuation of negotiations with workers for that period.

"Demands" referred to are owners insistence upon new working agreement involving longer hours and lower wages to supplant the present agreement which expires tomorrow. Miners have refused to accept and have ordered a strike effective at the expiration of the present agreement. If carried out this would mean tieing up the entire coal industry of Great Britain Saturday.

SHE PUTS PEP INTO WEATHER REPORTS

England's Only Woman Forecaster Issues New Style Bulletins.

BUXTON, Eng., July 30.—(Associated Press.)— The only woman weather clerk in England, Miss E. W. Pilkington, has grown tired of the official language of daily weather bulletins issued from headquarters, and has instituted a new departure which, while pleasing the populace of the district, does not exactly meet with official approval. Miss Pilkington favors an up-to-date style in forecasting the weather, one of her latest reading:

"Temperature: There is an acute shortage of therms in the district. Winds: Still of an oriental character. Pressure: A steady, reliable worker. Local trend: Overflows with happiness. Inference: We are qualifying for the final of the weather championship."

Another was worded: "Temperature: Every day in every way it grows warmer and warmer. Inference: All the weather factors are decged out in the finest garb. The spectre at the feast is too shadowy to worry us."

ZINC DISCOVERY IN NICKEL MINE

Prospects For Great Industry in Northern Ontario.

DRILL PROGRAMME.

TORONTO, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Prospects are bright for development of a great new industry in Northern Ontario if efforts of a big United States syndicate to locate a main zinc deposit believed to exist in the Sudbury nickel district are successful, acccording to information secured at the Mines Department at Parliament Buildings yesterday.

The discovery of hitherto unsuspected deposits of zinc of good quality in the Sudbury nickel district came with startling suddenness recently to a group of prospectors who were pursuing a hunt for coal in Northern Ontario. It has become known that in a certain region their drills brought up indications of the presence of zinc ores. Already an American syndicate has taken steps to determine the extent of deposits. According to information that has come to Queen's Park, the syndicate is going to carry out an extensive diamond drilling programme to ascertain the volume.

CHILDREN PICNIC IN NICHOLLS OVAL

School Playgrounds Deserted—Youth of City Follows Mr. Abraham.

The school playgrounds were quite deserted yesterday afternoon when all the children, accompanied by their respective supervisors, with James Abraham, chief supervisor, in charge, hiked to Nicholls Oval. There were 200 boys and girls in the party. The girls played softball games and the boys under 13 played a junior league game, resulting in a win for the Central school, which thus becomes the champion of the playgrounds junior league, having won all games played. The younger children romped on the grass and watched the contests, cheering vociferously as their respective schools made runs. After the games lemonade was made on the grounds and was freely partaken of. Most of the children had brought eats with them and all seemed to be very happy as they spread themselves gaily on the grass. At 5.30 all wended their way home, having spent a very enjoyable day.

TO HOLD PICNIC.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30.— The annual picnic [illegible] and Sunday school scholars of St. Andrew's church will be held Friday afternoon at Crow River bridge. Cars will leave the church about 1.30 p.m. There will be a picnic lunch and a fine programme of sports for old and young.

Soviet Eliminates German Middlemen—Big Market in U. S.

MOSCOW, July 30.—(Associated Press.)—The export of entrails to foreign countries is one of the chief items of Russia's foreign trade. Exports of this commodity during the last six months amounted to over $1,000,000, official statistics show. Russia has found a ready market in the United States for this kind of material, American sausage makers having purchased 45 per cent. of the total exports of entrails during the last six months.

In pre-war time Russia did a great trade in entrails. It had an unlimited supply of sheep's intestines and special factories were built in Leningrad equipped with the latest mechanical devices for sorting and preparing the goods for export. The whole trade was previously in the hands of Germany, which had a monopoly for purchasing entrails in Russia, but Soviet exporting organizations are now preparing to deal with the consuming countries.

REV. ROBERT POGUE IN TORONTO CHURCH

Former Peterborough Pastor Well Received at High Park.

The Toronto Globe contains the following complimentary remarks in reference to the Rev. Robert Pogue, who is preaching in High Park United Church, Toronto:

In his sermon last Sunday morning on 'The Self Life,' Mr. Pogue made abundantly plain the way of holiness, to the attainment of which he showed the greatest enemy was simply that of 'self.' Here are a few sentences from his excellent address: 'When we begin to examine our own heart in the light of God's Word, we at once discover that our greatest enemy to holy, triumphant living is the self life. This life is simply the sum total of our life as untouched and unquickened by the Spirit of God.' 'The flesh is selfishness, and selfishness is the root of all sin.' 'The sin of our first parents was the substitution of the self life or God." 'Sin is pleasing myself rather than God.' 'The Christian doctrine aims at the dethroning of self as the central power with the man.' 'It aims at the substituting for the authority of self, the authority of Christ.' 'It was impossible to have peace when two wills are in conflict,' Mr. Pogue pointed out. 'When the human will clashed with the will of Christ there could never be peace.'".

FACES OPERATION

Rev. George Jackson, of Didsbury College, Manchester, England, has been ordered by his physicians to undergo an operation. He is a prominent Methodist clergyman who caused a stir in religious circles some years ago because of sermons of a modernistic trend delivered in Toronto

PERCY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HAS ANOTHER ENTERTAINMENT TO CREDIT OF ACHIEVEMENTS

Field Day, Held Yesterday, Was Outstanding Success and Attraction.

HORSE RACES.

Softball Tournament Won By Port Hope—Hard Ball Game.

(By a Staff Reporter)

In the horse races Major Hal won the free-for-all; Silk Line the 2.20; Belle Mahone the 2.30, and Baby Direct the 2.50 race.

In the soft ball tournament, the final game was played between the Warkworth and Port Hope team, the latter wining the silver shield.

A Northumberland League game between Hastings and Campbellford came to an abrupt conclusion in the first half of the fifth, when the Frankford players, questioning the decision of one of the umpires, left the field. The score stood 14-1 in favor of Hastings.

WARKWORTH, July 30 — The directors of the Percy Agricultural Society have another successful entertainment to their credit, the field day which was held yesterday being successful financially and as to the programme provided. Warkworth has always proved a centre of attraction for the owner of light harness horses in the district, on account of the excellent track and the liberal terms which the directors of the Fair offer. Yesterday there were 16 entries in the four races on the hill, one of the events being divided as the track is too narrow to accommodate the nine horses originally entered.

Starting Judge Kingsley

George H. Kingsley, proprietor of the British Hotel in Cobourg, was starting judge, a position which he has held in Warkworth on all such occasions for years. He is noted for his faculty of running his end of the position according to the regulations, insisting on the observance of every form, while at the same time, keeping the drivers and the crowd in good humor.

Mr. Kingsley is probably the only official starter in Ontario who is not required to pay a license. Free authority is sent him every year by the Trotting Association, the best evidence that his efficiency is recognized by those who believe in a square deal on the race track. Mr. Kingsley is only human and occasionally like all mortals makes a mistake, an error of judgment, peculiar to starters and baseball umpires, but unlike so many others he is willing to admit it when he makes one.

Mr. Kingsley says that this is his last year with the starting bell and megaphone but they all say that and the chances are that next year will find him discharging the same duties.

Campbellford Represented

Campbellford was well represented in the sports, that town sending an all star softball team to compete for the silver shield and H. C. Coveney, entering his horse, Harry C., named after its owner, in the 2.50 race. This horse, a pacer, which was purchased by Mr. Coveney only last week, started yesterday in his first race and finished in third place. It was remarked that if he was at times flighty that for a hobbled pacer, few horses can so quickly regain their feet after going into the air. Harry C. was driven for the first four heats by Dr. Aylea of Colborne and in the fifth, Jack Donnelly, well known in Peterboro as a driver, was up.

The Winning Horses.

The Warkworth race course is less than half a mile and the various heats yesterday were three-quarters of the mile in length, the time given out being for that distance. Sam Blewett of Belleville had two entries in Hal and Mr. Healey in the free for all. Walters of Port Hope entered J. C., and Charles Fyfe of Keene had Star Brooks, a new horse in this district, in the same class. Major Hall took the first, third and fourth heats and first money, his stable mate noseing him out of the lead in the second heat. J. C. finished third and Star Brooks, somewhat erratic, was outside the money. Best time for the three-quarter mile, 2.03 1-2.

S. Blewett's Silk Line won the 2.20 race in straight heats. Dick Elmhirst's Polly Stout making a real race of it on every lap, and Doris Patch, owned by Dr. Johnston of Port Hope, was third, South Dakotah Maid, now the property of P. J. Sullivan of Frankford but driven by her former owner, R. Turley of the same place, trailed the field in every heat. Best time, 2.02 1-4.

The other races were finished in the following order:

2.50 race— Baby Direct, owned by A. Elmhirst; Butcher Girl by Stanley of Wooler, second; Harry C. by H. C. Coveney of Campbellford, third; Lulu Brooks by Joe Vasseau of Trenton, fourth; Chillie, by George A. Taylor of Trenton, fifth. Best time 2.6 1-4.

In the fourth heat of this race, Lula Brooks driver, Joe Vasseau, collided with Baby Direct and had one wheel torn from his bike but escaped injury to himself.

Soft Ball Tournament.

The silver shield offered as a prize to the winner of the soft ball tournament went to Port Hope. The final game was between Campbellford and Warkworth and went to the latter by a score of 9-7. The Campbellford players were Bussey, p., Holmes, c; Weston, 1b., McNaughton, 2b; Adams 3b., Tinney, ss.; Athinson l.f.; Ibey, cf; Gay, rf. Bonneycastle, Massie, Sarginson and Bayes were substitutes.

Port Hope defeated Warkworth and Warkworth eliminated Hastings. Port Hope and Warkworth then played off for the shield, the visiting team winning by 7-6 score. The contending teams in the final were: Warkworth—J. B. Thompson, p.; Dawson, lf; Oliver, rf; Fraser, 2b; Duncan, cf.; Peterson, 3b; Drewry, p.; Small, ssr.; Darling, 1b.

Hard Ball Scrimmage.

The scheduled game in the Northumberland League between Hastings and Campbellford was by special arrangement played here yesterday that is to say it was started but, at the beginning of the fifth inning the Frankford manager called his men off the field, the score standing 14 to 1 in favor of Hastings. The umpires, both Hastings men, were Runnels and Wellman, the latter having the reputation of being one of the fairest arbiters in the league. The Frankford first baseman objected to decision after decision and when the umpires changed places, Wellman going to the plate, the complaints continued. The final rupture came when a Hastings man was declared safe at first. The atmosphere was surcharged with hostility for a time, but there was no actual physical combat.

Field Day Notes.

The judges of the horse races were: George H. Kingsley, of Comourg, starter; J. P. Richards of Cobourg, and R. T. Dunlop of Frankford, judges; J. N. Stone of Campbellford, and James Timlin of Cobourg, timekeepers; S. B. Armstrong, clerk of the course.

Hastings this year certainly has a snappy team in the Northumberland League, while they are also up to date in the gentler are of soft ball.

There were no tug of war contests. Probably the farmers at this season of the year find ample exercise for their muscles in harvest field work.

GEOLOGIST GOES TO GOLD STRIKE

Minister of Mines to Visit Scene and Make Survey.

STORIES IMPRESS.

TORONTO, July 30. —(Canadian Press). — Impressed by insistent stories of important gold discoveries in Beardmore township, near Lake Nipigon, Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario minister of Mines has despatched the Provincial Geologist, A. G. Burroughs, to visit the scene of gold rush and make survey for the government.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM STEVENSON

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30—William Stevenson, an account of whose death in an auto wreck in Detroit was given in The Examiner of yesterday, lived on Front street, leaving here about 12 years ago for Peterborough, afterwards moving to Detroit. While a resident of Campbellford he was employed as the head of one of the departments in what is now the Campbellford Cloth Company, S. J. Moore being at that time superintendent of the mill.

The late Mr. Stevenson had a family of seven, six daughters and a son. His eldest daughter, Mabel, was married to William Doxsee, who was for some years mayor of the town and who lost his life in the Great War. The widow some years ago married Thomas Thomas of Montreal and is now living in that city. Mrs. Charles Macoun of Seymour is a sister of the late William Doxsee who at the time of his death held the rank of major.

While the Stevenson family resided in Peterborough two of the daughters were married, Ethel to a Mr. Weatherson and Florence to a Mr. Dormer. The latter couple, it is understood here, are still in Peterborough.

COLLEGE GROWS NEARER IDEAL

Adults Make Use of Leisure Hours to Gain Higher Education.

NUMBERS GROW.

By HAROLD CALLENDER.

Each year, in rapidly increasing numbers, the adult is going to college.

The portals of Academe now remain open late into the night. In the evening a second procession of pilgrims enters. From offices, factories, shops and homes they come—business and professional people, clerks, secretaries, wage earners, housewives. Equipped with texts, notebooks and fountain pens, they take their places in class rooms vacated only an hour or so before by youthful under-graduates. They receive instruction often from the same Faculty members and in the same subjects; sometimes from teachers who devote virtually all their time to the growing army of adult pupils.

No schoolboy boisterousness echoes in the hallways. There is no whispering in the class rooms; no wandering of attention. Exhortation to study is as superfluous as is discipline. For the night students, though most of them are comparatively young—ranging in age, perhaps, from 25 to 40—have neither time nor energy to waste. After an hour or two in class many will go home to put in several hours of study before sleeping.

Their One Great Advantage.

Their regard for learning, in most cases, has been immeasurably enhanced by the misfortune of having had to earn a livelihood during years that they would have preferred to spend continuing their education. There is at least this advantage in doing college work after maturity: one studies with a greater sense of its value, and consequently with an effectiveness that somewhat makes up for the lack of earlier opportunities.

The adult knocking at the door of the college is a symbol that stirs in the minds of educators visions of almost limitless possibilities. In the opinion of George Stewart Adam, Gladstone Professor of Political Theory and Institutions in Oxford, the number of mature persons who have called upon the colleges for instruction in recent years marks "a new era in the history of education."

When one recalls that in 1831 the British Parliament made its first small grant for public education, the preamble to the Education Act adopted by that body in 1918 is similarly suggestive. It describes the purpose of the law as the establishment of a "national system of public education available for all persons capable of profiting thereby."

By virtue of the reduced hours of labor, millions within the last few years have acquired that great prerequisite to all education and culture—leisure. When the bulk of manhood had to work twelve hours, or even ten hours, a day, mental improvement was almost out of the question. With the eight-hour day prevailing, wage earners can devote from two to four hours to study and still have as much time for play and rest as had their fathers and grandfathers.

Moreover, there is perceptible in many quarters a vague but irritating consciousness that a great deal more of exact knowledge is necessary if men are to become competent to deal with the complexities of modern existence.

Educators often quote H. G. Wells' remark that a race is on between education and chaos. Bernard Shaw expressed a similar idea when he made one of his characters say: "It is now absolutely certain that the political and social problems raised by our civilization cannot be solved by mere human mushrooms who decay and die when they are just beginning to have a glimmer of the wisdom and knowledge needed for their own government."

So the adult who presents himself at the college gates and the teacher who welcomes him with a peculiar eagerness sometimes have an air of recognizing that education is a portentous business and that there's no time to be lost.

They know, too, that education is not an affair of childhood and adolescence; not a process that one finishes upon getting a degree; but a continuous activity to which formal instruction in youth, however thorough, is only a preliminary.

Education, always heretofore the privilege of a relatively small class, is now regarded as something like a necessity for all. The college is approaching the ideal that it "should be a beneficent influence to every citizen."

THURSDAY, JULY 30, 1925.

A GREATER PETERBORO.

Today Peterboro has immeasurable possibilities. Tomorrow we must have made the best of these possibilities. We believe in the greatness that may be Peterboro's, as our fathers did. It is our task and honor to wield the implements of modern progress as they did the axe to hew out of dullness and impenetrability the paths of advancement. We believe in Peterboro's will to go forward and in nature's willingness to support her in that endeavour.

Thousands of years ago nature planned this place for a great town. The winds and the river and the great ice convened upon this spot and left a trampled place with wide gates for a city. The lakes were gouged out and the valleys north, south, east and west covered with fertile fathoms of soil.

A hundred years ago men came and saw that the land was good. They threw down their packs here and made their homes. We, with our power plants, have improved upon their water-wheels; with our tractors we have advanced past their ox-ploughs; our railroads supersede their humble wagon paths, and our automobiles eat up the miles they laboriously tramped over wooded trails. But intrinsically Peterboro remains the same. There are the same fertile acres, the same inexhaustible waters pouring down from the upper lakes. There is the same opportunity for achievement, and only the spirit of the conquering pioneer is needed to impart the forward movement.

Peterboro's security is founded on basic industry and production. It is the centre of agriculture, dairying and mixed manufacturing, with unlimited fresh water and a splendid climate, heir to nature itself. The direction and rate of the city's growth depend upon the character of her people. What have Peterboroites done to make the city great?

Looking at old prints of Peterboro as it was soon after its settlement, and then seeing the city today from a high vantage point, we visualize past human energy and initiative. Factories and churches, bridges and docks, schools and stores, have arisen in a forest; paved streets and electric lights replace dark wooded paths.

These things have come, not through natural phenomena, but by the sweat of our forefathers.

And today Peterboro needs advice. Its future greatness depends upon eager individual effort. Men of vision plotted the city, but did not set its confines. Their sons must copy their virtues, catch their visions, and work as they did.

There is more to do. The Examiner hopes that there always will be more. For a city completed is a city dead.

THE DEADLIEST DISEASES.

A most interesting document is the repor tissued annually by Sir George Newman, the Chief Medical Officer of the British Government. Which are the most deadly of all diseases? The question is answered by a table showing that of every 1,000 deaths:

174 were caused by bronchitis, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases.

168 by diseases of the heart and circulation.

106 by cancer and malignant disease.

100 by diseases of the nervous system.

87 by all forms of tuberculosis.

Sir George Newman does not dwell upon successes achieved but upon tasks awaiting performance. Of every 1,000 babies born about 70 fail to survive their first year. This is a good standard compared with a generation ago, but Sir George says there is still room for considerable improvement, particularly as regards the mortality in the first four weeks of life.

Influenza is baffling the medical profession. There were 18,896 deaths from influenza in England and Wales during last year. The disease appears to attack adolescent youth more than other people. "No material advance," says Sir George, "has been made in our knowledge of the bacteriology of influenza." The various claims to discoveries of the influenza germ are not credited.

Sleeping sickness claims an increasing number of victims. For practical purposes it is regarded as a new disease of the last six years. "An attack of hiccup may precede or accompany the nervous symptoms and there is some reason for regarding hiccup as a mild form of sleeping sickness."

From the national and imperial point of view a most challenging phenomenon is the falling birth rate. The number of births fall- year by year, as wit- the following figures:

Year.	No. of Births.
1920	957,782
1921	848,814
1922	780,124
1923	758,131
1924	730,286

A BIG INDUSTRY FOR CANADA.

A few days ago attention was called to the rapid industrial development that is taking place in Quebec, notably in connection with the big hydro-electric power activities that are being constructed under the supervision of the Provincial Government. Reference was made to the fact that the aluminum king of the United States was contemplating the erection of a huge plant at the power centre that is under construction on the Saguenay. The news is now confirmed that the Aluminum Company of America has decided to erect a plant costing $1100,000,000 at this point. This is good industrial news for Canada, and indicates the wisdom of the Taschereau Government in refusing to agree to the exportation of power.

It is predicted that the erection of this new industry will mean the creation of a city of 50,000 people. The power requirements are estimated at 750,000 horse-power. The uses of aluminum are extending so rapidly throughout the whole civilized world, and the market is so extensive, that the building up of this huge manufacturing plant will be of enormous economic benefit not only to Quebec but to the whole of Canada. It is a great tribute to Canada that the Aluminum Company of America has chosen to locate in Canada instead of in Norway, which has immense hydro-electric potentialities. The industry will secure its raw material from British Guiana and it is estimated that a line of fifteen ships will be required to ply between the Saguenay and British Guiana during the period of navigation.—Brantford Expositor.

PRIVATE CARS IN CANADA.

"Mrs. D. C. Fraser has gone to Guysboro to spend the summer. Her son, Alistair Fraser, K.C., Attorney for the C. N. R., brought his mother from Montreal in his private car."—New Glasgow Eastern Chronicle.

At first reading of this item of news we felt disposed to doubt its accuracy; but reflecting on the fact that it appeared in a well-informed newspaper like the Eastern Chronicle of New Glasgow, and that it would be likely to be well informed in regard to New Glasgow people, we felt forced to conclude that it is a true report.

Mr. Alistair Fraser is a member of the legal staff of the Canadian National Railways, of which Mr. Gerald Ruel, K.C., is the head. Mr. Ruel is Vice-President and General Counsel. Under him is an Assistant General Counsel and ten others, presumably all legal men. The question is suggested: Has each one of these, as well as others on the list of "Executive, General and Regional Officers" of the Canadian National system a "private car?" Or is there a bunch of private cars which any of these gentlemen may call into service.

If this country were in a prosperous condition; and if the Canadian National Railways were not dredging the public pocket for millions to make up deficits; the people might not complain about officers of the system jaunting around in private cars. But as matters are the people will be disposed to protest against such luxury. President Coolidge finds it satisfactory to travel on ordinary trains. He does it to be an example of thrift. Apparently the object lesson has not found a target in the place where officers of the Canadian National are to be found. With such examples of prodigality before their eyes—as this private car habit certainly is—how can the overtaxed people of this country exercise patience when the Canadian National Railways tell them that freight rates must be kept up, and that millions must be provided every year to provide for deficits? In five years the people have had to hand over $595,943,247 to keep this railway Moloch going.—Halifax Herald.

PLAY AND PRODUCTION.

Many factories and railroads encourage suggestions by their workmen and pay liberally for good ideas, especially in the direction of simplifying processes and taking up lost motion. The notices posted up can be seen in the shops of really progressive railroads, and the practice is not one confined to this country. Its use in Great Britain is sufficiently general to warrant a two-column turnover on the editorial page of the London Times. From the discussion there it would appear that the number of workers who give any thought in their leisure time to what they are doing or why they are doing it is no larger in Great Britain than it is here. The line of promotion certainly lies that way, and every employer with his head screwed on straight is looking for brains in production. The supply of highly efficient foremen does not keep pace with demand. Why is the harvest of suggestions so small? The English authority quoted in the Times, Dr. Arthur Shadwell, says that the worker is more interested in his playing than in his work.

That is what it amounts to when the discussion is boiled down to its essentials. A parallel with the industrial renaissance of Britain about a century ago, beginning some years after Waterloo, is by no means a good indicator, in the important respect that means of amusement were incomparably fewer then than they are now. When the railroads began to revolutionize production in Britain almost exactly a century ago, a crowd of half-a-million people to see the running of a Derby or of a hundred thousand to witness the final tie of a football league would have been unthinkable. There did not exist the means of transportation, even over small distances. So far as the workman was concerned he could not then venture his few spare shillings on the races, nor were there special editions of evening newspapers to give him all the winners. For other amusements there was no cinematograph, an invention which has introduced more drivel and more shoddy substitutes for thought than any device since the world began. The union effort for shorter hours also has given the workman sixteen hours a day to call his own with the building up of other interests, seldom in the nature of education but almost uniformly in the way of profitless amusement tending to make him regard his work as a necessary evil.

It is anything but a pretty showing. It does not necessarily indicate decadence, although bread doles and circuses marked the beginning of the end of Roman supremacy. There is no need to accept that pessimistic parallel, but we could well afford to have far more people giving a little real thought to the subject.—Barron's.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

One Way of Solving the Hydro Street Railway.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Surely they would not put a propostion like this before clear minded people. I would submit that they are playing a joke in asking a price like this, they expect the city to come and give them a counter offer on it. What I would suggest and expect is all they want is to sell the rolling stock and buildings at the actual present value, that is what they can either get by arbitration or otherwise in present conditions.

As to the rails and polls now in the ground it will cost the Hydro more to remove them than their selling value for scrap. We would release them from that expense, and allow them to remain on the street.

Now, when the city gets it they can spend a little money in extending the C. G. E. line on Monaghan Road across Park Street to the De-Laval and connect with Lock Street line south. Also, the Jackson Park line to extend along Smith st. and srerve the residents in the North and have it connect again with George Street. Also, in stall a bus line in Ashburnham to connect at Hunter Street and reduce the fare to 5c or 6 tickets for 25c.

I would unhesitatingly say it would make a paying proposition or at least it would be less burden on the city and at the same time would be ac onvenience and accommodate more people and help the George Street Merchants.

Your truly,
L. FLORENCE.

Dear Sir:

I am positive I speak the minds of a great many of our movie fans when I give my opinion of "The Light of Western Stars" as shown Saturday evening.

It is about time some of our theatres would show some worth while pictures. Any one reading the book, the above play was supposed to be taken from received a severe disappointment. If it was supposed to be drama it turned out a fine farce. Imagine Gene Stewart with that cute little mustache.

Yours in disgust,
CRITIC.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—With Mr. Bryan ends what may be called the ballyhoo era of American civilization, so well described by the Sault (Mich.) Star, when it said that the U. S. had notified China that innocent Americans must not be interfered with; it was only the dry agents of the U. S. who were permitted to do that. Bryan represented militant Methodism, a form of Christianity which he much preferred to that practised by Christ Himself, who passed no laws, had no "dry" agents, sent no policemen, built no gaols, but pointed continually to the one and only remedy for the sins of man. Bryan rejected a very severe [illegible] type of Christianity, but civil laws took the place of the ten commandments in it and the dictation of Bryan the place of the claim beseechments of Jesus. Had Christ used force he could have shoved us all into Heaven before this, but Mr. Bryan notwithstanding and his laws as well the Saviour did not do so.

Mr. Bryan's death marks very probably the end of ballyhoo Christianity in the U. S. Not even his most ardent admirer can deny that his inglorious death showed no desire by the Almighty that he should continue to mispresent Him.

TORONTO, July 29. — With the lighter runs this week, and cooler weather, trade has picked up considerably the past few days. There was a good clean up ofall offerings at firm prices for any thing of choice and steady for the balance of the common stuff.

There was be no market next Monday, civic holiday, so cattle shippers will govern themselves accordingly. In former years the market has been open as usual on civic holiday.

Calves were firm and 50c to $1.00 higher for a few choice veals.

Hogs steady at $14 off cars.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 29. — Indications that wheat from Manitoba may be available for export from Montreal the last of September, equaling shipment from the Gulf of Mexico by September 15, had a hearish effect to-day on the wheat market here except the July deliv[illegible]. Closing prices on [illegible] vance, September 1.50 3-4 to 1.51 and December, 1.52 1-8 to 1.52 3-8 with corn 1-8 to 2 1-8c down; Oats 5-8 to 3-4c off to 3-4c up, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 7c gain.

Relative to prospects of early Canadian competition, it was pointed out to-day that Chicago brokers have offered to Montreal shipments of No. 2 hard wheat at 12 1-4 cents over September c. i. f. Montreal and have received no replies. Meantime, some advices said the Canadian harvest would start in ten days. Besides, current crop estimates from Canada called for a probable yield of 350,000,000 bushels, despite assertions that considerable damage was likely in south-western Manitoba and south- eastern Saskatchewan, as a result of black rust.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 1-4.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 29. —The demand for eggs showed no improvement and business in a wholesale jobbing way was rather quiet owing to the fact that buyers at present are confining their purchases to small lots to meet immediate requirements btu as the ofefrings were not large the tone of the market remains [illegible] change. The receipts were 1,330 cases, as compared with 1,221 for the same day last week a,nd 1,443 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 4,740 packages, as compared with 1,681 for the same day last week, and 2,955 for the corresponding day a year ago. A steady feeling prevailed in the butter market under a fair amount of business passing for both local and export account, and prices were unchanged.

The receipts of cheese were 7,085 boxes, as against 5,965 for the same day last week, and 16,341 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was easier and prices ruled lower. There was an improved demand from foreign buyers at the lower level of the market and a fair business was reported in western white and colored at 106s, 106s 6d and at 107s per cwt., and eastern grades at 105s 6d jer cwt.

A THOUGHT.

HOW MANY HURT?

"Suppose," said I, "you chanced to see
A small boy tumble from a tree,
How would you tell that tale to me?"

"Why, Dad," said he, "I simply say
I saw a boy get hurt today
And two men carried him away."

"How many injured would there be?"
I asked. "Just one, of course," said he,
"The boy who tumbled from the tree."

"No, no," I answered him, "that fall
Which hurt the lad, brought pain to all
Who knew and loved that youngster small.

"His mother wept, his father sighed,
His brothers and his sisters cried,
And all his friends were hurt inside.

"Remember this your whole life through—
Whatever hurts may come to you
Must hurt us all who love you, too.

"You cannot live your life alone,
We suffer with your slightest groan
And make your pain or grief our own.

"If you should do one shameful thing
You could not bear alone the sting,
We'd spend our years in suffering.

"How many hurt, we cannot state,
There never falls a blow of fate
But countless people feel its weight."

COWS, HORSES AND CARS WORRY ALNWICK TOWNSHIP'S COUNCIL

Horses Speed, Cars Haven't Licenses, and Cows Are Wild.

TELL CONSTABLE.

Refuse to Pay Women's Institute Full Lighting Grant Promised

ROSENEATH, July 30.— The Alnwick township council held its regular monthly meeting in the Town Hall, Roseneath, on Saturday afternoon.

A communication was read from the Department of Agriculture regarding the cutting of weeds on the roadside, but as this township is still under statute labor it did not concern it, so was received and fyled. Also a letter from the Women's Institute enclosing a bill and asking for a grant towards the street lights. About one year ago a delegation from the Women's Institute waited upon the council asking for a grant of the caretaker's salary for caring for the gasoline street lights. They received the promise of $50 or one half the caretaker's salary During the latter part of the year they could not get a caretaker and the lights were put up free. The Women's Institute thought they were entitled to the $50 but the council thought not, and only allowed them the half of what they had paid as salary, $38.

Mr. Bebee was present asking for a grant towards fixing the road south of Masterson's corner and he received a day's gravelling for five teams.

On resolution of Councillors Parker and Braithwaite a charge of 20 cents an hour was levied for the use of the township grader by any ratepayer on the condition that the man engaged by the township for running the grader operate it on any such occasion.

Councillor Braithwaite who was appionted as a committee at the last meeting to go and see the road near Mr. Shearer's which he claimed needed attention and which the pathmaster refused to attend to reported. He said he had gone and looked at the road and in fairness to all he said he did not think it needed gravel very badly. Consequently nothing was done.

Complaints had been laid regarding certain parties driving cars without license and about horse speeding and cows running at large in the village, ad after much discussion a resolution by Reeev Mouncey and Councillor Timlin was passed, authorizing the clerk to notify the constable to look after these matters.

Reeev Mouncey gave notice that at the next meeting he would introduce a by-law for the striking of the rates for the township taxes.

The treasurer was authorized to pay the following accounts:

C. M. Roberts, work on road, $2.20; Wm. Mouncey, work on road, $2.25; John Nichol, work on road, $2501 S. A. Tucker ,making tile; $41.20; George Quall, work on road, $56.10; Bruce Parker, gravel and crop damage, $11.60; Bruce Parker, breaking road, $6.50; Lou Timlin, work on road, $15.75; Jas. Timlin, work on road, $21.21; Alex Spiers work on road, $5; John Timlin, work on road, $33.75; R. Wellwood, work on road, $16.50; secretary Roseneath Womens' Institute, grant for lights, $38; C. W .Varcoe, grading and repairs, $28.30; S. A Tucker, drawing gravel for tile, $9; F. J. Slade, plank, $14.75; J. McMillan, Municipal World, supplies, $1.14; A. Braithwaite, cartage, $5.40; Mrs. M. Braithwaite, gravel, $13.90; R. Linton ,gravel, $26; Ed. Weir, gravel, $6.50; E. Crow, gravel, $8.70.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS.

PETHERICK'S [illegible] July 30.—The People's League met last Thursday evening, as usual, with a large attendance present. The meeting was in charge of the 3rd Vice-President, Mr. Morley Petherick. The topic was taken by Mr. C. D. Daniel. It was decided to change the social evening, which was to be held on Thursday evening, for the league till the following Monday on Mr. J. A. M. Thomson's lawn. A good time is in store for all those who attend this social evening.

Miss Evelyn and Master Donald Barnum spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. John Meiklejohn, Campbellford.

Zion United Church intend holding a lawn social at the usual place, Mr. Simpson's grove, on August 13.

Mr. Daniel Petherick, Jr., is improving his barn by putting a new hip roof on it.

The people of this vicinity are busy with the hay. Everyone reports a good crop.

INDIANS INSIST ON SEEING KING

3 British Columbia Chiefs Carry Grievances to Great White Chief.

A FRUITLESS DAY.

LONDON, July 30. — (Canadian Press Cable) — Three Indian chiefs who have just arrived in London from British Columbia to see an audience with the King and submit grievances concerning tenure of their lands and the trapping of game are disappointed and discouraged. Interviewed by the Morning Post they said they had spent a fruitless day calling up the Duke of Connaught's private secretary, the colonial office and P. C. Larkin's office in an endeavour to arrange atn audience with the King. Everyone they saw professed inability to procure their admission to the King. The Chiefs through an interpreter, an Indian woman named Mrs. Williams, stated that they represented 28 reserves and 4000 Indians and that they would not go back until they had seen the King or the Duke of Connaught. They recalled that during the war the Duke of Connaught saw Chief Basil David at Ottawa and invited him to England if his grievances were not settled in Canada. Accompanied the Septuagenarian Basil David are Chiefs Wm. Pierrish and John Chelpitza.

STALLED ON LAKE.

Motor Launch Drifted Fourteen Hours.

CHATHAM, Ont., July 30. — (Canadian Press). — To be tossed about on the rough water of Lake Erie for fourteen hours in a thirty-two foot gasoline launch, was the thrilling experience of Johnny Wilson and Kenneth McLaughlan, two local young men. The motor stalled on a trip across the lake from Cleveland.

Through powerful glasses, Fred Biette, at Erie Beach, observed the light craft in trouble and notified Rex Goodison, a fisherman, who affected the rescue.

FAIRBANKS ON WITNESS STAND

Told of Plot to Abduct His Wife, Mary Pickford.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 30.—Douglas Fairbanks, motion-picture star and husband of Mary Pickford was the first witness called Tuesday's session of the trial of three men accused of plotting to kidnap Mis Pickford for ransom, and in his direct examination he developed into the best witness so far for the prosecution.

Revealing a heavy coat of tan and attired in a light blue suit, Mr. Fairbanks said he was told of the plot about the middle of last May by Los Angeles police officers.

Between May 19 and May 30, when the men were arrested, he said, he saw Stephens and Holcomb four times loitering about the gates of the studio where he and Mary Pickford were regularly at work.

On the first of these occasions, he said, Stephens was driving a large sedan, with Holcomb in the rear seat beside a third man who, he had learned later, was Louis Geck.

Geck, who is said to be the State's star witness as the man who "sat in" with the trio in the alleged plot, is reported to be missing.

Court attaches pointed out that Mr Fairbanks failed in his direct examination to mention the name of Adrian Lood, the third man accused.

What the detectives diagnosed as the plot to kidnap Mary Pickford and hold her for $200,000 ransom was revealed by putting a physicians stethoscope to the crack under a hotel door. The operator of the listening device told in part what he heard at yesterday's session of the trial of the three alleged plotters.

Reading from notes he took while the words of the alleged conspirators came to him through the stethoscope Glenn Gravatt, a police shorthand reporter, related to the jury how the defendants sought to agree on a plan to kidnap some one and finally picked Mary Pickford.

Pola Negri also was considered as a possible victim, another witness testified, but finally abandoned as not likely to be able to raise a large ransom. Jackie Coogan, also was discussed, but he was dropped too when it developed he was a ward of the Court.

What made Mary Pickford the best of all possible kidnapping victims, it was explained, was the fact that her wealth and the wealth of her husband, Douglas Fairbanks was beyond question. Of course, if Miss Pickford carrieda gun, "things would not be so good," one of the alleged plotters was quoted as saying, and it might be necessary to "shoot her just like any one else."

LITTLE QUEBEC TOWN HONORS A NATIVE SON WHO BECAME LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Hon. Narcisse Perodeau Guest of Fellow Townsmen and Joined His Family in Re-union of Relatives.

ST. OURS, Quebec, July 30. — Canadian Press. — The little town of St. Ours was en fete yesterday to welcome in its midst His Honor Lt.-Governor Narcisse Perodeau, one of St. Ours most distinguished sons. The streets were gaily beflagged and arches of foliage had been erected throughout.

The Lieutenant-Governor was welcomed when he disembarked from the steamer by hundreds of townspeople who thronged the banks of the Richelieu River, and as he stepped ashore he was greeted by the patriotic hymn, O Canada."

Omer Guertin, Mayor of St. Ours, presented the Lieutenant-Governor with an address wherein was expressed the great pride felt by the town in having as the King's representative at Spencerwood a native of S. Ours.

Hon. Mr. Perodeau suitably replied.

Following the reception, the Lieut-Governor visited members of his family and at a banquet in the afternoon in the home of Adelard Perodeau, brother of His Honor, a reunion of all immediate relatives was held.

Last evening, the Lieutenant-Governor was the guest of honor at a dinner tendered him by his fellow-townsmen.

SAYS QUEEN MARY MODEL FOR WOMEN

She Dresses Beautifully, According to Cardinal Gasquet.

LONDON, July 30.—Another was added today to the list of high church prelates, headed by the Pope himself, who are shocked at what they consider the unparalelled depravity in modern women's dress. Cardinal Gasquet, the Vatican Librarian now on a visit here, violently denounced the trend of the latest feminine styles.

"I fail to see what further clothing women can discard," declared the Cardinal. "In my opinion, were they to go out without any clothes at all they would be far less repugnant to people of good taste. There is more suggestion about the flimsy clothing they wear than there would be from complete nudity.

"Queen Mary is a model and an example to women of this country She dresses beautifully and looks more beautiful and feminine than any of the women one sees today in London. Truly I cannot understand why she would tolerate at functions like the garden party the other day the way some women were dressed."

The Cardinal was also horrified at the modern prevalence of divorce saying: "If this state of affairs continues, it will destroy the future scheme of things."

FINLAND FORESTS WASTED BY FIRES

Soldiers Relieve Inhabitants in the Devastated Regions.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 30 —(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).— There has been a serious increase in the number of forest fires in western and northern Finland lately. The government was obliged to despatch several battalions of soldiers to assist the exhausted inhabitants in the stricken districts. In the state owned forests alone some 150 fires are reported. Numerous fires have also been raging in Russia some of which have spread to Finland and the Finnish government has accordingly requested the Soviet authorities to take steps to prevent such fires from spreading across the frontier.

NEW YORK, July 30. — Canadian Press. — News despatches supplied by the World and broadcasted to Australia by radio station KDKA at Pittsburg, are being received in many centres in Australia, with remarkable clearness, despite the intervening nine thousand miles, according to a cablegram yesterday from Keith Murdock, managing editor of the Melbourne Herald.

When 70 beats 50

Have you ever met these two men? They are real people, and their cases are well known to their friends.

One of them has just turned seventy. He is a genial, cheery individual, glowing with health, almost as active now as ever he was. His golf handicap is 9, and he plays to it.

EVER SINCE HE WAS THIRTY HE HAS TAKEN KRUSCHEN SALTS

The other, who is twenty years younger, is the sort of man who is said to be "too old at fifty." He is tired of life; you can see that by the lackadaisical way he goes about his occupations. Success has always eluded his grasp. He has lost the capacity for enjoying himself."

THIS MAN DOES NOT TAKE KRUSCHEN

The most interesting feature of these two cases is that nature originally endowed the younger man with the better constitution of the two; for the other actually started life with an inherited tendency to rheumatism and gout, of which he now shows no signs at all.

It is unnecessary to labour the obvious moral that the man who has acquired the healthy Kruschen habit can nearly always give points to the man who has not, in spite of the handicap of age and natural constitution.

Make the experiment yourself. Take that tiny pinch of Kruschen Salts—"as much as will lie on a 10 cent piece"—every morning in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea. You won't be able to taste it, but in a few days you will begin to notice its effects. Your liver and kidneys will be gently, but effectively, stimulated to perform their proper function—regularly, adequately. All the waste matter that has been clogging your system will be removed. New, pure blood will be set coursing through your body; you will feel refreshed in body and mind, glowing with a new sense of health and fitness, you will be a different person altogether.

And then you will wonder how you ever existed in the old days before you began to take Kruschen.

ECONOMY.—A bottle of Kruschen Salts costs 75c and contains 160 doses. This works out at less than half a cent. a day for the gift of good health. Next time you pass a drug store, remember that the druggist stocks Kruschen, and get a bottle. Get one to-day.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30. — Township Council under the new law, can now be compelled to care for neglected cemeteries within the limits of their municipalities when the societies or private owners who control resting places of the dead are unable to do so. There are at least, three cemeteries in Seymour township for which such aid will never be required — at Burnbrae, at the Tabernacle United Church on the English line and at Hubble Hill. These burial places are under the care of one man, George Craighead who works subject to the orders of the committee appointed by the various congregations to look after each Each cemetery is a model of its kind, with the graves carefully cut and not a weed in sight.

The burial place at Burnbrae, enlarged some years ago, is rapidly filling up as one by one the pioneers and the descendants pass away. Many of the handsome monuments represent the life history of some man or woman whose name will live for ever in the annuals of the community, and more than one tragic death has been written into the local records.

The monument which a grateful congregation erected to the memory of the late Dr. Neil, who was the first minister to come to the district and who was pastor at Burnbrae for over 50 years stands on the site of the log church, the first ever erected The faithful pastor rests on the spot where stood the pulpit which he occupied so long.

In these three cemeteries, those who have gone before are not forgotten. Their last places of rest are carefully preserved by their survivors as the beauty spots in the several communities.

Peace Celebration at Belleville
August 1st to 8th, inclusive

Commemorating 110 years of Peace between Canada and the United States. The greatest celebration of its kind ever held in Canada.

The "Toronto Scottish" Battalion (in kilts) with other military units will on Saturday night, August 1st, at the Fair Grounds, put on a sham battle illustrating trench warfare, by experienced overseas soldiers, who will go "Over the Top" as our boys did at Vimy Ridge, and put on other military features. "Toronto Scottish" is the most attractively uniformed battalion in Canada and will be accompanied by two bands. The Battalion has the champion Tug-of-War Team and the champion Soft Ball Team of Ontario, and will also participate in the military and other events Monday afternoon, August 3.

The most skillful aerial artists in America will entertain you each afternoon and evening, and at night DoBell the Fire Wizard will ride through actual electrical fire in mid air. The two Wyants will make you laugh for 3 hours every day.

The great International Yacht races attended by 150 yachts from Canadian and United States ports will be the largest yachting event ever held in Canada, August 5th, 6th, and 7th.

A Drum Head religious service will be held on the Armouries Lawn Sunday, August 2nd, and on Sunday evening a Sacred Band Concert will be given on Victoria Park.

Addresses will be delivered by prominent speakers from various parts of Canada and the United States on the Court House grounds, Belleville at 10 o'clock each morning during the celebration, except Sunday.

The various fraternal societies have been invited to participate in the celebration.

There will be historic pageants, midways, ferris wheels, spectacular rides, parades, street dancing, dancing in the parks and elsewhere, music, games, sports and other forms of amusements. Seven days and nights of pleasure and profit.

There will be 7 evening and 6 afternoon performances at the Fair Grounds. GENERAL ADMISSION 50 CENTS. Peterboro vs Belleville baseball league game will be played on Wednesday in addition to the other attractions.

CLOSE PRISONS; LACK BOARDERS

British Crime Conditions Are in Contrast to Those of U. S. A.

JAILS ARE CROWDED.

WASHINGTON, July 30. —(Canadian Press).—Figures made public by the Department of Commerce, showing that England is closing prisons on account of the decrease in crime, make a striking comparison with the increase of crime in the United States.

Criminal statistics of England have been compiled by Alfred Nutting of the staff of the American Consulate General at London. 'More than twenty prisons in England and Wales," Mr Nutting reports "practically one third of the total have ben closed since 1914."

While England is putting signs of "to let" on its prisons, in all parts of the United States prisons are overflowing.

Taxi dodgers, automobile thieves and bootleggers, the Department of Justice experts say, are responsible for the increase in the Federal prisons but this does not explain the general increase in crime all over the country.

CROWD PAYS RESPECT TO LATE CARDINAL BEGIN

JAP POLITICS ARE 'SEETHING'

FAVORS STATES

TOKYO, July 30 (Associated Press). —With the recent election of General Baron Tanaka as president of the Seiyukai, the second largest party in the Diet, political conditions in Japan are diagnosed by observers as "seething." Gen. Tanaka, formerly minister of war, succeeded Baron Takahashi as head of the Seiyukai. Immediately after his election Gen. Tanaka brought about the merging of the Kakushin Club, containing about twenty members, with the Seiyukai. He then took a number of members from the Chuseikai, another minor party, and brought the total membership of the Seiyukai in the Diet up to 140, as against a membership of 162 for the Kenseikai, the government party headed by Premier Kato.

The vernacular newspapers report that Gen. Tanaka also has approached the Seiyuhonto, the third largest party in the Diet, with a view of bringing its members back into the Seiyukai fold. The Seiyuhonto party is composed of members who broke away from the Seiyukai just prior to the accession of the Kato ministry. This latter merger, however, apparently has met with some opposition and it is believed by many that Premier Kato will be able to maintain his present coalition ministry at least until fall and perhaps face the next Diet. The cabinet now has Seiyukai members in it, but it is declared the leaders of this party are dissatisfied with the coalition and wish to place their own premier in power. For the present, though, the situation is very much unsettled.

Baron Tanaka, in a recent newspaperinterview, declared that "continuous efforts toward the development of close economic relations between Japan and the United States on one hand, and China on the other, will be the keynote of the diplomatic policy of the Seiyukai." He continued: "I believe that it devolves upon the statesmen of the various countries of the world to fight vigorously and persistently against those injurious campaigns which tend to increase international complications, and lead finally to clashes between nations and races. With this in mind, the Seiyukai will do its utmost to dispel the mistaken views held in regard to the present and future relations between Japan and America. In this effort we hope to obtain the wholehearted sympathy and co-operation of the American statesmen and leaders.

"I am convinced that the efforts recently made by President Coolidge and many other distinguished Amicans to correct the dissatisfaction felt in Japan over the passage of the immigration law has already reacted favorably on this nation and has impressed our countrymen with confidence in the future relations between Japan and the United States."

ANIMALS INCREASE.

Wolves, Deer, Moose and Bears Frequently Seen Along Roads.

PORT ARTHUR, July 30. —(Canadian Press).— Never in any season have wild animals been reported as numerous throughout the district as they are this year. Bears are particularly common, people having summer cottages in various places frequently coming in contact with them. Wolves, Dear and Moose are frequently seen along roads, particularly in early mornings by people driving to town for business. Cottagers have in some cases heard wolves howling. A number of bears have been shot or captured.

BROOKLYN, July 30 (Canadian Press) — Using a tennis racket as a red flag, 12 year old Raphaele Esposito stopped a subway express train and saved the life of his friend, Joseph Ray, 10, who had fallen across the third rail.

At the sight of the waving racket, the motorman jammed on the emergency brakes then leaped from his cabin and released the youth from the rail. Ray's clothing was burned and his condition is serious but it is expected that he will recover.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE EARNS BIG PROFIT

Many Business Houses Are Accomodated in Its Lofty Arches.

NEW YORK, July 30 (Associated Press).—Brooklyn Bridge is a shrewd landlord. Its eye to advancing values of business property is shown by the announcement that it will increase its rents some 25 per cent as present leases expire. Commissioner Mills of the Department of Plant and Structures, as its fiscal agent, started the boost recently when he raised the first two tenants from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

Brooklyn Bridge as a business building has been more or less a novelty for all its 40 years. This, the oldest of the four East River spans, has been more commonly regarded in the public mind as a great transporting institution, content to bear upon its patient back the daily thousands, riding and afoot, who come and go between Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Yet the same causeway of which the city is so proud, is also a roof to a considerable business population. Chief Engineer E.A.Byrne say it shelters 51 business houses within its lofty arches; 44 on the Manhattan side, and seven in Brooklyn. Six of the firms have been tenants for more than a quarter century. Collectively, they contribute to an annual rent roll amounting to $72,619.92.

The "twenty-five-year" club includes The New York "World," The New York "Evening Journal," each maintaining departments in the bridge structure, and the "Brooklyn Freezer." This concern, is Brooklyn Bridge Cold Storage & Freezing Co., is one of the sizeable cold storage and packing adjuncts of Fulton Fish Market. Later tenants number firms active in the adjoining leather swamp."

The bridge is good moneymaker in other directions as well. Its surface cars, charging a nickel a roundtrip, and elevated cars charging a dime, together produce a gross income for the city of almost $140,000. Seven stands where passing crowds regale themselves with fruit, candy and soft drinks pay about $80,000 for concessions. Other sources of income bring the total yearly receipts from the bridge to $307,652.45. This is deemed all velvet, because the bridge was built primarily as a transportation link.

CONTROL WEEDS BY CULTIVATION

Frequent Working is Most Effective Method—Stop Top Growth.

USE CLEAN SEED.

In a statement on "Effective Methods of Controlling Weeds," Mr. E. S. Hopkins, Dominion Field Husbandman, brings out three salient and important points. The first is that the most effective method of controlling weeds is thorough and frequent cultivation of the land. The second is that the basic principle in killing weeds which have underground rootstalks is to prevent their sending up top or above-ground growth, and the third, the longer the delay in eradicating the weeds the greater the amount of work that will eventually be necessitated. One other point made by Mr. Hopkins in giving definite advice as to the subjection of couch grass, mustard and other weeds, that cannot be too much emphasized is that it is important to use at all times clean seed grain, clover and grass seed.

RUHR MINES SUFFER.

Cannot Dispose of Enormous Supplies of Coal Marketless.

BERLIN, July 30.—Canadian Press —The newspapers report that a gold discount bank has granted to the Ruhr mining industry three months credit of 15,000,000 marks because of the present crisis in which enormous stocks of coal are on hand without a market.

Mine owners declare that the situation is leading to ruin. Many pits are closed down.

The royal yacht Alexandria, formerly belonging to King Edward, has now been sold and will be used in pleasure trips to Norway.

SAFETY MEN WERE DRIVEN FROM MINES

Striking Miners Armed With Bludgeons, Ejected the Workers.

AMANFORD, Wales, July 30. — (Canadian Press). — Armed with bludgeons eight bands of striking miners each about 400 strong, visited the collieries in the anthracite district between midnight and six o'clock this morning, intimidating the officers and ordering the safety men to withdraw from the pits, despite advice of the miners' federation. The safety men remained at their posts when the miners went on strike, recently. There are 20,000 miners on strike in the district and the police have been powerless to prevent disturbances. Yesterday disturbances took the form of a general discharge of explosives and the firing of guns, but no casualties have been reported.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALWAYS ALTER CASES THEY RUINED HON. L. GIRROIR'S SPEECH

Of all the members of the Canadian senate, one of the most modest and unassuming is Hon. E. Lavin Girroir, a French Acadian and a representatives of Nova Scotia, who was appointed by the Borden government in 1912. He practised law in Antigonish and sat in the Nova Scotia legislature for one term.

In his own bailiwick, Senator Girroir has a wide reputation as a stump speaker. During the war his services were enlisted by the Knights of Columbus during one of their campaigns.

On one occasion, he made a notable harangue in a small town near Sydney and a fortnight later, one of his Hieland admirers had occasion to visit Port Mulgrave on the strait of Canso. He was sitting in a well-known centre of learning in that town, Tom Gibb's barber shop, enjoying a quiet shave.

"Well, Tom," said the Scotsman. We had a grand meeting the other night and a grand speech, whatever."

"Yes," said the barber, "was it good?"

"Good," exclaimed Angus. "Was it good, do you say? I've heard lawyers and I've heard politicians and I've heard bishops and I've heard archbishops but never have I hear anything like that speech."

"Who delivered it?" asked Tom.

"Oh, it was a little fellow of a Scotchman named Jerreway. He was small but man, could he talk?"

"Yes," said the barber, "he can talk all right but you've made a mistake. Senator Girroir is the man you mean and he isn't Scotch, he's pure French. I know because I went to school with him."

Angus was absolutely dumbfounded. He sat for a few minutes in silent meditation and then inquired, "You say he's no Scotch, Tom?"

"No," repeated the latter. "He's French."

"Oh, well," said the Scot, after a pause, "ah well, it was not such a deil of a speech after all."

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

CHAPTER 1.
Out of the Sky.

Mary Marshall sat gazing at the sky and wondered about love. Although she was eighteen, and deliciously pretty, all that she knew about that fascinating subject had been gleaned from romantic books. For no Prince Charmings ever entered Paradise Canyon, that mysterious retreat in Mexico, just across the Arizona border, where she had lived all her life with her widower father.

The only men Mary knew were Daddy, and his three retainers, Bud Hughes, a soldier of fortune whom her father had given refuge, and Miquel and Ramon two young Mexicans.

Paradise Canyon was closed off from all the rest of the world. It had been Mary's whole world, for she had been brought there while still a very small child, and remembered no other place. There was only one secret pass by which the canyon could be entered, and that was kept constantly guarded by one or the other of the servants. There were never any guests, for John Marshall, Mary's father, cared for no company. And no stray, uninvited guests had ever found their way in.

There was some mystery behind all this strict seclusion, Mary knew, but what was the reason of it all her father had never told her. Whatever it might be, it had effectively kept romance out of her life.

But not out of her heart. The beauty and solitude of Paradise Canyon led to dreams. Dreams of the thing called love which Mary had known only by hearsay and printed words. So Mary had spent many hours gazing at the sky above and living alone with her dreams, as she was on this summer afternoon.

Her reverie was suddenly interrupted bya large rough hand which gently carssed her soft sunshine-colored hair Mary leane dback farther and looked up into the face of her father. He bent over her and did what no other man had yet been privileged to do—kissed her. (Often Mary wished there had been others.)

"Star-gazing again, dear?" asked Daddy Marshall. "But how can you see stars in the afternoon when the sun is shining, Mary?"

"Oh, but I can see many other things up there, even with my eyes closed, Daddy," Mary replied, laughing.

"Funny little dreaming girl," he mused, his eyes following hers back into the sky. "Do you think something you want will come down to you out of the clouds?" He paused. Something had caught his attention. "Hello, what's that?" he ejaculated.

Mary had seen it too. She leaped to her feet.

There was a black speck moving far up in the sky. It was almost directly above them, and was coming closer at a rapid rate.

"An airplane, Daddy," cried Mary. "I wonder who it can be, flying in these parts," said Marshall.

The speck loomed closer and larger. It was descending. They could make out the shape of the wings now and hear the whir and hum of the throbbing motor. They heard several reports like pistol shots—backfires in the machine's exhaust.

"He's coming down, Daddy," exclaimed Mary. "He seems to be having trouble."

"But there's no place he can land here. He'll strike a rock or a tree and be killed."

They watched the progress of the plane excitedly now. It was coming very close to earth. The pilot seemed to be reconnoitering for a place to land. He swooped low above the tree tops and rose again. The sounds of backfiring continued. They watched him make desperate dips and curves in the efforts to find a safe spot to come down. Then suddenly the noise of the motor ceased altogether. The machine started dropping dizzily.

"He's falling, Daddy."

"I guess it's all over with him."

Down, down, down—the pilot was desperately trying to maneuver the machine in such a way that he could volplane to a safe spot. How fast he was coming. He was close to the ground now—forty feet—twenty feet—now, he had reached the ground, the plane was bouncing along the rough surface. He couldn't bring it to a stop. It was headed right for a giant tree. There was a crash, and a puff of smoke, as the plane collided with the black trunk.

Mary and her father started running to the spot. When they reached it they found the aviator white and unconscious, bleeding in spots.

"He's alive," shouted Marshall. "I don't think he's badly hurt, either. Give a hand, Mary, and we'll get him out."

They lifted him out of the wrecked machine, and carried him back to the house. As they did so Mary could not keep herself from noticing that in addition to being an injured aviator he was young and handsome.

When they laid him on the sofa, and removed his flying headgear, Mary discovered he was even better looking than he had seemed at first. And red-headed—he had curly red hair.

His good looks increased her solicitude for his injuries. She began to feel a personal interest in bathing his face and applying arnica to his wounds. Thick blood on the back of his shirt daught her eye, and she unfastned it feverishly.

Her father looked at the wound.

"Just a scratch, dear," he said "Bullet grazed him. I've had lots like that. Does nothing more serious than leave a scar for a souvenir."

Mary washed and bandaged the wound with tender care. In the midst of her ministrations the stranger opened his eyes and looked about him, dazed and bewildered. This look changed to one of pleasure as his eyes met Mary's. His smile made her heart flutter.

"He gets better looking every minute," she thought. And she was feeling the beginning of something she had never experienced before.

CHAPTER 2
Komi's Arrow.

At almost the same moment that the young and handsome stranger in the airplane dropped out of the sky into Paradise Canyon, something else came flying through the air into John Marshall's rock-rimmed refuge.

The arrow passed between Bud Hughes, the soldier of fortune who had by chance been thrown into Marshall's employ, and Miquel, the Mexican servant. It put an effective end to an argument between Bud and Miquel as to the quality of the latter's vocal abilities. Strumming his guitar, Miquel had been making sounds with his voice that resembled singing, but annoyed Bud. Bud had choked Miquel off by dousing him with a whole bucket of water full in the face. Sputtering, Miquel was just about to retaliate with a demonstration of Mexican boxing technique, when this arrow passed directly under his nose and stopped his arm.

The arrow quivered and lodged its point in the soft wood of the kitchen door of the servants' quarters.

Dazed for the moment, the two men stared at it, and Miquel, who had turned pale, said:

"It might have been me instead of the door that got it."

Bud stared at the arrow, and said grimly:

"Yes, but do you know what it means? It's a warning from our friend Komi. It means enemies are near."

Komi was the last survivor of a once conquering line of Yaqui chiefs. Earlier that afternoon, on a plateau ledge near the base of Sierra Diablo, that great mountain which lifted its jagged rocky pinnacle against the clouds, Komi had lit a campfire, symbol of sacrifice to his god. Then he had knelt in worship before an ancient crudely carved image in the face of the cliff. Turning his face skyward and raising his arms, the old Indian had mumbled a weird ritual to the god. Somewhere near her the Yaquis of Taltepec in the old days had hoarded a great treasure in gold and gems as an offering to the god. Komi was the sole guardian of this secret of his forefathers. Each day he prayed at this shrine that the god give him strength to guard his secret from his enemies. The prayer was answered, for despite his years, Komi was straight and stalwart.

Komi had been interrupted this day in his worship by the sound of hoofs. He leaped to his feet and clutched his knife. The intruder rode up swiftly, and reined in his horse before Komi. It was John Marshall. Komi recognized him and put back his knife.

Marshall was perspiring and excited. He pointed in the direction whence he had come.

"Hello, Komi," he gasped. "Three men were following me. But I think I've given them the slip."

"When the moon rise, Komi must be on his way to Pico for food.—But, Komi, he watch—Komi wa[illegible]"

Marshall saluted him and rode on.

A short distance back Marshall's three pursuers, on reined horses, stood staring bewildered over the brink of a steep precipice down from the mountainside road where they had just seen their quarry plunge down, his horse slipping, sliding, narrowly averting death at every turn. They did not know whether they dared follow.

"You two follow him down. I'll go through the ravine."

Hesitating and reluctant, the two followed down the perilous descent Marshall had taken, while their leader wheeled and vanished down the divide. They soon tired of the apparently hopeless chase, and giving up, turned back. A short distance back they met up with a fourth man—a man with a hard, crafty, evil face, who wore very conspicuously dangling from his vest a large topaz watch charm.

"We did as you said, Chief, but he slipped away," one of them told him. "Unless Buck picks up his trail in the ravine."

Disappointment darkened the face of the man with the topaz charm, but he smothered his feelings, and said:

"Well, we better be moving back to town. If Buck locates Marshall he knows where to find us."

Then the three of them jogged off on the trail toward Pico.

Meanwhile, the swarthy man called Buck, who had taken the ravine trail, suddenly came into Komi's view.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND ABOUT WASH DAY.

When Gocomeback, the wee Travel Elfin, found Betty on the back step, her face all covered with frowns, he had to laugh.

"My, how pretty you would be if your face would only freeze that way, Miss Betty Bly," he laughed merrily. "What in the world is the trouble on this lovely and shiny day?"

"That's just the trouble," growled Betty. "I want to play and Mama wants me to help her with the washing. I just hate wash day. I never did like to wash and I just wish I lived——"

"Wait a second, wait a second," laughed Gocomeback, putting his finger on Betty's mouth. "Don't forget, I'm standing here and your wish may come true, then maybe you wouldn't like it so much. You know, just the other day, I happened to call on a little friend of mine and she was helping her Mama wash. Let's go and see what she's doing to-day;" and before Betty could ask any questions, she found herself standing in front of a queer little house. All the front was standing wide open and you could see right straight through it to the very back.

"In Japan, of course," replied Gocomeback. "And this is where little Too-tu-San lives." Gocomeback rapped on the door and a little Japanese girlie dressed in a pretty blue and red kimona with a great wide sash at the belt, came running out to meet them.

"Oh, Gocomeback," she cried, shaking the elfin's hands and bowing politely to Betty. "Here you come again and find me busy. But come right in, it won't take Mother and me long Then we'll show you our pretty garden."

She turned around and there, peeking out from a bag on her back, was a dear little Japanese baby. Betty and Gocomeback took off their shoes, put on soft slippers and followed Too-tu-San into the house.

She led them back to a room where her Mother was spreading pieces of silk on a board.

They sat down, tailor fashion, on the floor and Too-tu-San picked up a kimona and began ripping it to pieces.

"Gocomeback tells me you don't have to rip your dresses up when you wash them in your country," she laughed. "Of course our common clothes all have to be ripped to pieces before they are washed. Then, after Mother washes them, she spreads them out on a board like she is doing now. I guess it takes longer than the way you do it."

"My goodness," and for some unknown reason, Betty sneezed. Japan and all vanished before that sneeze and Betty opened her eyes to find herself on her own back porch.

"Gracious me, if I had to rip things to pieces before they were washed, I might have cause to complain," she laughed and that was the last time Betty ever complained about helping her Mama with the washing. She was glad she lived in good old America.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JULY 31.

According to the solar square to Saturn, it may be difficult to make any sort of headway on this day, since this figure is deemed a retarding and obstructing force of the most ominous degree. Misfortune and ill-health, as well as generally difficult situations, may be read from this aspect. Still, Luna in favorable aspect with Sol, Saturn and Jupiter, may mitigate the weight of the adversity, and those in the employment of others are under an especially benignant ruling for recognition of industry and application. New ventures may prove hazardous and should be avoided.

Those whose birthday it is are under a figure forecasting difficulties and obstructions, in which illness may prove a deterring force. This should be forestalled and new ventures avoided. Those in the employment of others are under good auspices for reward of industry and application. A child born on this day should be kept in the employment of others, where it has excellent prospects for advancement. In business for itself it might encounter many obstacles.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter common to two white spaces, words starting at the numbered squares and reading either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

HOW THE PROCESS OF MEZZO-TINTING WAS SOLVED.

Have you ever stood entranced before the delicate pinks and yellows of a water color? And wished that you might call that bit of heaven, with the sea smiling benignly under it, your very own?

But water colors are beyond the reach of most of us, and so we sigh, take another look, and pass them by. Then our eye is caught by another picture. It, too, is done in pastel shades, subtly interrelated to catch an evanescent mood of nature. Then we see that the lines of this picture are thin and firm, as if made with a very fine stiletto, while the water color appears to have been done with a very soft brush or cloth. When we enter the shop we learn that the drawing which has attracted our attention so forcibly is within our means. With a sigh of satisfaction, we pick up our parcel and march proudly out.

The process of mezzo-tint, although it has been known for several hundred years, has undergone radical changes since its inception. According to a story told in Spence's "Anecdotes," this process in engraving was invented by the famous Prince Rupert, nephew of Charles I. This young man devoted himself to both chemical and philosophical experiments, as well as to the practice of mechanical arts.

The Prince (so the story goes) observed one day a sentinel at some distance from his post, very busy doing something to his gun. The Prince inquired the nature of his work. He replied that the dew had fallen in the night and made his fusil rusty, and therefore he was scraping and cleaning it. Looking at it, the Prince was struck with something like a figure eaten into the barrel. From this incident, we are told, Prince Rupert conceived the idea of mezzo-tint.

Prince Rupert, it is said, communicated his ideas to Wallerant Vaillant, a painter, and together they made several experiments, which resulted in the invention of a steel roller with projecting points which effectually produced the black grounds. After these black grounds have been scraped away the gradations of light are achieved.

Although this story may appear circumstantial enough, later researches reveal that the invention was made by Ludwig von Siegen, a member of the household of the Landgrave of Hesse Cassel. The first print executed by Siegen in this manner—and, indeed, the first mezzo-tint ever made—was a portrait of the artist's venerable friend, the Dowager Landgravine. It is dated 1642.

In a letter to the Landgrave which accompanied a first impression of this print, Siegen declares that "how this work was done, no copperplate engraver or artist can explain or imagine." In 1654, von Siegen visited Brussels, and there met Prince Rupert, who had already been practising etching. The inventor disclosed the secret to him, and a little later, the Prince called in Vaillant to his aid.

Rupert brought this new art to England at the Restoration, and there is was gradually perfected, so that it was given the name "la maniere Anglaise" by Europeans. It has since become almost exclusively an English art.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

So many have asked the meaning of the word Thirty" that appears at the end of every day's "Line-o-Type" that it has been suggested this space might be entertainly devoted to a general word-picture of the news-publishing business. Only it is called a "game" in the editorial room, a "profession" by the highbrow journalist, a "trade" by the compositor, and probably the managing director is the only one who considers it a "business."

Why "Thirty?"

There are many ramifications to the publishing of a paper, more than the average man thinks when he daringly declares he could run the journal better than the man who has the work in hand—and who doesn't think that?

From the foreign correspondent to the newsboy who delivers the paper, from the forest giant to the sheet in your hand, from the clicking telegraph key to the roaring press, the game is full of thrills for the men who make the newspaper possible, and the men who turn it out.

This series will follow a news story through from the event till it reaches you in The Examiner, with the Foreign Correspondent's work told as interestingly as may be in tomorrow's issue.

But to get back to "Thirty." This is the telegraph operator's and the reporter's sign for "The End." Every story sent to the linotypes is marked "30" at the end, so that more will not be looked for. It was adopted by the writer of "Line-o-type" because it is so unalterably linked with the "game." And because of the story of its first adoption, too. It is said this symbol was taken in honoring a telegraph operator who perished at his post of duty. In the midst of a fire, he continued sending his messages until almost overcome, when he signed off with his number in the telegraph service. It was "30."

Question. Is the Peterborough street railway a going concern, or a gone one?

Answer: Wait and see.

REPORT SUMMARY SAYS CROP VASTLY IMPROVED BECAUSE OF WARM WEATHER AND RAINS

Haying Nearing Completion in Some Sections and Harvest Started.

APPLES AVERAGE.

Proper Spraying Insures a Clean Crop and High Quality Fruit.

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

Crop prospects have improved even during the past week due to recent rains. Haying is nearing completion in some counties and in a few sections Fall Wheat has been harvested. Sweet Clover stubble is being plowed for fall wheat.

Apples promise an average crop and where properly sprayed are clean. The Spray Service rendered by Agricultural Representatives in the special fruit counties was much appreciated and was quite effective in getting growers to produce higher quality of fruit.

Brant—Wheat and Rye are ripening very fast and some wheat looks quite ripe enough to cut. Farmers are busy finishing up their hay which is not running 50% of a crop in many places. Oats and Barley are both very light and will not be more than 50% of a crop. Barley is turning very fast.

Bruce—Haying is general throughout the district. The weather is very catchy and discouraging to those wishing to harvest a good quality crop of hay. The rain, however, has improved the crops very materially during the week. In some sections of the County hay is almost equally as heavy as that of a year ago; while in other districts the hay is comparatively light. Wheat has improved wonderfully during the week. It is estimated that some exceptional fields will yield from thirty to forty bushels. Oats and Barley have also improved equally well since the rains have come.

Dufferin—Grain crops are looking very promising and with continued favorable weather should give an average crop. Root crops are coming along very favorably although corn is backward.

Durham—Wet weather has held up haying considerably. Hay crop is heavy. More alfalfa than usual is being saved for seed. Sweet Clover sod being prepared for fall wheat on some farms.

Elgin—Wheat harvest is on, the crop will be above the average although the straw is short. Raspberries and cherries are plentiful on the market—selling at 10c and 12c per box and cherries at 90c per basket. Home Grown tomatoes are just coming in. Many farmers are plowing down sweet clover for fall wheat.

Haldimand—The alfalfa harvest is completed. Farmers are now busy harvesting alsike seed which is very short but apparently has filled out well. The wheat harvest will soon be on as the grain is ripening very fast. A fair acreage has been turned over for fall wheat.

Halton—Fall wheat harvesting has commenced in the county and is a fair good crop. Some farmers are endeavoring to harvest alsike by using a special attachment on the cutting bar of the mower.

Huron—Considerable preparations are being made for the Fall wheat. Farmers are plowing up fields from which they have cut Sweet Clover with the intention of planting the same with Fall Wheat.

The rains of a week ago have worked wonders with our spring crops. While oats and barley will not be heavy, long strawed crops, they may even yet give a good average field of grain. It is almost unbelievable the improvement that is apparent during the past week. Pastures have also improved much due to the moisture of last weekend. The rain caught some hay in the swath and coil but the benefits to spring crops has far outweighed any damage done.

Kenora—The milk flow had fallen off to quite a heavy extent during the past week and will continue to be low unless we have cooler weather owing to flies. Many farmers are keeping their cattle in darkened stables and feeding clover during the day and letting them out in the evenings. There is a great opportunity for some one to discover fly repellent that would have a lasting effect for ten hours as it would mean a good many hundreds of dollars to dairy men especially in this north country. Prospects for the hay and grain crops were never better than at the present time.

Lambton—Haying is nearly over. In the majority of cases old meadows are very light. Alsike clover is very short. Alfalfa Clover will receive a big boost for this year. It will save the situation for fodder. Second crop Alfalfa has a fine growth already. The fields are a mat of growth. Alfalfa acreage is increasing yearly. There is less sale for timothy hay each year. Fall wheat cutting will be in full force next week. Many fields have been cut this week. The straw is short. The heads are a fair length and show a large plump grain. A general impression is abroad that Western Ontario crops are burned up with the dry weather. This fact does not hold true for Lambton County. Visitors from outside points all remark the fact that conditions look good in this territory.

Lincoln—Early green beans are making their appearance this week along with a few out-door grown tomatoes. The first early crop of cabbages is all harvested with the ground planted to celery and other crops for all. One field of wheat has had the binder in, but rain has held up the cutting. Sour cherries are meeting with a fair demand with the canning factory taking quite a supply at 3½c per lb. Sweet cherries are in good demand at prices ranging from 65c to $1.00 per bus., and new ones at $2.25 to $2.50 per bushel.

FOR STOMACH WORM.

Small Dose of Blue Vitriol Solution is Effective Curative.

All sheep are more or less subject to stomach-worms, and during the summer, pastures on which sheep are kept are apt to become infested with stomach-worms. "Various stock feeds are recommended to destroy these intestinal parasites," says a writer in Breeders' Gazette, "but we use blue vitriol. Given with salt as a preventive, it is mixed as follows: 50 pounds of salt, 2 pounds of copperas and 1 pound of blue vitriol. When given as a curative, 4 ounces of a 1 per cent solution is a dose for an adult sheep. An authority on stomach-worms in sheep recommends that all sheep be drenched every 28 days the year round, except ewes just due to lamb, and lambs nursing ewes. He has proved that stomach worms will be eradicated from the farm by this treatment. On account of our severe winters, the only way that worms can survive from one summer until the next is in the stomach of the sheep.

PEA APHIS NOT BAD THIS YEAR

Recent Rains Have Brought About Improvement in the Appearance of Crop.

BETTER RESULTS

The pea aphis which has overstayed its welcome on the crops of this and other districts during the last two years is described by George Mather as being somewhat similar to the potato bug in appearance. The fly lays on the pea vine an egg which is matured by hot dry weather. The resulting louse does not eat the leaves as so many people suppose. It preys directly on the vine itself. Armed with a long bill the louse pierces the vine and sucks up the sustenance. Eventually the vine, impoverished from lack of nourishment, falls to the ground. A field of peas has been known to turn yellow in a single day under the attacks of this pest. Recent rains have brought about an improvement in the appearance of the crops here says Mr. Mather, and the indications are at present that this year's results will be better than those of last year.

CROPS IMPROVE AS HEAT WAVE BREAKS

Some Western Districts Have Got Rain—Others Still Waiting.

WINNIPEG.—The heat wave in the West ended the night of the 17th and lower temperatures have prevailed since; so far as Manitoba is concerned the last four days have been the best possible filling and ripening weather. The experts, both Dominion and provincial, having made further examinations as to stem rust report that while it exists it is not spreading, and with present weather certainly would check any tendency to spread. So far no damage from stem rust has occurred.

How much damage has been done by the intense heat in the areas in Saskatchewan and Alberta, where they were suffering from dry weather, it is impossible to say at present. Rains have fallen in some of the dry areas, but not in all, and in no case have the rains been very heavy, but half-an-inch of rain would be sufficient to help in some of the area, and combined with the coolness would be of considerable assistance in developing the crop.

There has been considerable large areas of hail damage, more particularly in Saskatchewan, but the percentage of damage seems now less than was at first reported.

Taken at large, conditions are better than at last writing, and with further rains there would undoubtedly be further improvement. Bright sunshine, light cool winds with occasional general rains are what are needed to complete the crop.

Rye harvest has started at a number of points in all the provinces. In spite of intense heat, pastures have held up fairly well, and hay is generally a good crop. The heat that was so hard on the wheat has brought corn forward very rapidly, and to some extent overcome the backwardness of the early part of the season for corn.

HOGS IMPROVE; LAMBS DO NOT.

Two remarks in the Dominion live-stock branch Market Review for the month of May are calculated to attract special attention because of their opposite natures. One is "The quality of hog offerings continues to improve in most provinces," in connection with which gains in values are recorded, and the other is: "Complaints were heard of too many lambs being marketed prematurely. These young unfinished lambs brought very low prices." The Review also notes a falling off in the shipment of cattle to the United States and an increase in the shipment of both hogs and calves. In the exportation of cattle to Britain during the first five months of the year, there was an ie of 5,324 compared with the same peri last year, but there was a decrease in May this year as compared with the corresponding month in 1924.

RAIN BOOSTS GRAIN.

Prospects Never More Favorable For Bumper Crop Say Farmers.

BAILIEBORO, July 30.—The recent rains are doing untold good to the grain crops. Many farmers have already stated that prospects for a bumper production crop have never looked any more favourable. The weather is very poor for hay making, but for roots, grain and pastures the rains are certainly leaving their mark. The wheat is already ripening very fast, though as yet there has been very little done at the hay. On this account it is going to leave the haying and fall wheat harvesting close together and it will make this season very busy for the farmer. The alsike crop is looking very heavy this season.

PRIZES FOR GET OF ONE STALLION BEING OFFERED

Cobourg Horse Show Will Encourage Breeding of Heavy Horses.

NEEDS 800 BARRELS.

One Apple Grower is Looking Forward to a Big Crop.

COBOURG, July 30.—The Cobourg Horse Show Association is arranging for a show this year of more than one hundred events, which will be run off the third week in August. At a meeting just held the suggestion was brought forward of having an Old Home Week at the time of the Horse Show. It is some years since Cobourg has had an event of this kind, and it is believed that it will be looked forward to with much pleasure.

To Encourage Breeding.

The Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, is offering special prizes at the Horse Show for the get of draft sires. For five animals, geldings or grade mares, the get of one pure-bred draught stallion, but not necessarily belonging to one exhibitor, one year old and upwards, but not more than one yearling in the group, a first prize of $100 is offered, second $90, third $80, fourth $60. These are generous prizes and should attract keen competition.

Fruit and Vegetable Farm Sold.

Nelson Reynolds, Town Councillor, Port Hope, has sold his 11-acre farm just west of Port Hope to Charles H. Frost of Deseronto. This is a fruit and vegetable farm and the new owner will continue the business. This farm was at one time the old agricultural park at Port Hope. Mr. Frost took possession of his new property this week, and Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will move to Port Hope.

Mr. Gibson Expects 800 Barrels.

Fourteen hundred apple barrels will be built this season, it is stated, at the Fruit Growers' Cooperage at Newcastle. Of these Mr. W. H. Gibson will require 800 for his pack, and other growers the balance. Mr. Gibson is expecting a fine crop.

Wheat Cutting Begun.

Cutting of Fall wheat and rye has started in this district. Last week a few fields of rye were cut and this week the work has become more general.

Taking Agricultural Course.

The following young men from Durham County attended the short course in judging at Ottawa: Harry Allen, Bowmanville; J. J. Virtue, Hampton; W. A. VanCamp and Dan. English, Burketon; T. Cowan and J. T. Chapman, Orono.

FARROWING SOW MUST FEEL AT HOME

Should be Removed to Pen at Least Week Before Due.

Not long ago a farmer penned up a sow which was soon due to farrow, says The Country Gentleman. Before she was placed in the farrowing quarters she was accustomed to sleeping around the straw pile.

It was considerably against her desire to enter the pen, but she was forced to go into the quarters with which she was unfamiliar.

For a long time she was unsettled and tore about frantically, seeking an exit. All this was brought about just on the eve of farrowing. Even after farrowing she was still restless. During the farrowing she trampled several of the pigs to death.

The mistake this farmer made was because he did not accustom the sow to her quarters a week or so in advance of the farrowing date. Hogs, and especially mother sows, usually become very fond of regular quarters. In such quarters they are much more quiet than when confined to a strange place.

Without a doubt the sow's condition of mind has much to do with the ease of farrowing and the success of the litter after farrowing.

DROUGHT DAMAGE SMALL.

The hot weather of the past two weeks and the consequent drought and forced maturity of crops in Saskatchewan has caused a certain amount of uneasiness, according to telegraphic reports received from crop correspondents by the statistics branch of the Department of Agriculture, but the prospects for a good wheat crop are still promising in the greater part of the province. The best crops appear to be in the Central part of the province and the North-east. In the Southwest and Northwest the hot weather and winds have dried up the soil and the crops are suffering for lack of rain.

USE CARE WITH THE YOUNG PIGS

Clean Farrowing Pen and Move Pigs From It as Soon as Possible.

PUT ON PASTURE

Prevention of losses in young stock may mean the difference between profit and loss in livestock operations. Parasites, particularly stomach-worms, are one serious cause of malnutrition and resultant loss. In the case of swine, the system worked out for saving the lives of young pigs is simple in practice. The farrowing pen should be thoroughly cleaned and scrubbed to remove all worm eggs that may be present. The sow should then be thoroughly cleaned up, paying special attention to the udders, to remove all worm eggs. Within ten days after farrowing, the sow and pigs are removed to a field sown to forage crops and not pastured to swine since it was sown. The pigs are provided a good supply of water and shade and kept in this field for at least four months, after which time they are reasonably safe from severe or injurious worm infectations. Experience shows that these measures also prevent bull-nose, mange, dietary deficiencies, cholera and other ailments to a large extent, as might be expected from cleanliness, and separation of young animals and their infected surroundings, and the provision of safe and adequate food and water supplies and the necessary shelter and shade.

CROP REPORTS

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its Branches. The Branch Managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with Crop conditions in all sections of the districts mentioned.

GENERAL—Following the extreme heat of last week practically all districts in the Prairie Provinces require rain in various degree. In parts of Alberta, southern Saskatchewan and south-western Manitoba, crops have deterioriated through lack of moisture. Rust is reported but is not spreading to any extent. No further hail damage. In Ontario good harvesting weather has prevailed throughout the week, and farmers are making rapid progress in gathering in their crops. In Quebec, all crops are making satisfactory progress. In the Maritime Provinces crop conditions are good except for apples. In British Columbia early fruits are being gathered in the Okanagan Valley, while field crops and pastures need rain, but are not in danger except in small areas in the dry belt.

Details follow:

PRAIRIE PROVINCES.

Edmonton District—Moisture required, but western and south-eastern sections holding up well. North-eastern section seriously affected by heat and lack of moisture. Calgary District—Prospects continue favorable in the central section, which received rain recently. In the eastern section, there is lack of sufficient moisture. Lethbridge District—Extreme heat and continued dryness is seriously affecting crops and prospects are becoming poorer. Pastures are drying. Crops on irrigated lands are doing well. Northern Saskatchewan—Crops have withstood intense heat remarkably well. Little damage reported. Wheat largely in head, filling well and healthy. Showers will ensure good crops. Southern Saskatchewan—In the central district and in the south crops generally in good shape. In south-east wheat has suffered from heat to some extent. Late crops not very promising and yield will be light. In south-west heat damage runs from 1 to 50 per cent., and prospects are only fair. Rain badly needed throughout south. Manitoba District—Conditions generally continued favorable, although rain is necessary in some parts, and would be beneficial, especially to late crops. Wheat practically all headed out. Cutting of rye and barley will be general next week.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC.

Oats and barley show good promise, the former will be heavy in straw Corn looks well, but will be late in reaching maturity. Roots are making good growth. Hay, which is now being harvested, is of good quality, and the yield will be well above the average. Small fruits will be plentiful, with tree fruits at least an average crop.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO.

Fall wheat cutting is general. A good crop is assured and the yield is expected to be above the average and of good quality. Spring wheat, barley, and oats, all show improvement, and while straw is short, the yield is expected to be above the average. Corn is good and growing rapidly. Cherries are abundant, while grapes and peaches promise better than average. Winter apples are exceptionally good. Root crops doing well but need rain. Pastures are only fair.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

Haying now general under favorable weather conditions, and crop promises exceptionally well. Grass pastures excellent. Potatoes making good progress. Apples estimate now 1,500,000 barrels, but quality only fair.

PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBI

Hay a good crop, and practically all cut. Grain doing well, although grasshopper pest severe in dry belt. Roots, potatoes and other vegetables promise 100 per cent. crop. Early tomatoes now moving, yield about average. Hops good crop. Apple crop 50 per cent. of average, and consists largely of early varieties. Plums, early peaches, and yellow transparent apples are moving. Small fruits are over. Pasture is fair.

CROWS HELP FARMER.

Crows are helping the farmers of the middle west to get rid of army cutworms in their wheat. The crows are destroying these insects almost as fast as poisoning methods.

FINE HAY CROP AROUND WARSAW

Most Farmers Have a Great Deal Already in—Wheat Cut.

BERRIES PLENTIFUL.

WARSAW, July 30.—Huckleberry pickers who went back last week report good picking. Albert McQuaig was one of the first, and had fifteen pails.

A fowl buyer was around last week buying old hens. He gave fourteen to sixteen cents per pound.

Cheesemakers report a slight falling off in amount of milk received.

The rain was most welcome. Everything but hay was needing it badly. The hot, dry winds soon evaporate the moisture.

Some have nearly all their hay in. Others still have a lot to get in, especially on the Scotch Line. There is a very heavy crop. At the north most of the hay is in, and is a great crop.

At the south a few fields of rye and of wheat are cut. In all directions there will be Fall grain cut this week, and at least one field of barley. Those who have reported their fields are pleased with the crops.

Early in the season the potato bug did not show itself much, but lately the potato crops have been sprayed.

PRODUCTION COST EASILY LOWERED

Hog Costs Much Lower When Sow Produces Two Litters Yearly.

Hog production costs are lower when two litters of pigs are raised each year than when only one litter is raised, according to investigations made. Adding fall pigs to the production plan means a slight increase in feed and labor costs for each 100 pounds of pork produced. Other costs, however, are decreased chiefly because it is easier to save pigs at weaning time in the summer than in the spring. The economy of producing two litters a year is also shown in a lower necessary capital investment. Maintenance costs of the breeding herds are slightly higher when two litters are raised, largely because sows are on the farm for a longer time. On a monthly basis there is practically no difference.

REV. G. S. GERVAN LEAVES MILLBROOK

Popular Pastor Accepts Charge at Chalk River Soon.

MILLBROOK, July 29.—Rev. G. S. Gervan and family expect to leave for their new home at Chalk River, Ont., this week. During Mr. Gervan's four years' pastorate on this charge he has won many warm friends, who will sincerely regret his departure for another field of service. Mrs. Gervan, also has been a faithful worker, and the assistance which both she and Mr. Gervan have given with the musical part of the church services, as well as on special occasions, will be sadly missed.

The sale of household furniture, etc., held at Mr. Gervan's on Saturday, was fairly satisfactory as to attendance and prices obtained. The piano and car were not disposed of the amount offered not reaching a figure that could be accepted as high enough. H. Roddy was auctioneer.

Th best wishes of a large section of the community will follow Mr. and Mrs. Gervan and their family to their next place of residence.

The "Boneka" Bible Class, in connection with the Sunday School of the United Church, will hold its annual picnic on Thursday afternoon, July 30, on the lawn of Mrs. J. L. Byam's residence. Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard is teacher of the class, and Mrs. F. W. Smith, president.

Rev. M. G. B. and Mrs. Williams, who have been spending the past two weeks with friends in Toronto and Havelock, returned home on Saturday. During their holidays, Mr. and Mrs. Williams enjoyed a motor trip to Detroit, visiting Sarnia, Port Huron, London, and other places, en route.

Mrs. C. Millard of Oshawa is visiting her daughter, Mrs. V. C. Lambert.

Mr. and Mrs. Reeves of Toronto were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nattrass, their daughters, Misses Myrtle and Margaret, who have been holidaying with their aunt, returning with them to the city on Tuesday.

Rev. R. J. and Mrs. Stillwell of Douglas, South Georgia, are visiting her mother, Mrs. W. H. Byam. Mr. and Mrs. Stillwell came north by boat from Savannah as far as New York, enjoying a trip up the Hudson River as far as Albany, en route. They visited friends in Toronto, Uxbridge and Lindsay before coming to Millbrook. The heat in the South was so extreme, Mr. Stillwell's parishioners have given their rector leave of absence until September.

Misses Irene Worsley, Pearl Blatchford, Messrs. Thomas and Charles Worsley, and Arthur Gillies of Cameron, motored to town on Sunday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam.

Mr. A. Payne of Toronto is holidaying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Payne.

BERRIES PLENTIFUL.

Bring Low Price at Hastings—New Potatoes in Demand.

HASTINGS, July 27.—Red raspberries are plentiful in Hastings and district. At present they are selling at fifteen cents per box.

A resident of Hastings has picked the first ripe tomatoes from his vines last week.

New potatoes are very much in demand now at fifty and sixty cents per peck. A few old potatoes are still on the market at ten cents per peck.

Green peas are sold at 75 cents per eleven-quart basket, and young beets and carrots are priced at five cents per bunch.

ADD MINERALS TO GRAIN RATION

ALL FEED METHODS

Some valuable information relative to the importance of adding mineral matter to the usual grain rations of hogs has been secured at the Agassiz experimental farm during the last two winters.

The mineral mixture used was composed of ground bonemeal 8 lbs., ground charcoal 5 lbs., ground rock phosphate 5 lbs., and salt, 3 lbs., at a cost of 2.7 cents per pound. It was fed at the rate of 3 pounds to each 100 pounds of meal.

In order to test this material, a total of 84 pigs was divided into fourteen lots of six pigs each. In every ration where the mineral mixture was fed, increased gains were secured. This applied not only when the usual trough-feeding method was followed, but also when self-feeders were used and when the meal ration was supplemented with cooked potatoes. In one instance there was a profit of $7.85 in favor of the mineral ration.

An increase of six per cent of mineral matter proved unsatisfactory and gave similar results to a ration supplemented with two per cent of rock phosphate.

When other mineral matter is not available, ordinary wood or coal ashes thrown on the floor give good results.

The usual cause of tail picking is idleness due to close confinement, but apparently other factors connected with feeding are sometimes responsible.

Once the trouble has started the only way to overcome it is to watch the birds closely and as soon as a chick is picked, daub with crude creosote or some other tarry substance. If the creosote does not stop the bleeding place the chick by itself until the blood dries and then daub with creosote. The chicks should be given free range or at least roomy yards and special care taken to feed regularly. Keep the chicks active and keep close watch on them.

Devastating floods have followed the first rainy spell in a generation in Galicia and Silesia. All crops in the region of Cracow have been destroyed and many villages submerged.

Arsenate of lead is better than Paris green for killing insects on vegetables and vines, such as potato, cucumber and bean. It should be used at the rate of one teaspoonful to two gallons of water, well stirred, or one pound to 50 gallons of water.

CARE SHOULD BE EXERCISED IN INTRODUCING NEW QUEEN TO THE COLONY BY BEGINNERS

Best Method to Introduce a Laying Queen Which Obviates Loss.

USE CAGE.

A colony of bees may be requeened by giving it a ripe queen cell or introducing a virgin or laying queen, the latter, however, being the better method. When requeening with a cell or a virgin, several days of brood production are lost to the colony and there is always a danger of the young queen being lost on her mating flight, so that the requeening has to be done the second time. When a laying queen is introduced, however, no lost time in brood production occurs and if the new queens are reared at home, one has the opportunity of selecting the best for introduction to full colonies.

No matter whether cell, virgin or laying queen is used, the colony that is to be requeened must first be made queenless and must contain no active queen cells, otherwise the new queen will be killed. It is a good plan to allow the colony to be queenless for about twelve hours so that the bees fully realize their queenless condition before the new one is introduced. New queens will be accepted more readily during a honey flow. When there is no nectar available the bees should be fed a thin syrup for a few days at the time of introduction.

There are many methods of introducing new queens, but most of them ae not always reliable, especially when used by a beginner. The cage method is the most reliable and there are several ways of introducing by cages. Queens purchased from breeders are sent in mailing cages which can also be used as introduction cages. Usually each queen is accompanied with instructions for introducing, which, if followed carefully, are fairly reliabl. Another successful cage is the Miller candy cage. The queen, whether she comes in a mailing cage or is reared in the apiary, is placed in the cage with about half a dozen young bees from the colony to which she is to be introduced. The cage is then either suspended between the top bars of the frames or pushed in at the entrance and the bees release her through the candy hole. The best cage is the combination push-in and candy release. The queen is confined on the comb beneath the cage and by the time the bees release her she is laying.

PIGS NEED EXERCISE.

Plenty of Exercise and Clean Quarters Are Needed For Health.

Always remember that pigs must have plenty of exercise in order to maintain good health, says John W. Schwab in The Breeders' Gazette. Sleeping quarters must be kept reasonably clean to prevent skin troubles and disease. Feed troughs and floors should be cleaned several times a week. These precautions will repay the hogman several times with healthier pigs and faster and cheaper gains.

The best forage crops for pigs are alfalfa and the clovers. Rape and bluegrass are good. Good alfalfa is the kind of forage crops for hogs, and fortunate is the man who can grow it successfully. Under most cornbelt conditions excellent pastures are secured by seeding a mixture of alfalfa and red alsike and white clover and timothy. Bluegrass seed should be added to this mixture if a permanent pasture is wanted. Hogs relish a variety of grasses, just as well as they like and thrive on a variety of grains.

CHEAP METHOD TO HANDLE SOW

When Litter Has Been Weaned Sow Can be Easily Fed on Pasture.

NEED SOME GRAIN

After the sows have weaned their pigs and have been re-bred for fall litters, they can be easily and cheaply handled on pastures. While upon pasture they will consume about one pound of grain to each 100 pounds of live weight. Brood sows will manage to live upon pasture without grain, but it is a mistake to graze young pregnant sows on pasture without grain. Both the sows and their pigs will be stunted. How much grain and when the feed it requires good feeding judgment. Young sows and sows thin in flesh need more grain while on pasture than do mature sows and sows that are strong and in good flesh.

The kind of grain is not so important if the sows are in good pasture like alfalfa, clover or rape. Many successful hog men feed one-quarter to one-half pound of tankage daily to each brood sow before farrowing, in addition to the grain and pasture. The addition of tankage is more necessary if the sows are upon a pasture which is not leguminous.

About ten days to two weeks before the sows are due to farrow, they are removed from the pasture to the place where they will finally farrow. This places them under closer observation of the feeder and he can feed them especially prepared rations which are both nutritious and laxative. Such management makes for more vigorous pigs and it puts the sows in better condition for farrowing and for the care of their litter.

Now is the time to plan for hog pastures.

Canada's dollar was the first and only currency to be quoted at a premium over the U. S. dollar since the war?

Denmark, Switzerland and the Netherlands have learned the lesson that it pays to use purebred sires. As a result, note the average yearly milk production per cow with the United States and Canada, Netherlands, 7,585 pounds; Switzerland, 6,950 pounds; Denmark, 5,666 pounds; United States, 3,412 pounds, and Canada, 4,000 pounds.

A good time to cut the alfalfa is in the late afternoon because the sun will not wilt the leaves too quickly and cause them to shatter. Hay cut in the morning will not cure right because the leaves will be quickly wilted by the hot sun; the stems will also be full of juice; and the leaves will be dry and may blow away before the stems are ready to stack.

INJURED IN CAR WRECK

Three prominent Toronto University co-eds were injured when an automobile in which they were riding on the Malahat highway near Victoria B.C., plunged through a fence and somersaulted down an embankment. The injured girls are shown above. At the left is Miss Blanche Burton, daughter of C. L. Burton, vice-president and general manager of the Robert Simpson Co., Limited; at the upper right is her sister, Dorothy, who was hurled out of the car and but slightly injured, and at the lower right is Miss Jean Arnold, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Arnold. The girls are all members of the Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority and had been attending the annual convention of the sorority in Seattle, returning by way of Victoria.

WEDDING BELLS.

ROSE—BOYLER.

At the home of the officiating pastor Rev. N. R. McLeod was solemnized very quietly on Wednesday at 2 p.m., the marriage of Edna Elizabeth Boyler and Harold Edwin Rose, both of this city. The bride wore a gravel tricotine travelling suit with hat to match and carried Ophelia roses. The bridal pair was unattended.

After a brief motor trip this week the happy couple will take up residence in the city.

WOODS—ARMSTRONG.

MILLBROOK, July 30.—A pretty midsummer wedding took place at the manse, Springville, on Wednesday, July 15th, at high noon, Rev. G. Ingram Craw officiating, when Pearl Isobel, daughter of Mr. Arthur Armstrong, of Millbrook, became the bride of George Gilbert Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Woods, of Detroit, Mich.

The bride looked charming in an ensemble suit of green poiret twill with becoming hat to match.

Mrs. Thos. Armstrong, sister-in-law of the bride, acted as matron of honor, and the groomsman was Mr. Richard Wood, the bride's brother-in-law.

The groom's gift to the matron of honor was a casserole set in silver, and to the groomsman a tie pin.

Later in the evening the happy couple were surprised by a miscellaneous shower, over 80 of their friends and acquaintances gathering at the home and presenting them with many beautiful and appropriate gifts. Mr. Woods on behalf of his bride and himself, made a suitable reply, and the remainder of the evening was spent in music, dancing, and social converse, the hostess serving refreshments at the close.

The following day Mr. and Mrs. Woods left for a honeymoon trip up the lakes, and upon their return, after a brief visit with friends here, departed for Detroit, where they will make their future home.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens, and the boy friend whom I like dearly comes to my home to visit me. My sister confessed that she loves him too. He pays equal attention to both. Why is this?

Shall I forget him or follow my heart.

WEEPING WILLOW.

P.S.—Give me your advice. I am anxious.

WEEPING WILLOW: You two girls are altogether too sentimental, or else your "boy friend" is a flirt. Keep your eye on him. If he is flirting with the two of you—can him at once. Dont' hesitate a minute. He will make a lot of trouble for you and your sister both, and he won't be worth it.

On the other hand, if the poor chap is merely trying to enact the role of a friend of the house, "l'ami de la maison", as the French call it, you and your sister are taking an abnormal view of the situation and should turn your attention to yourselves. Why lavish the affection of two young hearts on a youth who apparently is keeping an even balance between the two of you?

I think it would be better for the lot of you to acquire a fourth member to this little family party, and make it another young man, to whom you and your sister can be equally friendly. A quartette is usually better than a trio, at a concert or elsewhere. The eternal triangle, interesting in the movies, is apt to be uncomfortable in real life. In this way, you can possibly find out which of the two of you your friend prefers. If he likes your sister best, you wouldn't want to hang on to him, would you? A divided affection is very difficult for everyone concerned. A man has a right to try and find out which one of two girls he prefers, but he never has the right to make two women unhappy, if they can help themselves.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl eighteen years of age and am in love with a young man. About a week ago I had a "date" with him, but he failed to come. He hasn't called or come to see me since. I have tried to seem cordial and friendly to him in every way and I don't see why he has done this.

What is the wisest thing to do?

SISTER BUGS.

SISTER BUGS: No matter what good reason prevented this young man from keeping his engagement with you, there is no excuse for his conduct. He should have telephoned you to explain, or, at the very least, written you afterward to apologize. I suggest that you avoid meeting him and make no effort to renew his friendship until he writes to explain his conduct.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

While attending a church wedding is it obligatory to attend the reception if it is held in the church parlor or in the home?

Is it permissible or, rather, good form to attend a wedding without your husband? BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: It is quite permissible to attend a wedding ceremony only, provided that you reply to the reception invitation, saying you are unable to attend. If you attend the ceremony without your husband (and this is quite proper), merely see that he, too, sends his regrets.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl. There is a young man whom I like better than the rest and I know he likes me. But there was a girl who was jealous and she told some untruths about me. They were supposed to be thing she had said about me. I believed her instead of him, and I became angry with him. Now I realize my mistake and wish to "make up." Please tell me what I should do.

PUZZLED.

PUZZLED: Don't you think you owe this young man an apology, my dear? Even though your conduct toward him, after these rumors had reached you, was not unladylike, you did not respect him as much as formerly. And I think that you should write him a little note explaining the situation and apologizing for your attitude. If he is at all interested in you, he will be glad to use your note to help renew your friendship. But if he does not reply, you need not write again or take the next step toward reconciliation.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of This Office.

WANT LADY LAWYERS.

Japanese Woman Suffrage Party to Introduce Bill in Diet.

TOKYO, June 29.— (Associated Press.)—Japanese women would be allowed to practice law in the courts of the empire if a measure sponsored by the Woman Suffrage Party receives the approval of the next Diet session. Discussing the proposed bill, which would put women barristers on the same plane as the male members of the bar, one of the leaders of the Woman Suffrage Party said:

"Women have proved to be good doctors and they are certainly better fitted to deal with crimes and home problems than men because they understand them better. The argument that women are too sentimental is ridiculous."

DECORATION PROBLEMS

By Annette Bradshaw

How many times have you looked at the dark corner in the dining room and wondered what on earth you could do to keep it from looking so bare?

The above picture shows how one woman solved this question. The room was rather long and narrow, with four windows along one side and one window in the end. There was hardly sufficient room for the conventional dining room furniture, so she shopped about a bit, and found odds and ends which when repainted made a most adorable ensemble.

The corner, however, remained bare. Then the happy thought came of a corner closet. This she had built by a carpenter after her own design. The bottom formed a quaint, three-cornered closet in which she kept the glassware. The top had three shelves and no door. These shelves were set in what might be called a frame, which gracefully curved from shelf to shelf, ending in a plain scroll effect at the top. Old fashioned brass hinges were used on the door of the lower closet.

The furniture was painted a soft gray, outlined in brilliant orange. The woodwork of the room followed the same color scheme. The windows had cream marquisette curtains, edged with ball-fringe, and the overdraperies were of gray cretonne figured with brilliant orange and green flowers.

The tiny gateleg table under the windows served as a serving table when state dinners were given.

Such a room is within the reach of even the most modest pocketbook, for clever fingers, a paint pot and patience can accomplish wonders.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A CHIC STREET COSTUME.

Madame undeniably possesses the trick of making all her clients appear extremely youthful.

"How do you do it?" I asked her one day, referring to her knack for taking ten years off a woman's age by the clothes she designed for her.

"Oh, I do believe in every woman looking as young as she can for as long as she can," Madame said. "The trouble is that too many women want to do this and go about it unwisely. They buy ridiculously youthful clothes, which only accentuate their ages."

This Black Flannel Jacket Is Worn with a Gray Skirt Striped in Black.

I thought perhaps Madame was thinking of a rather oldish client we both knew who loved to dress in the fashion of sweet sixteen unless Madame subdued her.

"Now take this street costume I'm designing for Miss Blake," Madame began. "Miss Blake is nearly thirty, but she actually appears eighteen in a simple, dignified and smart outfit of this kind."

I knew of Miss Blake's fondness for rather tailored, simple types, and I knew how well-dressed she always is.

"What are you making her now, Madame?" I asked with interest.

"A very good-looking suit for the street," Madame replied. "It's to be of flannel."

I looked over Madame's shoulder and saw that the suit was to exploit a contrast.

"Do tell me the color," I urged her.

"The little box coat is black flannel, unlined so it will be cool," Madame explained. "And the straight skirt is gray flannel finely striped with black."

"I can just see how snappy that will be, and how well Miss Blake will appear in it," was my comment.

Madame had made a very finished sketch. She remarked:

"I want her to have a little felt hat like this one, and she must wear a white tailored blouse and a little black satin bow tie."

"Several of the manikins have adopted men's evening ties for wear with their tailored blouses," I remarked. "You might suggest that idea to Miss Blake, for they do look extremely smart."

Madame thought it a good idea and said she was going to send out for one for Miss Blake to try.

WERE YOU THINKING OF BUYING ANYTHING?

The sales are with us. Sales, as a matter of fact, are always with us, but there seems to be a regular epidemic of them in town just now. The stores are sprouting out with new ideas in things to sell.

One can buy dress goods of many varieties at away below usual cost. Shoes at half price are waiting for feet to step into them. There are heavy fall coats of good material, going at a discount, and windows are full of lingerie in pretty shades of yellow and pink and blue, with lace edgings and frills. Stockings and gloves at low rates may be purchased any week end, and the men's haberdashers have also burst forth into marked down offerings. A lover of "jass" bow ties can get them for a song. Even teapots were on sale this week.

Pullovers in light silk and wool mixtures and in pure fibre silk weaves were an attraction in one store. They were very pretty, developed in tasteful patterns combining soft greys and blues, and also in black and white.

Another establishment had a fresh consignment of voile dresses that sold readily and were marked down to a ridiculously low figure. They were black and white combinations, with circular flares on either side of the skirt and cream lace tabs down the front, also bright little frocks in yellow and red and blue, one dress of red and white goods being particularly effective, with a very low waistline, a sash whose bow and ends appeared in the front, instead of the back, and the flare at the sides that is so much in evidence this year.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A very economical and timely recipe for making black currant jelly and jam from the same quantity of fruit comes from Miss M. Croft, 420 Rubidge street:

Jelly: Enough water is added to the fruit in the kettle to cover it evenly. Boil until fruit is tender. Then take off as much juice as possible with a cup, put juice through a fine sieve, add cup for cup of sugar and boil for twenty minutes.

Jam: To the residue of fruit left in the kettle add a quantity of water, adding sugar, pound for pound. Boil for fifteen minutes.

Let's Talk It Over

SHALL ANNIE GO BACK ON THE FREE HELP LIST?

Girls, let me present a man who is "not a slave driver." He says so himself. He hates to think of you slaving in offices when you ought to be gracing somebody's home. All you have to do is to give up your job, and "find a home with a married relative in return for your little duties about the house until some good man seeks you out as his helpmate."

"The Real Failure," says he, "Is not In Falling Short of a Man's Salary in Business, But in Failing to Find a Place in a Home."

Here—read his letter—and then for the luvva Pete, answer him. There are many things he needs to know. And he's more likely to believe 'em when they come from you than when they come from me.

I strongly disagree with you that women should receive the wages of men. It is only avarice for large wages that keeps women slaving in unhealthy offices instead of taking their places in homes. A girl can always find a home with a married relative in return for little duties about the house until some good man seeks her out as his helpmate. There she will retain her sweetness and womanliness.

My wife and I often wished we had someone in our home when our girls were little, and we would have made such a one entirely one of the family.

My mother's elder sister occupied such a place in my boyhood home, and I cannot think that she would have been better off chewing gum in some office downtown. I should think any woman would hesitate to proclaim herself so poor in natural resources and natural attraction that she was unable to follow her true destiny—wifehood. These giggling girls who flaunt their independence are really flaunting their hopelessness.

In my own office very recently we had an instance of the envious glances and open admiration accorded to the "engaged girl." When this young lady left to be married it created such a stir that the other girls did not get back to earth for a week. You can't tell me they weren't all wishing they were in her shoes. Every girl in business is a self-confessed failure as a woman. The real failure, if you will pardon me, is not in falling short of a man's salary in business, but in being there at all—in failing to find a place in the home.

NOT A SLAVE DRIVER

So woman's place is in the home, and if there's no kind-hearted male to offer her one she's to make tracks to her nearest married relative and proceed to make herself useful. You often "wished for someone" in your home when your children were little. I don't doubt it at all. Two or three would have even been better. You could have had Cousin Annie in the kitchen, Sister Hetty taking care of the kids, Aunt Lucy doing the washing and ironing and keeping up the mending.

We had a war to free the slaves, and we've had domestic revolutions aplenty to free the women of this country. Your silver-tongued oratory won't lure Cousin Annie or Sister Hetty or Aunt Lucy back to serfdom. Your stuff is too old.

You can no longer scare women out of business or hound them into marriage. Being An Old Maid Is No Longer A Confession Of Failure For a Woman, Any More Than Being a Bachelor Is a Confession of Failure for a Man.

Come on, gang; tell this nice man why we want wages with our work.

Jewels

NEW YORK, July 30 (UnitedPress.) —The vogue for ancestral jewelry threatens many of us with social extinction. Either we must cease boasting about our ancestors or we must produce some visible token of their rank in by-gone days.

Whether we have inherited an old cameo carving of hoop-skirted Grand mother entering the barn, a bracelet made of Grand-Aunt's hair combings or a brooch of real pearls matters not —so long as we have something old.

To illustrate what means of 'swank' these heirlooms attain us; a young Miss with frizzled hair and bedraggled frock sat in a subway. Suspended on a cord about her throat was an ivory miniature bearing the face of a distinguished looking woman in a Gibson-esque hairdress. Women near the girl gazed at the sad-eyed lady of the miniature, then, gazed again at the unkempt flapper. The eyes were the same! And the flapper no longer was a mere offspring of the side streets. She was a girl with a background.

Anything Old.

Anything in the jewelry line that is old is in vogue this year. One Fifth Avenue department store has weeded out all of its tawdry jewelry and replenished its counters with antique jewelry. There are heavy gold link chains with lockets suspended upon them, wide gold band bracelets with buckle clasps, hair chains and cameo brooches. Many old-fashioned brooches have been made into wide band bracelets, the brooch forming a center medallion on a band of oxidized silver or antique gold. Cameos in their original settings are quite the thing. One never thinks of placing the cameo in a modern setting these days. Gold lockets set with onyx are being worn on black ribbon cords. Heavy lockets and chains which come in several colors of gold are beyond price. Chokers of gold heads or of amber beads are more cherished than the modern chokers. In Grandmother's day the choker was worn to prevent goitre or to ward off rheumatism. Her choker is worn to-day with great pride.

The Ponies didn't stay behind long. Teepel got a hit on a Texas leaguer back of second, which Abbie Rose managed to reach with one hand, but could not hold. He stole second, and went to third on Halbert's grounder to Rose. Batstone's tap took a lucky hop over Hardill's head for a single to score Teepel. Johnston missed Somerville's grounder, scoring Batstone, who had stolen second, Cherry rolled to Johnston and Purvis got another lucky hit when his bounder took an extra hop over Helson. Scott struck out.

The Petes then evened it up. Legon beat out a scorcher, which Batstone was lucky to knock down, and took second when Batstone's useless throw was wild. He moved up when Ash grounded out, Purvis to Cairns, and scored on Hardill's sacrifice fly to Scott. Rose singled to left and Johnston rolled to Cairns.

The Ponies did nothing. Rose made a lightning fast play on Arniell's grounder over the second sack, throwing him out. Helson threw out Cairns and Teepel lifted to Ash.

In the third the Petes had two men stranded. Swanston rolled to Halbert and Heckman rolled to Cairns. Harrison walked and Helson singled, but Legon lifted a long foul fly which Scott pulled down after a long run. The Ponies got one in the same frame. Halbert got away with interference when he kicked at the ball on the base line just as Hardill was about to pick it up, and got a cheap hit, when it wasn't called. Batstone doubled to left, Halbert taking third. Somerville lifted to Johnston. Halbert scored when Cherry flied to Legon but a good play, Legon to Johnston to Helson caught Batstone trying to make third on the sacrifice.

The fourth was unprofitable. Halbert threw out Ash but booted Hardill's roller. Rose struck out and Johnston lifted to Halbert. For the Ponies, Purvis flied to Ash, and Scott and Arniell struck out.

Five Big Runs.

The fifth saw Mr. Cairns wend his way to the bench in favor of the ancient Teddy Gallagher. Cairns started by hitting Max Swanston a nasty crack on the knee. Heckman singled back of second and Johnston, who the astute Joe Daley had chosen as a runner, took second. Both scored when Hap Harrison tripled to deep left. Helson came through with another single back of short to score Harrison. Legon moved him up with a sacrifice and Ash [illegible] one over second for a [illegible] scored on Hardill's single to third and Hardill and Ash moved up on a wild pitch. That finished Cairns. Teddy Gallagher signalized his arrival on the scene by walking Rose to fill the bases. Johnston lifted one to Teepel and Ash galloped home. Swanston, up for the second time in the inning, rolled to Gallagher.

The Ponies retrieved one in their half. Gallagher went to second when Harrison tossed wild to first after a nice stop. Teepel raised one to Legon, but Halbert singled sharply through the box scoring Gallagher. Batstone and Somerville rolled to Rose and Hardill.

The Petes drew a blank in the sixth. Heckman popped to Halbert and Harrison flied out to Teepel, who made a splendid catch. Helson struck out.

The Ponies cut the lead to one run in their half. Cherry singled. Purvis also singled and both moved up when Heckman let the ball get away from him. Young batted for Scott and reached first while Helson was throwing out Cherry at the plate. Young stole second and followed Purvis across when Arniell singled to right. Gallagher's best was a fly to Hardill and Teepel struck out.

Legon rolled to Halbert in the seventh. Ash singled, but was forced by Hardill, Purvis to Halbert [illegible] and [illegible] rolled to Somerville.

The Game is Lost.

The game was lost in the Ponies' half. Batstone followed a charity to Halbert with a triple to left. Then came the debacle which resulted in Shiner Johnston being ejected because he objected too strenuously to Umpire Dell's weird decision. Batstone held third during the play but scored on Cherry's fly to Legon, who made a fine running catch. Purvis lifted to Heckman and Daley, batting for Young struck out, but the damage was done.

The Petes tried hard in the eighth and ninth, but met with no success. In the eighth Swanston struck out, Heckman was passed, Harrison raised one to Batstone and Helson forced Heckman. In the ninth Legon struck out, Ash grounded to Batstone and Hardill's fly was taken by Cherry.

In Kingston's eighth, Arniell rolled to Helson, Gallaghe r struck out, Teepel singled and Halbert was thrown out by Swanston on a tap in front of the plate.

FOUR RUN RALLY IN EIGHTH SAVED SENATORS' GAME

Athletics Hammered Detroit Pitchers While Slim Harriss Tanned Tigers.

YANKEES WIN.

Home Run in Twelfth Inning Decided Game With St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, July 29—Washington rallied in the eighth today, scored four runs and won from the White Sox, 8 to 6. Zachary started for Washington, but was hit hard, giving way to Marberry, who in turn retired in favor of Walter Johnson. Faber, who replaced Blankenship in the seventh, was the victim of the Senators' comeback. Score:

DELORO ERRORS PROVED COSTLY

Seven Boots Presented Point Anne With Five Unearned Runs.

SCORE WAS 7-5.

MARMORA, July 29 — Deloro failed to rob the league leaders of their unbeaten record at Point Anne on Monday, suffering defeat to the extent of 7-5. The visitors were superior in hitting but seven errors brought the Cement lads five unearned runs and a lead the Smelters could not wipe off. Excellent weather prevailed and a large number of spectators cheered on both teams. Lamoreaux pitched the entire game for Deloro. He was in excellent form, allowing only five hits, walking two and striking out two. "Sonny" Green, the best all round of the Point Anne crew also pitched for the [illegible] game. Smith touched him however for twelve hits. Sonny struck out ten though he allowed three walks. Deloro, as usual, made a good start with two walks and a single; they filled the bases. The next man, however, hit into a double play so that only one run was scored. They were kept from further scoring until the fifth when Boudreau hit a home run with two on bases. In the sixth, they had the bases full with only one out but Vachon was caught napping off second and a good scoring chance was thus lost. Deloro's last run came in the ninth through a single, a sacrifice and a double.

Point Anne failed to score until the third when they registered one run on an error. In the next innings "Soup" Goyer showed he was right there with a homer.

In the fifth, two errors and two hits yielded them three runs whilst in the seventh, the same factors brought two more. Quinn, the Deloro catcher, had an ideal day at bat with four hits and a walk to his credit. Regan and Boudreau also hit well. Umpires Woodley and Nurse of Belleville handled the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams. Score by innings:

KNIGHTS HURLER BLANKS KIWANIS

KENNEALY'S DAY.

The K. of C. emerged from last night's juvenile scramble clear victors by a margin of eight runs, resulting from ten ringing blows, which won for them the game and the series. Masterson held the Kiwanians baffled throughout the entire affray, striking out sixteen batters, in the fifth retiring the side by the fade-away route. Kiwanis' bat carriers showed an uncontrollable tendency to swing at the high ones and tamely allow the strikes to waft over the heart.

The two hits gathered from Masterson's delivery was an infield pop by Connors in the sixth and a vicious grounder hammered out by Nixon in the seventh, but neither batsman was [illegible] chance to reach second.

Kennealy, lead off man for the K. of C. troupe, had a perfect day, with two neat singles, two sacrifices and a walk, while Bannon had three hits, including a double, in four appearances, and Archambault two out of three.

The wallops from the Knights' maces were all hefty blows and placed where they would do most damage to the Kiwanis' defence. They got half their quota of runs in the fifth when, with three men on, Bannon smote the lively pill for two bags and was brought home in turn by Smith's single. Two more runs, registered in the sixth, resulted from two hits and two sacrifices.

BRITISH BOYS WIN WITHOUT TRAINING

English Athletes Eat a Lot and Also Drink Some, Too.

By HENRY L. FARREL
United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 29 (United Press).—Form shown by the British collegians in the recent meets of the Oxford-Cambridge team against the Yale-Harvard and Princeton-Cornell teams took another sock at the merit of the strict training systems employed in American colleges.

The British team lost to Yale and Harvard on a fluke and overwhelmed Princeton and Cornell a week later.

One Princeton man, after the meet, excused the defeat of the Americans with the plea—"Our fellows were not in condition."

"They have been away from college for a month, you know, and they have not trained as well as they do in college," he said.

The English collegians were also away from school for a month, they made the trip across the ocean, had only a few days to get ready and they seemed to be in good shape.

The answer is, perhaps, that the English boys, trained when they left the campus as they did when they were under the eyes of their tutors.

They smoked when they had the desire, they ate what they liked and they drank what they wanted—when they could get it.

The English boys had a great time on the boardwalk at Atlantic City and they started a new vogue for the cake-eaters with their blazing, blazer coats and the scarves wrapped around their necks.

The popular Lord "Davey" Burghley was the biggest since the Prince of Wales with New York society summering at the resort and he had to use some of his teammates for pinch-hitters at afternoon teas.

"We came over to compete, of course," is Lordship said, "but we Englishmen believe that social features are a part of high class athletics and that fun should be combined with athletics to get moral as well as physical reults from the games."

"We are too fond of your American boys to act like critics," he added, "but we get some amusement from the seriousness with which your boys take athletics. We ask ourselves as we have asked them—'What fun do you get out of your athletics? We should never compete if we had some lordly coach to tell us—'You may have a bowl of consomme, a lamb chop and a glass of milk for lunch.'

"We eat what we want when we want it. You know, we Englishmen eat a lot and we drink some. We have to do it to withstand the hardships of our climate. Perhaps if we trained on a diet like the American athletes do, we should become seriously ill. I belive the difference in climate may have a lot to do with it. If we become accustomed to the American climate I am quite sure that we could retain our form with the same mode of living. But regardless of reasons, I believe we have more fun out of athletics and get more out of it than your boys do."

Jack Moakley, vereran Cornell coach and the head coach of the 1920 American Olympic team, was sunning himself on the boardwalk on the morning of the Princeton-Corell meet. He was looking constantly at his watch and displaying every symptom of nervousness.

"My fellows promised to meet me here at ten o'clock and it's now eleven," he answered when asked what ailed him.

"That's the way they act," he said "when they get away from you."

As he was talking, several of the British athletes swaggered down the boardwalk and gave him a "Cheerio." They were garbed in striking attire that caused backward glances at them from the dudes around the beach.

"Those fellows have a lot bf fun," he said. "But they have to take fun with their athletics to keep them in the game. Our fellows are heart and soul in winning and they are quite content with having sport of it.

"I remember many years ago when I took a cross-country team to England. Although it was near Christmas time I noticed in every hamlet that the train passed there are bunches of little fellows, with bare knees and light coats, playing on the commons and kicking a ball around.

"Several days later, in London, I was talking to a prominent English athletic official, and I said to him:

"It is wonderful the way you can get your little fellows interested in outdoor work. Our boys, under the same conditions. would be working inside, playing basketball or something like that.

"He took me back somewhat when he said—'They deserve no particular praise for that, they would die if they didn't do it.'"

LEAFS WIN PAIR FROM BUFFALO MANION STARRED IN MOB SCENE

SIXTH FOR BIRDS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 29—Toronto scored a double victory over the Bisons here today, the first game by a score of 18 to 3, and the second 9 to 4. Thomas and Gibson hurled the visitors to the double triumph, the former limiting the Herd to four hits in the first game. Manion hit two homers in the first game and Styles duplicated in the second in addition to getting a double and single. Joe Kelly also hit for the circuit. Catcher Manion of the Toronto team, enraged at being hit by a pitched ball in the first game, threw the ball at Pitcher Jones and in returning to the bench for his glove after being ordered out of the game by Umpire Carpenter resented remarks from a spectator and went after him. Fans rushed to the field and a free-for-all fight between spectators and players followed, Manion finally being escorted from the field by the police. Scores:

CANADA'S GIRLS IN THE PINK FOR SATURDAY MEET

MAY VISIT FRANCE.

LONDON, July 30. — Canadian Press Cable. — We live for Saturday. We are simply here for Saturday's great match and we mean to win. All else on this little trip is being subordinated to that object."

This is the spirit which animates every member of the Canadian girl athletic party, Miss Alexandrine Gibb the manager, said last night.

The party was found in the comfortable lounge of the hotel Vanderbilt at Kensington. Here they found satisfaction in an after-dinner tete a tete, enthusiastically discussing the "simply wonderful time" they are having in London.

Though mostly hidden by cushions on divans and easy chairs, the clear tinkle of their laughter was at once an indication that they were in perfect trim physically and mentally. "They are good as gold," said Miss Gibb, and with the exception of Miss Josie Dyment (who has a sore toe,) all are absolutely fit. From the time that the girls landed at Liverpool Friday, when they were met by representatives of the English Women's Athletic Association, a representative of the Canadian High Commissioner, and a host of newspapermen and photographers, they have been continually bombarded with kindness and hospitality.

May Visit France.

The girl athletes have found the change in the weather from a heat wave to chilly wet conditions rather trying but by practising daily on the soggy track at Stamford bridge hope to get acclimatized by Saturday.

There is a suggestion that they visit France next week and play the French girl's basketball team. The Canadians had a tryout in basketball at Battersea Saturday when they were congratulated upon their wonderful dexterity, particularly in their throwing. It is noteworthy that, when the British teams which hitherto have had men managers, found the Canadians had a lady manager, they immediately decided to have a lady manager in the future. Miss Gibb added that one of the greatest features so far had been the success of the visit from a social standpoint.

The Canadian girls are simply charmed. They were entertained to lunch yesterday at the Piccadilly by Lord Decies.

CONNAUGHT TROPHY COMES EAST AGAIN

After a Year's Sojourn at the Coast and Another on the Prairie.

WINNIPEG, July 30. —(Canadian Press).— After spending a year at the coast and a year on Prairies, the Co[illegible] emblematic [illegible] highest soccer honors of the Dominion will go back to its old resting place in the East. Toronto Ulster United, champions of the East, attained their objective by defeating Nanaimo, Western Canada's hopes in third games of series here, last evening by the score of 2 to 0. In their first two previous meetings the teams failed to come to decisions, battling to draws on both occasions. It was a rather disappointing game for a final and the match lacked the frills and thrills of Monday's tilt.

CRICKET NOTES

The Royal Oak C. C. will hold a full practice tonight at the Exhibition grounds at 6.00, in preparation for the match with the Peterboro C.C. at the same place on Saturday afternoon next. All players requested to turn out.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The nearest parallel for the golf swing known to the average player is the action of swinging an axe. Now nearly every golfer understands just what he would do with an axe in order to sink the blade into a log or a tree. If he sought to make the blade bite deeply into a tree he certainly would not go about it by swinging the axe away back over his shoulders until the head of it dipped away down toward the ground. Yet for some strange reason that is exactly what he will do with a golf club. The golf club and the axe are swung largely in the same way, for about the same hitting effect, but the golf club is so much lighter that the average player fails to feel its weight in his fingers. Make the fingers feel the weight of the clubhead, then swing the weight that rests against the fingers rather than trying to swing the club as a whole.

In the grip for the putting stroke the shaft runs more up and down through the hand, rather than across the hand. This same grip, with the left wrist up, is a good one for short-run-up approaches to the pin. By the wrist up I mean that the wrist bows upward as against being depressed down. The sketch shows the relative position of left hand and shaft. [illegible] wrist [illegible] were depressed while the shaft is held this way, the blade of the club would have to move upward away from the ground. This grip of the shaft yields a true pendulum swing of the mashie blade or approach iron for the run up shot and lets the blade go directly through the ball. So many players simply jab the ball or at best slap it for these shots, and the awkwardness they feel in trying to get the blade entirely through the ball may be due to an incorrect position of the left wrist.

NEW DINING CAR HAS LATE FEATURES

Santa Fe Coach Is Restaurant on Wheels, Says Report.

The Santa Fe Railway announces a successful trial trip on the California Limited, from Chicago to Los Angeles and back, of its latest improved all-steel dining car and club-lounge car, Harvey system, Chicago, and embodying radical innovations. The architectural and decorative treatment is the work of David Adler, a prominent Chicago architect. The trial trip indicates that more passengers can be comfortably served at meals and in less time than under the usual methods, without any standing in aisles waiting for a seat.

Letters patent have been taken out on the diner, which is actually a restaurant on wheels, with devices for much quicker service. The last dining car patent was granted in 1865 to the late George M. Pullman.

Except for larger cars and better equipment, the diner ordinarily in use on American railways is about what it was fifty years ago. Aisle congestion, crowding in pantry and kitchen and unavoidable delays in serving patrons have baffled the cleverest managers. Only a radical rearrangement of the interior space offered any hope for permanent improvement. Briefly this is what the newest Santa Fe-Fred Harvey Car, in connection with the club-lounge car, has done. It bids fair to revolutionize that branch of railroading and improve the already high standard of railway meals on wheels.

These two cars are operated together and located at the forward end of the train. The new diner has only one public entrance, through the reception room in the club-lounge car, which, being next to and behind the dining car, is furnished with easy chairs, available for use in case of any delay in securing satisfactory seats at tables. Besides the customary barber shop, bath and lounge, the club-lounge car has a small soda fountain, likewise facilities for sale of candy, cigars and magazines. Sleeping quarters and private bath for the crew of the diner are in this car.

The dining car seats forty-two persons instead of the customary thirty or thirty-six. The kitchen and pantry go all the way across, from side to side. An employee in the checking station acts both as checker and cashier, enabling the steward to give his entire attention to guests. The waiters receive their silver, glassware ,salads, etc., direct from the pantryman, instead of doing that work themselves. The entire crew of waiters can occupy the pantry at one time, thus facilitating service. Kitchen and pantry are well ventilated, all excessive heat thereby being eliminated. Automatic dishwashing, sterilizing and egg boiling apparatus are notable features.

The Santa Fe plans to build more dining and club-lounge cars of this new type, gradually replacing models. The station dining room service for certain trains will not be changed.

MANY CREWS FOR CANADIAN HENLEY

Greatest Number of Oarsmen Ever Entered Started To-day.

ST. CATHARINES, July 30. — (Canadian Press).— Twenty five crews from various clubs in Philadelphia arrived here to-day in time for a spin on the Royal Canadian Henley course this morning before the opening of the C. A. A. O. regatta, this afternoon.

This completes th greatest assembly of oarsmen wet gatheredd here. All American crews will compete in the senior doubles, the first two preliminary heats of which will be rowed this afternoon.

If you can't do anything else for your country you can SMILE.

ST. PETER'S SOCIAL WAS BIG OCCASION

Rev. P. Butler Ably Managed All Arrangements With Splendid Helpers.

There was a splendid attendance last evening at the social held under the auspices of St. Peter's Parish, on the grounds of St. Peter's School, Reid Street, illuminated with electric lights for the occasion. The arrangements were carried out under the supervision of Rev. P. Butler, and were well looked after in every instance. A large number of people partook of an excellent supper of home-made cooking, served at long tables decorated with flowers. Mrs. M. Connors, Mrs. T. Lane and Miss M. Croft were in charge of the supper, assisted by a corps of willing helpers.

The Country Store did a rushing business all evening, with Messrs. T. DeForge and Frank Lynch disposing of the fine array of articles, including fancy and useful things of many varieties. Mrs. J. A. Sharpe acted as convenor, assisted by Mrs. J. McCarthy, Mrs. W. O'Brien, Miss Margaret Heffernan and Miss Berenice Giroux.

Miss Gladys Costello and Miss Mildred McDonald had the home-made candy booth, where delicious candies were sold from ornamental little paper baskets and boxes. This booth was decorated prettily with yellow and white paper streamers and festoons, and the booth supervised by the Bishop's Bible Study Class, with Miss Mamie L. McCarthy as convenor, was also arranged with orange and white paper.

Ice cream, hot dogs, and soft drinks were sold here, and at the booth in charge of Messrs. W. C. Bennett and Robert Flint and Mrs. Bennett, ice cream, soft drinks and sigars were sold.

Miss Annie Simons was in charge of the very popular fish pond, with the Misses Hannah Fraser, Josie Lynch and Agnes Burns, and Jimmie White as assistants.

Messrs. Ralph McGarrell and Jack Primeau had the dart game counter, and Jack Morency was in charge of the kill the cat" booth, where smiling cloth tabbies formed the targets for more or less lucky shots.

The band of the Peterboro Rangers gave an excellent musical programme during the evening.

LAMBTON COURSE HAS RECORD FIELD

165 Amateurs and Pros. From Canada and States Start Round.

TORONTO, July 30. — Canadian Press. — Under threatening weather conditions a record field, both in quality and quantity, started out over the course of the Lambton Golf Club today, in the first day's 18-hole qualifying round for the Canadian open golf championship.

More than 50 players from the United States are entered, making the retention of the championship in the United States for the seventh consecutive year a strong possibility. The field numbers 165 in all, including the leading professionals of Eastern Canada and amateurs of Quebec and Ontario; and practically all the leading golfers of the United States.

OLD MASTER FOUND?

Portrait Found of Charles I May Be Original By Vandyck.

OSLO, July 30. — Associated Press —Art circles here are greatly interested in the discovery of a painting which experts are inclined to believe to be a portrait by Vandyck of King Charles I. of England.

The picture was purchased by an Oslo solicitor recently. It depicts the King at about the age of 35, dressed in a suit of dark velvet with a broad collar of fine lace and with hair falling in long curls over his shoulders.

The owner has had photographic copies made and despatched them to every famous gallery in Europe where contemporary portraits of King Charles I. are known to be. Experts at these galleries are reported to have unanimously pronounced that the original is not a copy of any known portrait of the king.

AT THE ROYAL

FLYING HOOFS, THRILLING WESTERN AT ROYAL.

That mysterious assassin and highwayman, the Raven, had eluded posses repeatedly. His [illegible]ring action had inspired the entire countryside. Some of the inhabitants suspected the sheriff's brother. The hands that accused seemed to grow in numbers from day to day.

The sheriff could not be moved despite their threats. Finally, he astounded the entire county by publicly proclaiming that he alone was responsible . . . that he was the criminal. His brother already in custody was immediately released.

The trial was brief. The verdict was "death by hanging."

Life again moved lazily about this western community until the day set for the sheriff's execution. Then, something that shook the county from end to end, resulted.

And it all happened just as the hangman's noose was being fastened.....and one of the town's leading citizens. ....

NEW ACTION STORIES PLAYING AT ROYAL.

Unscrupulous determination to deprive a man of land on which is buried a treasure of fabulous value motivates one set of characters in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture, the first episode of which is playing at the ROYAL theatre. The victim of this plot is a man who for fifteen years has been a fugitive from justice.

In a secret canyon this man and his daughter and a few trusted retainers make their home. One day a disabled airplane, its pilot wounded, makes a landing in the canyon, and while the daughter nurses the pilot back to health, love came to them both.

Eileen Sedgwick has the part of the daughter, and Jack Daugherty, as the forest ranger whose airplane acident made him aware of the existence of the hiding place, in costarred with her. Others in the cast are Bud Osborne, William Welsh, Charles Avery, Al Wilson, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy.

The story is running in the Examiner.

AT THE REGENT

CLAIRE WINDSOR SCORES IN "DENIAL."

Metro-Colwyn Mayer Favorite Superb in Interesting Film.

"The Denial," which opened at the Regent Theatre today, brings a story of unusualness, a background of great interest, and an atmosphere that is entirely new to the screen.

There is a prologue, an epilogue and a main story. The two former are laid in the present day period while the latter is placed in that time just around the corner usually called "yesterday," but actually the year 1897. Two characters go through both periods, as the connecting links between the past and the present.

Roosevelt as Colonel.

Two enormous thrills are brought out in the appearance of a man impersonating Roosevelt. The actor looks so much like the Colonel that he creates a vivid impression of the Spanish-American war. The other surprise is Claire Windsor as a middle-aged woman.

In the prologue we see Miss Windsor as a gray haired matron, the mother of a full-grown girl. In the main part of the story she is the heroine of eighteen. But it is the older role in which Miss Windsor definitely establishes herself as a great emotional actress. With every semblance of her real beauty torn from her, she has nothing to depend upon but real ability, and she attains the height with great ease.

NEILAN PICTURE FILMED ABROAD

"The Sporting Venus" Exteriors Made in Scotland, England and France

The real atmosphere of Scotland, London, Deauville and Paris is contained in Marshall Neilan's picturization of "The Sporting Venus", which come to the Capitol Theartre today.

At least it is as real as Neilan could make it, for he packed up his company, camermen, actors and all, and went to thos very spots to film scenes for his production.

A real castle in Scotland—Craigloch, by name—the races at Epsom Downs, the smart resort of Deauville, and various street scenes in London and Paris were transferred to celluloid on Neilan's "longest location trip."

Neilan and the executives of Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer decided to take advantage of the fact that the director was forced to go to London for an operation by a noted surgeon there and so was able to film the exteriors for his picture right on the spot.

So accompanying him on the trip were his wife, Blanche Sweet, who plays the titular character of the "sporting venus"; Lew Cody, who plays a serio-comic "heavy", several other players, and Neilan's own camerman.

The story of "The Sporting Venus" is an odd mixture of light comedy and melodrama, written by Gerald Beaumont, and adapted by Tom Geraghty. Ronald Colman plays opposite Miss Sweet, and the supporting cast includes Kate Price, Josephine Crowell, Edward Martindel, Hank Mann and others.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Drop In Smelters Was Continued On Market

TORONTO, July 30. —(Canadian Press).— Trading continued on a broad scale on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Consolidated Smelters continued its decline until it sold as low as 102, from which it recovered, however, to 104 3-8 at noon. A net loss of 1 7-8. Transactions in Smelters amounted to almost 1800 shares. F. N. Burt was prominent but 3-4 lower at 56, while British Columbia Fishing sold up 1 3-4 to 43 3-4. Abitibi on one sale registered a gain of 1 1-4 at 67 1-4. Atlantic Sugar was easier but Dominion Stores, in fairly active dealing, advanced 3-4 at 41. Winnipeg softened a quarter at 52.

Trading Was Light And Mining Stocks Declined

TORONTO, July 30. — Canadian Press. — With the volume of trading light the market took an easier turn on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, some stocks declining substantially. Among these Vipond advanced 2 points to 119. Teck Hughes was down 2 at 170, and Castle Trethewey 2 at 89. Lorrain the leader sold down 3-8, and Tough Oakes was 1½ lower. Barry Hollinger eased 2 and Kenora 5-8.

Rapid Downward Swing In Wheat Prices To-day

Chicago, July —Canadian Press —With favorable weather over the spring crop territory, and with harvesting in rapid progress, the wheat market took an early swing downward to-day. A decline in Liverpool quotations was a further bearish influence. Besides nothing was heard of any important new export business. Chicago opening prices unchanged to 1 3-8 lower. September 1.49 3-8 to 1.51, and December 1.51 to 1.51½ were followed by a material set back all around. September touching 1.49 1-4 and December $1.50 3-8.

Increased bookings of corn and oats to arrive helped to lower prices for both cereals. After opening at 1-8c to ¼c decline, September $1.04 3-4 to $1.05 1-2 the corn market underwent a decided further drop. Oats started at 1-8 to 5-8 lower, September 42 3-4 to 42 7-8 and later continued to sag. Foreign selling of October lard had a bearish effect on the provision market.

Quiet Day In New York With Further Selling

NEW YORK, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Further selling in Wall Street by professional traders inspired by speculative belief that recent reactions had not gone far enough, turned the course of prices downward again before midday. Early gains in several of the popular issues such as American Can and General Electric were materially reduced or wiped out. Famous Players, Fleischmann, Great Western Sugar and Crex Carpet fell back 2 or more points below last night's final quotations, while Marland Oil, Southern Pacific, United Cigar, Woolworth and several others yielded a point or more. Bullish operations persisted, however, in several sections of the list. Ward Baking B rose two points to a new record top at 73 3-4, and Spicer Manufacturing and Brown Shoe attained new peak prices at 28 1-4 and 116 respectively. Trading was relatively quiet, sales in the first hour falling below 400,000 shares. Call money opened unchanged at 4 per cent.

LADIES' AID MET.

Omemee United Church Workers Help to Meet Church Debt.

OMEMEE, July 30. — The Ladies Aid Society of the United Church held their regular monthly meeting last week in the Sunday school room with a fair attendance.

The treasurer's report was given, showing a balance of $233.77. Of this sum $100 was voted to meet the debt on the church shed and $50 to be given to the trustee board. Other items of business transacted were making arrangements for re-painting the parsonage fence and the erection of a church sign on the lawn. This sign is to bear the new name of the United Church, the name of the resident pastor, the hours of church services, Sunday school and Young People's League.

Mrs. S. T. Wilson and Mrs. E. Bradburn were appointed as a flower committee for the month of August and Mrs. H. Lamb, Mrs. L. A. Mahood and Miss Lila Parsons for the month of September.

A resolution was passed that a letter of thanks be sent to the Ladies Aid of Queen street church, Lindsay, for the use of their cutlery on July 13th.

The secretary was instructed to send letters of condolence to some of the bereaved members.

Owing to the fact that there will be little business of importance to transact during the next month, it was decided to cancel the August meeting.

MIRTHFUL MOVIES.

Good Comedy Has 75 Laughs—Grin Every 75 Feet.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 27. — (Associated Press.)— The average two-reel comedy contains 75 laughs and the picture that audiences will talk about afterwards has a mirth provoking incident at approximately every 20 feet of film, Del Lord, director, declared recently after a check of comedies at several theatres.

The sustained laugh is the kind for which comedy directors strive. This laugh begins early in the picture. It starts with a low chuckle and swells to a roar of laughter.

A situation that seldom fails to elicit a burst of merriment is when the comedian thinks he is safe after being pursued by the villain only to find that he isn't, Lord said.

PLAN THAMES AIRPORT.

New Development in Service Between England and the Continent.

LONDON, July 29.—(Associated Press.) — A new development in air service between the continent and London is being planned for the near future. Experiments are being carried out with a view to the establishment of an airport on the river Thames at Hammersmith, just below Putney, where French amphibian planes will alight and set down passengers on a specially constructed landing stage. The authorities stipulate that such landings shall occur before nine o'clock in the morning so that dislocation of river traffic may be avoided.

KILLED WHEN BIG TANK EXPLODED

Ingersoll Man Was Drilling Hole With Gasoline Torch.

WAS NEW TANK.

INGERSOLL, July 30 (Canadian Press).—While drilling an opening into a six thousand gallon gasoline tank this morning, Andrew Thurlow, well known mechanic of this town, met a violent death. The tank, a new one, located on the river flats, had never been used. Thurlow was engaged in opening a two-inch hole, using a gasoline torch. With the first small opening there was a terrific explosion heard all over town and Thurlow was blown some thirty or forty feet.

He died a few minutes after the accident. The owner of the tank states that no gas had been put in the tank since its arrival in Ingersall, and it is a mystery just what caused the explosion.

TOWARDS ACCORD.

Turkey-Bulgaria Negotiations Nearing Solution of Difficult Problems.

ANGORA, July 30. — Associated Press. — Negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey looking towards the adjustment of several controversial questions, have made such progress that a complete understanding is expected. Simeon Radeff the Bulgarian representative, recent ylstated: "The negotiations beween Bulgaria and Turkey have aken a direction toward final agreement. We shall soon reach an understanding on moot points."

The negotiators have agreed that Turkish citizens who were living in Bulgaria before the Bulgar-Turkish war and now are living in Angora, will be free, in tch course of the next three years, to dispose of their imovable property in Bulgaria, and transfer their allegiance to Turkey. A similar accord was reached relative to Bulgarian citizens who are living in Turkey.

A decision has been reached affecting Turks who migrated from Bulgaria and Bulgarains who left Turkey after the Balkan war. The negotiators have agreed that those persons may not return to the countries from which they migrated.

FAVOR STREAM LINES.

Boating Clubs Like New Design in Racing Craft.

LONDON, July 30 (Associated Press).—Despite the fact that the Oxford University boat crew lost the annual university boat race this and last year in a "streamline" shell designed by Dr. Bourne, there has been a growing demand for this kind of racing craft from the builders at Putney.

American, Continental and British boating clubs have placed a number of orders for "streamline" shells to carry fours and eights, thus testifying to the growing favor and popularity of this kind of racing craft.

KILLED WHEN BIG TANK EXPLODED

Ingersoll Man Was Drilling Hole With Gasoline Torch.

WAS NEW TANK.

INGERSOLL, July 30 (Canadian Press).—While drilling an opening into a six thousand gallon gasoline tank this morning, Andrew Thurlow, well known mechanic of this town, met a violent death. The tank, a new one, located on the river flats, had never been used. Thurlow was engaged in opening a two-inch hole, using a gasoline torch. With the first small opening there was a terrific explosion heard all over town and Thurlow was blown some thirty or forty feet.

He died a few minutes after the accident. The owner of the tank states that no gas had been put in the tank since its arrival in Ingersall, and it is a mystery just what caused the explosion.

TOWARDS ACCORD.

Turkey-Bulgaria Negotiations Nearing Solution of Difficult Problems.

ANGORA, July 30. — Associated Press. — Negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey looking towards the adjustment of several controversial questions, have made such progress that a complete understanding is expected. Simeon Radeff the Bulgarian representative, recent ylstated: "The negotiations beween Bulgaria and Turkey have aken a direction toward final agreement. We shall soon reach an understanding on moot points."

The negotiators have agreed that Turkish citizens who were living in Bulgaria before the Bulgar-Turkish war and now are living in Angora, will be free, in tch course of the next three years, to dispose of their imovable property in Bulgaria, and transfer their allegiance to Turkey. A similar accord was reached relative to Bulgarian citizens who are living in Turkey.

A decision has been reached affecting Turks who migrated from Bulgaria and Bulgarains who left Turkey after the Balkan war. The negotiators have agreed that those persons may not return to the countries from which they migrated.

CHICAGO JURY QUICKLY RETURNS TRUE BILLS OF MURDER AGAINST BANDITS WHO RAIDED BIG HOTEL

Two Gunmen and Clerk of Hotel Killed in Battle for Payroll.

TWO PRISONERS

Running Fight Through Crowded Corridors and Along "Gold Coast."

CHICAGO, July 31.— Working with express speed, the county grand jury met in extraordinary session yesterday and returned true bills against Jack Wilson, alias Woods, and J. W. Holmes, both of Texas, and William Mullenback, of New York, in connection with the spectacular raid on the fashionable Drake hotel late Wednesday. They are charged with the murder of Frank B. Rodkey, clerk at the hotel.

Mullenback is still at large, while Wilson and Holmes have confessed to participating in the robbery.

Witnesses told the grand jury that Holmes fired the fatal shots and not Ted (Texas Kid) Court, full-blooded Cherokee Indian. Court was shot dead by a policeman as he ran from the hotel, and the fifth bandit, Eric Nelson, was killed in an exchange of shots after a running battle through the streets of fashionable north side district.

Holmes was captured in the hotel kitchen, and Wilson was arrested when he applied to a hospital for treatment. One of his fingers was shot off when he stumbled over the shotgun he used in the hold-up.

Considerable of the loot has been recovered, police said. Hotel officials estimated the loss at between $77,000 and $10,000.

Triple Hanging.

State's Attorney Crowe promised triple hanging as an object lesson to criminals whose bold depredations have given Chicago the name of "the crime capital of the world."

"We'll get Mullenback within 24 hours," Crowe said. "Then we will rush the case to trial while the crime is still fresh in the public mind and send the three to the gallows. This dastardly act is the climax to the greatest era of crime in the history of the city."

Indian's Act.

CHICAGO, July 31. — Drunk with moonshine, enraged, cursing and befuddled, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian fired a shotgun through a door in the offices of the magnificent Drake hotel here. The door had been slammed in his face by a courageous girl in the clerical office.

This was the beginning of the end of one of the most amazing hold-ups in Chicago's current crime history. Five bandits participated.

Yesterday, James Woods, leader of the five desperadoes, was taken into custody and confessed. He was arrested when he walked into a hospital and asked to be treated for bullet wounds.

Frank Radkey, clerk in the hotel office, is dead, shot down at his desk by the leering, enraged Indian.

The Indian, Tex Ted Court, is dead, killed by a policeman while attempting to start an auto in front of the hostelry with one hand as he fired with the other.

Neal Nelson, a former employee of the hotel, and one of the bandit gang, was killed by a policeman after a gun battle, during which he, in a taxicab with a gun at the chauffeur's head, exchanged shots with pursuing police officers along the extensive stretches of Chicago's fashionable north side boulevard system.

Of the three remaining bandits, two were captured, Woods Thursday morning and another late Wednesday, who gave his name as Jack, Joe and Slim Holmes. He confessed to his part in the crime, declaring that he and Court were steeped in moonshine by three Chicago gunmen and participated, not knowing what they were doing. The fifth gunman is at large and a widespread search is under way for him. Approximately $3,000 believed to have been the hotel loot of the bandits, has not been recovered.

Unprecedented Daring.

Never in the history of Chicago's great hotels has such daring been manifested as that shown by the five men, emboldened by moonshine, when they penetrated the fashionable hostelry, in the heart of one of Chicago's most frequented sections, amidst vigilant police protection

Oration By Bryan Made Over The Body Of Friend

The following is the text of a funeral oration delivered by William Jennings Bryan over the body of a friend:

"If the Father deigns to touch with divine power the cold and pulseless heart of the buried acorn, and make it burst forth from its prison walls, will He leave neglected the soul of man who is made in the image of his Creator?

"If He gives to the rose bush whose withered blossom floats upon the breeze, the sweet assurance of another springtime, will He withhold the words of hope from the sons of man, when the frosts of winter come?

"If matter, mute and inanimate, though changed by the force of nature into a multitude of forms, can never die, will the imperial spirit of man suffer annihilation after a brief sojourn like a royal guest, to this tenement of clay?

"Rather, let us believe that He, who in His apparent prodigality, wastes not the raindrop, the blade of grass or the evening's sighing zephyr, but makes them all to carry out His eternal plan, has given immortality to the mortal and gathered to Himself the generous spirit of our friend. Then, let us look up to him and say:

"Thy day has come, not gone;
Thy sun has risen, not set;
Thy life is now beyond the reach of change or death.
Oh, gentle soul, hail and farewell."

KEARNEY REMANDED FOR TRIAL AFTER PRELIMINARY HEARING

Charged With Robbery With Violence of Taxi Driver.

COURT CROWDED.

No Bail Applied For—Judge Huycke to Hear the Case.

"Standing room only," was a term applicable this morning to the public section of the Police Court, when Harry Kearney was brought up on remand before Magistrate O. A. Langley, on a charge of robbery with violence. After a short preliminary hearing Kearney was committed for trial and will appear at the next sitting of a court having competent jurisdiction.

Patrick Allen, who still bore traces of injuries on his head, told his story. About 6.30, in the evening, of July 22, he got a phone call, asking him to go to the corner of Perry and Aylmer, where he picked up a "Mr. Kearney."

Who was this Mr. Kearney?"

"That was him right there," he said indicating the prisoner.

Out in the gravel road, he saw Kearney looking out the back window. Kearney then hit him over the head with a club—a pipe rolled up in paper. Having the thought in his mind, that his assailant was after money, witness handed over 5 or 7 dollars. Kearney asked, "Is that all you have got?"

When he first picked up Kearney, the latter gave the name of Jack Fitzgerald, but before he left Allen, he said, he had given the wrong name.

J. A. O'Brien, counsel for Kearney, consented to committal for trial

It is understood that Kearney will be tried by Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

No application for bail was put forward.

Casting From Peterborough Ruins Bridge at Merritton

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 31. — Canadian Press. — A huge casting from Peterboro for the Hydro power station at Queenston, on a flat car, in the centre of a Canadian National freight train, collided with the overhead bridge at Merriton, at one a.m. this morning, tearing out the flooring of the bridge, and damaging the underpinning. The casting itself was hurled from its place to the next car to the rear, badly smashing three new cars consigned for South Africa. The accident caused some interference with street traffic, but it did not hamper the railway service.

PRIESTS HEAD WAR IN TIBET

Monks Are Resentful of Western Ideas Which Threaten Power.

FIGHT PROGRESSIVES.

LONDON, July 31. — Canadian Press. — A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Calcutta, reports that civil war has broken out in Tibet in consequence of a bitter feud between the military and progressive parties, and the conservative, or 'priests' party,' which includes virtually the entire "Lamaist Hierarchy."

The correspondent describes the struggle as one between "modernism and Lamaist reaction," headed by the celebrated fighting monks centred at the monastery stronghold at Sera and Drapung, who are fanatically resentful of the western innovations which threaten their power.

RAISE DUTY ON PAPER.

India Tariff Board Says Industy Can't Survive Without Protection.

SIMLE, India, July 31. — (Canadian Press). — The report of the tariff board appointed to enquire into the application of papers and paper pulp industries for protection expresses the opinion that these industries are unlikely to survive without protection. The board recommends that the existing 15 per cent advalorem duty on all sorts of writing and printing paper, other than newsprint, be changed to a specific duty of one penny per pound.

PREFERS POLAR ADVENTURES TO NEW YORK CITY

Amunsden's Young Companion Arrives at Halifax on Home Journey.

TO TRY AGAIN

Lincoln Ellsworth Says Dirigible Needed for Long Arctic Flight.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 31.—(By Canadian Press).— Lincoln Ellsworth, of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Nort Pole Expedition prefers the ice-floes of the Arctic to New York.

"Are you going back" he was asked here Thursday when he arrived on the Steamer Frederick VIII from Oslo.

"I hope to: I would rather be going there now than to New York."

Every member of the expedition was looking forward to going north again, Mr. Ellsworth said. Captain Raold Amundsen had not made, he thought, definite plans, but he was convinced that the Norwegian explorer would continue his work. He did not think that any of the late expedition would join that planned by Germany by airship under Dr. Eckner in 1927.

An airship, however, was what the late expedition would like to have for another try for the pole. A machine capable of sustained flight was needed. He did not think the present plane was a practicable machine for the attempt.

No Land at Pole.

The North Pole in the opinion of the U.S. explorer is covered by a sea of ice and has no land. From the height at which the planes were flying the expedition could not see within eighty miles of the pole and there was nothing but flowing ice.

Mr. Ellsworth had with him photographs and to a group of Canadian Air Force fliers and others who met him here he showed the planes as they were caught in the slowly drifting ice. In the month that the expedition was caught they drifted some twenty miles and then with a change of wind drifted back twelve. He showed pictures of leads which opened up without warning and required constant watching. Some hundreds of tons of ice had to be moved with wooden shovels and improvised picks made of ski poles and knives. The planes had landed on the open water which they came to for an observation and before they could get away it closed up and never re-opened.

During the entire month the men lived and worked together without a word of complaint. Capt. Amundsen, said Mr. Ellsworth, throughout all the difficulties retained constant serenity.

ARREST BOY FOR SHOOTING GIRL

Was Found in Ruined Chateau With Bullet in Neck.

SEEKING MOTIVE.

GENEVA, July 31 (Canadian Press)—The mystery surrounding the murder of Miss Mary Lebitt Bowen, 36, of Berkeley, Cal., who has been studying with Rudolph Steiner's, anthroposophical colony at Dornach near Basel was partially cleared up yesterday by the arrest of a 16 year old boy. The boy was discovered yesterday in the ruins of a chateau, a bullet in his neck. The suspect declared the shooting was accidental, but the police are skeptical and are seeking a motive. The jewels and money on Miss Bowen's person were undisturbed.

LARKIN IN IRELAND.

Lawyers Tilt In Police Court Over Witness Crown Attorney Says Has Been Spirited Away

There were some tilts between Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton and defending counsel J. A. O'Brien in the Police Court this morning when Moses Brisbeau was again remanded on a charge of a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act. The case has already been held up for several weeks pending an analysis of some liquor found in the possession of Brisbeau. The report is now at hand but this morning Mr. Hatton intimated that the Crown was as yet unable to go on with the case, the reason being that a material witness had been "spirited away." Mr. O'Brien objected to the use of the word "spirited away." Asked by His Worship the name of the missing witness, Mr. Hatton replied "Joseph O'Brien."

"I am here your worship," retorted the lawyer of that name.

"Where has the witness gone?" asked Mr. O'Brien.

"I was just going to ask you that, but I did not think you would tell me," replied the Crown Attorney.

After some discussion as to the choice of a suitable date, the case was adjourned until August 18, a renewal of the bail bonds for $2000 being accepted by His Worship.

TO JUDGE OATS.

Fields Entered in Field Crop Competition Will Be Judged Next Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31.—The oats that have been entered by farmers in Percy and Seymour townships, in the standing field crop competition will be judged next week; the corn entries to be passed upon some time later. There is a large number of entries in both townships and the yield of oats this year promises to be a record one. Corn, too, is making excellent progress since the recent rains.

WEATHER

This is the last day of the month named after Julius Caesar, and it has proved to be a cool one ith many showers—perhaps too many for our agricultural friends, but ideal for the more humble garden. In fact one gardener told me this week that the weather conditions could not have been more favorable if he had had the arranging of it. On only one day did the thermometer reach 90 degrees. We are now in the midst of the picnic season, lawn socials and garden parties. Needless to say, the great dread of the picnicer is rain. Rain spoils everything, because when the grass gets wet, how can you picnic comfortably when you can't sit down? Still we go on making our picnic preparations, and with unconquerable optimism hope for a fine day. And, if rain does come, why, we make the best of it—

"Rain, rain, glistening rain, Bidding us to hope again," sings a poet, who must have been one of those who see the bright side of everything. Here is another song of the rain:

"I visit every humble roof,
I mingle with the low;
Only upon the highest peaks
My blessings fall in snow,
Until in tricklings of the stream
And drainings of the lea,
My unspent bounty comes at last
To mingle with the sea."

Where there is water enough already, one would think.—W. P.

DIRT ON SHIRT COST BOY'S LIFE

Young Man Threw Dirt on Shirt Being Ironed—Chinaman Shot Him.

THE SHOOTER SHOT.

NEW YORK, July 31 (United Press)—A handful of dirt which he scattered over the clean shirt which Wong Low, Chinese laundryman, was ironing, cost 22 year old James Courte his life.

Wong Low shot and killed the youth in the street outside his laundry because, according to the police, Courte had interfered with his work by his dirt throwing tactics.

The Chinese was shot and probably fatally wounded by a policeman while fleeing from the scene of the crime. At the hospital, where Wong Low is reported dying, the Chinese was arrested on a homicide charge.

RHODES ACTIVE IN MINE DISPUTE

Nova Scotia's Premier Met Owners and Strikers Thursday.

NO REPORT ISSUED

HALIFAX, N.S., July 31.—(Canadian Press).—The conference initiated here Thursday in a further effort to effect a settlement of the wage dispute between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its 12,000 colliery-workers which has dislocated the mining industry in Nova Scotia for the past five months adjourned at six o'clock last night, to be resumed today. Following the adjournment Premier E. N. Rhodes, said that no statement would be issued for the present.

The Premier alone conferred yesterday with President R. M. Wolvin and vice-president J. E. McLurg of the corporation and in the afternoon attended by his Minister of Mines, Hon. G. S. Barrington and other members of the Government, the conversations were resumed. At five o'clock the entire district board of the United Mine Workers of America were called in and remained in joint conference for an hour.

British Law Would Set 15 Per Cent. Interest Limit

LONDON, July 31. — English money-lenders in the future, will be unable to exact exceeding 15 per cent. interest without laying themselves open to the charge of making a tranaction which is 'harsh and unconscionable" in the legal sense if the report by the Joint Parliamentary Committee on the subject is adopted.

The committe, it is understood endorses the bill already introduced in the House of Lords by Lord Carson prohibiting money-lenders from sending circulars, inserting advertisements in the newspapers or employing canvassers.

The interest limit is fixed at 15 per cent., but is is made lawful for the moneylender and his client to apply to the county courts before a loan is made to dispense with this limitation. Where the loans granted are to be repaid in a few months, the proposed interest is not allowed to exceed 4 per cent a month.

GERMANS EVICTED FROM POLAND CROWD TEMPORARY REFUGE AND PRESENT PICTURE OF GREAT WANT

MORE COMING.

Poles Have Assembled 20,000 To Be Deported To-night—Complain of Treatment.

SCHNEIDEMUHL, Germany, July 31. — Canadian Press. — More than 20,000 Germans evicted from Poland are expected here within a few days, crowding to the limit the temporary camp erected for their reception.

The time limit within which they must leave Poland voluntarily expires to-night.

The Polish government already has herded together on the Polish side of the boundary all who have not started on their own account, and will transport them across the frontier to-night.

Here at Schneidemuhl where the refugee camp was opened in June, there are already about 7000 homeless Germans from Poland. They came away voluntarily, but even in their own country they are homeless, friendless and without much prospect of employment. The men, women and children present a picture of misery, having been compelled to sell most of their property at various low prices. They are now without means of livelihood and many complain of the treatment accorded them by the Poles upon their departure.

Prophet Registers 'Quakes Not Reported Elsewhere

FAENZA, Italy, July 31. — Canadian Press. — An earthquake shock at a great distance was registered on the instruments of the earthquake prophet, Raffaele Bendandi, at eight o'clock last night. He had foreseen the tremor at the month's end, and now he predicts an earthquake in the Mediterranean region for August.

IMPOSSIBLE TO AVERT WALKOUT IN SOME MINES

Men Brought Their Tools Out of Some Mines, Preparing to Quit.

NO CANCELLATION.

Lockout Notices Have Only Been Suspended For a Fortnight.

LONDON, July 31 (United Press)—Premier Baldwin announced in the House of Commons today that there had been a provisional settlement of the coal crisis.

While negotiations proceeded today looking toward acceptance of Premier Baldwin's offer of a subsidy to mine owners to tide them over the winter, miners at some mines brought up their tools in preparation for quitting tonight at midnight, if the owners' lockout notices are not withdrawn.

It had been hoped that the dramatic offer of the Premier would mean the strike was averted, temporarily at least. But in mid-afternoon, A. J. Cook, miners' leader, declared that the fact that the men had brought their tools out of some pits, meant it was now impossible to halt a whole or partial stoppage in many mines.

Nervousness began to prevail in some quarters as the day wore on without cancellation of notices. The Premier's offer had been hailed at first as a virtual assurance that coal stoppage, with a possible attendant nation-wide industrial crisis, would be averted for the time being. The owners have suspended for a fortnight their lockout notices which were to have been effective at midnight tonight.

Pay a Bounty

LONDON, July 31 (Canadian Press)—It was officially announced by the Treasury department late this afternoon that the government's assistance to the coal mining industry will be in the form of a bounty and wages for nine months, during which the miners will be paid in accordance with the 1924 agreement which expires at midnight tonight.

CALLED EMPIRE A SLAVE PLANT

British Labor Member Says Capital Class is Not Functioning.

INTERNATIONAL UNION.

LONDON, July 31 (Canadian Press).—A. A. Purcell, Labor member of the British House of Commons, who was elected in the recent bye-election for the Forest of Dean Division of Gloucestershire and is regarded as an extremist opened this morning's proceedings at the Empire Labor Conference being held here, by a speech in which he described the British Empire as a "huge slave plant in action." He declared that "the British capitalist class was stifling in fat and failing to function."

Mr. Purcell advocated a "sanitary cordon of proper wages and working conditions round the world with the establishment of a trades union internationale."

PETERBORO' COPS TAKE PHOTOS AND FINGER PRINTS OF CROOKS TO FILE FOR FUTURE REFERENCE

Rogues' Gallery Has Galaxy of Hard Looking Criminal Faces.

RUSSIAN MURDERERS.

Finger Print Method is Infallible, As No Two Are Alike.

Photography is a wonderful art; by its use faces, places and events may be perpetuated through passing years, happily memories may be recalled by glancing over reporductions captured by the camera lens and pleasant hours may be spent in looking such pictures and reflecting on changes which have been wrought.

Photographers' parlors are sought by newly married pairs and others not so new, by the debutante who wishes to keep alive, at least, the memory of youthful springs and by the youht after he has acquired a fresh outift of raiment. Babies have a peculiar fondiess for the camera and appear before it, using a bewildering assortment of facial registrations and usually no clothes at all.

These are the pictures which will call forth his ire (or her delight) when he (or she) reaches the oge of 14 and mother shows them to admiring friends.

There are a number of these galleries in the city where the public may receive for a nominal fee a facsimile of its appearances and always if it flatters the public, it is a good picture but if it shows the public as it really is, it is a poor one and is fated to be passed over hurriedly when the picture basket is handed round. Fortunately for photographers they have discovered the art of touching up and are able to treat a photogranh to a process similar to that applied by plastic surgeons.

A Different Kind.

There is one gallery in the city, however, which no noe visits willingly, as a matter of fact, few know of its existence and no one has even been heard to boast in this city, at least, that he or she has ever had work done at this certain place.

Those who do have pictures taken there do so because there is no other, of course, open. The law demands who is there to say it nay? Should the subject object too strenuously, one brawny hand cups under the chin and other strong fingers twine in the hair, the shutter clicks and it's all over.

No one ever went to the police station asking for a picture to be taken, yet they do good work there.

They have a case with hinged racks which may be swung outward and placed in these racks and the works of photography which police artists have achieved; there is a variety of expression, head shapes, bashfilments and tonsorial growths which could not be duplicated in all of this city.

"The Rogues Gallery" is is called and there are about 750 photographs on display. Each picture is duplicated, one showing the frontal view and the other a profile. The glances which most of them return would make shivers rattle the segments of any well-ordered spine. Some glance at you through busby eyebrows—darting fiercely, probing glances, and they reek with the treachedous shiftness of purpose.

Others have a carelessly debonnaire devil-may-care-look, youths, most of them, but past masters in ways that are dark. A bold defiance lies back at the gazer and an iminous wonder creeps in as to the fate of the originals.

Most are dresed in rough workmen-like clothing— farmers possibly or rivermen or ditch-diggers who may in a temporary display of anger have done that for which their lives made atonement.

Master Craftsmen.

Others have a neat well kept appearance, cheque artists and conmen these, the gentleman crooks operating on large and professional scales who play for big stakes and take untold risks—but there they are, caught, trapped by the game which looked so bright. They thought they would win out, beat the game, but they didn't for they gaze back now from Rogues Gallery on a heat card with Bertillon measurements, checked carefully on the back of every photograph.

One crook is clothed in ministerial garb. A pions man, he, one who could go about his fellows and pry into secrets which he could later violate. With his black frock coat, cvhocker collar and flat topped Derby, none should suspect that he was other than what he appeared, a gentleman of the cloth—but some one did suspect for his likeness gazes at one now with a mild and kindly benevolence which shields a sombre heart.

Women There Too.

Five Russians are pictured there. Tthey killed a man. Two were hanged and three were sent down for life. Death has already liberated one of those. People of Peterborough know of this for it happened near this city.

There are women pictured in this gallery, ten of them. Sad it appears that women should be enrolled there —potential mothers of innocents, there in that infamous horde—

While the photographs with the Bertillon measurments written on the back are valuable for the identification of criminals there is another method which is considered absolutely infallible—the finger print method.

If a man charged with vagrancy in Police Court here and giving his name as John Jones was suspected of having a police record in some other district, his finger prints would be taken.

Finger Printing.

These finger prints bearing the man's signature would be forwarded to Ottawa where a search would be made for corresponding prints. Within five minutes, such is the marvellous system, providing that the same man's prints have been submitted before, they will be found even if they are signed by an alias as is usually the case. The Ottawa repartment may find that the man is wanted in Kingston for some offence in that city and accordingly word is sent here to that effect. Kingston police then remove the prisoner and try him in their court.

The method employed in taking finger prints is ridiculuosly simple. In the detective's office is a piece of plate glass set in a board. A special finger print ink is placed on the smooth surface and spread with a roller. The prisoner is forced to smear his fingers in the black ink and to place them in ruled spaces on a special form. Impressions are taken first of the right hand, then the left with each finger print in a separate square. The four fingers of each hand are then taken together, after which the signature is attached with the impression of the fore finger.

Police are Wise.

Should the prisoner go about the procedure in a calm and easy manner, the detective has some grounds for asuming that the process is not a new one but on the other hand should a cow like awkwardness be manifest it can be judged that he is either a first offender or is cleverly acting ignorant. Finger prints are absolutely distinctive, no two recorded ever having been found to bear a resemblance so that criminals leave certain evidence behind when they touch any retentive substance such as polished wood or glass.

Should a finger print be left on wood, fine black powder is sprinkled over the surpace and is afterwards blown or shaken off. The finger print then stands up in clear relief and many easily be photographed and dispatched to Ottawa, that further information be received concerning the past of the suspect and steps taken to effect his capture When a man is wanted badly, his description and photograph is distributed far and wide and thousands of police are looking for him.

When a suspect is held pending investigation, he spends the night in a police cell which has few home comforts and no luxuries. Should the authorities decide to retain him for a longer period, he adjourns to the court house hill where more facilities are afforded for solicitous care. Should the case be of an exceptionally aggravating nature, a journey is made to a more strongly fortified place where he earns his living, and no more, by the sweat of his brow. Modern police methods make life a very difficult problem for the practising criminal."

If you lose or find anything put a small ad. in the Examiner. They bring results.

HOLD INQUIRY INTO SHARP WHEAT RISE

Grain Futures Administrator Will Look Into Interests Behind Rise.

CHICAGO, July 31. — (Canadian Press.— An effort will be made by Dr. J. T. Duvel, Government Grain futures administrator here to determine the extent of the interests behind the recent sharp rise in July wheat. Complaints made to the Board of Trade that a corner exists in July wheat caused the calling of a special meeting of its directorate to consider the situation, but President F. L. Carry declined to make a statement.

July wheat closed yesterday at $1.57, a gain of only a half cent., after rises of three cents and upwards on Tuesday and Wednesday.

NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY'S FEDERAL NOMINEES TO CLASH IN THIRD POLITICAL ROUND WHEN PRIME MINISTER DECIDES ON ELECTION

Fred. J. Slade Born on Pioneer Farm Without a Silver Spoon.

10 TIMES COUNCILLOR

Rose by His Own Exertions to Highest Honor on Counties Council.

(By A Staff Reporter)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30.—'Ask any Northumberland County veteran who has in the past seen service in the Counties Council, the "Little Parliament of Ontario, if a Liberal has ever held the position of Warden when it was Northumberland biennial turn for that honor and the chances are that he will be under the necessity of taxing his recollection. Finally he is likely to reply in the affirmative.

"Yes, Fred J. Slade, at that time Reeve of Haldimand, was elected Warden in 1918. His opponent at that time was Milton E. Maybee, now the Federal representative of the county. The vote was close, Mr. Slade winning by a majority of two out of a total of 38. Mr. Maybee was elected Warden two years later when Northumberland's turn came round again."

An election to the Wardenship, whether the successful candidate comes from Northumberland or Durham, is always regarded as a high honor and as a preliminary to securing the party nomination for Parliament or Legislature. Mr. Maybee attained the Wardenship in 1920 and one year later was elected to Parliament. In the same year ex-Warden Fred J. Slade was a candidate against Mr. Maybee and now both are in the field again.

His Start In Life.

Fred J. Slade was born in the township of Haldimand, on a pioneer farm and still lives there. There were no silver spoons or golden tokens in evidence on the day of his birth. His parents, as he tells it himself, were poor. His father, the late Alfred Slade, was born in London, Eng., and came to this country at the age of 19 with money borrowed from friends and his first job in Canada was working on a farm at $2 a month.

Alfred Slade married a girl who had also come from the Old Country and whose position in life was that of a servant and whose wages at the time of her marriage was also $2.00 a month. The young couple settled on a bush farm and prospered, living to see their eldest son, rise mainly by his own exertions to the highest municipal honor in the gift of two countries.

Elected to Council.

Fred J. Slade was elected a member of the Haldimand Council in 1912 and one year later was made deputy-reeve by acclamation, being accorded the same honor three times in succession. In 1916, and for five years thereafter, he was elected Reeve by acclamation, resigning that position when he was nominated for Parliament in the middle of his term in 1921. Since his defeat in the Federal contest he has been urged to run for the reeveship of his township again but has always refused believing that there are other good men in the municipality well qualified to fill the position, and that the honor should be passed around.

A Man Of Parts.

Like his Federal opponent Mr. Slade is a farmer, residing on the old household six miles from Centreton, but he is interested in other lines, lumbering taking up the most of his attention. He operates a sawmill at Fenella and is president and salesman of the cheese factory at the same place. It has been solely by his own exertions that he has risen to the position which he holds today. It has been a hard up hill fight but Mr. Slade is well equipped by Nature for overcoming obstacles and going out of his way to meet them.

The stand which he took in the last election was, he says, decided upon after consultation with the leaders of the party to which he had belonged all the previous years of his actual life.

Maybee, 6849; Slade, 6073; Kerr, 1778, the Progressive and Liberal candidates, polling a total of 1092 votes more than Mr. Maybee who was elected.

In His Own Country.

It must be said of Mr. Slade, even by those who fail to agree with him politically, that he stands well in the community in which he has spent all his life, that as a public man honors have been heaped upon him in his own country. It is seldom that a man is ever sent back to the Counties Council after he has served as Warden. An election to that position is by an unwritten law supposed to round out his municipal career and he is expected to retire either to rest on his laurels or to reach out after higher place.

Mr. Slade's constituents made a notable exception in his case when they sent him back to Cobourg for three terms after he had been Warden. Altogether he was elected to the Haldimand Council 10 times, nine times by acclamation.

In the 1921 election he was given a majority of 595 votes in the township that had given him so many municipal honors and in the adjoining municipality of Murray, the home of the redoubtable ex-Reeve Nick Hartt, acknowledgedone of the best party workers in the riding, Mr. Slade led by a margin of 98.

Their Third Time.

When Milton E. Maybee, M.P., and Fred J. Slade, nominees respectively of the Conservative and Liberal parties in the County of Northumberland for the Dominion Parliament, face each other in the next Federal election, it will be the third time that they have tried conclusions for public office. Each nominee has a victory to his credit. Messrs. Maybee and Slade were candidates for the wardenship of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham in 1918 and Mr. Slade won, the vote standing 20 to 18 in his favor.

In the Federal election of 1921, these two were candidates, but a third man in the field had a tendency to complicate the issue. However, Mr. Maybee was the winner by a plurality of 776 over the man who had defeated him for the wardenship three years before.

At the coming election it will be three times and out for one or the other.

CAMPBELLFORD HOPES TO PUT SON IN POWER

Town Has Had One Representative in Parliament and One in Legislature.

STAMPING GROUND.

Looks Forward to Some Day Having Another Citizen Elected.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30.—In al its history Campbellford has wice had the honor of sending residents to represent the riding, one to the Dominion Parliament, and the other to the Ontario Legislature. C. L. Owen, the present postmaster, was the Consevative candidate in the bye-election held in 1907, the vacancy being caused by the death of Edward Cochrane of Dundonald, the sitting member. The late J. M. Ferris, whose descendants still reside here, was for years the wheelhorse of the Liberal party and was four times elected to the Legislature.

Thirty Years of Victories.

Northumberland County was in those days divided into two Federal ridings, East and West, just as it now is for Legislative purposes, and in contests for the Dominion Parliament, both were always regarded as safely Conservative. As the record now stands, the party has represented the county at Ottawa for 30 years. To judge from the enthusiasm of the Liberals at their annual meeting in Warkworth some weeks ago, the party that has faced reverses so often will at the next Federal election make a determined effort to put a crimp in the triumphant career of its work. Now that Campbellford is really the headquarters of the party, the two chief officers residing here, this town is certain to be the stamping ground of the coming conflict and the contest would be intense locally.

History Repeating Itself.

History apparently is on the eve of repeating itself. This town was Consevative headquarters for East Northumberland when for seven years, C. L. Owen was president and T. J. Horkins was secretary-treasurer of the Association. When Mr. Owen was nominated, the Liberals also named a man from the town, A. A. Mulholland, who was manager of the paper mill. The town was the storm centre of the election, and Mr. Owen was successful by a majority of 243.

Hon George P. Graham's Blunder.

The great local issue in that contest was the Trent Canal. The route had been surveyed through Campbellford, but work had not started and Liberal speakers gave the voters to understand that the Laurier administration could not, in the very nature of things political be expected to make any expeditures beneficial to this district unless the Liberal candidate were returned. This argument appeared to have considerable weight especially with the working classes, when Hon. George P. Graham, who was then, as now, Minister of Railways and Canals, was brought to Campbellford to address the electors.

Old Liberals recall that meeting with something like regret. They say that it was the very honesty of the visiting minister that lost them the election. Mr. Graham defended the administration and assured his hearers that work on the Campbellford section of the canal would be started regardless of the result of the pending election. After that promise, Conservatives who had made up their minds to cross over to the Liberals, embraced the opportunity to save their political consciences.

More Evenly Balanced.

The Legislative riding of East Northumberland has been more evenly divided, although it is now in the Conservative column. In his day, the late J. M. Ferris was practically invincible, and his grandson, who is in business here and who was named for his distinguished ancestor, has apparently inherited all of the latter's political principles and is one of the most active members of the local party. The late M. Clarke, a farmer, ran for the Liberals against Dr. Willoughby and was elected by a large majority.

John H. Douglas, now of Toronto, but formerly a farmer near Warkworth, was also a successful Liberal candidate.

Campbellford Fares Ill.

In spite of the fact that this town when called upon has never failed to pile up a big Conservatives majority in Dominion or Legislative elections, the town has all these years been crying in vain for a post office and an armories. Other towns in the district, the political status of which was more or less a matter of doubt have fared better in securing a share of the expenditure for public buildings. No matter what the politics of the party in power, Campbellford still houses its post office business in a building glaringly inadequate, and its crack Militia company in a made-over rented structure.

Campbellford seems to have shared the inevitable fate of the town or riding that always votes solidly one way. The party it supports when in power believes that it requires no inducements to hold it up to the mark, while the present Government at Ottawa may easily believe with the records before it, that from a political point of view Campbellford is past redemption.

Milton E. Maybee is Farmer With Up-to-Date Methods and Farm.

EXPERT PLOWMAN.

Won Seat in Parliament With Handy Majority in Three-Way Fight.

(By A Staff Reporter)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30.—Some one has said that no man can engage in politics without neglecting his private business any more than he can serve two masters, but in his own person, Milton E. Maybee, M.P., for Northumberland, demonstrated that this statement is fallacious. Mr. Maybee is a politician, has been since before he cast his first vote, and he has established an enviable record of success. Personal popularity, combined with a tireless energy, the gift of overcoming all obstacles without making enemies, a rare talent as a politician, accounts in a great measure for this string of successes.

A Bona Fide Farmer.

But first of all Mr. Maybee is a farmer, not the armchair variety, nor the political type, who can be classed with those opportunists who pose as tillers of the soil in order to catch the agricultural vote. Neither is he a farmer who prospers in his calling in porportion to the amount of perspiration that drops from the brow of his hired man. He is a farmer who, when at home, wears overalls and works with his hands, taking the lead in every branch of agricultural endeavor. When Parliament is in session he spends the week ends at his home near Trenton and every minute between his arrival and departure is spent in active farm work in all branches of which he is an expert. If there is a better plowman, or a more skilled live stock man in Northumberland than Mr. Maybee then that individual has been modestly hiding his light under a bushel all these years.

A Model Farm.

Mr. Maybee's farm consists of 190 acres of first class soil and from the dwelling house, modern in all its appointments, to the remotest field, good taste and careful attention to details are in evidence. His father before him settled on the land, securing a deed from the crown and improvements have been made down to the present. The herd of pure bred Holsteins, the usual number of which is about 20, is well known to stock men all over the district and to Mr. Maybee belongs the credit of raising the most celebrated milk producer of that breed in America.

May Echo Sylvia.

That cow was the famous May Echo Sylvia. Mr. Maybee kept her until she was two years old, and the test to which she was subjected while in his possession etablished her reputation among the stock breeders of the country. Senator Hardy of Brockville purchased the heifer from Mr. Maybee, the price being $1,000. Just how good a bargain the Senator made can be figured from the fact that he sold a bull calf from May Echo Sylvia to an American breeder for $106,000.00. That looks like a fabulous figure and a wild transaction but the American evidently knew what he was doing for he sold back to Senator Hardy some of the progeny of that sire at $50,000.00 or more a head and other dealers took a hand in the same investment. Even the most famous and aristocratic cows reach eventually the limit of existence and May Echo Sylvia has long since gone the way of all flesh.

Some Farm Features.

No man on earth has so many opportunities for the display of taste and neatness as have the farmer and Mr. Maybee has made the most of his chances. His buildings are all conveniently arranged and the fields are laid out, as if that task had been entrusted to a civil engineer. One field contains 50 acres. Another in which the pure bred Holsteins are pastured is filled with never failing spring: that solve the problem of watering the stock. Water is pumped into the buildings by a windmill. The lawn around the house is as carefully kept; and is tastefully planted to flowers as that of any of the large residences in the cities. Cottages have been built for the accomodation of the hired help so that this is another vexed question that Mr. Maybee has satisfactorily disposed of.

Raising Young Forest.

Mr. Maybee has evidently realized that, owing to their ambition to get as many acres as possible under cultivation the pioneers cut away too much of the primeval forest. He has set out to offset this mistake as far as possible and about a year ago adopted a plan of reforestration by setting out 3000 fir trees, these occupying about two acres of land. This infant forest is showing healthy growth. Besides this there are about 30 acres of native woodland on the farm.

Diversified Farming.

Mr. Maybee does not devote all his attention to pure bred cattle. He raises large quantities of wheat and oats, and breeds pedigreed hogs and white Leghorn poultry. Corn is his favorite crop for the silo but he grows sweet clover for pasture and for seed. He tried some of this clover in his silo two years ago but gave it up when some of his cattle died, the veterinaries blaming the ensilage for the casualties.

His Best Ally.

Mrs. Maybee, too, is in public life and possesses the administrative ability that has made her husband successful in two spheres. She has been a member of the Mothers' Allowance Board in this county ever since it was organized. She has also been district president of the East Northumberlad branch and a member of the Federated Board of Women's Institute for Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Maybee's family consist of :Homer J., a graduate of the Guelph Agricultural College and who is now with the live stock branch at Toronto; Elmer A., at present in Detroit, learning motor mechanics; Mrs. W. C. Maguire, who lives near her old home; Leonard, who is home on the farm; Ralph, at school and Margery the youngest daughtpr.

Homer J. spent four years overseas during the war, and before taking his present position taught for one year in the Agricultural College at Woodstock, N.B.

His Political Record.

Mr. Maybee began his public career as a member of the Murray Township Council. He went through all the grades of that course from deputy-reeve to reeve and in 1920 was elected Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. That coveted honor is almost as hard to obtain and carries with it as much prestige as a seat in the Federal Parliament. In 1921 Mr. Maybee was selected as the standard bearer for his party in the general election of that year and won by a large margin in a three-cornered contest.

Evidently the party is satisfied with his record and accept without criticism his account of his stewardship. It certainly looks that way seeing that he has received the compliment of a unanimous re-nomination.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By-F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

As Marshall was riding up the secret passage winding cleft through the high cliffs, the man called Buck drew in his horse at a point where the high boulders jut out from the trail. From the cover of one of these boulders he peered down where he could see Marshall about to enter the only gateway to Paradise Canyon, which his vigilance had kept undiscovered for fifteen years.

Somewhere behind him, concealed in the shrubbery and rocks, with all the skill of his race, like a snake in the grass, Komi, too, was watching.

Marshall rode on through the winding passage, and arrived at the small gap which served as entrance to the canyon. Ramon, the Mexican servant on guard, alert, his rifle in position, as he heard the sound of hoofs, relaxed as he saw it was his master.

Following, under cover so that he could see, but not be seen, was Buck. And following him, Komi.

"I fancied I was being trailed," said Marshall, dismounting and leaving his horse with the guard to be stabbed. "Better keep a sharp eye, Ramon."

Then he walked over to the cabin, where he had found Mary gazing at the sky.

As Ramon went off toward the stable with the horse Buck sneaked through the passage into Paradise Canyon.

The watchful Komi, perceiving, quickly unstrung his bow and arrow, and aimed the feathery warning that barely missed poor Miquel's nose and stuck into the kitchen door.

Just as Bud was withdrawing the arrow from the door he and Miquel saw the airplane dropping, and come down with a crash and smoke against the tree at the other side of the canyon. Carrying the warning arrow, thinking that the man in the plane might be the enemy Komi was warning them of, they started running towards it.

Before they got there Mary and her father, who had seen the plane first, had already carried the flyer to the house. They followed, and while Mary began nursing the accident victim, Bud showed Marshall the arrow.

"A warning from Komi, Boss," said Bud.

Marshall looked at the arrow and blanched. Mary was bending over her patient, bandaging him and admiring him at one and the same time.

"Maybe it means him," said Bud, pointing to the unconscious form on the sofa.

Marshall's face darkened.

"Maybe," he answered. "And maybe there are others. Lots of queer things happening hereabouts today. Three men chased me on horses on my way home. Quick, you and Miquel, join Ramon and scour the canyon to see if we have any more uninvited visitors. I'll take care of this one."

Their hands on their revolvers, Bud and Miquel darted off.

CHAPTER 3.
Terence O'Rourke

John Marshall watched his daughter's tender care of the injured stranger in the cabin with apprehension. The light in her eyes as she attended him told him that the handsome young stranger had awakened her interest.

In the last two years, as he saw Mary growing into glorious young womanhood, and realized she would soon become preoccupied with more vital affairs and interests than those of the little girl who had been content to live alone with her Daddy, and sit upon his knee, he had been much worried.

So there were good reasons why the presence of the stranger who had dropped out of the sky disturbed him. Marshall had much to fear from the outside world. That was why he had come to this refuge across the border from his home and country. This stranger might be an enemy dropped into his camp. And more than ordinary foe, if Mary was to become interested in him.

"Father, he's coming to," cried Mary exultantly.

The stranger's eyes had opened again, and a smile was again crossing his lips. His smile was broader this time, as if he was glad to see that Mary was still there, glad to confirm the fact that the first time he had looked up into her face it was not only a dream.

Mary smiled back, and the stranger stirred, tried to raise himself on his elbow. Mary helped him to a sitting position, propping him up with cushions behind his back. Marshall came over and sat by the sofa.

The stranger nodded at the older man. Marshall stared at him thoughtfully.

"Do you feel better?" Mary inquired, with her engaging smile.

"And could one feel badly, Miss, with such a lovely nurse?" the flyer asked.

Marshall continued to study the man's features closely. Finally he broke his silence by asking:

"Well, stranger, you might tell us who you are?"

"Terence O'Rourke, sir," was the quick reply.

"O'Rourke," Marshall repeated. "Yes,——"

"This is really my country out West here," O'Rourke continued, "but I haven't been here since I was a boy. I was born in this vicinity, but my father sent me to school in the East. I never saw him again. He was a prospector, and got killed while prospecting around in these hills."

Marshall continued to study O'Rourke, as though racking his memory to recall something from the dim past.

"Ah, yes," he said, stiffly. "O'Rourke—I seem to recall the name." Marshall's face grew very stern. Then he added, "But what interests me is the business that brings you around here now, O'Rourke."

Her father's abrupt inquisition of the stranger chased the sunny smile from Mary's face. She felt this was not properly hospitable, and she looked at her father reproachfully. But Marshall's face remained set and demanding.

Terence O'Rourke's smile also vanished, and his face darkened. After a moment's pause, he answered slowly:

"I hope I will not appear ungrateful for your hospitality, and the young lady's, sir, but as to my business—that is my private affair, and I cannot reveal it. I am sorry."

There was a look of courage, defiance and resolution in the young man's face, and the words were spoken with evident determination. His reply stung Marshall, and he leaped to his feet angrily, staring fiercely and suspiciously at O'Rourke. Agitated, Mary looked from one to the other, trying to think of something to say to smooth over the situation.

There was suddenly a loud knocking at the door, and cries from without.

"Mr. Marshall, Mr. Marshall."

Marshall opened the door. Bud, Miquel, and Ramon marched in with a prisoner—it was the man called Buck who had sneaked into the canyon behind Marshall. All tried to speak at once.

"We've found another stranger, boss," cried Bud. "This bird sneaked in——"

"After I take your horse to stable," broke in Ramon, "I find feet prints of strange boots in mud—I follow—I meet Bud and Miquel with Komi's arrow—then we go look together——"

"Then there were no more footprints," interrupted Bud, "so we split up and took different tracks——"

"And I found him, sir, I found him," Miquel triumphantly chimed in.

"You found him," laughed Bud. "You mean he found you. This hombre was hiding in the brush, when he sees Miquel and makes a jump for his neck. We heard a yell and come running up, and this bird was sloughing Miquel and dragging him around in the dirt. Miquel was putting up a plucky enough fight, but he hadn't the reach or the weight of the hombre. Then this fool tried to fight the three of us, and here he is."

Marshall studied the face of the prisoner intently. Then he whirled about, and in a rage demanded of O'Rourke:

"Who is this man, O'Rourke?—your confederate?—spying on me?"

O'Rourke met the glare in Marshall's angry eyes squarely, and firmly and calmly answered:

"I never saw him before in my life, sir."

A relieved expression crossed Mary's face at his answer, and they smiled understandingly at each other. Marshall turned back to the prisoner and fired questions at him hotly. Buck sullenly refused to answer his captor. Finally, giving it up for a bad job, Marshall ordered his three trusties to lock the man up in the stable for the night.

"I'll attend to him later," he said grimly, as they filed out, the prisoner, between them, under cover of their revolvers.

Marshall glanced sternly at Terence again. The crippled condition of the flyer reassured him that he was safe for the present.

"Mary, I'm going out and look about," he said. "There are too many funny things going on here. This has been a bad day, and my brain is reeling with worries. I need some air."

And he strode out into the open.

A MULTI-MILLIONAIRE ASKS ADVICE.

Leopold Schepp of New York spent most of his 85 years importing and selling cocoanuts. He is a multi-millionaire now, and his fortune was made almost entirely in the cocoanut trade.

A year ago Leopold Schepp established the Schepp Foundation of $2,500,000 to help poor boys. Where that money came from there are other millions, and Mr. Schepp wants to spend his money in a way that will help the poor and friendless. He started to earn his living with 18 cents in his pocket, friendless and lonesome, and he knows what it means to be buffeted about by hard masters.

Hence the cocoanut magnate seeks expert advice as to what is best to do with his fortune, for he knows that the day of hit-and-miss philanthropy is gone forever. Millions of funds now being spent to aid youth and alleviate suffering are now being scientifically applied. Foundations aim to do good in perpetuity.

Mr. Schepp has considered a plebiscite. But we doubt if public opinion obtained in that way will help him much. He will be deluged with begging letters; that is certain to follow the publicity incidental to his plea. Since his thoughts seem to be for young people who need a little help in getting a start in business, or aid in getting through college, the best way would appear to be an established foundation. The Rhodes scholarships were founded in perpetuity and the work goes on from year to year. The provisions so wisely made by Cecil Rhodes may be found to be suitable in principle, and, with changes in detail, be made to serve the sort of people Mr. Schepp has it in his heart to help.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL SMELLS GUNPOWDER.

The heat has claimed another victim. This time it is the Montreal Herald, which sees Canada and the United States marching steadily toward war with each other.

The Herald says that "everywhere along the border can be seen policemen and soldiers carrying guns. In order to enforce prohibition the United States is building a new navy and selecting a new army to prevent the bootlegging of liquor, much of which comes from Canada."

From the symptoms the Herald draws the following dreadful diagnosis:

"Thus it goes. We are travelling the same road to hate and strife that European nations have already travelled. Our boast of a frontier of 3,000 miles 'with never a fort or a gun' is fast passing into history. The possibilities are appalling. Yet where is the remedy? Will the time come when the United States, despairing of the cost and the difficulty of border protection, will proclaim an extension of the Monroe Doctrine to cover liquor and immigrants? Canada cannot view such a possibility with equanimity. Yet we are moving in one direction or the other—on the one hand to increasing militarism and armaments directed one against the other, or on the other hand to some form of continental suzerainty."

Some funny things have come from Montreal. The last time we heard from there it was some sort of whisper about death. But even the Brantford Expositor admits that we're still alive and growing stronger every day. The Herald should move from Montreal. It appears to be an unhealthy locality for anyone possessed of a nervous disposition.—London Advertiser.

CANADA DOES WELL.

The Canadian dollar at a premium in New York is a thing of cheering significance. In November of last year the same situation arose, because of purely financial operations which had the effect of creating a favorable balance for us in the international clearing house. In this instance, however, the higher value of our currency has been due to trade conditions. The United States has been buying more from us than heretofore. For the twelve months ended June 30th, it is estimated that our exports to the American Republic exceeded a billion dollars, or $16,000,000 more than for the preceding year. That should be a matter for deep satisfaction.

American bankers interested in the buying and selling of Canadian exchange recognize two other factors in our favor. One is the splendid condition of our grain crop, and the other is the rapidly increasing demand for Canadian dollars by tourists. This latter has but recently come into the equation. Tens of thousands of cars are crossing the boundary every month, their occupants for the most part on pleasure bent and spending freely as they go.

This is an exceedingly valuable business, dollar for dollar worth more to us than perhaps any factor in our export trade; and yet we are doing but little to expand it. We are really not wide awake in this vital matter. Our Ontario Government is fast asleep, and so are many of our municipalities. There is just as much room for enterprise and genius in developing this tourist business as in the expanding of our industrial potentialities.—Kingston Whig.

LET IT BE PUBLISHED.

Major John Jacob Astor, owner of the London Times, often called the world's greatest newspaper, crosses Canada and declares when he reaches the Pacific coast that he is amazed by the hospitality and wonderful possibilities of our country.

At the same time a University of Montreal party comes home from a tour of the West, also amazed by the breadth and potential wealth of the country they live in.

Amazed, also, would be hundreds of others were they to tour Canada from coast to coast, by the progress and the resources of both East and West. This country needs some good prophets, and publicity of a sort that will appeal both to reason and imagination—we have plenty of facts in the Dominion to appeal to both.

The fact that a London publisher can be "amazed" shows how much this country needs advertising abroad. If a publisher had little idea of the natural wealth here, what of the average person who is only in casual touch with the news of the world?—Border Cities Star.

THE BRITISH FLAG.

The Province of Quebec has no quarrel with the actual status of the country. Its particular rights and privileges are better assured by the Union Jack than they would be by a Canadian constitution. In more than one instance we have been refused justice by the Canadian authorities, and recourse to an Imperial tribunal has redressed our wrongs. The French-Canadian nationality has had more than one occasion to serve the British flag. It will probably have no reason to regret that that flag will not at present be changed.—L'Evenenient (Quebec).

CANADA CALLS.

The Province of Quebec has voted another $3,000,000 in addition to the $7,000,000 already spent to call back home the estimated million of her population who in recent years have wandered away to Michigan, New York and New England, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The Dominion Government is behind this effort at repatriation, but Quebec has been the chief loser and is the centre of the new colonization program.

Vast areas of farm lands are open to settlers in the Abitibi and Lake St. John areas, and other arable acres exist in pretty nearly all sections of the great Empire to the north of us. The Government naturally has the backing of the Canadian railroads and many other important lines of business, and advertisements are being placed in all American newspapers where there is a considerable sprinkling of Canadian emigrants inviting them to come back and make their homes in the fatherland.

And there is something besides invitation. The Canadian Government is entering upon a phenomenal campaign of subsidies for returned settlers. Wages will be paid in the form of bonuses for clearing the lands awarded to them. Government funds will be supplied for home-building. The homecomers will be aided in many substantial ways to get a foothold and to survive the first hard years of soil recovery and preparation.

While many other nations are feeling the pinch of overpopulation, the Canadian Dominion has set out to recover a million of her lost people and to finance them to a fresh start in life. And the best of it is that she has the room for all who may come. The world is not such an overcrowded place, after all, and the expansion of population no longer needs to be accomplished by invasion and conquest. Governments are now advertising for the immigrant to come along and offering to pay all the expenses and give him choice fields into the bargain, with homes built at Government expense. We did it on this side the line as long as we had the vacant acres to give away.

SCIENCE AND RELIGION.

Happily for everybody, the world has never seen a complete breach between science and religion. Such a breach is not within sight at this time. But in church circles the fear is growing that the great religious denominations in America will be split in two by the controversy between fundamentalists and modernists, requiring a realignment of the forces of the Christian church.

During a succession of decades, men who in their day would have been called modernists if the word had been used then as it is today, but who would be considered fundamentalists now because of a new orientation of religious opinion, have maintained a liaison between science and religion. They have moderated the extreme views on either side and enabled faith and culture to keep step in close comradeship. By so doing, they have strengthened the position of Christianity. Yet they have arrayed against themselves those who believe that inspiration has nothing to learn from research as well as those who refuse to be impressed by anything they cannot see or taste or handle.

The Stokes evolution trial and the death of William Jennings Bryan may have some effect on the trend of religious thought. They may produce a crusade in support of the traditional viewpoints of the churches and against everything that might be called new theology. Admiration for the martyrlike devotion of Bryan in defense of the Bible may arouse to action those who are disposed to "purge" the churches of persons who will not admit that the discoveries of science can possibly destroy the essentials of religion.

Little good can come out of war between those who believe science is a foe of religion and those who believe that it is a friend of religion. It would involve a great waste of energy and money that should be employed in spreading the teachings of Christ—the Gospel that is the salvation of the individual and the race. It would develop recrimination and a spirit foreign to that which the founder of the faith sought to create. In short, begun in the hope of protecting youth from the dangers of a liberal interpretation of the Scriptures, its principal effect would be to prove the extent to which leading exponents of Christianity lack the true spirit of religion.

Both sides to the Dayton debate were unfortunate in their champion; evolution because Darrow is an agnostic, and fundamentalism because Bryan, pious and sincere as he was, took a more extreme position than has been adopted by any great nation-wide church assembly. The view that the theory of evolution "disputes every vital truth in the Bible, eliminates the law of love and carries man back to the struggle of tooth and claw," expressed by Mr. Bryan, would not have a chance of securing the endorsation of the majority of the Christian ministers of America. Not that evolution is recognized universally as an established scientific fact. But the censensus of opinion among church leaders today is that the evolutionary theory, if correct, in no way invalidates or weakens the teachings of Christ.—Toronto Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Brooklyn man claims to have worn one collar button for 59 years. The public would like to know how many pairs of trousers he has worn out looking for that button when it rolled under the bureau.

It is claimed that light-colored stockings on a girl make one look cooler. No, they make one look longer.

CHICAGO JURY

and with hundreds of guests moving about the hotel foyer and pacing the promenade "avenues."

When the drunken Cherokee blazed away with his gun, he terminated the systematic work of his fellow-bandits and set the whole hotel and surrounding territory in a furore. He was shot in the shoulder and wounded a few minutes later by a house detective aroused by the gunshot.

Thrilling Chase

Three of the bandits fled through the avenue of palms to the street, scattering the fashionable guests as they rushed through, brandishing revolvers. Joe Todd raced down stairs in the main kitchen where he ran into two policemen and after shooting one, Clarence Dalof, through the hand, was laid out unconscious by a terrific blow from the officer's club.

During the flight, Carl Anderson, cashier of the hotel, was possibly fatally shot through the abdomen, Charles Tornio was slightly wounded by a blow on the head from one of the robbers and several automobiles were smashed in the thrilling chase through the boulevard.

The ultra-exclusive Drake hotel is located on the edge of the Gold Coast, just outside the loop, where there is a virtually endless passage of traffic day and night.

The luxurious Italian corridors of the Drake are filled with guests including many of the nation's notables, almost constantly, and to make this hotel still further undesirable as the scene of crime, the big house fairly swarms with employees, including a small army of private detectives.

At Busiest Hour

About 4 p.m., Wednesday, one of the busiest hours of the day, an auto swerved into the porte cochere of the hostelry, and four young men quietly alighted. The fifth bandit is believed to have been "planted" somewhere in the lobby.

Nelson and his three companions entered from the north or Lake Shore drive side. Several policemen were on duty at various points surrounding the hotel at the time. This entrance led the robbers into a broad lobby. From there, they went to the basement barber shop and up a flight of stairs to the lobby known as "the Avenue of Palms."

The bandits then went to the front of the building by way of a long mezzanine promenade. There, in the main clerical office of the administrative department, several clerks and hotel officials were working. In one corner of the room Carl Anderson sat in his cashier's cage.

The Hold-up

Two bandits entered this main room while three others remained in the corridor outside. Court, the India who had gone inside, went straight to the cashier's cage and covered Anderson with a shot gun.

They engendered a mild panic among the men and women clerks. Obviously intoxicated, the bandit swaggered about the room, brandishing a revolver and shotgun.

Seated close by was Harry Ewer, a bookkeeper. He promptly complied. Three women and two men clerks followed suit upon new threats from the drunken redskin.

Court then marched the employees into the controller's office. The bandit, delighted with his mastery of the situation, next ordered the little squad to proceed to the promotional manager's office.

From here, with hands still upraised, the young men and women were turned about and marched to the offices of John B. and Tracy Drake. This having been accomplished to the satisfaction of the Cherokee, the squad was ordered back through the various offices to the administrative room.

Indian Elated

Elated with these maneuvers, the Indian ordered them repeated. The clerks and auditors did an about-face and made another round trip through the offices.

Meanwhile, the bandit who had remained behind spoke quietly, but with threatening firmness, to Cashier Anderson.

"Give me that cash and keep your mouth shut," he said.

Detecting evidence of a canard, Anderson merely smiled and asked: "What is this—some joke?"

The bandit made no reply. Anderson looked behind him. At each of two wickets in the wall stood a bandit with a sawed-off shotgun levelled at his head. He invited the robbers to help themselves.

Plucky Girl

Meanwhile, Court, who was completing his clerical maneuvers, met with unexpected opposition. As his "squad" was re-entering the adminstrative offices, the last girl in line slimmed the door in his face. It locked automatically and Court was isolated.

The bandit's commanrds to open the door brought no response, so he backed away and sent a bullet through it.

When this bit of gunplay brought no action, Court detoured through adjoining offices to the administrative room. Enraged as a result of the door-slamming episode, he then fired point-blank at Radkey, the clerk, fatally wounding him.

Wouldn't Surrender

The bandit's commands to open of Detective James McMurdy's office less than 20 feet away, "Put 'em up," growled Court. "I'll be damned if I do," McCurdy answered, and fired point-blank at the Indian, striking him in the shoulder.

Court fled. They raced through the maze of corridors, pursued by William R. Hicks, superintendent of service. Once outside the hotel, Court ran several blocks and then started to climb into a parked auto, which he evidently mistook for the bandits' car.

Two policemen were at his heels. As they reached the machine Court opened fire, but his shots went wild. One of the officers returned the fire and the robber dropped, fatally wounded.

Running Fight

Regaining their auto, the other bandits sped away, closely pursued by dozens of autoombiles carrying police and citizens. A running gun fight followed as the cars weaved their way through the heavy traffic of the drive.

Flight of the robbers was interrupted when their green speedster crashed into another auto. Nelson, however, seized a parked machine, but was unable to start at.

A taxicab in which a Miss Maizie Larson was a passenger, approached. Nelson hopped in beside the young woman, forced her to the floor, pressed his revolver against the driver's neck and ordered him to "drive like hell." The other two bandits disappeared.

Ten minutes later, Nelson's taxicab crashed into a street car. The bandit leaped out and ran under a hail of bullets. He finally was cornered in an alley shot and killed by one of the policemen.

Were Cats Paws.

Holmes told the police how he and Court became implicated in the robbery. He said he and the Indian had come here from Texas to participate in a rodeo, he said, they met three youths, who invited them to have a drink.

While in a speakeasy, according to Holmes, their new friends shoved revolvers into their hands and said: "Come on, we're going to take the Drake today."

"Why, I didn't even know what the Drake was," Holmes said.

Drink Responsible.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Drink caused the bungling of the Drake hotel robbery, Jack Woods, 30, veteran of the World War, chef, waiter and roustabout, ruefully told police in confessing to his part in the affair.

"If we had laid off the drink we could have carried the job through quietly," Woods said. "But the boys thought they needed liquor to brace 'em up. All of us drank pretty much un to about an hour before we started the job.

"I carried a shotgun and I just stuck up some of the clerks while the other boys did their jobs.

"Old Tex Court was pretty drunk. If he hadn't got so mad and started shooting, we'd have been all right. But Tex got mad at one of the clerks for slamming the door and he shot through it. Then he got madder and madder and the first thing I heard was another shot. I guess that was the shot that killed Frank Rodkey.

"We all started to beat it. I tripped and fell over my shotgun and it went off. But I got in the car with the others and two of us got away. Mellenchuck (the last of the bandits) had all the money. He gave me my share, $1,800, and we, separated.

"My hand started hurting pretty bad and I went to a restaurant man I knew and asked him to call a doctor. He asked me for a bundle of money first and I gave him $1,500."

The physician called by the restaurant owner sent Woods to the Jefferson hospital, where the arrest occurred.

In Canadian Army.

Woods said he had served as an engineer in the Canadian army during the World War. Three weeks ago he came to Chicago and took a job as waiter in an exclusive north side hotel. Woods said he was invited to take part in the Drake robbery.

"I didn't want to get in on it, but they told me I was 'yellow,' so I agreed to go in."

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 30.—There was very little business done on the market this morning preceding the holiday. Very few fresh cattle came in over night and these were disposed of readily to the packers at firm prices. The market was well cleaned up before the holiday. Shippers bear in mind that there will be no market on Monday.

Calves were steady.

Sheep and lambs were steady.

Hogs steady at $14.00, off cars.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.84 3-8.

Sterling cables $4.84 7-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 30. — Fear of frost to-night in Westernr Canada led to a sudden upturn in wheat prices this afternoon, but a reaction ensued on acount of enlarged selling to realize profits. Wheat closed irregular at 1 cent net lower to 3-4 cent advance. September $1.50 1-2 to $1.50 55-8 and December $1.51 7-8 to $1.52, with corn 1-4 to 2 cents ats 5-8 to 3-4 cents to 2 cents off, and provisions varying from 25c decline to a rise of 15 cents

Temperatures almost at the freezing point were reported from parts of the Canadian Prairie Provinces, especially Saskatchewan. Some late export buying for France developed simultaneously, and this, together with evidence that winter wheat farmers were marketing wheat in a restricted manner, gave something of a scare to speculators who had been on the selling side. Besides, late reports said South Dakota yields had turned out to be relatively small. July shorts were in particular made nervous, although end-of-the-month tension had been more or less relieved early to-day by good sized deliveries here and by sales of wheat into store.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 30. — Due to the fact that exporters here are paying as high as $1.38 shipping point, and the mills in western Ontario not getting any deliveries as yet on that account, the flour situation locally is stated to be somewhat quiet. Except for a little icrease in demand from the other side, little trade was done due to the waiting for the new crop. There was an advance in the close of the Liverpool market of 2 1-4 pence to 7 pence, resulting, it is thought, from the danger of the mining strike taking place imminently, prices remained firm.

On account of the harvest, Montreal is reported to be pretty well cleaned up in the baled hay market for the same reason, too, demand seems to be still very small. The general tone of the market is steady and prices remained the same.

No improvement is shown yet in the demand for eggs and to-day business was the same, owing to the fact that buyers were confining their purchases to small lots to meet immediate requirments. The general tone was steady and prices steady The receipts were 1,780 as compared with 1,320 yesterday and 1,490 on the same date last year.

The receipts of butter to-day were 4,775 packages, as against 4,320 for the same day last week, and 4,434 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no important developments in the situation, the undertone being steady. The enquiry from local buyers for supplies showed some improvement, but as they were bidding below sellers views the volume of business was curtailed in this respect. The demand from English importers continues steady and some further sales were made, and it is expected that the exports to Great Britain this week will be fairly large. In a wholesale jobbing way a steady trade was reported and prices were unchanged at 33c per lb. for finest creamery in solid packages, and at 39c per lb in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 2,403 boxes, as compared with 6,892 for the same day last week, and 5,846 for the corresponding day a year ago There was no further change in the condition of the market, the undertone being about steady at the recent reduction in prices. There was some demand from foreign buyers for supplies and further gains of western white and colored were reported at 106s to 107s, and eastern grades at 105s to 105s 6d per cwt. There was also some demand from spot buyers and purchases of several thousand boxes were made.

SEEKING HIS SONS

Hasn't Heard of Them Since War Days.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Aged, decrepit and obliged to gain his living by the sale of ladders and clothes-racks about the surrounding country, John Gagnon, of North Augusta, interviewed the police yesterday in the hope that he may be able to trace the whereabouts of his two sons, who left his former home at South Hammond, N.Y., when the United States entered the late war and of whom he has not since heard.

Today a dollar spent for electricity utilized for home lighting buys as much light as took six dollars 20 years ago. In 1905 a dollar's worth of electricity produced 3,000 candle-power hours of light while the "depreciated" 1925 dollar buys 18,00 candle-power hours.

EXHIBITION DAYS ARE APPROACHING

Added Attractions and Growth Make 1925 Banner Fair Year in City.

Fifteen years ago the prize list of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition covered just 72 pages. This year the prize list for the Dog Show alone taken up exactly the same number of pages.

Fifteen years ago the premiums amounted to $3,500. This year they are over $10,000.

That is just part of the growth of the premier Exhibition in Central Ontario. And it is not the principal part, only a symbol. Year after year the influence of this big Fair spreads farther afield, attracting new exhibitors and bringing visitors from far away points because of its excellency. The attendance is mounting, and was last year the largest on record—27,040 in the four days. These are accurate figures, given by automatic turnstiles at the gate that count only paid admissions. There is no guess work such as is indulged in at other fairs.

This year the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition embarks upon a new era. Hitherto of four days' duration, the 1925 show will last five days, with a consequent increase in interest, exhibits and attendance.

It is not too soon for citizens to plan for the Exhibition. Farmers who will exhibit stock have been preparing for months, and even now their exhibits are nearing the perfection that competition in a high class fair demands.

Entertainment will be of a high class this year, and the entertainers are preparing their acts and rehearsing their music. The Exhibition Board has been working since the last fair closed to make this year's an outstanding success.

And 1925 is going over the top as the greatest Exhibition year in Peterborough's history.

A THOUGHT.

WHY FOOL YOURSELF?

Suppose that of three wishes of man one only could be granted, should not this wish be for health? For wealth cannot guarantee to bring health, and happiness is seldom enjoyed by those who do not have health.

When we have health, we can have, if we will, a very happy time working for wealth. This is a truth that cannot successfully be refuted, though unfortunately it is sometimes disputed by those who are fooling themselves.

Every One Made With Supertwist

More People Ride on Goodyear Tires Than on Any Other Kind

THE world-wide supremacy of Goodyear Tires is based on world-wide acceptance of Goodyear leadership in developing tire improvements.

Goodyear has once more insured that leadership by producing SUPER-TWIST, a new and superior cord tire fabric.

SUPERTWIST was developed by Goodyear, in the Goodyear cotton mills, to meet the special needs of the balloon tire. It stretches much more than any other cord fabric; it withstands road shocks without injury. It is the means of insuring mileage from balloon tires.

So successful has been SUPERTWIST as a balloon tire fabric that it is now used in all Goodyear Cord Tires—but in Goodyears alone.

Your Goodyear Selected Dealer has tires of SUPERTWIST in stock.

SIMPSON TELLS OF SOCIALIZED PROGRESS HERE

Railways, Water Powers and Even Children Mostly Under State Control.

WAS CHAIRMAN

Canadian Workers Have Not Generally Considered Peace Movements.

LONDON, July 31—James Simpson, Toronto, who presided on Thursday at the Empire Labor conference which is being held in the House of Commons, devoted his opening address to the contribution made by Canada to the social well-being of the world.

Mr. Simpson described briefly the advance Canada has made in the public ownership of railways and hydro-electric power, and expressed the opinion that Canada had made the greatest contribution of any country in the world to social advance in the last decade, except Russia, in the taking over by the government of Ottawa of the railway system now known as the Canadian National Railways.

Private companies had made a complete fiasco of one of the greatest Railways systems in the world despite all the assistance it received from the government of Canada, he said. The government therefore took the Grand Trunk system into its own hands.

Development of water powers for electricity is also conducted under public ownership in Canada. More than half the population of the province of Ontario is served by the publicly owned system. British Columbia owns a railway and the Prairie Provinces own their own telephone systems.

Toronto has a unique distinction It is usual to divide life into three periods, eight hours for work, eight hours for play, and eight hours for sleep. There are over a hundred thousand school children in Toronto who are educated by municinality and all their play is organized by municipality so that the lifetime of the child is entirely socialized outside of its sleping time which is a domestic responsibility.

At the end of Simpson's review of public ownership in Canada, one of the delegates called out, "You have nationalized the liquor traffic." I would not have thought of that," said Simpson, 'because I am a teetotaler. Some Provinces have prohibited liquor traffic altogether and others are trying to control it as best they can."

During the discussion after Arthur Henderson had fully explained the protocol, Mr. Simpson said that Canada's attitude to foreign affairs until recently was just obeying Britain but in late years she was more inclined to analyse the decisions of the Imperial Government. The protocol and th pact, however, had not been considered very deeply by the workers in Canada. On his return he would ask them to consider it. Personally he was much impressed Mr. Henderson's explanation as to the value of the protocol as an instrument of worlod peace. Delegate Queen from Canada said that the workers in that Dominion were more concerned with questions directly affecting affairs. There was a distinct feeling against following Britain into any future European war except on Canada's own determination.

SOFT BALL RACE BECOMES CLOSER

Campbellford Teams Near End of Schedule—Five in Running.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31. — The race in the Campbellford Soft Ball League is tightened up considerably as a result of this weeks games. Mill "A" putting over the big surprise by defeating their fellow employees Mill "B" 9 to 8 on Tuesday night while the clerks trimmed the Hydro on Thursday night 7 to 3. The Hydro-Clerk game was perhaps the most exciting and hotly contested games of the season. Both teams played almost errorless ball. The Clerks winning by harder hitting. They also pulled off three double killings. The Hydro also registered a double-play. With only three more scheduled games to play five teams have a chance to get in the play off positions.

Campbellford Soft Ball League games played Thursday, July 30.

UNION JACK IN MINERS' PARADE

Returned Soldiers in Alberta Strike Marched in Orderly Demonstration.

AT DRUMHELLER

DRUMHELLER, Alta., July 31. —(Canadian Press).—The parade staged here Thursday by the returned soldiers amoag the miners was a very spectacular and at the same time a peaceful one. A large number of people congregated in the town long before the time set. The veterans assembled in the Miners' Hall and then marched in a body to the station.

They carried a large Union Jack in front of them, two Canadian flags and another Canadian flag at the rear. They stopped near the station and unfolded a large banner inscribed, "We defended Canadn 1914-18. We desire justice, a Canadian Union."

A convention of ex-service men is now being held.

CURWOOD IN PARIS

At Home in the Woods, But Lost in the City.

PARIS, July 31.—Marooned amid the cosmopolitan throng at the corner of Rue de la Paix and Rue Daunou this morning, a slender man, who was evidently bewildered informed a policeman, who could not understand him, that he had lots his way.

It was James Oliver Curwood, famous American novelist, who can trail a bear through the wilderness of the North with no other signs than broken twigs and bruised tree bark, but who confesses himself lost in Paris every time he leaves his hotel.

"I wish I was back in Michigan," Curwood declared to me as he boarded a train with his wife and family for Rome. "There is more culture, architecture, knowledge; education and fundamental truth in one acre of Northern woods than in all Europe."

100 ARABS KILLED BY PERSIAN TROOPS

Raiders Were Attacked in Town They Looted Last Week.

BAGDAD, Mesopotamia. July 31. (Canadian Press.)— Hundred Arabs have been killed by Persian government troops which attacked the palace of the Sheik of Muhamareh, at Fallahieh, where a band of Arabs established themselves July 24, after storming the town and looting its bazaars. Six Persians were killed. The scene of the trouble is at the head of the Persian Gulf, near the Mesopotamian-Persian frontier.

SEES MOHAMMEDAN PERIL

Importer Tells of Plan to Convert Christians to That Faith

STONY BROOK, L.I., July 31.—An influx of Mohammedan missionaries into America and Europe to convert Christians to the faith of Mohammed was predicted by Erian Boutros, a Christian native of Egypt now in business in New York, who addressed the third annual conference of the Interdenominational Foreign Mission Association of North America here. Boutros has been active in missionary work, and is well known to the clergymen attending the gathering.

The speaker declared that Mohammedan missionaries were being trained in large numbers at a mission school in Cairo for service in Christian countries. He asserted that more Christians were being converted to Mohammedanism in Egypt that vice versa, and said that this was due to lack of zeal on the part of Christian missionaries sent to Egypt.

DWARF SPURNS FAME

Earned Life of Ease by Working on Farm.

GRAPEVINE, Tex., July 31. — Nick Pearson has retired to live on the money accumulated after fifty years of hard work on a farm near here. Though only forty inches tall and weighing only fifty-six pounds, Pearson made a full hand on his farm and managed it so successfully that he now has enough money saved to live at ease.

When younger he refused many offers to travel with circuses. He is a bachelor and says "women never interested him. His parents were of normal size.

WEDDING BELLS.

GUILLET—SOWRY.

COBOURG, July 31.—The marriage took place last Wednesday at Lachine, Quebec, of Mr. George Guilett, son of the late Charles Guillet, a former Cobourg postmaster, and nephew of Mr. Edwin Guillet, town, to Miss Edna May Sowry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sowry, Lachine. Among the guests present was Miss Elsie Guillet, Port Hope, aunt of the groom. Mr. Guillet is a professor in the State College, Pennsylvania, and has for years been a visitor at the Guillet family cottage at Stoney Lake.

WHERE CAMPBELLFORD MAN FELL

Above is shown the cliff at Niagara Glen over which fell Albert E. Dunk, formerly of Campbellford. The accident occurred about midnight, and Dunk declares he crashed half-way down the face of the escarpment—which at this point is about two hundred feet high—and then was caught in the crotch of a tree. First reports stated that his back had been broken in two places, but a close study of X-ray photographs has led doctors to believe that the vertebrae were not fractured but only badly crushed. Despite the fact that Dunk lay without food or shelter for over thirty-six hours, he is still alive.

JUDGE GARDENS IN CITY AT END OF NEXT MONTH

Horticultural Society Makes Some Changes in Classes in Competition.

ENTRIES OPEN

Dr. Middleton Elected President to Replace R. W. Cormack, Who Resigned.

At the meeting of the Horticultural Society it was decided to hold the Annual Lawn and Garden Competition during the week of August 17 to 22, and the judge will be secured from the Department of Agriculture, Provincial Government. From the experience of past years a few changes in the classes have been made and classes C., H. and J. are particularly referred to. Class E. has not previously been taken advantage of by many boys or girls, age 16 or under, for which, prizes have been offered yearly by Mr. Reg. H. Turner, and the Directors are hopeful that there may be a large number of entries in this class.

Contestants in the various classes in previous years have stated that their entries were not only made with the object of securing prizes, but to receive the more valuable information supplied by the judge during the period of judging. The following list of Classes is now open for competition:

Class "A"

Open to all for home surroundings—1st prize, A. W. Cressman Cup for 1 year; 2nd, $3.00; and 3rd, $2.00.

Class "B"

Amateurs only, for home surroundings—1st prize, T. E. Bradburn Cup for one year; 2nd, $3.00; and 3rd, $2.00.

Class "C"

Workingmen only, for vegetable garden—1st prize, $4.00; 2nd, $3.00; and 3rd, $2.00.

Class "D"

Window boxes, hanging baskets or urns—1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, membership for 1926.

Class "E"

Flower bed care for solely by boy or girl (age 16 years or under) —1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, $1.00.

Class "F"

Grounds or corporations — 1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, $1.00.

Class "G"

Church grounds—1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, $1.00.

Class "H"

Public and Separate Schools and the Collegiate Institute—1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, $1.00.

Public Institutions — 1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, $1.00.

Entries.

Entries must be made in writing to the Secretary of the Society not later than August 12th, and must show the name and address of the contestant and the class or classes for which the entry is made.

All citizens with the exception of Directors of the society are eligible to enter the competition.

New President.

Owing to the resignation of the president, R. W. McCormack, who has left the city, Dr. Middleton was elected president for the remaining portion of the year.

Flower Show.

Arrangements are being continued to make the annual Flower Show, September 10 and 11, a greater success than resulted last year. The classes for the show will be made public in the near future.

COBOURG LADY DIED SUDDENLY

Was Taken Ill on the Street on Sunday Evening.

DOCTOR TOO LATE

COBOURG, July 31.— Emily Shemmin, wife of Mr. Wm. Foyle, an employee of the car ferry, Ontario, was buried here Wednesday. Her death came with startling suddenness on Sunday evening. As she was returning from a walk with her four children,, she was taken with a weak spell and collapsed on Division street, south. A physician as at once summoned, but when he reached her she had passed away. Besides her husband and family, she has a father living on the Isle of Wight, from which place she came to Cobourg some years ago.

BIG DROP IN LAKE LEVEL

Nearly Two Feet Lower Than Usual at Oshawa.

OSHAWA, July 31.—The level of Lake Ontario has dropped to such an extent that it is causing much concern locally. If it does not rise it will be necessary to dredge the channel in the Oshawa harbor about two feet. The lake level has dropped approximately that amount. It has reduced the intake capacity for the city water supply, but sufficient water is being obtained for the use of the city. The only difficulty that will be experienced is if the level of the lake is not raised and with the growth of the city more water is demanded. The intake was built about three years ago at a cost of $100,000.

The Chicago water steal is attributed as causing the lake to drop a certain extent. The St. Lawrence water scheme is the only solution it is pointed out by City Engineer Smith, who has prepared a report on the local situation for the Government at their request.

FIND DRINKING DIVE

Hut Contained Many Bottles of Beer and Much Brew.

COBOURG, July 31.—An alleged drinking dive near Courtice was discovered by Inspector Goodrich, Provincial Officer. Cousans, Cobourg and Inspector Mason of Oshawa on Sunday. The officers paid an unexpected visit to a small hut where they found four men. There were no women at the place and from glasses and other accessories found there, it gave the appearance of being a drinking dive. At the place were found 150 bottles of beer, 350 empty bottles, 30 gallons of malt and six ten gallon tubs of brew. A B.O.T.A. case is expected to follow.

CAMPBELLFORD PERSONALS

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31.—Mrs. Ralph Free and little child of Windsor are visiting at the home of Mr. Free's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Saunders Free. Mr. Free is expected to join Mrs. Free here this week for a holiday.

Mr. Morley Lyle of Peterboro is visiting at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Samuel Johnston, of Campbellford and at the home of her father, Mr. Thomas Dunk, Crow Bay.

Mrs. Ray Phillips, Misses Elsie Smith, Ada Arnold, M. Frame and Stella Keir were in Picton on Tuesday attending the district meeting of the Rebekah Lodge.

Mrs. T. S. Tait, Mrs. Edward Tait, Miss Helen Tait and Mr. Frank Menzies were in Picton on Tuesday where they were the guests of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher and family of Stirling spent Wednesday in town.

Misses Ruth Plumpton and Agnes Thomson spent Tuesday in Cobourg.

Mrs. John MacFarlane and daughter, Miss Bertha of New Orleans, La., was visiting her sister, Mrs. Doak for a few days.

Personals.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, associate pastor of St. John's church, has returned from his vacation, spent with his family near Barrie. Mr. McIntosh will have charge of the morning and evening services or all the pastoral work of the congregation during August while Rev Wesley Elliott in on his vacation.

Miss Genieve Fraser has returned home after spending a three weeks vacation with Miss Marguerite Faux of Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mason of Cobourg, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clapperton and Mr. and Mrs. J. Patterson of Baltimore motored to Campbellford on Sunday and visited their neice, Mrs. A. P. Hind, and Mrs. Nathan Atkinson of Bay View Farm, Crow Bay.

HASTINGS BOY DIES FAR FROM HIS HOME

Eric Fowlds Suffered Shell Shock in War—Died in Mexico.

HASTINGS, July 31.—The sad news has been received by Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fowlds of the death of their only son, Eric Sutherland, in his thirty-third year.

He was born in Hastings in 1893 and was educated at Toronto University and graduated as an engineer.

When war broke out in 1914 he was one of the engineering staff of the Trent Valley Canal, but enlisted then, going to France with the First Division in 1915. In November, 1915, he suffered from shell shock and general nervous breakdown. In 1917 he returned to France and was on the intelligence work and received a commission in the 7th Battalion. In 1919 he returned home from overseas and resumed his duties on the staff of the Trent Valley Canal where he remained for one year. In 1920 he went to Mexico for the Foundation Company and was later on the construction staff of the Mexican Railways.

He was stationed in Mexico up to the time of his death and was a consulting engineer in Mexico City.

His friend, Dr. Cockrell, who attended him during his recent illness, has written his parents that death was due to an incomplete recovery of shell shock and strain, the effects of the war.

The funeral was held under the Masonic Order and interment took place in the American Cemetery in Mexico City.

MINERS AND OPERATORS LIVE IN PALATIAL BEACH HOTELS WHILE FOLKS WORRY OVER THEIR FUEL

Disagree About Facts and Ignore Findings of Coal Commission.

EXPECT SUSPENSION

Miners Say Operators Will Stall Till Surplus Coal is Used.

By EVANS CLARK.

While our coal supply and the wages of 160,000 men hang in the balance, the anthracite coal operators and mine union officials go through the well-worn motions of negotiation. That the conferees should have chosen Atlantic City for their meeting place is symbolic of the first ten days of the proceedings. The lounge chairs of the Ambassador, where the Union men put up, were as easy as those at the Traymore, where the operators stay—and on hot afternoons the ocean was as tempting as the Boardwalk and the piers in the cool of the evenings.

After two weeks of occasional meetings and continuous hotel bills, the preliminaries are over. If the two weeks just have recorded no definite progress toward a settlement of what is one of the knottiest industrial problems which capital and labor have ever had to untie in this country, they have at least staged a disclosure of the serious issues on which both sides must come to grips when the pressure of time and public opinion eventually forces them to do it.

The present wage agreement has but six weeks to run. Should no new contract be signed by the end of August a "suspension" at the mines will automatically take place. But as far as it concerns the supply of coal there is no distinction between a suspension and a strike. If precedents means anything—and they seem to become more firmly established in coal negotiations with each recurrent crisis—six weeks will leave the negotiatoirs to all public intents and pruposes "as far apart as ever on the essential points at issue." Seasoned obervers see little hope of avoiding at least a suspension for a few weeks, but the operators are vigorous in their denials that anything lies back of the delay except what appears on the surface. The prediction of District President Mattey of the Mine Workers that the employers would "stall along" until the resulting stoppage should have exhausted their surplus coal supply at prices considerably increased has been much resented in the operators' camp.

Coal Inquiry Forgotten.

After the five months' strike that disrupted both hard and soft coal mining at the same time in the Spring of 1922, the American people spent some $600,000 to find out what caused these periodical interruptions in the flow of their coal, and what might be done to prevent them. The United States Coal Commission, authorized by Congress to conduct this investigation, delved deep into the books and records of the industry. It published exhaustive reports and detailed recommendations for improvement, including a special report on the anthracite situation. That was only two years ago; but it might have been a century. Today at Atlantic City miners and operators speak of the commission only on a reminiscent vein. The union has quoted some of the statistics it compiled; but, measured in terms of direct influence on the course of events, the $600,000 might just as well not have been spent.

In spite of the commission's recommendation that the coal industry be considered a public utility with no private right to secrecy of profits, costs and finance, the present negotiations are as much of a private squabble in the dark as they have been in the past—and at the very time when light would be most useful to the public than it has ever been before. For the issue as joined by John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, and Samuel D. Warriner, for the operators, is at bottom an issue of fact.

Reduced to its lowest terms the dispute is as follows: Mr. Lewis asks for an increase in wages for the men. Mr. Warriner answers that to grant it would raise the price of coal beyond what the consumer will pay. Mr. Lewis counters that the increase he asks for need not raise the cost of coal "one cent"—it could be paid for by reducing exorbitant profits and eliminating the wastes of distribution. To which Mr. Warriner replies that only a few operating companies make profits at all, and the margin of those which do would not stand the strain. Mr. Lewis reports that the same interests that own the mines own the distributing companies whose profits are even larger. Then Mr. Lewis produces some figures and Mr. Warriner produces other figures that are different on precisely the same point. Neither side convinces the other and the public is left in the dark as to which of the two deserves its support.

Complicated Side Issues.

Of course there are complicated side issues, some of great importance. One of them sets off the present negotiations as unique in anthracite history. Mr. Warriner contends that the very life of the industry is at stake because of competition by other fuels—a development of the past few years. Unless costs and prices are reduced, he says, these other fuels will win the struggle for markets. He points to the substitution of gas for anthracite in cooking, and of oil for anthracite in heating. He speaks of the possibility of an economical electric heater and of an increasing use of coke and bituminous coal where anthracite used to be burned. Mr. Lewis has nor yet answered this argument; not has Mr. Warriner supported it with detailed and concrete statistics.

Mining, says Mr. Lewis, is an extra-hazardous occupation, which deserves its economic reward, and cites figures taken from the records of the State of Pennsylvania to show an excessive loss of life and limb in the mines. The figures are exaggerated, retorts Mr. Warriner, and he supplies some of his own to show that it is more dangerous to be a doctor than a miner. Miners, he says, are among the most highly paid workers in the country and amply compensated for their work and the risks it involves. He says also that they have received a larger percentage of increase since the war than the workers in the railroad, manufacturing or building industries.

Again, Mr. Warriner suggests arbitration of the present dispute, or at least an agreement on general working conditions and wage rates, adjusted from time to time, without suspension of production by a strike. Mr Lewis, on the other hand, goes out of his way to make clear in advance that the miners will not stand for arbitration of wages and working conditions. The situation is too involved, he says, for any one outside the industry to be enabled to give an intelligent decision, and besides no free American citizen wants to have any one else dictate to him how much money he shall get or how long he has to work. He also points out that the miners have had their bitter experiences with arbitration.

The Union's Position.

The writer asked both Mr. Warriner and Mr. Lewis to summarize the position of those they represent in the pending negotiations. Seated in the lobby of the Ambassador Mr. Lewis talked unreservedly about the situation as he sees it.

Mr. Lewis first took pains to make it clear that he spoke for a united membership in his union, which stood behind him in all the negotiations.

"These demands," he said, "come straight from the rank and file of the miners themselves—they were not put over on them by any official or group of officials."

Hazard of the Mine.

Next he came to the wage situation. Both in his speech at the Tri-District Convention in Scranton and at the opening session of the Atlantic City Convention Mr. Lewis has made it evident that the miners' claims for an increase this year are based primarily on the extra-hazardous nature of the miners' occupation. The union spokesmen have not laid particular stress on the relation between miners' wages and those of workers in other industries.

"What the miner gets today in wages," said Mr. Lewis, "is totally inadequate to compensate him for the risks he faces in his work. The Pennsylvania State Department of Labor reports show that 1,000 men were killed and 40,000 were injured in the two years past and that the rate of injury is growing—29,000 of the total 40,000 were injured last year alone. Mining is as hazardous as war—for the miner; and he takes these risks not as a patriotic duty, but because he has to earn his bread and butter. And yet the average miner gets only $1,600 a year.

Waste and Swollen Profits.

It is clear from the preliminaries that the miners and operators will lock horns most directly on the question of the ability of the industry to pay higher wages to the men without increasing the price of coal to the consumer. The writer asked Mr. Lewis ito be as specific as he could on this point.

"The anthracite miners are not so foolish as to ask for a wage increase that would require an increase of the retail price of coal," Mr. Lewis answered. "The United States Coal Commission's statistics show that the high price of anthracite is not due to high wages but to waste and swollen profits in its distribution and sale. Cut these out and wages could be increased far more to the capital invested in the industry.

"In 1923 the commission found that it cost $4.12 to get a ton of coal out of the ground (labor cost). Counting the increase in wages granted since then, the cost today would be approximately $4.50. But the company sells it at the mine mouth for $8.50 to $8.75, and when it reaches the householder in New York its cost has gone up to $16 to $17. There is plenty of spread between $4.50 and $8.50 to provide an increase in wages without hardship to the companies; but even more in the margin between $8.50 and $16. A large part of this increase is due to the exorbitant rates charged by the very railroads that own the mines for transporting their own coal. These roads charge four times as much to carry anthracite as they do to carry bituminous for the same distance over their lines. Other factors are unnecessary profits of coal sales companies owned by the same interests which own the mines, and of the local distributing companies—in which the same interests have a share of control."

It looks at this stage in the proceedings as if arbitration would be the issue on which the employers will make their final stand before the public. That Mr. Lewis expects it was shown by the answer he made to this point in advance of its being made by Mr. Warriner in the opening session of the negotiations. The operators undoubtedly believe it is their trump card and they evidently intend to play it when opportunity offers. Some close observers of the situation see the probability of intervention by President Coolidge if a deadlock should bring an extended suspension at the mines, and they talk of the vast political implications that may follow. In urging arbitration the operators undoubtedly are also playing for this eventuality. The writer, therefore, asked Mr. Lewis to state his position on this point frankly and in detail.

"In a complicated industrial situation such as this," he said, "only those inside the industry, and who know it first hand, can possibly adjust wages and working conditions with intelligence and justice. Moreover, the members of the United Mine Workers will not consent to submit questions which affect their intimate personal affairs to any one else for a decision.

"Who ever heard of a doctor or lawyer allowing the fees he charges patients or clients to be fixed by some third party, particularly if that third party was neither a doctor nor a lawyer?

"Then, too, the United Mine Workers have had experiences with so-called 'impartial arbitration' which has destroyed our confidence in it. In 1922, for example, when the bituminous miners received a 27 per cent. increase, we were given to understand the day before the arbitrators' decision was announced that the anthracite miners would be granted a similar increase. When the award was made public it turned out to be only 17 per cent. Something happened overnight which cost the hard coal miners $35,000,000 in two years—and embittered them toward arbitration forever. 'Keeping close to the arbitrator' is the well-known policy of the operators, but it does not win the confidence of the men."

The Case for the Operators.

Asked to state the case for the operators, Mr. Warriner began by taking a gloomy view of the possibility of a settlement before the agreement runs out and sought to put the responsibility for such an outcome directly on the union representatives in advance.

"There are, as I see it," he said, "two fundamental difficulties in arriving at an agreement with the miners prior to the expiration of the present agreement. The first difficulty arises out of the fact that the miners and their spokesmen, in seeking to impose further increases in the wage structure, either deliberately ignore or are unaware of the realities of the anthracite situation. The second difficulty is that, in the determination of the facts or for the purpose of arriving at a fair settlement, they positively decline to submit points in controversy to arbitration."

"The simple fact is that anthracite cannot be sold freely in normal quantity at the present prices. Much less can anything be added to present prices and still maintain a market large enough to keep the mines in operation and the workers employed. In my formal reply to the miners at Atlantic City on July 9, I made a rough estimate of $100,000,000 as the cost of complying with the wage and other demands now presented to us. Some of my associates think this figure was much too low, and most of them think these demands would mean adding from $2 to $3 a ton to the price of domestic anthracite. The mere statement of this fact shows the impossibility of the miners getting their demands.

"The annual earnings of anthracite workers are already higher than the most highly paid employes of which we can find a record. One reason for this is, of course, the regularity or continuity of employment; but whatever the reason, the fact remains that all anthracite employes, 42 per cent. of whom are unskilled, are making upward of $2,000 a year, while contract miners average in excess of $2,500 a year.

"These earnings are not only ample compensation for the work done, but they also compensate for the so-called hazards of the industry. These hazards, by the way, are greatly exaggerated. Government statistics have proved that approximately 80 per cent. of all accidents reported in the anthracite field are of such a trifling nature that the worker does not lose sufficient time to come within the provisions of the compensation act.

"But there are many people, including the miners, I suppose, who think that the profits of the industry are such that higher labor and other costs can be taken care of out of the profits realized. It cannot be done. Twenty per cent. of the production is being marketed under present conditions at a loss. This manifestly cannot continue if these producers are to stay in the business. The middle or average cost producers are not making any money at present prices and with present costs.

LADY HAIG SEES NIAGARA FROM THE AIR.

OLD FOLK SPEND HAPPY HOURS AS PROTESTANT HOME GUESTS

OLDEST 95

Located on a commanding position on Anson street stands the Protestant Home, at once a comfortable haven of refuge for declining old age and a memorial to the thoughts and endeavors of good women of a past generation in Peterborough.

Fifty years ago a Peterborough lady, Mrs. Louisa Wallace, impressed by the loneliness and hardship that invariably accompanied indigent old age, set herself to the task of ameliorating these conditions. Assisted by several other like-minded women, she founded an old people's home on Stewart street. A Government grant was promised annually and for many years the home was a boon to the aged and infirm.

In the year 1911 the Government subsidy was withdrawn on the ground that the house was insanitary and that its situation was inconvenient. The ladies of the present board, feeling that the Stewart street building was inadequately equipped, set themselves to secure funds for the erection of a new and up-to-date building. Their efforts were crowned with success, and on May, 1912, the corner-stone of the present handsome and commodious home was laid with impressive ceremony.

The Protestant Home was one of the institutions in the city which benefitted by the will of the late Mrs. Nicholls. It is also sustained by grants from the Government and from the city of Peterborough. A small revenue is also derived from several paying inmates, the institution being allowed to use one-third of its accomodation for the reception of such as can pay something towards their maintenance in the Home. Only persons resident within the city of Peterborough are admitted, and unless in very exceptional instances no one is admitted under 60 years of age.

Officials of Board.

The officials of the present Board of Directors are: Mrs. Robert Neill, President; Mrs. Duncan Walker, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. Robert Hall, 2nd Vice-President; Mrs. DeLaFosse, Secretary; Miss Robinson, Treasurer. Three male Directors—H. Rush, J. A. Aylmer and E. F. Mason—constitute an Advisory Board. In addition, each of the churches in the city nominates a representative. Miss Lancaster, the Superintendent, has been in charge since 1912.

The house is divided into two sections—one for men and one for women. There are 39 inmates at present in the Home, 22 women and 17 men. Four of the women are over 90, the eldest of whom is 95 and has been in the Home for the past 7 years. Among the women are a mother and her two daughters. Also inmates are a husband and wife, who occupy a large comfortable room with three windows and a glass door leading onto the balcony.

The Protestant Home is unique among the institutions of Ontario as being the only one where a husband and wife can live together as inmates. There have been no less than five aged married couples admitted to the Home during the term of office of the present Superintendent. The majority of the inmates are Canadian-born, a very small proportion being natives of the Old Country.

Generally the produce grown in the garden supplies the vegetable needs of the Home and a great deal of the fruit. Much of the food required for the animals is also raised on the grounds of the institution. Some of the most robust inmates work in the garden, pick berries and so on, but the greater proportion are too frail for physical effort.

The rooms are light and airy and are kept spotlessly clean. There is a well furnished sitting-room for men and one for women. A number of the rooms are furnished as memorials to men and women who befriended the institution in former years.

Everything is done to make the old people feel at home and to let them spend the evening of their days in comfort and happiness. The rules are not rigid; the official and institutional atmosphere common to such shelters is nowhere in evidence. Visitors are welcomed every day, especially between 3 and 5 in the afternoon. Young people from the city frequently visit the institution for the purpose of entertaining the old folks and, in the summer time, fraternal organizations take them out to the country. The doctors of the city give service, each taking a month in turn. A practical nurse is always at hand. The clergymen of the city hold services on Sundays.

Many old people who come to the institution improve physically after admission, to which the regular hours and regular meals, the abundance of fresh air, the cheerful surroundings and the expert supervision are important contributory factors.

Miss Lancaster has suggested that any young people desirous of helping the old spend an occasional hour among them reading aloud the current news. Many of the inmates took a keen interest in the events of the outside world and formerly read the newspapers with avidity, but are now debarred from reading by failing eyesight. Any service that could be rendered along this line would be greatly appreciated both by the inmates and by Miss Lancaster.

SEEK RECOGNITION.

Congress of Dentists Ask International Acknowledgment of Professional Designation.

VIENNA, July 30. — Associated Press. — The recent International Congress of Dentists adopted a resolution asking the authorities for official recognition of the professional designation of "dentist." The resolution also urged all countries to give international legal recognition to dentists, so that a dentist of one country would have full legal rights to practice in any other country.

Other provisions sought legal regulation of dental courses of training, governmental guaranteed diplomas, and the extensions of sick benefit insurance to dentists.

BOY HANGED HIMSELF.

Committed Suicide While Grandparents Had Left Him Alone.

MORRIS, Man., July 31 (Canadian Press).—Frank Henchell, 11 years old, who lived with his grand parents here, committed suicide while they were absent from home yesterday. The youngster tied a fine rope over a spike in the barn wall and hanged himself.

TWELVE NAMES ADDED TO LIST

Additions to Roll of Peterborough's War Dead Continue to Come In.

CORRECTIONS MADE.

Twelve more names are added to the list of Peterborough's soldier dead by relatives and friends of the men. Some of these were killed in action, some were reported missing and have never been found, and one or two have died since returning to Canada.

It is desired to make the list complete, both for the use of The Examiner in future years and for the records of the Veterans' organization, and further additions will be gratefully received.

The following is to-day's list:
Pte. W. J. Long, 2nd Battalion.
Pte. C. A. W. Dean, 16th Battalion.
T. Roach, C. F. A.
Pte. A. E. McFarlane, 8th C. M. R.

Pte. N. Hill.
Pte. W. Melling.
Pte. E. Manley.
Pte. Walter S. Dawson, 39th Battalion.
Pte. Fred Wicker, 93rd Battalion.
Pte. Ed. Wicker, 204th Battalion.
Pte. Arthur Stuart Anderson.
The following corrections are made:
C. A. Henry should read H. A. Henry.
H. Lobey should read H. Lacey.

Since it has been recognized that flies carry filth and disease, butchers have been striving to find a way to keep these insect pests from making a picnic grounds of their meat blocks. They tried special screens and other ways, but they were not entirely successful. Now, butchers have discovered that the strong, steady breeze of an electric fan is the best possible way of being rid of flies.

HOW LONDON TAKES A HEAT WAVE

LONDON, July 31 (United Press)—When the summer heat of London gets to be that of the average American flat in wintertime Londoners get all excited over the "current heat wave!"

When it gets to be 80 degrees the newspapers devote about half a page of space daily to "blistering weather." And if it should happen that it doesn't rain for three days during a spell of this weather, a great cry goes up that the country is in imminent danger of a "drought."

Wear Coats

A Britisher's conception of how to keep cool on a warm day is to drink more ale, eat more meat, and on occasion of extreme provocation to take off his vest. But his coat—take that off? Never! Impossible! Why, it simply isn't done, doncher know!

So it is that on the hottest of London days one can walk through miles of streets of London and never see a man walking along in his shirt sleeevs. It is a matter of form that a coat should be worn-always-when one is on the street. And the Englishman therefore wears it always. He would as soon think of walking down the Strand without his pants, as he would without his coat.

Nor is it a light cool comfortable coat of palm beach cloth or some similar material such as a Canadian would wear on a similar day in Canada, but is instead the same heavy woolen suit such as he wears on the coldest days in winter. To make matters worse for himself underneath the woolen suit he wears woolen underwear with sleeves reaching to the wrist and leg length to the ankles.

Different On The River.

Yet curiously enough the Englishman knows perfectly well how to dress to keep cool in hot weather. The same man that one might see walking down Regent street in the morning mopping his brow under a tall silk hat, with a heavy woolen suit buttoned tightly across his chest might be seen on the afternoon of the same day poling a punt along the River Thames in white flannel trousers, and white silk shirt, He will be hatless and his sleeves well rolled above his elbows. He will be suitably dressed in the afternoon for hot weather, as in the morning he was unsuitably dressed.

The same map, and the same day. Only it is "the thing" to wear heavy woolens; and in the afternoon it is "the thing" to wear white silks and flannels. It is a case of comfort vs. custom, and custom wins!

Food and Drink.

Yet it is not only in the matter of clothes that the Englisnman seems determined to make himself miserable in hot weather. It extends also in the field of drinks and foods. Ice cream to be an almost unknown item in London. One orders a glass of ale at a bar in summertime is served with a tepid amber fluid that would draw a protest even in "dry" Canada.

The "kick" is there, it is true, and it is a good strong kick, but the flaccid taste of the brew due to its luke-warm temperature would bring bubbles of self-congratulation to the "head" of many a glass of near-beer served in Canada.

On of the menus in restaurants appears the inscription "Iced Milk"; but when it is served it is so warm that one wonders whether the cow it came from is not standing just outside the back door.

No Fans.

And as for fans, it is doubtful if an Englishman never outside the confines of his native Isles, ever felt the breeze and hum of comfort that good fan brings to Canadians on a scorching day.

"It was so hot in my room last night that I couldn't sleep a wink" says the Englishman. "There wasn't a breath of air all night." Probably there wasn't either; and all for the lack of a fan.

Another curious feature of the super-modesty Britishers have about appearing on the streets in shirt-sleeves or otherwise negligee attire is the fact that when they are on the beaches any old thing or rather practically nothing at all serves the purpose of a bathing suit.

There, they and the women also, go to the other extreme of freedom of undress, so much so in fact that the nudity of swimmers taking sun baths. Mostly they seem to be able controversy in churches and city councils as to the propriety of sun baths. Mostl ythey seem to be regarded as perfectly proper.

Leave It to Girls.

But even though the men don't seem to know how to dress comfortably for business in hot weather, the girls of England have developed the question of keeping cool to a fine art. The dresses they wear on hot days are mostly sleeveless from the top of the shoulder down. Dress materials are thin and flimsy and at times reveal somewhat startlingly intimate details of the movements of the wearers body.

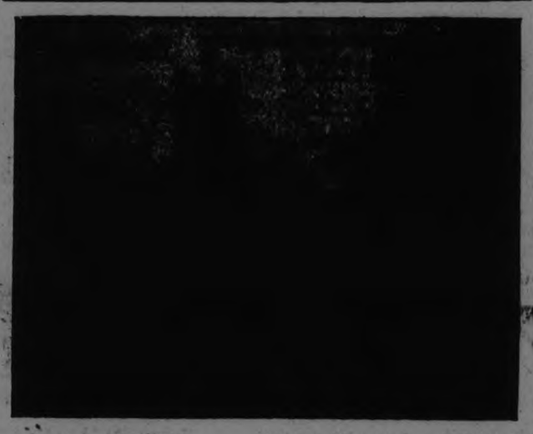
And as for stockings—numbers of the girls seem to consider that the one cooler thing than silk stockings is no stockings at all. In fact a considerable clique is spreading the gospel of stockingless with evidences of increasing success.

Just how seriously the Englishman takes this matter of being "properly dressed" regardless of the weather is illustrated by the sensation Premier Stanley Baldwin caused by his recent appearance at a cricket match minus his vest. It was the hottest day on record this year, but everywhere there was an amazed craming of necks and a rush of press photographers to snap his picture in this unconventional attire!

SCENE OF DUNSEATH FARM DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Scenes at the Dunseath farm in Mulmur Township, Dufferin County, Ontario, are shown above, together with the principals in the double tragedy which involved the slaying of Mrs. Edward Dunseath, aged 30, and the cremation of a second person when the barn and thirty tons of hay went up in flames about the time of the slaying. At the left of the illustration is James Dunseath, father-in-law of the dead woman and father of the man whose farm was burned. At the right of the illustration are shown Edward, his late wife and two children. Below two neighbors are seen looking at the spot where Mrs. Dunseath was attacked while on her way home from berry-picking by an assailant who battered in her head with a hoe-handle. All that now remains of the structure is the stone foundation and a few charred posts. Beside one of these, and marked above by a cross, some bones were found in the smouldering ashes. These were identified as those of a human being and included part of a skull. In the oval on the lower right is Frank Dunseath, the elder brother. He has not been seen since about an hour before the slaying on Monday afternoon. Whether or not the powdered and crumbled bones found in the remains of the burned barn are those of Frank Dunseath is one of the questions which will come before the coroner's jury when it meets at Shelburne on Friday, July 31.

PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES



ST. ANDREW'S.

While Peterborough is not in a position to dispute with Toronto the title of the "City of Churches," nevertheless there are sufficient numbers of sacred edifices to attest the fact that the city is not unmindful of the truth that "man does not live by bread alone." The churches of Peterborough are, generally speaking, buildings that enhance the appearance of the city. Their influence on the life of the community has been manifest almost since the first settlement, exactly 100 years ago; so a brief sketch of the history and architecture of each seems opportune at the present time.

Peterborough was a small, unpretentious, struggling, straggling village in 1836 when a Presbyterian church, St. Andrew's, (now the United Church) was built at the head of Brock street. This was a very plain but very solid and substantial building. It served as a place of worship for half a century, when it was demolished and the present St. Andrew's Church erected on the same site of the old one at a cost of $25,000. St. Andrew's is built in the Gothic style of architecture and is of white brick with free stone trimmings. It has a fine pipe organ and is lighted by electric lamps. Recently a new Sunday School building was erected beside the church.

The manse stands on a church lot which is bounded by four streets, Rubidge, Reid, Brock and Kirk.

The present minister. Rev. J. W. Gordon, was called to St. Andrew's on February 14, 1924.

SAYS CAPITAL GIVES WORKER HIS POSITION

Sir George Hunter Says Capitalists Are Making Great Sacrifices.

WORKERS HELP

Blames People in Sheltered Trades for Keeping Up Costs.

In an address made at the launching of the ship Glenledi from the Wallsend shipyards, at Jarrow, England, Sir George Hunter siad that great sacrifices are being made by both the shipbuilding employers and the workers, to make possible the carrying on of the shipbuilding industry in Great Britain. According to advices received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, Sir George said that he had noticed that the president of the Board of Trade had stated that it was the duty of the government to tell the truth without fear. Sir George added, that if it was the duty of the government it was the duty of everyone else interested in the country. One thing, he said that people did not realize, was that but for capital and capitalism everyone would be unemployed. It was only through the reserves of capital that people could get orders and go on building ships at all. They were told by some of the labor leaders and employers that capital ought to make sacrifices. They were making great sacrifices. The shipbuilding fraternity were giving up all their profit, not only part of it. He wished that they might even get 1 p.c. profit. The workmen were making sacrifices too. They were co-operating with the employers. On the other hand, the people in the sheltered trades, or as we would say in this country, the protected trades, were not co-operating with them, and were keeping up costs, and were keeping them from stemming the unemployment. He was convinced that they would have to work harder and longer, and until that was realized they would not be able to terminate unemployment. He said it depended mainly on the railway men and miners. He could not see how they were going to have a chance of prosperity so long as miners were working only 7 hours a day, whereas in other countries they were working up to 10 hours a day.

The Glenledi is an unusual vessel, because although it will eventually be 379 feet in lnegth and carry 4,825 tons on 18 foot draught in fresh wtaer, it is being built to dimensions suitable for passing trough the locks of the Welland Canal, Ontario, by omitting 144 feet of the midship body. This portion will be fabricated at the builders' yard and taken out to the Great Lakes in the ship herself, which after passing through the canal will be docked, cut in two, and the fabricated portion built in place by the owners, thus completing her full dimensions of 379 feet.

TO BEAUTIFY TOKYO.

American Contractor to Build New and Improved Streets.

TOKIO, July 31.—(Associated Press).—The Ginza Merchants' League has inaugurated a movement for improving and beautifying Ginza street, the Broadway of Japan's capital.

It is planned to place the reconstruction work in the hands of an American contractor, the cost of the improvements being estimated at 60,000,000 yen. This sum it is hoped to raise by a loan in the United States under a Government guarantee, with redemption provided for in 20 years.

LOWER SCHOOL.

Examination Results in Peterborough Collegiate Institute Sent Out.

The results of the Departmental Lower School Examination were received on Thursday. By the next mail those who failed received a statement of their marks. The successful candidates will receive their certificates when school reopens in September.

CORNER STONE LAID.

Hon. G. S. Henry Officiated at New Government Offices Yesterday.

TORONTO, July 31 (Canadian Press).—Little formality marked the laying of the corner stone of the new $2,000,000 east block of the Ontario Government offices yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large crowd, by Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Public Works, and Acting Premier.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

We, some of us have reached the age when boyish pleasures seem to pall.
So now we turn an idle page and dream of that old game of ball.
Our boyish pleasures all are o'er in this, the city of the dead.
The baseball diamonds are no more.
A tombstone marks the place instead.

The city took away our drink and left us here to dry and crack.
Our consolation is the sink. The booze is never coming back.
It hired a man to catch the dogs which snapped at people's heels
by day.
He caught the ones that wouldn't bite. The biters—they are here to stay.

It passed a law to stop the cars from parking by the corner store.
So many went behind the bars, the tourists won't come here no more.
And then it gave us four point four and boldly said it was a drink.
I wonder what it takes us for?
Thank God we still have brains to think.

And now it's passed another law.
The bathing beaches have to close
On Sunday. If one wants a bath, there still remains the garden hose
The city now should form a plan.
A notice on the highway place
For all the tourist's cars to scan.
A warning so they'll shun the place.

Detour, Detour, Unclean, Disgraced.
This is a city of the dead.
Detour, and leave this awful place to rest in peace Drive not ahead.
Of all the words of thought or pen,
that have the most appeal to me,
The saddest are "It might have been." Oh, what might not our city be?

It might have been, a place of rest.
It might have been, the journey's end.
It might have been, among the best
It might have been, the home of friends.
But why go on with "Might have been?" The saddest words that now I see;
The best adapted to the scene, "It is, but hadn't ought to be."

MILLBROOK PICNIC.

Boneka Bible Class Has Big Day at Mr. Byam's Home.

MILLBROOK, July 31. — Fine weather favored the annual outing of the Boneka Bible Class in connection with the United Sunday school, which was held on Thursday afternoon on the spacious lawns of Mr. J. L. Byam's residence, Bank street.

The Boneka class is largely composed of the younger married women of the school, and over 40 of the members, with their families and friends were present on Thursday, when a most enjoyable time was spent.

The hostesses of the day included Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. W. H. Byam, Sr., her daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) R. J. Stillwell, of Douglas, South Georgia, and ex-teacher of Boneka class, and these assisted by the present teacher, Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, and the president, Mrs. F. W. Smith, received the guests, doing all in their power to provide for the comfort and entertainment of young and old throughout the entire gathering.

The place of meeting was well chosen, the situation bei : ideal as to natural beauty, and convenience of location, the grounds affo ding ample space for the various races, games etc., while the wide verandahs furnished comfortable resting places for th: older folks who preferred being onlookers, with the quieter enjoyment of social converse.

Croquet, carpet balls and other games, gave employment until all were assembled, when the programme of races was successfully carried out under the efficient leadership of Rev. F. H. Howard, the results being as follows:

Children's races, ranging in age from 2 years up to 7:

First race: Phyllis Lunn, Donald Williamson, Peggy Howe.

Second race: Bobby McConnell, Esther Might.

Third race: Harry Gervan, Marjorie McDowell.

Fourth race: Ida Lunn, Norma Williamson.

Boys and girls of 9 years: Anna Rowland, Elwood Fallis.

Race for those whose hair was not bobbed: Mrs. Garside, Mrs. I. Hatherly.

Slow race (last to finish the prize winner): Mrs. E. McConnell, Mrs. M. McDowell.

Race for those whost hair was not bobbed: Mrs. Garside, Mrs. I. Hatherly.

Slow race (last to finish the prize winner): Mrs. E. McConnell, Mrs. M. McDowell.

Pinning stockings on the clothes line race: Mrs. J. Todd and Mrs. H. Lang, captains; Mrs. Todd's side won

The men had a hat trimming contest of their own, the effect aimed at apparently being on the side of the ludicrous. Each contestant was obliged to wear the result of his own efforts in a "fashion parade" ariund the grounds, while a committee of ladies judged the millinery creations. Prizes were awarded to Mr. Howard and Dr W. Mitchell. The boxes of chocolates given as prizes in the last three contests were generously shared with all the participants.

Tea was served in regular picnic style on the lawn and judging by the rapidity with which plates of sandwiches, cake, pies and tarts disappeared, to say nothing of the large bowls of salads, it is safe to predict that no one went away hungry.

A musical programme which followed the supper was an especially enjoyable feature of the gathering, those contributing being the Byam family orchestra, cornet solos by Ernest Burnham, and contralto solos by Mrs. Goring, a visitor from Barrie.

Among those present (not including the young folk of varying ages, were: Mrs. W. Mullen, Mrs. L. Rae, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. F. W. Smith, Dr. W. and Mrs. Mitchell, Rev. R. J. and Mrs. Stillwell, Mrs G. E. Burnham, Mrs. A. Sutton, Mrs. G. Fallis, Mrs Edgar Fallis, Mrs. J. Todd, Mrs. J.McComb Mrs. V. C. Lambert, Mrs. James Might, Mrs. Russell Ho Mrs. E. McConnell, Mrs. Goring, Mrs. M. Weatherup, Mrs. G. Freelove. Mrs. A. Perrin, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mrs. C. W. Richards, Mrs. H. Lang, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. G. Locke, Mrs. Walter Williamson, Mrs T. Douglas, Mrs. L. Larmer, Mrs. M. McDowell, Mrs. Pa inder, Mrs. H. Lunn, Misses A. Hampton, Estelle Hetherington and Irene Fee.

Mrs. Stillwell, wh for several years previous to her marriage was the much loved teacher of the Boneka class, has been invited to take charge of the lesson period next Sunday.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Show windows at home

YOU can get a degree of enjoyment just by looking at show windows . . . seeing the clocks, radios, fountain pens you might like to own. But you can't be sure you'd like them till you know their unseen merits. What they do, how well they do it, how long they'll keep on doing it well.

When you look at advertisements, you are looking at show windows that display not only what you see, but what you can't see. The product, its quality, use, pleasure to you. All you want to know about it—yours at a glance. You don't need to walk blocks to see what's new . . . nor look at it in doubt. Nothing doubtful is offered. It can't be doubtful and be widely advertised. You are as sure of a product's worth as if you saw it in a window, asked about it, examined it, took it home and tried it. The facts in advertisements are the facts of actual use.

You can get more than enjoyment out of these show windows at home. You can get solid economy.

TREES MAKE LOVELY SETTING FOR PETERBORO'S BUILDINGS

Only Largest Piles of Stones and Brick Are Seen Above Green.

FOREST CITY.

Downward View is Hindered and Brightened By Beautiful Trees.

It is usually understood that Peterborough is a city, but to the visitor who views it from a height it reveals itself as a great forest through which the houses peep, Church spires and factory stacks protrude, and a river threads its sinuous way.

This discovery was made from the height of the Quaker Oats water tank, through the courtesy of the management and Wm. E. Perdue, who guided the visitor to the lofty vantage point.

At a level of approximately 235 feet above solid ground, a commanding view was obtained of the surrounding country, a view whose scope was from 15 to 20 miles in all directions.

The eye naturally took in first, the distant reaches and the horizon line, smoky with distance and serrated by a hundred hills, stretched in one vast circumference which gave a sense of the magnitude of nature and the paucity of mortals who attempted to impose their petty laws and restrictions upon it. Man may be a very significant figure when viewed from ground level but a greater breadth of vision tends to show that, after all, he is but a slight creation.

As the eye visioned narrowing circles, the city came to view, and here again was apparent the ineffectiveness of human effort.

For a hundred years men have labored here, their first efforts to carve homes out of the forest, then to populate the place with dwellings, factories, churches, and schools until the vastness of a city was accomplished. Now thousands of trees very effectively tone down the rudeness of the structures, lending beauty to ugliness.

A river winds through Peterborough, cleaving the city into two parts. At one time bordered with overhanging trees and vines, now flanked with barren places and a huge saw dust heap, the relic of a sawmill which was satiated years ago. Logs fill the waterway once again.

Here are amazing possibilities of beauty. If all the river were like the islands below the ball park the fairies would return to Peterborough.

Civic care and a manifestation of civic pride could cultivate and bring once more to the river banks the loveliness which once dwelt there.

Beautiful Victas.

On this morning the air was wonderfully clear, scarcely a vestige of smoke marred the view and the public buildings stood out with remarkable clarity. Far to the north, the dome of the Normal School peeped from the surrounding trees, while distance lent a peculiar glamour to the hospitals, throwing them into clear cut relief as if etched by a master craftsman. To the west, church spires stabbed the sky, gleaming in the light of the morning sun, while long chimneys stood marvellously straight and tall, impinged in the blue distance.

Victoria Park, a dense wood, crowned by the county buildings, a veritable haven of cool greenery, appeared almost below while the harsh bastions of the court yard contrasted sharply with the ivy clad tower of St. John's Church.

To the southward, the Otonabee twisted around Little Lake cemetery, which thrust its verdant promontory into the limpid lake. A steamer, looking small and unimportant, was veering away from George street dock. Ugly steel bridges forced their rude lattice work on the consciousness.

Ashburnham conveyed an atmosphere of peace, promoted by the green clad Engleburn Avenue, the flat, clipped expanse of the ball park and, farther afield, the bald top of Amour hill. Buildings on this hill stood out clearly, while peering over the top, could be discerned the summit of the lift lock tower. The most of the city schools made a bid for prominence, the Queen Mary, Queen Alexander, King George, Prince of Wales, King Edward and the Collegiate, showing distinctly.

Only the largest buildings and downtown George Street, however, can compete with the host of trees which cast their grateful shade on all Peterborough streets. Well might this be called a forest city and the people should be proud of the beautiful heritage which Nature has fostered, doing all in their power to cultivate and increase the sylvan population.

EARTHQUAKE FELT.

Town of Carignola, in Italy, Was Damaged and Populace Panic Stricken.

LONDON, July 31 (Canadian Press).—A despatch from Rome says that earthquake shocks at Carignola, in the province of Foggia, between Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, damaged more than one thousand buildings. The population was thrown into a panic.

"Campin' Out"

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

Dad buys a tent that's as small as can be. It's two feet and six inches tall. A "pup" tent they call it and, take it from me, there's room for a pup—and that's all.

He promised the kids that he'd buy it that day, so they pick out a camp spot that's right. At Supper time Dad gets a husky hurray, and the "pup" tent is hoisted that night.

Mom stands, and she smiles, at the old kitchen door. Her youngsters are out in the yard. There's fussin' and fuminn'; excitement galore, as the kids make an easy job hard.

A block from the house there's a small vacant lot and that's where the tent's been put up. The tiny affair is just right, like as not for the two little kids and their pup.

How small! Yet, how big! It's a knockout affair. It's made so it keeps out the damp. The moon finds the trio a snoozin' in there, and the innocent kids call it camp!

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY HAS A PLEASANT SURPRISE

One day while Dotty was visiting her Aunt who lived in New Zealand, she was surprised in her walk by the sweetest songs floating out from a bush near the roadside.

Dotty glanced over at the bush and there sat a dear little black bird with two white bands extending downward from his throat. His wings were so black they shone in the sunlight.

"Oh, you beautiful fellow!" Betty whispered softly. "I wonder who you are?"

"Mr. Parson Bird, if you please," chirped the merry black fellow, "I can tell you are not a native of New Zealand or you would know a parson bird when you see one."

"No, I'm not a native, and I'm mighty glad to meet you Mr. Parson Bird," said Dotty politely. "You have as lovely a song as you have a glossy back."

Mr. Parson Bird, feeling a song coming on, puffed out his feathers, lifted his head, opened his mouth, and with his tongue raised high in his mouth, burst into a lovely song.

"Tu-whit, tu-whit, tu-oo-oo,
Now what shall I sing for you?

"Oh, You Beautiful Fellow!"

The sky is blue over head,
Soon be time to go to bed.
Tu-whit, tu-whit, tu-oo-oo,
Happy dreams, good-night to you."

There was a rustle among the leaves of the bush and another feathery head poked out and gave a happy chirp.

"Miss Dotty, this is my wife, Mama Parson Bird," laughed Daddy Parson Bird. "Did you hear me singing?"

"I certainly did," chirped Mrs. Parson Bird, "That's why I came out to see who you were singing for."

"He certainly has a pretty song," laughed Dotty. "You should be proud of him."

"Indeed I'm proud of him," smiled Mrs. Parson Bird. "But he has cause to be proud of me too."

"I sure have," laughed Mr. Parson Bird. "Dotty, my wife can sing as well if not better than I can. You very seldom find female birds that can sing as Mrs. Parson Bird."

"I'd sing for you now," chuckled Mrs. Parson Bird, "but I've a nest full of eggs that must be kept warm. Want to peek in and see our nest?"

Dotty nodded and Mrs. Parson Bird showed her the lovely nest, built on a foundation of stout sticks and twigs in a fork of the bush, just about three feet from the ground. Its little walls were fashioned of moss and lichens all lined with soft fine grass. The white eggs were powdered with reddish brown spots and specks nestled in the bottom.

"If you come by tomorrow, you might stop," said Mrs. Parson Bird, climbing back on her nest, "For then you'll see three naked little baby birds. Excuse me now, I'm busy."

Dotty promised to peck into the nest the next day and thanking Mr. and Mrs. Parson Bird, she ran back to tell her Aunt what she had seen.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, AUGUST 1

A lively and eventful day is forecast from the sidereal activities in power. The tendency may be toward enterprise and large ventures, but a note of warning is sounded against abrupt change and ill-considered journeys, since these might not be advantageous. Fresh projects and important changes should be taken under advisement for further constructive efforts. Those in the employment of others are warned to be careful.

Those whose birthday it is are under a rather hazardous year, in which things may be lively and trend toward new projects of importance, but these may not prosper under sudden change or hasty journeys. They should thrive under deliberate handling and in established grooves. A child born on this day may be lively, enterprising and lean toward large ventures, but eccentricities or abruptness may prove a factor against success.

A woman centenarian, aged 105, has recently crossed the Atlantic from America on her way to her home in Beirut.

Every street in Paris has been visited on foot by an American officer and his daughter, aged seventeen.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE CHARITY BECOMES OBLIGATORY

The New Year is celebrated far more elaborately in Persia than in the Western world. Not merely a single day but a month is consumed in the attending festivities. And that month offers golden opportunities, to the begging

He Camps Beside the Door

dervishes who are so numerous throughout the country.

Under ordinary circumstances, the begging dervish wends his way along the street, with dignity and piety stamped upon his face. Occasionally they stop and offer a flower or a lemon, for which you must give a coin.

But matters change around New Year's.

He chooses his victim and he is careful to choose one who is wealthy. Then he literally camps beside the doorstep until he has achieved his purpose.

He makes his temporary home quite comfortable and settles there with his little garden, consisting of a mud pile decorated with flowers and pebbles and beads. Here he sits calmly smoking his pipe. All of his earthly beongings are gathered about him. His wooden stick, studded with spikes, his leopard skin, all the emblems of his trade, are hung up on the wall behind him. His all-important cup, or calabash, carved from the shell of an Indian nut, hangs there too. It is at once a receptacle for the coins he collects and a drinking cup.

All the day, the dervish sits before his tent and when the owner of the house to which he has attached himself appears, he screams his cry of "Hakk, Ya Hakk" which means "Oh, Truth, Oh God!" When he becomes impatient and feels that he has waited long enough, he blows loudly on his horn, by day or by night, until the poor persecuted family is willing to give him anything in order to be rid of him.

That is the surest way for a beggar to earn his due reward.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

HEAT IS NO PERIL IF YOU ARE HEALTHY

Not so long ago the whole country sweltered. Some peculiar freak of Nature caused an atmospheric "lane" to form, and through it rushed all the superheated air of South America. The papers recorded scores of deaths, said to be due to the heat.

A healthy body, supplied with healthy and normal organs, will resist all the trying effects of weather. "Neither rain, nor snow, nor heat, nor gloom of night," can break down the resistance of perfect health.

If one has a weak heart, brittle blood vessels, or diseased kidneys, there may be a giving way in face of extreme heat or extreme cold. But after all it is not the weather, but the underlying physical weakness which must be charged with the high mortality.

Of course. You should take no chances and should not abuse your body during a prolonged hot spell or on a hot day.

You will recall the question put to the Mississippi River pilot: "Do you know where all the rocks and sandbars are?" When he said "No," and the questioner looked upon him in wonderment, the pilot said: "But I do know where the safe channel is."

You may not know you have any physical defects, but you do know that by leading a certain kind of life you can avoid trouble, even if the defects exist.

Most of us eat too much all the time. If we courted the real good of our bodies we would be more temperate every day. But on excessively hot days we should observe strictly a positive rule not to overeat.

It is a silly idea we have that we will get weak if we don't eat. On any given day you get practically no substantial benefit for the food you eat that day. It takes many hours to digest and to assimilate a meal.

More than this, much of the food you take is so intermingled with waste material and valueless substances that you put upon your organs the most unnecessary effort. Even though you are willing to do this in ordinary times, you cannot afford not to ease up on your vitals on a hot day.

Perhaps if we had enough hot days and you were careful to limit the intake on every week day, you might grow sylphlike in figure. At least your powers of resistance would be materially increased by your moderation.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. G. H. Q.—What can I do for my hair that is falling out?

A.—Shampoo the hair frequently and use a good tonic. For further particulars kindly send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

MRS. M. C. D. Q.—What will act as a builder? My health seems good, but I am very thin.

A.—Build up your general health and your entire system will benefit and you will gain in weight as well. For full particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

D. K. Q.—I am fifty-one years of age and suffering from a fallen stomach. Would you advise an operation?

A.—Your doctor should be the one to advise you, since this condition requires specific treatment in each case.

J. W. F. Q.—What shall I do for indigestion?

A.—You should eat the simplest kinds of food. Be sure to have regular intestinal eliminations. For further particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address ALL INQUIRIES to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this office.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

NATURE LORE

By WALLACE HADELOCK ROBB

Only yesterday, a man on the way home from the golf club, stopped to talk with me about some Kingbirds I was watching.

I tried to interest the man in the Kingbird and did so to his delight, but he insisted on telling me about a robin over at the club house.

"The robin is a swell bird," said the golfer; "it is certainly a swell bird; everybody is watching that robin, over on the club veranda, it feeds its young oges, with golfers almost climbing into the nest."

There are so many real interesting bird stories that sometimes I hesitate to tell too many robin stories, but here is one.

A locomotive engineer on a branch line, running a train that was seldom broken, having the same cars day in and day out, noticed that a robin was riding the tender, and getting worms at stations, then riding again.

Careful observation betrayed the open secret, which was a nest on the truck of the baggage car. A nest with young ones. How the bird picked such a place is not known. Maybe it started the nest on Sunday, and refused to quit when the train was made up on Monday, for it ran only week days.

At any rate, it had the nest, layed the eggs, hatched them and fed them at so many miles a day.

Now, here is the best of it. The engineer told his wife, his wife told the Superintendent's wife and everybody began to demand that "Something be done about it."

The train was held at a small station up the line one day, and the engineer and conductor and all the passengers removed the nest to the agent's veranda nearby. The mother and father robins raised a terrible row, but accepted the insult of being kicked off the train at a wayside station, fed their young and remained there. The engineer and fireman swear the mother jeomes on the engine for a look around, every time they make that stop.

The Foreign Correspondent

The position of Foreign Correspondent is the dazzling pot of gold at the rainbow's end to the aspiring young journalist. Never was there a cub reporter, probably, who did not envision himself amid the glories of other lands, cabling long stories of world-wide interest to his paper. It is the spice, the life, the thrill, of the reporting game in its highest degree—seen by the cub.

In the centres and on the frontiers of civilization the Foreign Correspondent does his work. Sending signed stuff from London, Paris, Rome, Shanghai, Moscow, Morocco—dickering with frforeign offices, hobnobbing with kings and presidents, dodging snipers' bullets and authority's machine guns, evading censors' blue pencils, threatening obtuse foreign telegraphers, he thrills to the great business of gathering the news that Peterborough people may read. Read what? The story of picayune quarrels, and heroic endeavours, the death of a king and the birth of a prince, the political upheavals of a nation and the breaking of war, intrigue, mystery, life in high places and existence in misery.

Philip Gibbs of war fame has given way to Harry Frantz, Randall Gould and a dozen others who write for The Examiner. Specialists in their own fields or free-lances seeking wide for their stories, they keep this city of the new world in touch with the beating pulse of the old world, and do their part toward helping to a mutual understanding.

The sun never sets on these far-flung, sentinels of the news-gathering fraternity They work while you sleep, that tomorrow you may know of portentous events in far empire or foreign land that on Sunday or Monday or next week or next year may leave their impress on your individual or community life.

Here's to the Foreign Correspondent! May he never be less daring, less human, less enterprising—that we of Peterborough, seated on our verandahs, may gather from the printed sheet some of the thrill he feels.

MAN AND HORSE KILLED BY FALL

Animal Was Frightened By Engine and Reared, Falling on Rider.

SKULL FRACTURED.

BRAMPTON, July 31 (Canadian Press).—Both horse and rider died as the result of injuries received when they fell here yesterday on the road. The rider was Alexander Rault, a native of Jersey Island, who came to this section about a year ago.

It was while exercising the horse that the fatality took place, the animal presumbably taking fright at a railroad engine and rearing, losing its balance and falling with its rider, who sustained a fractured skull.

BASEBALL AT GARDEN PARTY

Burnbrae and English Line Scrap at United Church Social.

BIG AFFAIR.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31. — The annual garden party of the Tabernacle United Church on the English Line is always one of the outdoor social events of the district, attracting as it does people from Campbellford, Stirling and all parts of the district. Last night this function was held on the beautiful lawn of Clement Russell, and th grounds were handsomely decorated by the ladies of the congregation. One innovation was a Delco light illumination, furnished by a small but powerful plant brought to the grounds in a car by an agent who is making a canvas of the township.

The receipts reached a record figure the sum of $198.90 being taken in at the gate and the booths in which all sorts of fancy articles and dainty refreshments were sold, will easily bring the total to over $300.

An excellent musical programme was furnished by the Campbellford Regimental Band, which was out in full force under the leadership of William Pearson.

The general expression of public opinion is that the Band, always of a high standard, is showing steady improvement. Mr. Pearson is infusing the organization with new blood, three youthful recruits having been added recently. These are Ralph Sperry, Arthur Collison and Alfred Bolton, all alto players. The two first mentioned have received all their instruction from Mr. Pearson, who has a large class of young musical aspirants under his charge. These will soon graduate and will be added to the membership of the band.

The Ball Game

The big feature of the entertainment was a game of baseball—the genuine old gatling gun type—between Burnbrae, the undefeated leaders of the Seymour League and their most formidable opponents, the team from the English Line. The latter held the leaders down for six of the seven innings played but an aerial flight which they took in the fifth spoiled every chance they ever had for a victory. While they were in the air 18 Burnbrae men went to bat and 11 runs were scored. Aside from that unfortunate frame the contest was a clean and snappy exhibition of baseball, equal to anything that can be seen in the Northumberland league and conducted with infinitely more harmony and less barking of the umpire.

The pitching was done by Eagleson who is with the Burnbraes and Ibey, the promising young twirler, who gives the ball a corkscrew twist and propels it with the speed of a rocket. Both pitchers have had experience with the Northumberland league and the official records will show that they were able to hold their own with the best of them in that organization. Two more ex-Northumberland leaguers, Hume and Shillinglaw, are with Burnbrae and the work of this trio—Hume behind the bat and Shillinglaw at first—accounts in a great measure for Burnbrae's position in the league today.

The pitching record in yesterday's game shows 16 strike outs for Eagleson and seven for Ibey. Eagleson hit one batter and walked another; Ibey issued two passes and another Burnbrae man went to first when the ball collided with him. Ten hits were made off Eagleson and 11 off Ibey. Doubles were made by Daniel K. Godin and Hume.

Except for the frenzied fifth inning a box score of the game would make a creditable showing for both teams.

Maybee, the agile young first baseman for the English line team, made three clean singles in five times up and a liberal interpretation of the scoring rules would have given him another hit. The line-up:

Burnbrae — Rannie ss, Eagleson p, Shillinglaw 1b, Hume c, Anderson lf, L. Little 2b, Hay 3b, E. Little rf, Walker cf, D. Craighead cf.

English Line—Ibey p, Daniel 2b, Grills 3b, Maybee 1b, E. Craighead c, E. Godin lf, Diamond rf, K. Godin ss, T. Little cf.

BOY DROWNED.

TORONTO, July 31 (Canadian Press)—Ten-year-old Willie Masson of Toronto was drowned in the lake opposite the Exhibition sea wall yesterday. The boy was walking along the sea wall when he overbalanced and fell in.

WEDDING BELLS.

PILLING—CORRIN.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at 7 a.m. by Rev. A. J. Langford, when Mildred, youngest daughter of Mr. John Corrin, Peterborough, was united in marriage to Harold, only son of Mr. Allan Pilling, also of this city. After a wedding trip to Atlantic City, N.J., the young couple will reside in Peterborough.

"Constant Nymphs"

NEW YORK, July 31. (United Press).—What does the eighty-year old Grand-mother think when she sees her sixty-year-old flapper daughter dressed in a short-skirt, wearing bobbed hair, using lip-rouge and smoking cigarettes? Does she feel shocked and take to her knitting or does she hie herself to the permanent wavers and purchase a cosmetic kit

We are living in an age when women remain perpetually young. Styles for the aged do not differ from styles or th youthul. A woman of sixty uses the same vivid lip-stick that her grand-daughter uses. Her skirts are just about as short, at least short enough to show her silken ankles. Her hair is bobbed or, if long combed close to her head in boyish fashion.

The trend towards 'boyish youthfulness' has reached from city to city until the women of small Mid-Western towns are as like their New York sisters as peas in a pod. There is nothing girlish about our attempt to keep youthful. We are trim, slender, simply tailored and boyishly coiffured. The stout woman is the only one who hasn't a chance these days for one simply must be reed-like to be youthful in effect, of not in years.

This perpetual youth among women is being reflected by the male inhabitants of America. This season men blossomed out in pastel outfits looking like so many small-town bridegrooms in their effort to keep up with us. It is no longer a case of a wife striving to keep as young looking as her husband. The sleekest of men are mere back grounds for the dazaling-striplings who are the mothers of their children.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

Serving Fruit Attractively

There is so much fruit used on the modern table that the housewife has developed many attractive ways in which it may be served.

In serving watermelon, cut the melon in half, around, instead of length ways. Hollow out the meat by the dessertspoonful, free it of seeds, cut a slice of the bottom of the shell, so that it sets squarely fill it with cracked ice, let stannd until cold. Then leave a little ice in the bottom and fill in with the melon balls. Place a small bit of cotton under the mellon shell, covering it with grape leaves. One half will hold the meat of the two halves prepared in this way and it is a very pretty way to serve it. The cotton takes up the extra water so that the tray does not get sloppy in appearance.

Canteloupes, after chilling, can be served with a filling of ice cream, Sometimes we find the melon peeled, stoned, dipped in cordial then in sugar and are placed hollow up, and a pretty dish and filled with whipped cream. Or they are filled with chopped marrons and topped wtih ice cream. Again, they may be pared and cut in segments from the stones and dusted with sugar, then served with whipped or plain cream.

Grapes are always prettiest washed, cooled and then served on their own glossy leaves. Large grapes skinned and seeded make a nice addition to the fruit cocktails of different kinds.

MAIL BOX SLOGANS APPEAL TO STATES

Warnings and Instructions Stencilled Where People See Them Best.

Within the last couple of months the Post Office Department has had attached to the letter boxes in Peterborough different slogans containing instructions for the guidance of the public in their dealings with the mails.

The slogans in question have attracted a great deal of attention, and were brought to the notice of the United States Postal Service.

The Assistant Postmaster General of the United States has expressed his warm approval of this practical step in making the postal service of increased use to the public, and in a recent letter to the Postal Superintendent of Equipment and Supplies at Ottawa he wrote as follows:

"I think your scheme and the idea is most clever and am going to show them to the Postmaster General, who has charge of equipment and supplies, and see if he cannot also use the idea of placing such slogans on our letter boxes.

"We are using just the printed slips which are liable to be washed off in the first heavy rain. Your idea is a much better one, I am sure."

The signs have been stencilled on the boxes conveying various warnings and instructions. The boxes are at present being repainted, and the City is promised the reddest mail boxes it has ever had.

SMART WHITE COATS GAILY EMBROIDERED

Flowers in Natural Hues Are Shown Against a Bright Background.

(By ANNETTE BRADSHAW.)

The white coat has become a necesary part of the Summer wardrobe, wherever the climate calls for a Summer wrap for day or evening.

White coats of the type shown here are particularly smart for resort wear at the shore or in the mountains. Unless formal evening clothes are worn, coats of this type are used for evening as well as daytime. They are quite appropriate over simple semi-formal frocks. As many of these frocks are white, the addition of a gaily embroidered white wrap gives the popular ensemble effect.

Now, the first coats were all white The newer departures are white coats embroidered in many bright colours. Flowers designs in natural tints are particularly appropriate.

The diversity of ways in which this embroidery may be applied is shown in the two models above. The coat at the left is a heavy white crepe affair, with an allover design of field flowers in natural tints. The design is applied so as to leave a border of the plain white all about the coat and on the cuffs.

The coat at the right is made of white kasha and embroidered in a border of colored flowers. The sleeves are kimona affairs, and the line of embroidery which runs the uength of each sleeve and across the back of the neck makes a particularly effective design. The flowers are in bright reds and yellows and blues and are exceedingly smart against the white ground of the coat.

HOME TOWN RECIPE

4 eggs.
½ cup milk.
Pepper and salt.

Into hot, butterd pan pour the above mixture, and when fairly well cooked, spread over it one cup of fresh green peas which have been boiled and drained while hot. Set in oven for a few minutes, then roll and serve while hot.

Let's Talk It Over

A SURE WAY TO AVOID BREAKING UP HOME.

"We've moved seven times in ten months," says "Almost Discouraged" whose husband is in the habit of bossing the job while she does the packing.

I never talk about my husband to anyone—nor about my domestic affairs, but I am at the end of the rope. And I have to tell someone about it.

My husband works hard, at a good salary, but it keeps us moving from one place to another. In fact, we have moved seven times in ten months. Whenever we move, it is on short notice, and though he is given time off, I always have to do all the packing while he tries to boss the job and crabs if I don't seem to be doing it to suit him.

ALMOST DISCOURAGED

Evidently you've married one of those born generals who isn't happy unless he's calling out the army and watching it work. So long as the army sticks around the general will give orders. Well, stop being the army. QUIT! Next time he announces that you're going to move, smile pleasantly and let him have his way as usual. Wait until you have the china out of the closet ready to go into the barrels, and all the bureau drawers dumped out on the sofa. Then get a pain somewhere and go to bed. It might be a good idea to have a doctor. He'll find something the matter with you, don't worry. By the time hubby has finished hammering his thumb and straining his back for the day, his fondness for moving will have suffered quite a setback. If he survives one moving day of this new variety, you will have to get a pain somewhere else and go to bed in the midst of the next moving time. He'll never survive another.

Suppose you had saved and done without things to help buy a car—and then your husband wouldn't let you drive it—What Would You Do?

Would you let him get away with it, or would you take the car out and drive it whenever you felt like it?

What would be your advice to the author of the following?

I am discouraged and I want to know if there is a way out. My husband bought a car and he promised me that he would show me how to run it. I think I have a right to drive it, at least once a week, since I went without clothes and other necessary things in order to pay for it. I have a driver's license and I get so mad I feel like tearing it to pieces. I have three small children and either have to leave them at home or drag them along with me when I go down town—not even a go-cart to wheel the baby in. Now, how do you suppose I could get him to let me drive that car? I am not nervous and can drive as good as some I know.

"THISTLEBLOOM IS A POPULAR SHADE"

Felts and satins for Fall wear are indications in the millinery line. Satin is not the softest thing for the face, but the little upturned brims that are promised for the autumn hats will have a mild effect, as they give a youthful appearance to the face beneath. The poke shape that has been in favor for several seasons will be good also for Fall, and the hats will continue to have short backs, to conform to bobbed modes.

Some of the little felts are charming bits of millinery. They come in subdued shades of bright colors, like mild greens and reds and purples. What is called mouflon is a woolly looking mixture, a sample being a cerise and white shape with white brim binding.

One little hat of hunter's green has its top pierced to allow of the escape of a shower of little felt ends, with scalloped edges.

Some of the small felts have straw brims. One in the popular "thistlebloom" shade, a soft, deep purple, like the top of a thistle, has a plastron on the front of small felt pieces, each centered with a bright color.

The same soft shade of purple, with a hint of magenta in its atmosphere, is in a wide-brimmed hat with soft, rounded crown. Mohair makes this shape, which is faced with tulle and bound with silk of the same color. The only trimming is a very effective wide band of two-toned faille ribbon, in thistlebloom and soft green, its tied ends projecting slightly over the brim at the right side and showing the reverse colors of grey and yellow on the ribbon.

Another purple hat of large size has as its trimming whorls of pleated silk, centred with tiny floral ornaments.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Is it proper to wear a hat to a wedding at 6:30? The wedding is to be followed by a reception.

Is 6:30 considered an afternoon or an evening wedding?

SALLY

SALLY: If you wear evening clothes at the wedding, then, of course, it is not necessary to wear a hat. But of you will wear an afternoon dress or a semi-evening dress, then a large, soft hat will be most appropriate.

A wedding held at 6:30 in the evening is not considered an afternoon cermony.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

WHEN A PARTNER'S SILENCE ANNOYS.

Mrs. Slim and Forty says she isn't going to live with her husband a day longer—not a day.

Well, of course, she doesn't mean that just exactly—not about the day anyhow.

She'll have to pack up and write home to her Mother and see about her bank account and get a few new clothes while the getting is good—it will take her, oh, maybe, a week or so, but her mind is made up.

She simply cannot stand her brute of a husband another day or another hour—and like him while she is standing him.

No, he doesn't drink and he's not in love with somebody else—not that she knows of, and he isn't gambling or anything—he's just cross and irritable and he won't talk—he simply won't.

He comes home at night, eats his dinner and then sits out on the porch with his paper, and as far as any conversation is concerned she might as well be in Africa or Honolulu.

If she speaks to him—he just grunts.

And he hates company—the other night when two of the neighbors turned in at the entrance of the apartment and looked up to their porch what do you think that husband did?

"Sh," he said in a whisper, "turn out the lights inside, we've gone out in the car."

No, the man wasn't coming to borrow money and neither of them would insist on going inside in the heat and playing bridge or anything like that. Husband just said he had to meet bores enough down town and he wasn't going to have his house made a convenient dropping-in place to a lot of nobodies—and that was that.

Mrs. Slim and Forty likes company, and she likes friends, and she likes cards, and she likes dancing, and she simply dotes on the theatre, and she's determined that she is not going to give any of these things up no matter what her husband says—not yet anyhow.

So she's going to go back home to Mother and as soon as she can she is going to get a divorce and step out into the world again—the nice, gay, friendly, joyous world, and have clothes and parties and everything.

Poor Mrs. Slim and Forty — I wonder who she thinks is going to give her the clothes and the parties and the good times. She doesn't seem to have the faintest idea that things are going to be different at home now—her niece is there. Her pretty niece, eighteen years old—Oh, yes! The niece will have plenty of parties and plenty of attention—I wonder how Mrs .Slim and Forty will like playing the chaperon and sitting in the corner and smiling very hard to hide her yawns.

I do hope she won't get her divorce until she has been back with Mother for six months or so—I believe at the end of that time she will be pretty thankful to get back home and have some one who is really hers to look after.

If you are going to be lonesome it's a good deal more comfortable to be lonesome at home. Poor Slim and Forty. She doesn't realize that her little gay, foolish world has forgotten all about her and will never take the time to remember again.

Home and husband and the front porch and the window boxes—for her, or else a lonely, discontended, unhappy middle age and a miserable old age. Poor Slim and Forty—I hope she will realize before it is too late.

THIS EXERCISE GIVES GRACE.

By Lucrezia Bori

In a well-known book, written many, many years ago, and which is still read with interest and enthusiasm, we find a few lines about a doctor recommending pastimes for his patient who has become disturbed in mind and has gradually lost his health.

The patient wished to restore his former good health, and at the same time his interest in life. The doctor must have been a great and wise man, for he recommended a number of simple pleasures. Some of them would probably seem so simple and easy to accomplish that today we would feel as if advice for which we pay our money should be a little more complicated.

Walk Around the Room

On Your Hands and Feet

The part of the prescription to which I refer is a daily trip to the Zoo to watch the animals and, in particular, the elephant. Now you may be inclined to smile at first, but if you have never been to a Zoo when you had lots of time to watch the animals and study their ways you should do so at your first opportunity.

If you have been, or if you go often, you will doubtless know how altogether absorbed you can become in the animals and their ways and movements. You soon forget yourself and any troubles that may have been annoying you, and realize how many things there are to arrest your attention in this big world we live in.

What I want you to notice in particular is the ease and abandon with which the animals move. Indeed, I think the expression "as clumsy as an elephant" has been misplaced all these years, for the elephant really handles himself remarkably well considering his size and shape.

Now all of this about the Zoo is to inspire you to try a simple exercise which is excellent to improve your limberness and grace, and which is also good for your internal organs.

Women often experience a sort of strained, aching feeling in the abdomen, especially when they become tired or have overexerted themselves. Walking on all fours, which I recommend, serves to change the positions of the organs ever so slightly, and thus to rest them.

The exercise is this:

Simply drop down from your standing position till you can rest the palms of your hands on the floor. You will doubtless have to bend your knees slightly to do this, though a few very limber people may be able to do it without bending their knees.

Now walk around your room on all fours—that is on your feet and hands.

Keep this up until you feel tired. Twenty steps or less may tire you at first, but gradually you can take more.

This is a good exercise to try at night before you go to bed. When you have finished you can go to bed immediately, and your relaxed, pleasantly tired feeling should induce sleep.

Makes Face-powder Cling

Before you apply face powder, moisten the skin with a little Hinds Honey and Almond Cream, rubbed in with the tips of the fingers. Wait until the skin is nearly dry, then dust on the powder. It will cling to the complexion with wonderful smoothness, and remain on for hours.

Sold at all drug and toilet counters.

If you would like a trial sample, send 5c. in stamps for mailing, to Stanbrens Limited, Sole Canadian Distributors, 35 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal.

GREAT BENEFIT.

As a result of the efforts of G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., at Ottawa, a new departure in the postal service in Peterborough will be inaugurated on August 1st, when four new sub-stations will be opened, it is announced by Postmaster Charles Lacheur. They are at the corner of Monaghan Road and Chamberlain street, W. J. Byers sub-postmaster; at the corner of Park and Downie, James W. Garrity sub-postmaster at the corner of George and Antrim streets, E. F. Mason sub-postmaster, and on the south side of Hunter street, between Burnham and Mark streets, Vincent Sullivan sub-postmaster.

An adequate post office service will be maintained at these sub-offices where stamps will be sold, parcels insured and registered letters and C. O. D. parcels handled. For the time being these offices will issue postal notes and when business warrants they will be authorized to issue money orders as well.

FOOT NOTES ON HEADLINERS IN THE NEWS OF THE WEEK

Old methods are sometimes best. Sir Henry Drayton, former finance minister, certainly thinks so at any rate, and should there be a terrible tragedy one day on Parliament Hill, when the entire membership of the House of Commons is roasted, broiled, and then slowly steamed alive, this is evidence that Sir Henry foresaw it,to a certain degree.

For oratorical hot air is not the only brand inflicted on the Dominion's legislators. In the old building it was the custom to draw cool air from a conduit pipe on the banks of the Ottawa River. In the new building the air is drawn from the courtyard adjoining, so that, as Sir Henry put it: "We are doing the best we can to artificially cook ourselves."

When it comes to a question of sleep, Edison has sleeping sickness, compared with France's premier and war minister, M. Painleve. A quarter of an hour in an arm chair is said to be sufficient to restore his strength and energy no matter how strenuous the previous exertion.

There were big doings at the home of the Sons and Daughters of Israel of New York only the other day. Proud of his new one piece bathing suit, Chaim Weiss, aged 108 went in for a plunge while 100 other less venturesome fellow boarders looked on admiringly.

When two of the "kids," Sam Rubinovitz, only 94, and young Abraham Cohen, who has just reached 90, insisted on standing behind the camera man while Chaim was having his picture taken, sucking lollypops and making faces to disconcert their little friend Chaim picked up a toy pail and shovel handed them to the two bad boys and remarked: "Go and play until you grow up!"

Much has been said and written about the fact that ex-Premier Herriot of France was howled down when he got up to speak at his old school, the Lycee Louis le Grand, in the Paris Latin quarter.

It takes more than mere athletic skill and physical strength to make a champion. Jack Beresford, the British oarsman, in his recent races with Hoover, the American exhibited a degree of sportsmanship that put him permanently in the hall of fame.

But this is quite according to rule. It has happened so often in history that it is quite the accepted thing. It was summed up centuries ago. "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country and in his own house.

It may be the heat or it may be due to the fact that most professors are now freed from the burden of lectures but, in any case, academicians are going into the business of prophesying in a wholesale way these warm summer days. The woman of the future is one of the favorite topics.

Newest among the ranks of the wise men is Prof. A. M. Lowe, a leading young British scientist. He asserts that a man, on rising in the morning, will soon have to be careful that he does not don his wife's clothing. He sees a world in which women will wear trousers and high heels will be as extinct as dodos.

His prophecies, he says, "are based on the study of the curve along which a relentless civilization is steadily carrying the human race upon logical scientific conclusions."

He dooms the dance as a disease, stating that people will not long be content to wobble the body like savages. He dooms a lot of other things, including violent sports and discusses the future of the office-building and the motor car. In fact, he has written a whole book and will probably make a great deal of money from it, go away somewhere and live in supreme peace for the rest of his life without worrying what may happen to anyone or anything.

Sir Robert Peacock, chief constable of London, England, blames the murder wave in U.S.A. on the fact that there is ill-feeling between the public and the police. "The English police," he declares, "have the good-will of the people, and consequently go about unarmed. On the other hand, the American police are armed, and criminals take measures accordingly."

Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Mutiux of St. Louis have just sailed on their honeymoon, accompanied by their eleven children. The honeymoon had been delayed for a great many years, due to the children. Mr. Mutiux explained, but it is now being done properly. A small but picturesque castle has been rented for the family near Lausanne, Switzerland and ten of the eleven children have been taught French so that they will properly appreciate the trip. It is over eighteen years since Mr. and Mrs. Mutiux planned their trip.

They stand therefore as the week's greatest example of a couple who have stuck to their cherished ideals through thick and thin, finally reaching their goal in spite of eleven severe handicaps.

STREET NAMES

The approaching erection of signs on Peterborough streets recently ordered by the City Council draws attention to the names that will be inscribed on the boards.

Behind the choice of a name for your street lies a story. It may be a world famous story and it may be only of local importance, but in every case something of human interest led up to the selection of that name which is impressed on the pavement beneath your feet.

Some street names commemorate great events, other names of great historical personages. Some perpetuate the names of first residents, of prominent townsmen, of the owners of the land or the builders of the houses. All these classes are to be found among the street names of this city.

George Street.

George street keeps green the memory of His Majesty, George IV., King of Britain and the Dominions beyond the seas. The son of George III. and Princess Charlotte of Mecklenburg Strelitze, he was born in 1762. In 1811 when his father became insane, Prince George was appointed Regent. It was during his term as Regent that he perpetrated his famous joke of interpolating the words, "Baa-baa, black sheep," into his reading of the solemn phrases of a King's speech in Parliament. This was done as the result of a bet with the celebrated Richard Sheridan. He became King in 1820, and for a time enjoyed considerable popularity, but his dissipated life, his extravagance and his supposed marriage with a Mrs. Fitzherbert cost him the esteem and affection of the people.

In 1795 he married Princess Caroline of Brunswick, from whom he soon separated. The squabbles of the royal pair became the scandal of the age. Most of the people favored the Queen, who they thought was shamefully abused by the irregularities of her husband's conduct. Though his own offences against morality were notorious, King George had his Queen brought to trial for adultery, but she was acquitted, to the great delight of the majority of the people. He was called the "First Gentleman of Europe," but was a notorious drunkard and a libertine. He died on June 26, 1930.

During the reign of George IV. many now populous districts in Canada were first settled, Peterborough among the number.

PEOPLE NOW OPPOSED TO DIPLOMATIC SECRECIES IS REVEALED BY THE BRITISH LABOR GOVERNMENT WHICH FAVORS OPEN PACTS AND PUBLIC TREATIES

Open Covenants Openly Arrived at Has Become Cardinal Principle in Conception of British International Policy.

NO SECRET AGREEMENTS TO BE ENTERTAINED

Search for Guarantee of Security Which the World Demands Cannot Involve Any Modification of the Peace Treaty.

(The author of the accompanying article is one of the foremost exponents in Britain of the need for open diplomacy in foreign affairs. He was a Minister in Lloyd George's Cabinet from 1916 to 1917 and President of the Board of Education from 1916 to 1916. He was also Home Secretary in the Labor Government of Ramsay MacDonald.)

By ARTHUR HENDERSON, M.P.

It is perhaps not surprising that the further we get away from the period of the great war the less insistent the mass of the people appears to become for some of the popular reforms that were regarded as not only essential but inevitable in the light of the diplomatic and war experiences. Some of the vital watchwords of that long period of destruction and conflict and sacrifice may seem no nearer being translated into terms of real politics and political achievement. To the ardent few they have still their power of appeal, nobility of idealism and inspiration to effort. They are as beacon lights marking stages along a difficult and arduous path, which these faithful are treading in the spirit of pioneers and with the courage of the undaunted.

But, alas, in too many cases great masses of the people seem to have become indifferent to what used deeply to stir their political minds and sense of justice.

If you were to ask them, nine out of every ten would no doubt tell you that they are strongly opposed to secret diplomacy and earnest supporters of open diplomacy. Nor would there be any reason to doubt the sincerity of their words, for I believe that a people are intuitively usually right and seldom wrong, and that confusion is too often the result of conflicting advice from a multitude of counselors.

The people are fully alive to the grave dangers inherent in a system of secret diplomacy, but under the stress of domestic social and economic troubles, it is scarcely a matter for surprise that the question of open or secret diplomacy does not loom up so large on their horizon as its importance might lead us to expect. Nevertheless, I am convinced it would be a great mistake to assume that their seeming indifference may be taken to indicate a readiness on their part to approve or sanction a return to the devious paths of secret diplomacy. On the contrary they would, I feel sure, spontaneously register their opposition to and condemnation of any positive attempt to entangle them by secret treaties.

British Labor Opposes Secrecy.

"Open convenants openly arrived at"—President Wilson's words—has become a cardinal principle in the popular conception of British international policy. So far as the British Labor Movement is concerned it is a fundamental principle of policy, and I can hardly conceive of any foreign Government being ready to enter into a secret treaty with Great Britain—were any British Government prepared to make such secret engagement—since it must be generally realized that a secret treaty would not be worth the paper it was written upon in the event of a Labor Government being formed.

It is not without interest to recall the declarations made last year in the British Parliament by the Under Secretary of State on behalf of the Labor Government that "during our term of office we shall inform the House of all agreements, commitments and understandings which may in any way bind the nation to specific action in certain circumstances. We consider it of the highest importance that the country should not find itself compelled to take action along certain lines without the public mind being prepared for such a contingency, and without Parliament having cognizance of the particular agreement which may constitute an obligation of honor."

So far as Britain is concerned there can be no such thing as "continuity of foreign policy" as regards secret treaties, because a Labor Government would not consider itself in honor bound to recognize and give effect to them. This in itself constitutes an advance in the direction of open diplomacy.

It is a common error to assert that the advocates of open diplomacy mean that every diplomatic process will be thrown wide open to the public view. The defenders of the old school of diplomacy know perfectly well that such a practice has never been suggested. Executive discussions, whether by trade unions committees, political party committees, boards of directors or any other group of associates are invariably held in private. It would be ridiculous to suggest that a conference of Foreign Ministers should be held in full public view, or that every time an Ambassador conferred with the responsible Minister of the country to which he is accredited press representatives should be present to listen to what they have to say to each other.

Meaning of Open Diplomacy.

Nothing of the sort is meant by "open diplomacy." What is meant and what is regarded as necessary is that all engagements involving national commitments should be openly declared to the nations concerned, or, to quote the words used by the late President Wilson, that "no secret agreements should be entered into, and that all international relations, when fixed, should be open, aboveboard and explicit."

We are concerned less with the question of form and procedure and more with the question of substance. It is less a question of how a treaty was arrived at and more a question of what a treaty contains. When the point has been reached when both Britain and America will not any account enter into a secret treaty, the doom of secret treaties will have been pronounced.

I believe that the position today is far better in this respect than it has ever been hitherto, but even so we have still a long way to go. I recall a speech made by President Wilson in Paris, early in 1919 I think it was, in which he expressed his belief that "the select classes of mankind are no longer the governors of mankind. The fortunes of mankind are now in the hands of the plain people of the world. Satisfy them and you have justified their confidence not only, but have established peace. Fail to satisfy them, and no arrangement that you can make will either set up or steady the peace of the world."

The American leader had in mind then the peace treaty which was about to be drawn up in Paris, but the same is true of any treaty, whether secret or open. A secret treaty is not necessarily a bad treaty because it is secret. The evil lies in the practice of making secret treaties which allow of engagements being entered into that are dangerous to the peace of the world and that commit nations without their knowledge or approval. Open treaties are not necessarily good treaties, but they always have the merit of disclosing the full engagements entered into. What we have to realize is that in addition to a treaty being "open" it must also be just, one that will satisfy the people of the world.

Security Pact's Defect.

No treaty ever was drawn which could be expected to insure world peace for all time. At best it has only provided security that was relative and for an idefinite period, somtimes of short duration and sometimes of longer duration. With the passing of time and the changing of conditions treaties are found to require revision, and either they are revised by agreement or else as the result of war The Versailles Treaty is no different from its predecessors. It is not the basis of world relations for all time. Governments frame what security pacts they please, but security cannot be ensured by a pact that seeks to perpetuate international wrongs and dangers contained in the peace treaty of which the pact is related.

The latest pact offered to the world as the safeguard of peace cotains within itself the seed of its own destruction. "The search for the guarantee of security which the world demands cannot involve any modification of the peace treaties. The agreement to be concluded ought not, therefore, either to imply a revision of these treaties or to result in practice in the modification of the conditions laid down for the application of certain of its clauses." It is little use prohibiting explosions if gunpowder is left lying about. The safe course is to remove the gunpowder. This proposed pact simply means that explosions are prohibited, but that persons are forbidden to remove the gunpowder that will cause the explosion! This may be diplomacy, but it is not statesmanship.

The peace of the world calls not only for the repudiation of the practice of entering into secret treaties, but also for the rejection of the claim that open treaties are sacrosanct and that their weaknesses and defects are never to be repaired. The world does not stand still. In the life of a nation old laws have to be amended and new ones adopted. In international life precisely the same process must be constantly at work, and they are foolish who believe the contrary and think that what they order and arrange today can be made as fixed and unalterable as the laws of nature.

SCOTT AND HIS ATTORNEY

Three hours before time set for his hanging in Chicago, Russel T. Scott former Toronto promoter, learned that he had been granted a reprieve—his third—pending a probe of his sanity. Scott is shown on the right, shaking hands with his attorney, William S. Stewart, who obtained the stay of execution. In the center is Thomas Scott, father of the prisoner.

EDDY NEWSPRINT MILL OPEN AGAIN

Temporarily Closed, But New Contracts Obtained.

OTTAWA, July 31— (Canadian Press.)— The big newsprint mill known as "D" mill which together with the sulphite and ground mills of the E. B. Eddy Company which closed down temporarily on Saturday last has again been opened and is now operating at its full capacity.

The reason given for the temporary closure was owing to the falling off in the demand for newsprint. Contracts sufficient to guarantee work throughout the rest of the year had been received by the company but owing to the fact that the various papers did not wish to receive their shipments until the dates on which they would be needed it was considered by the executive of the company that the best course to follow would be to close the mills temporarily.

RUSSIAN NAMED AS OFFICER OF LEGION

Captain Pechkoff, Disappointed in Love, Won Honor in French Army.

PARIS, July 31. — (United Press) —Capt. Pechkoff of the foreign legion has been recommended as an officer of the Legion of Honour.

This simple announcement today, revealed a romantic story of how Pechkoff, son of Maxim Gorky, the famous Russian, disappointed in live, joined France in the world war lost an arm and then, still seeking forgetfullness, enlisted in the foreign legion in Morocco. His valour in Morocco and the fact that he was seriously wounded in recent engagemerits was the reason for Marshal Lyautey's recommendation for the high honour.

D'Ye Remember When----?

D'ye remember away back when Peterborough had a population of 8989 souls, a tax rate of 12¾ mills in the dollar, 85 gas lamps on the streets, 325 houses and stores lighted by gas and 55 buildings lighted by electricity?

D'ye remember away back when lumbering was the chief outdoor recreation, and the average wage was six dollars a week for a man? When there were three daily and three weekly newspapers published here; 175 people had telephones; Bradburn's Opera House was the only amusement place of its kind; the stone building at Aylmer and Brock streets was a gymnasium "with all necessary calisthenic appliances" and a rifle range?

These things were so back in the '80's. Peterborough is coyly passing over her 100th birthday this year, but don't let's forget We Old Timers should have an innings—tell the giddy sheiks of today about the good times we had back in —— when?

Let's hear from you, Old Timers. Write a note and address it to the Memory Corner, or 'phone and a reporter will call for your story of Peterborough as it was when you were a boy—or when you were a girl.

PREHISTORIC MONSTER.

Footprints of Tyrannosaurus On Coal Found in Mine in Utah.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 30. — Associated Press—Large pieces of coal in which are embedded the footprints of a prehistoric animal believed to be a tyrannosaurus, the fiercest of the carnivorous dinosaurs which roamed the earth millions of years ago, have been found in the Panther coal mine in Carbon county, Utah. The find was made several thousand feet underground.

The tyrannosaurus is believed to have been 47 feet long and 18 to 20 feet high when erect, with a tail like a lizard.

W. J. ENRIGHT at work on "Once Upon a Time" the Fairy Tale Strip

Mr. Enright says—"The fairy tales and folk-lore of the old countries are a mine of gold to an artist—delightful stories—whimsical characters and poetic fancies abound."

Under Mr. Enright's pencil even the old favorites take on new colors—the witches are more terrifying—the princesses more beautiful and the king's son braver than we remembered them.

INTIMATE PEEPS INTO PAST AFFORDED BY OLD WANT ADS

Notice in Examiner of 1870 Shows People Lost Their Hair, as Now.

QUAINT PHRASES

Skating Tickets Were Sold in Threes to Accomodate Chaperone.

When you put a want advertisement in The Examiner you may be writing history for future generations. School teachers today are going back to files of newspapers so old they crumble in the hand. There the events recounted briefly and dryly in the history books of today are lived again with the people who participated. But it is in the want-ad columns of these early sheets that one finds sidelights on days that are gone by.

In 1870, when The Examiner was already a lusty youth of 23 years, want-ads weer usel commonly, and from them can be gleaned much of interest bearing upon the life of the town in the year of the fall of Paris.

Even at that early date, people lost their hair, as is evidenced by this ad in The Examiner of September 22, 1870: "GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL. Those who have no hair may have it. Those who have plenty may preserve it and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle." This does not coincide with current rumors that in the good old days people had nothing to worry about.

Just about the time the first automobiles were appearing, ads to sell horses were common, astute liverymen seeing the handwriting on the wall that indicated the driving out of the horse by the new-fangled petrol wagons.

The dandy of a hundred years ago found in the fashion notes such fare as this, reprinted from a paper of 1853:

"Since the introduction of the Cortes hat such has been the demand for them that I have not been able to supply my friends with this admired and improved shape. It is acknowledged by those who wear and by those who have seen the Cortes hat to be the most consistent, the most easy and the most becoming hat that has been in fashion for the last twenty years. The hats of the late fashion were nine inches deep with a very broad top, thereby becoming unwieldy for the head to support. The Cortes hat in front is 7½ inches deep, varying from an inch on the sides. When on the head it forms an arch over the ears with a graceful pitch to the front."

The Problem of Help

In the "Help Wanted" columns of the last fifty years the labor market reflects great changes. With electric-driven machines, the jack of all trades died a natural death and the age of specialists was ushered in. The "ads" below are samples of the dark ages of drudgery and reveal the bleak hope which they offerd the worker:

"Wanted—A porter to carry bundles, sweep and clean; hours 7:30 to 6; wages $6 a week.

"Wanted—Little girls to fold circulars and wrap up medicine; $3 a week."

An afternoon spent among some of the old sheets makes one realize what a long way the world has moved since the first settlers, with their printing presses, set up house in Canada. The Dominion has won its place as the gem in Britain's crown, the repository of the earth's richest resources in mine and forest, the granary of the world.

In early days the newspaper was read, word by word. At first, on these shores, the Puritan father read it aloud in the flickering light of a tallow dip. Later on, as the pioneers moved westward into Ontario, the circle of readers became wider. Farmers and tradesmen, doctors and lawyers, sat under the white glow of an oil lamp, their boots off, their toes stretched out before a base burner. While the good wife knitted or patched, father read to the little group, and they talked things over; debated whether they could afford the moquet carpet or the rosewood pianoforte that was offered for sale by Advertiser X or Y or Z.

Rouge and Patent Medicine.

In the kindergarten period of jouralism things were what they seemed. Trousers were called pants Medical columns ran copy that censors nowadays would shudder to read. Rouge was bought only by ladies of uncertain moral fibre.

It took a great deal of persuasion then to sell women any sort of cosmetic—that is, the average woman of refinement and character The makers of something called "The Genuine Persian Lotion" used space day in and day out, advertising a sure cure for beauty ills. "It is celebrated among the fashionables throughout Europe," wrote the daring copy man. "Perfectly innocent and safe. It operates mildly, yet its effects are speedy, never failing to render and ordinary countenance beautiful and an handsome one even more so."

Of the patent medicines and nostrums manufactured then a few are still sold today; but the copy has undergone a mellowing to conform to the requirements of truth. Formerly, so persuasive was the description, one felt that he had only to tilt a bottle to his mouth, and lo! his infirmity would fall from him like a cloak.

A well-known brand of stomach bitters began its advertising career back in those days or quaint phrasing. "Let us whisper," said the circular, "in the ears of all those who go down to the sea in ships that Blank Stomach Bitters positively, immediately and infallibly cure nausea at sea. No landsman—above all, no lady—should go to sea without a supply."

Sometimes the "ad" writer took to "scare" copy, as witness this devastating threat:

...

"Ladies: only a small lot of George's hair crimpers that sell at retail. Call early or you will not get one."

Occasionally the merchants resorted to quotation to embellish his "ad." References to the Bible were not uncommon. "A false balance is an abomination to the Lord, but a just weight is his delight. The Blank Standard Scales warranted accurate and durable."

Picturesque Language.

Of picturesque phrasing there was no end, as the following attest:

"Wanted—A person who understands book binding in a plain manner"—this from an issue of April 18, 1848.

"Wanted to rent—An eligible pew in Dr. C's church."

"For sale— Travelling trunks, dress and bonnet boxes and a few dozen very fine goat skins." (April 11, 1863.)

"Wanted— Furrier to examine skins after they are unhaired. Must understand the business. (Aug. 13, 1899.)

"Situation Wanted — Oysterman, quick side-opener."

Several adjectives got a bit shopworn in the hands of those who wrote copy for the advertising columns. One was "respectable." A woman who was "respectable" never failed, it seems, to mention it. There were "respectable women out by day, wash and iron and cook." There were respectable seamstresses and respectable "lady typewriters." Young "widow ladies" assured a skeptical world they were living quiet and alone and would accept "paying guests."

Wages to beginners were spoken of as "weekly commencement."

A young salesman, perhaps the forerunner of the drummer, described himself glowingly as "a pushing, reliable and industrious salesman, prompt and constant, who can when required take short trips to the country, salary $15 and commissions."

Literary and Theatrical

The books which grandfather read and the plays which intrigued his interest only serve to heighten our estimate of him. The good soul was a babe unborn. This, for instance, is one of the book notices of the times:

"Just off the press. 'The Farmer of New Jersey or a Picture of Domestic Life.' This book will excite the attention of those who dwell with delight on elegant simplicity. The above tale is replete with inimitable sentiment and the purest morals."

A theatrical notice for January 30 of that same year read:

"This evening will be presented a comedy in four acts called "False Shame, or the American Orphan in Germany' to which will be added a grand serious pantomine called 'La Forest Noire.'"

In 1863 a paper advertised the Skating Pond for Ladies and Gentlemen. Season ticket for one gentleman and two ladies, ten dollars."

"Why two ladies?" asks the reader of today. Ah, but you forget this was in 1863. What respectable young lady would go to a skating pond without her chaperon?

One gets a picture of the gentle ladies of these early days with chignon and bustle—delicate creatures whose education had been confined to literature and the arts — pushing out the barriers which bound them and seeking enlightment from Mrs. Huldah Allen, M.D., who announced:

"At the request of the ladies I will again repeat my course of lectures on Physiology and Hygiene in the basement of Dr. C's church. The subject for Monday will be "The Human Frame"—admission 25c—course tickets 50c."

In every age there are those who use the "Personal" column of the newspapers to soften Cupid's blow; and for every one that inserts such a message there are ten who read. "R. H. B." in a column of April 27, 1863, was not the first man nor the last thus to confess his pique:

Swans sing before they die;
'Twere not bad did certain persons
Die before they sing.

Several days prior to inserting the above the newspaper had carried the gentle jotting of an amorous swain whose suit had apparently suffered a slight setback:

"Has Nettie entirely forgotten Herbert? Write immediately to old address; all will be forgiven."

It seemed there was no dearth of gentlemen unable to find wives and who sought the help of the "Matrimonial" column. On Jan. 4, 1863, apepared the following:

"A young gentleman wishing no longer to live single would like to meet a respectable young lady of good qualities. The young man has enough to live happy."

BRANCH IN PARAGUAY.

Hugo Stinnes Company Establishes New House in South American Republic.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, July 31.—(Associated Press).—The Hugo Stinnes Company of Germany has established a branch house in Paraguay. Business conditions throughout the country are reported to be improving rapidly.

Official estimates place the cotton crop at more than 6,000 tons this year.

FRENCH TROOPS LEAVING ESSEN

Last of Garrison Started To Go Out This Morning.

CLEARING RUHR.

ESSEN, Germany, July 31 (Canadian Press) — The last of the French troops who have been here since early in 1923, began to leave the city at 7 o"clock this morning. The second phase of the evacuation of the Ruhr started with the departure of the troops garrisoned at Essen several days ago and it is expected that the Ruhr will be completely cleared of French and Belgian troops by tomorrow.

HAIG SAILED TO-DAY.

Field Marshal and Wife Left on Letitia This Morning.

MONTREAL, July 31.— (Canadian Press.)—Field Marshal Earl Haig and Countess Haig sailed for home from Montreal this morning aboard the Letitia. The visitors were accompanied from the residence of Sir Henry Thornton, which was placed at their disposal during their visit to the city, to the port by a guard of honor and a military band. A large crowd assembled to bid the Field Marshal farewell.

PLUMBING PERMITS.

Improvements Made in Sanitary Appointments of City Houses This Month.

The Plumbing Inspector issued 29 permits during the present month sanctioning the erection of 36 water closets, 25 basins, 13 baths, 15 sinks 3 urinals, 3 floor drains, 1 shower bath and 5 drinking fountains. In July of last year 38 permits were issued but these figures really represent a lesser number of fixtures.

The number of outdoor closets removed and sanitary conveniences installed since the beginning of this year totals 65.

TORONTO, July 31 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Mabel C. Sheehan, wife of Frederick Sheehan of Toronto, was drowned yesterday while bathing near Orilia.

DR. JONES TELLS OF SCIENCE WORK

Many Important Industrial Concepts Discovered By Accident.

The weekly Kiwanis Luncheon was held today in the Empress, with President Charlie Cook as master of ceremonies. He demonstrated his authority by imposing fines on Kiwanians Paterson, McKone, McNabb, Marshall and Grant.

Guests were Walter Cox of Lakefield, Robert Koch, whose father is at present in Nicholls Hospital because of a seriously injured leg; Dr. Jones, Chautauqua speaker; Jack Miner, Captain Robert Layfield, J. Campbell, and Dan Kearn.

Art Blade of the Imperial Oil Company, was the official booster, and prizes were drawn by Hugh Niven, G. N. Gordon and Alex. Dick.

Captain Layfield addressed Kiwanians, soliciting aid for the G.W.V.A. in the staging of the impending Civic Holiday sports, his plea meeting wth success, as volunteers were given readly.

Jack Craig, one of the Chautauqua bandsmen, told of the need for support which the entertainment merited.

Doctor Jones, Chautauqua lecturer and speaker for the day, then presented his subject which dealt largely with the incompatibility of government and business in its relation to scientific discovery and research. His address was replete with instances demonstrating the advance of business and national affairs when a co-ordination exists with scientists.

He said that English speaking nations have the most highly developed methods of government; they have the greatest economic systems in business relations, yet there is perpetual strife between these potentialities and neither agrees with or listens to the chemist who is the greatest economist.

Nitrogen Famine.

Instances in point were many. Sir William Crookes has predicted a nitrogen famine in the soil which, he says, will in time result in a white bread famine because no steps are being taken to replace the depleted nitrogen proposition in the soil. Leguminous crops will not save the situation, and yet a method for replacing the necessary nitrogen was evolved in the States, went bankrupt, and was bought by enterprising Nordics with the result that the States now imports cyanamid products.

Another similar process was taken from the States by Italians and reestablished in Canada. It is now the largest cyanamid plant in the world, and is located near Niagara.

Edward Atchison was continually trying to make diamonds. One afternoon while heating sand sawdust and salt in a flower pot by an electric arc, he found a sharp piece of material on the end of one electrode. That was carborundum, the world-famed abrasive.

One day his wife called him to dinner and in his haste to comply with the request, he forgot to switch the current. The result—a graphite grease used in every service station which when put in a new auto will outwear the car.

The lost secret of India ink manufacture was rediscovered when he tried to make bricks out of straw juice, which was the hitherto mysterious element which kept the carbon in the ink fixed in solution.

Beauty Mud.

This same straw juice is used for making Denver beauty mud, so essential to modern femininity. Porcelain, the clay for which took more than a century for Chinese to prepare, is now possible in a few hours.

The high price of platinum made it necessary that a new electrode be made for electrolytic work—as a result a special silica was evolved, unbreakable by extremes of heat and unaffected by action of suphuric acid.!

Out of sawdust the Dupont Company branch in Quebec has made alcohol-silk-fabrikoid, a leather substitute, and also the heralded Duco finish, without which the modern car is considered obsolete.

Doctor Jones concluded by remarking on the wonderful posibilities of the field not yet explored.

Kiwanian Paterson announced that the meeting next Friday will be held in Lakefield Town Hall, at 6.45, where the ladies will provide a supper. A band concert will provide entertainment during luncheon and a dance will follow. A ball game is also being arranged.

Teachers Must Not Say Bible Stories Are Myths; Bootle, In Lancashire, Takes a Tip From Tennessee

LONDON, July 31 (United News).—Bootle, a grubby industrial town in Lancashire, near the mouth of the River Mersey, has taken a tip from Tennessee and will safeguard its youth from the heresies of Science.

The Bootle Town Council has discovered that a teacher in one of Bootle's schools has been suggesting to his pupils that the story of Adam and Eve is a myth, or at best an allegory.

One town councillor went further and said that some teachers were telling the youthful Bootleonians that if Moses ever did strike the rock, no water bushed forth, and that the story of Jonah and the whale was equally unfounded. These miracles the young Bootleonians have been told are contrary to Science.

The Town Council took all this into consideration Thursday and unanimously adopted a resolution providing that henceforth religious observances in Secondary School should be confined to hymns, prayers and readings from the Scripture. Teachers, the resolution orders, must agree to train their pupils to revere God and religion and to respect the civil and religious institutions of the country.

ON THE STUDY O F GEOGRAPHY.

By F M Dela Fosse

During the past year I have been approached by various persons on the question of a reading course. Several of those who requested information on the subject had been handicapped by insufficiency of early school training and I had to point out to them that it was necessary that they should know more than how to read and write. It would have been just about as foolish for them to hope to obtain satisfactory results from general reading as it would be for a contractor to endeavour to raise a house on an unstable foundation. It was imperative that they should have some basis of scholarship to build on.

This may seem gloomy enough to the unlettered man or woman who is desirous of getting on in the world. But it is not as gloomy as it looks. If a well-rounded scholarship is denied to most of us there are still left methods by which we can become experts in this or that branch of knowledge. We see on all sides of us individuals who possess a smattering of knowledge of many things. We know them to be fellow-workers with us in that vast host of mediocrity to whom the world is always willing to grant prizes commensurate with the success that they have achieved. But we see also men and women who have become outstanding figures in the community by reason of having held tenaciously to one form of study or of business until they have become thoroughly conversant with every detail of it. They have reaped the greater reward that a special knowledge of a certain subject has procured for them.

Literature, in its own way, offers as many incentives to the student as does the business world. A sound grasp of Philosophy, of Theology or of some science finds its reward in the offer of a professorial chair in a university or college and in a lesser degree of a position in a high grade school. Lack of general knowledge is the least thing one need worry about, for the world, our greatest educator, doles it out to us in generous measure as we pass along its highway.

There are many studies that are of value in a business or economic sense and there are many that are of equal value from a social standpoint. In the latter class the study of Geography holds or should hold the highest place in importance and interest. Two hundred years ago, the poet Pope gave vent to the dictum that the proper study of mankind was man. He had in mind the thought that without a better knowledge of himself and his limitations, man could not possibly gain a fuller conception of God. We can take his words as a text and invest them with a wider meaning. If man's first duty is to his God, his second one is indubitably to his neighbour, and farfetched as it may seem, there can be nothing more helpful in this regard than a study of Geography. Without it we cannot possibly gain that closer knowledge of nations that will allow us to understand their ideals and characteristics and to meet them in a spirit of sympathy and good will.

Unfortunately, the study of Geography is one that children usually abhor and men and women shun with a feeling akin to loathing. Yet, there is so much that is interesting, so much that is absolutely entrancing in Geography. Take up any travel book at random from the shelves and with the aid of a map you will be able to trace the whole history of a nation, and to note the changes that have been made in its boundaries by the triumphs or vicissitudes of war. Imagination, soar it ever so high, can never hope to picture one thousandth part of the glorious romance that glows with ever brightening radiance over each unit of civilization.

There is another aspect of this study which is quite as interesting and quite as important. Most of us are about as ignorant of the geography of our own land, and even of our own county as we are of the geography of the world at large. In a vague sort of way we expatiate on all the advantages we possess, and boast of the wealth of our farm lands and of the scenic beauties of our lakes and rivers and of our hills and dales. But most of us would be hard put to it if we were to be asked in what direction Lakehurst or Lake Koshabogamog lie from Peterborough, or the distance in mileage from either of them. We are not only content to remain ignorant of such matters but we allow our imaginations to lie fallow and forget to give one thought to those sturdy progenitors of ours to whom we are indebted for proprietorship in such riches of farmstead and scenery. Every sideline, every concession marked on the map of Peterborough could yield us a volume of surpassingly interesting information if the rude log huts that are still to be seen in many of the fields could give articulate utterance to what they have witnessed in past years. A map should be more than a map to the thinking man or woman. It should stir his imagination, and arouse his gratitude, for it is in reality a monument to the memory of those who, from the days of Anaximander and Ptolemy have striven to carry the torch of progress to the dark places of the globe.

Read the story of map-making and you will be carried forward to an interest in History and Travel. Sebastian Cabot, Columbus, Mercator, Ortelius and our own good Englishman, Hakluyt, will pass, with many another geographer, before your eyes and you will be forced to acknowledge that, little as you may have believed it, the study of Geography is one of the most interesting and instructive in the world's curricula.

ADD KAWARTHAS TO TOURIST MAP

Beautiful Lakeland Holiday Place May Appear on Next Edition.

. SAYS DEPARTMENT.

The Kawartha Lakes district, one of the most attractive vacation places in Canada will shortly be added to the Governments' map showing tourist roads in Canada and the United States.

Notice that the matter will be given departmental consideration is contained in a letter just received by G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., from F.C.C. Lynch, director of the National Resources Intelligence Service at Ottawa. Mr. Gordon took the matter up some time ago, sending a clipping from the Examiner in which the suggestion was made that this district be added. The reply says:

"I have your letter together with the news clipping from the Peterborough Examiner, suggesting that our map of Canada and the United States showing the main tourist roads show also the Kawartha Lakes district.

Your suggestion is a very good one and there are many other localities, such as the Rideau Lakes and the Gatineau Lakes, which are particularly suitable as summer resorts, that might also be shown, provided we can get them in without overcrowding.

We are taking note of your suggestion and will seriously consider it when printing a new copy of this map.

RUSSIAN BALLET DID NOT SUFFER

Bolsheviks Realizing Public Popularity Fostered the National Dance.

Proletariat Patronage.

MOSCOW, July 31.—(Associated Press).—The Russian ballet stands in "the front row" among the pleasing things of life that have survived the Bolshevik revolution. It is a form of entertainment that brightens up the otherwise sombre picture which the visitor finds in Soviet Russia. As an art the ballet has suffered but little as a result of the great 1917 upheaval which profoundly affected every form of social activity. Realizing its great public popularity, the Bolsheviks have fostered and subsidized the ballet, making an earnest effort to maintain it at its old standard.

Although the ballet was developed and perfected in France, it finds its highest expression in Russia. For 200 years the Russians have concentrated on this form of dancing, with the result that the Russian pantomine and "ballet d'action" have no equal anywhere in the world. It is true that Soviet Russia cannot boast of the brilliant ballet dancers of other days—many of them are now abroad—but the state ballet school in Moscow is kept up to its former high standards and traditions and each season scores of highly trained ballet dancers are added to the chorus at the National Theatre.

The state ballet school is one of the most interesting and fascinating places in Russia. It is the national "nursery" of the Russian ballet. Here boys and girls, from seven to sixteen years old, are trained in all the graceful motions of the body and feet. They are mostly the children of professional or theatrical people. The ballet is considered a "bourgeoisie" institution. Therefore, it does not attract the children of the proletariat.

It requires from ten to 20 years to make a perfect ballet dancer, pupils giving from three to six hours a day to drill and practice. Even long after a ballet dancer has become a full-fledged performer on the stage, she puts in three to four hours practice at the ballet school every day. Madam Geltzer, Russia's premiere "ballerina," who is now 52 years old, is a notable example of this thoroughness and perfection in training. Although long past what is generally regarded as the dancing age, she performs with all the grace and rythm of a girl of 21, which is due, according to her own statement, to unremitting daily practice and rehearsal for forty years.

All the popular ballets and pantomimes of the old days—"The Sleeping Beauty," "The Hunchback Horseman," "The Swan Lake," "Corsair,"—are produced regularly at the national theatre. The smart gatherings of the nobility, aristocracy and the wealthier classes that gave the ballet much of its former brilliancy, now are replaced by workers and trade-union members, who are given tickets at reduced prices. Black shirts, red ties and homespun garb have displaced the silk hat, the stiff shirt and the dress suit. The regal boxes formerly occupied by the Czar and his family are now crowded nightly with the proletariat.

The scenery and settings of the ballet, as produced in Moscow and Petrograd, are on a superb scale, and are as great a delight to the eye as the wonderful orchestral music is to the ear.

Balloon Tire in Watson's Window Had a Long Three Weeks' Run—O. Young Winner.

The tireless balloon tire that has been travelling at a good speed for several weeks in the window of Watson Tire Service was brought to a stop yesterday at three minutes after one. When our obliging Mayor Turner unsealed and read the speedometer, it was found that it had registered 9453 2-10 miles.

From a large number of estimates made during the contest, it developed that O. Young, of R. R. 3, Peterboro, had figured out that the tire would travel 9453 miles, actually within 2-10 miles of the correct amount. He consequently is awarded the set of balloon tires, offered for closest estimates. A number of other close guessers, won lesser prizes. Their names are given in the advertisement in this issue.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Fluctuations Irregular Due To Professional Work

NEW YORK, July 31.— (Canadian Press.)—Price fluctuations in Wall street throughout the forenoon continued extremely irregular, due to the conflict of professional operations. Speculators for declines sought to uncover stop loss orders in a variety of specialty, steel, equipment and motor issues, and in some cases were rewarded with sharp recessions. On the other hand, bullish demonstrations made good headway in some of the baking, merchandising, rail, and rubber stocks. Persistent reports of merger negotiations lifted Fleischman, General Baking and Cushmans 1 to 2 points, while Coca Cola added 2 3-8 points to its recent gain. United States' Cast Iron Pipe after an early dip of 3 points, rallied five, and General Electric moved up 4 1-4. The announcement of new price cuts was the signal for a renewed selling attack against motor issues, which embraced Mack Trucks, Fisher Body and Chrysler. Call money renewed at four per cent.

Buying To Fill Contracts Sent July Wheat Up 9 Cents

CHICAGO, July 31.—(Canadian Press.) — Belated buying to fill July contracts gave the wheat market an early tilt upward to-day.

Some initial transactions in July delivery showed an overnight advance of as much as three cents a bushel. Offerings of July were scarce, and the consequent bidding up of quotations for that month had a strengthening effect on the other deliveries. Opening prices unchanged to 3 cents higher, Sept. $1.50 1-2 to $1.51 and Dec. $1.52 to $1.52 1-2, were followed by something of a sag, and then by fresh upturns all around.

Corn and oats were easier; corn, influenced by further beneficial rains and oats by continued hedging pressure. After opening unchanged to 1-2c. lower, Sept. $1.03 7-8 to $1.04, the corn market underwent a slight general decline, but then recovered.

Oats started at one cent lower to 1-8c. advance. Sept. 42 1-8 to 42 1-4c. Later, all the months showed some losses.

In line with hog values, the provision market averaged lower.

Smelters Rose Again; Quiet Day On Exchange

TORONTO, July 31 (Canadian Press).—A rally in Consolidated Smelters which carried that stock up five points to 109 1-2 was the feature of the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Smelters was again the leader, with close on a thousand shares traded in, but following its rise to high it suffered a recession, closing at noon at 107 1-2 for a net gain from yesterday of three points. The market was quieter today. Industrials being moderately dealt in. Sugar Common advanced 3-8 and Brompton a quarter. F. N. Burt eased a quarter. The majority of the rest of the list was unchanged.

Firmer Tone Was Shown On Standard Mining Exchange

TORONTO, July 31. — Canadian Press. — A firmer tone was shown on the standard mining exchange this morning, with Lorrain the most active stock, leading with a gain of a point and a half, at 11½. Baldwin and Keora were active, the former advancing an eighth at 2 5-8 and Keora 7-8 at 13 3-8. Kirkland Lake gained 3-4 at 42½ and Castle Trethe way one at 90. Tough Oakes and Vickers each softened a half.

Short Sellers Pay Dearly When July Wheat Hits $1.66

CHICAGO, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Speculators paid dearly today for the privilege of selling wheat without first having obtained ownership. Before they could settle July accounts, the wheat available for July delivery here went soaring nine cents above yesterday's close and touched $1.66 a bushel.

ROSE OUT OF GAME.

Smart Second Baseman Cut His Hand While Working at the C.G.E.

The Petes will enter the game tomorrow minus the services of Abbie Rose, who cut his hand while at work, yesterday. The painful injury will weaken the Petes for the crucial game with Kingston, as the heavy hittink and clever fielding of the second baseman, who had yet to miss a game, will be missed.

JUNIOR GAME MONDAY.

Lakeviews and C.G.E. Meet at Riverside Park in Deciding Game.

The deciding game of the Junior City League series will be played on Monday evening at 5.15. After the two games which resulted in a win each, the C. G. E. and Lakeviews should have all the bad baseball out of their systems and with the championship hinging on this game, a stirring encounter should result.

TWO MEN SHOT.

Bodies Found In Automobiles—Both Had Loaded Pistols.

BRADFORD, Pa., July 31. — (Canadian Press.)—Two unidentified men were shot to death here shortly before noon to-day by unknown assassins. The bodies were found in an automobile bearing a New York State license issued to Vincent Tallini, of Olean. Loaded pistols were found on both bodies.

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY MURDERS GIRL FIVE YEARS JUNIOR

Death Sentence Impossible, Youth "Detained During King's Pleasure"

ADMITS GUILT

Hit Girl Several Times with Bat and Then Cut Her Throat

George Jeffrey, a 15-years-old garden boy, at the Sussex Assizes at Lewes, was found guilty of the murder of Joan Annetts, 10, on the Eridge Castle estate, between Crowborough and Tunbridge Wells, on April 24. The jury recommended him to mercy on the ground of his extreme youth. Mr. Justice Talbot said the sentence was prescribed by law. It was that Jeffrey should be detained during the King's pleasure. The boy heard the sentence unmoved.

Sir Henry Curtis Bennett, K.C., in relating how, after she had been sent on a shopping errand, the girl was found dead near some bushes in the Castle park, stated that the boy's age prevented him from being sentenced to death if convicted.

Chief Inspector Nicholls said when he told Jeffrey he was inquiring about the murder of Joan Annetts, the boy said, "Yes, I done it." He described how he had left his home on seeing Joan coming along the Sun Walk and had picked up a branch of a tree. He continued:

"I saw Joan Annetts in front of me. I came up to her and spoke about primroses. I said, 'There are plenty this other side of the fence,' and she said I was a silly fool, so I hit her on the head with the bat I was carrying. She ran up the drive further and I went after her. I hit her again on the head. The third time I hit her the bat broke and she ran up into the laurels and fell back. I took out my pocket knife and cut her throat. I thought she was dying, and I thought the first cut would not do her, so I cut her two or three times."

IDEAL BACHELOR ENGAGED TO WED

Lord Glenconner to Marry Miss Pamela Paget—Inherited Great Wealth

Lord Glenconner, who has been frequently described as the most eligible bachelor in London, has become engaged to Miss Pamela Paget, the younger daughter of Sir Richard and Lady Muriel Paget.

Lord Glenconner is twenty-six years old, and he succeeded to the peerage on the death of his father, a brother of Lady Oxford and Asquith, in 1920. His mother married Viscount Grey of Fallodon in 1922.

He is a man of great wealth, and inherited many business interests as well as the famous Tennant collection of pictures, of which a number were sold the year before last for a sum estimated at £200,000. He started his career in the Navy.

Sir Richard Paget is a keen inventor, whose discoveries range from a quasi-comic musical instrument to artificial larynxes. Lady Muriel Paget is the daughter of the twelfth Earl of Winchilsea.

OLYMPIC CHAMPION FOR MISSION FIELD

Liddell Given Send-off by Fellow Students—Sings Hymn

There was a remarkable scene at Waverley Station, Edinburgh, when Eric H. Liddell, the Olympic champion, left for the mission field in China.

Fellow students placed Liddell in a gaily-decorated cab and wheeled him to the station, where a crowd had assembled. Liddell was genially mobbed by those who wanted to shake hands with him. They sang "For he's a jolly good fellow" and "Will ye no come back again?"

Just before the train left the station Mr. Liddell asked his friends to make their motto, "Christ for the world, for the world needs Christ." Then he began to sing the missionary hymn, "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun," and the gathering joined in the song of praise.

DERELICT LAUGHS AT LIFEBOATS

Crew Makes Trip to Give Unnecessary Aid to Motor-boat

Having fruitlessly spent four hours at sea the other Saturday afternoon, the thirteen men of Brighton's lifeboat crew look back upon their experience with anything but pleasurable feelings.

Informed by holiday-makers that a boat appeared to be drifting helplessly three or four miles from shore, they kept it under observation for some time. Then, as it seemed to be still drifting, they launched their vessel and rowed towards it.

Their objective proved to be a motor-boat, and as they neared it the two male occupants started the engine and, with a laugh at the lifeboat's crew for their pains, dashed shorewards.

The National Lifeboat Institution will have to pay a bill of more than £18 for wages for the crew and payments to beach helpers because of this useless adventure.

PLAN SENDING YOUTHS TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES TO LEARN LANGUAGES

Yorkshire gives a lead to the country in more vital matters than cricket.

Bradford Chamber of Commerce, in an effort to keep British trade in the van, is considering a scheme under which young people will visit foreign countries to acquire a knowledge of the languages and also of the countries' requirements in regard to woollen goods.

An anonymous donor has placed £40,000 at the Chamber's disposal for the purposes of the scheme.

PEER'S WIFE COOKS OWN MEALS SINCE CAN'T AFFORD COOK

Baron Strathspey Lays Claim to Large Seafield Estates

WON BY CLAN

Says Young Countess Has No Right to Strathspey Lands

Living in a small villa at Putney, a peer, whose wife does her own cooking because she "can't afford a cook," is strongly advocating his claim to possession of estates of some 400,000 acres in Scotland.

The peer is Baron Strathspey, brother of the late Earl of Seafield, who died in 1915 of wounds received in action near Ypres. Following the earl's death the family estates, in accordance with the will of the Dowager Countess Caroline, wife of the Seventh Earl of Seafield, passed in direct descent to the late earl's daughter, a girl of 19, who is now Countess of Seafield.

Lord Strathspey, however, claims that the estates, which include Castle Grant, at Grantown, Moroyshire; Cullen House, Banffshire; Balmacaan, Inverness-shire; and a number of shooting boxes, should have been left to him. He contends that, at any rate, the young countess has no right to that portion of the lands belonging to the Clan Strathspey, and won by former chieftains in fierce conquest.

"OLDEST CHIEFTAIN."

Baron Strathspey described himself as the oldest chieftain in Scotland, and said that his means are limited to £700 a year left him by the Dowager Countess Caroline. The early part of his life was spent in New Zealand, where he worked for three years in a lawyer's office and eight years in the Civil Service. He married there, and has a daughter of 18, and a son of 13, both at boarding school in England. He returned to England in 1913, travelling steerage on account of his moderate income.

"It was the first time the estates had passed to a woman," he told a press representative, "although 150 years ago they passed through a female line, that of Margaret Ogilvie.

I have approached thetrustees of the estates for an explanation, but they will not give me one."

WORKMAN'S COTTAGE.

Lady Strathspey said: "I have to be my own cook. I simply can't afford to pay the wages cooks ask nowadays."

RE-OPEN CHURCH OF KING ALFRED'S TIME

One Thousand Years Old But Only Fifteen Parishioners

In the long-disused church at Chickney, near Dunmow, Essex, which was built in the reign of King Alfred the Great, an interesting service has been held.

The church is a notable example of unrestored Saxon architecture, and in bygone years it ministered to a thriving agricultural community. The population of the parish has gradually sunk, however, till it now totals only 15.

Services were abandoned many years ago, and the church was found to be falling into decay after standing for over 1,000. The object of the service was to revive interest in the old building and take steps to preserve it.

The Bishop of Colchester preached the inaugural service, and spoke of the long generation of Chickney men and women who had worshipped in the church since Alfred was King.

It was pointed out that the parish registers showed the tenacity of the working people on the land for many centuries. Such names as Fitch, Chopping, Coe and Baines occurred over and over again, and were still to be found in the four cottages which are all that stand in Chickney today.

SKIN SUBSTANCE CAUSE OF CANCER?

The discovery that human skin, after laboratory treatment, produces a substance which causes cancer has been made by Dr. E. L. Kennaway in the course of experiments conducted at the Cancer Hospital Research Institute, Fulham road, S.W., with the object of determining if cancer-producing substances could be produced from plants or animals of today.

All the cancer-producing substances available for experiment until recently had their origin in more or less remote geological periods.

DOCTOR WORKS AT 80

More than 80 years of age, and still in active practice, a devotee of the cold bath and the daily walk, Dr. J. Corbet Fletcher, of Camden road, London, N.W., recently celebrated his golden wedding.

He and Mrs. Fletcher were visited by 14 grandchildren and seven children.

For more than 50 years he has been a familiar figure in Northwest London, driving in a phaeton, his hat tilted on the back of his head.

SAYS NORTHCLIFFE TURNED SOCIALIST AFTER HIS DEATH

Hannen Swaffer Tells of "Messages" from Former Chief

EARTHLY VOICE

Easily Recognized at Seance —What Beaverbrook Thinks

Has Lord Northcliffe sent spirit messages since his death two years ago? The belief that he has is set forth by Mr. Hannen Swaffer in "Northcliffe's Return" (Hutchinson.)

Mr. Swaffer claims not only that Lord Northcliffe has sent messages through mediums, but that he has spoken with his own voice.

"After this book was written," he states in a preface, "I sat on February 25, 1925, at Doringcourt, Dennis Bradley's house at Kingston Vale, at a direct voice sitting, at which the medium was George Vallantine, who had come to England for a series of tests. Those present included the Countess Tyong Oeitlonghan, the Chinese wife of a member of the Chinese Legation.

"The Countess had obtained at this sitting a message in Chinese from her father. Then a voice spoke out quite loudly in the room, saying, 'Swaff.... Swaff, the Chief.'

"It was Northcliffe's own voice, very clear, speaking in exactly the tones I remember in Northcliffe's earth life. 'Chief, I have finished your book,' I said. 'I sent it to the publishers this afternoon. Can you give me a title for it?' After a second or two I heard again in Northcliffe's own voice, 'Northcliffe's Return.'"

Mr. Swaffer states that since writing the book he has heard Lord Northcliffe speak on at least eight occasions. His experiences have made him a Spiritualist, and he gives a frank account of them. Lord Northcliffe is said to have become a great believer in the League of Nations, and to some extent Socialist.

At one seance the spirit of Mr. Bonar Law is said to have sent a message for Lord Beaverbrook, and at Mr. Swaffer's invitation Lord Beaverbrook attended a seance. Lord Beaverbrook, in a foreword to Mr. Swaffer's book, writes:

"It was Mr. Hannen Swaffer who gave me the opportunity of testing the truth of the Spiritualist creed by first-hand experience and a personal trial. I came away quite unconvinced and remain so to this day. But I have often found myself absolutely sure that I was right in matters in which I subsequently discovered that I was wrong. I do not therefore carry my disbelief in Spiritualism, as some do, to the point of denying the honesty and sincerity of those who believe that these phenomena really connect the living organism of man with another world.

"I think the bulk of Spiritualists honest, if mistaken, and this view is strongly reinforced in my mind by the personality of Mr. Hannen Swaffer. His honesty is transparent."

UNKNOWN 11 YEARS IDENTIFIED NOW

Boot Gives Clue to Name of Officer Killed Near Ypres, 1914

Part of a boot taken from the body of an unknown British officer during recent exhumation and re-burial operations in France and Flanders has established his identity.

The boot was sent by the Imperial War Graves Commission to a firm of Cambridge bootmakers, whose name was on it.

The Commission had reason to suppose that the officer belonged to the Yorkshire Regiment (Alexandra Princess of Wales' Own), and fell in action on October 21, 1914, in the Ypres neighborhood.

One of the officers then killed was Lieutenant R. Walmesley, of the 2nd Batt. Yorkshire Regiment, and the bootmakers have identified the portion of the boot as belonging to a pair they supplied him in 1914. At the time Lieutenant Walmesley joined the Army he was at Magdalene College, Cambridge. His home was at Huntington.

His name will be put over the grave in which his body has been reburied.

ICE CREAM CAUSED FEVER INFECTIONS

Eighty-three Persons Get Scarlet Variety After Eating Firm Product

That ice-cream caused an outbreak of scarlet fever in Portsmouth is stated in a report by Dr. Fraser, the Medical Officer of Health for the borough.

Eighty-three people suffering from the disease were found to have eaten ice-cream, all of which was purchased from one firm.

On inquiry it was discovered that among those employed in making the cream was a boy who was suffering from the early stages of scarlet fever. There can be no reasonable doubt, says the medical officer, that this boy infected the cream which subsequently spread the disease in the town.

Prompt steps were taken and the outbreak was suppressed.

AN EARL'S CONFESSION

"When I was a boy at school," said Earl Spencer at Northampton County School speech day, "I would have been glad to have hanged the writer of the Latin grammar, to have drawn the author of the arithmetic book, and to have quartered the man who tabulated the French irregular verbs. I should also have loved to have hanged, drawn and quartered the writer of the Greek grammar."

The Earl was at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge. He took his B.A. in 1913.

SPEECH DAY AT HARROW

Quite a number of notable people gathered at the historic old English public school of Harrow for the Speech Day celebrations, the Prime Minister and Mrs. Baldwin, Mr. Amery, the Colonial Secretary, and Sir Samuel Hoare, head of the Air Service, being among those present. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin are seen receiving a great ovation as they descend the steps. On the balcony, at the left, Mr. A. W. Hill, the head boy, is calling for three cheers for the Prime Minister.

GRANDDADDY OF ENGINES HEADS GREAT PROCESSION AT RAILWAY CENTENARY

The world has never seen such a remarkable sight as that beheld by a quarter of a million people at Darlington at the celebration of the Railway Centenary. All the chief engines of a hundred years of railway history slowly steamed from Stockton to Darlington in a grand procession that took an hour to pass any given point.

Meadows for many miles were packed with people, motor-cars were strewn thickly in the hayfields, the roadsides were crammed. People breakfasted early in the open, and all Darlington and Stockton made holiday.

The chief item in all the fifty-three constituting this historic progress was Locomotion No. 1, Stephenson's first passenger engine of 1825, hauling a replica of the original train along the first passenger railway route. It provided miles of thrills. There was the wonder of a hundred years ago with her pistons rising and falling overhead and her tall smoke stack belching out black fumes, looking in the distance like a monster from the bottomless pit working away at a treadmill.

A dramatic pause in the procession had caused anxiety at the countryside grand stand, where the Duke and Duchess of York and a thousand privileged sightseers waited. What had happened to the wonder of the centuries? Nearly three score engines of all types and sizes had rolled on. Where was the grandparent of them all?

ANXIETY ALLAYED.

There was excited conversation on a field telephone. Had Locomotion No. 1 broken down? It is no light thing to take an antiquated mechanical mummy from a station museum and put the breath of life in it once more.

Suddenly a black cloud showed in the distance. A few minutes more and a horseman appeared on a white steed frantically waving a red flag to clear the track for the raging monster steaming along behind. Then into view burst old Locomotion No. 1, doing a good six miles an hour and hauling ten open trucks and a box like a lion's travelling menagerie den.

You would think these black, rough-wheeled trucks, such as you see shifting clay or colliery dump, might be loaded with the refuse sweepings of the line. Not a bit of it. They were packed with the elite of the period.

There was a gay buck, young Lord Tomnoddy, in short-cut coat and tails, with his white beaver hat at a rakish angle. Here was pretty Primrose, with her poke bonnet and her charming shawl, as dainty a maiden as ever the reigns of the Georges saw. There were scores of Tomnoddys and Primroses and a band in the last two wagons in holiday dress to match. Inside the menagerie den sat a dignity of the period, as dignity should, travelling superior class.

JOLTS FOR PASSENGERS.

With a wheeze and a jerk old Locomotion No. 1 pulled up before the Duke and Duchess of York. Clank, clank went the trucks, and the human cargo was jerked into heaps. Then the band struck up "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot" and "D'Ye Ken John Peel."

Grandmother Locomotion grew impatient. She fumed at the funnel and started forward again as if somebody had kicked her. Clank — rattle—clank went the old tubs. The passengers reeled and subsided amid shrieks and laughter; the horseman galloped onward; the driver took off his high-crowned hat, and old Locomotion No. 1 passed on for another century's rest.

In contrast there were magnificent wonders like the Mikado engine, built at Doncaster this year, the Pacific engine of the L.N.E.R., with a vestibuled train, the Great Western Viscount Churchill, and an articulated train with one set of bogie wheels doing duty for the back of one carriage and the front of the next, a petrol omnibus converted for rail service, a Southern Express, built at Eastleigh, and an L.M.S. engine and train of luxurious design.

A tableaux train showing the evolution of the wheel in transport was a triumph of scenic stage effect. Onlookers saw primitive man using logs as wheels, the royal Pharaohs drawn by slaves on wheeled platforms, a scene depicting an interval in progress when beauty was borne in sedan chairs, and finally Stephenson mounting his engine on wheels.

Viscount Grey of Falloden afterwards presented a silver replica of Locomotion No. 1 to the Duke of York and a silver replica of the first passenger carriage to the Duchess.

The Duke and Duchess afterwards went on to Stockton, where a tablet was unveiled marking the spot on which the first railway ticket was issued. A commemoration banquet was held at night.

At the luncheon the Duke of York, in a speech, said that the first railway engineers required great courage to face the opposition which "this new and startling mode of conveyance aroused.

"I understand," he added, "that there was at least one doleful prophet who said he was prepared to eat all the coal which these railways would carry. Had he lived in 1923 his feast of coal would have amounted to over 217,000,000 tons.

ANYBODY UNDER EIGHTY CONSIDERED MERE INFANT IN VILLAGE OF FELTWELL

Old age is no fluke in Feltwell. It is an ingrained habit in this Norfolk village.

Two of the villagers are in the 90's, at least 15 are in the 80's, and there are any number of youngsters in the late 70's, looking forward with intense eagerness to the thrill of becoming octogenarians.

Only when you are past 80 are you really grown-up in Feltwell. A lad of about 60 told me that at the last village fair he accidentally ran into a bunch of octogenarians—seven chums, who were enjoying all the fun of the day.

Knowing the old saying that youth should be seen and not heard, he stood respectfully aside and watched the grown-ups at play. "They were having a right good time," he confided. "They went to all the side-shows and had a glass or two of ale—in fact, some had more.

Feltwell has no royal secret to old age. It simply happens. Within its bounds are two Saxon churches, seven public-houses—once there were ten—and a lot of rheumatism, which is troublesome, but not fatal. There is a busy post office; it would be busy even if it had only to attend to the demands of the old age pensioners, who flock there once a week to draw their legal portion.

Several of the venerable inhabitants were asked the secret of Feltwell's health, but none could essay an explanation further than "it be a rum good spot."

THE VETERAN.

Francis Harwin heads the roll of age with 94 years to his score. He is a butcher, retired, and until he was 90, boasted that he could kill and dress a sheep in twenty minutes. Then there is George Parker, 92, and full of the love of his garden, in which he potters about daily. Old Mr. Porter, who was 92, was buried some weeks ago, but there are other Feltwellians, not now residing within the village bounds, who are within single figures of their century.

There is no railway within miles and no regular motor service. Near by a sugar beet factory is in the course of building, otherwise the inhabitants live on the land. Bearded men and old women go nimbly about the business of the day. Nothing happens to disturb their serenity, and they tell the traveller one story only.

This concerns an aged bellringer, who died many years ago. The belfry of the Saxon church on the hill was being renovated. One day when the workmen had just left, the greater part collapsed. Most of the stones fell across the grave of the man who had daily called the villagers to prayer. There they remain to this day, and the belfry is un-repaired.

This village of grandfathers and great-grandfathers of the eighties is, curiously enough, built in the shape of a figure 8.

SHIP OIL KILLS BIRDS AND FISH; SPOILS BATHING

Hundreds of Dead Seabirds Have Been Washed Ashore

BATHERS OILY

Separators are Needed on Oil-driven Ships, Say Authorities

Oil pollution of the sea by ships is causing wholesale destruction of birds and fish and is spoiling bathing.

Holiday-makers bathing in the Mersey from the Wallasey shore recently found themselves encircled by a black ring of dirty oil thrown out by a steamer. Floating on the surface were dead seagulls.

Sir Francis Danson, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Mersey Docks and Harbor Board, says that pleasure beaches in Cheshire, Wales and Lancashire are fouled.

In the English Channel oil has been responsible for a wholesale destruction of sea birds. Hundreds have been washed up.

Birds are powerless to seek food by diving when their feathers and wings are coated with black oil. They float helpless, at the mercy of the waves, and tamely allow fishermen to wash off the oil.

Recently a petition signed by over 18,000 residents of the Isle of Wight was presented to the Prime Minister, calling attention to the destruction of fish and sea birds. A conference of watermen, yacht owners and others urged the installation of oil separators on oil-driven ships.

Big patches of oil were noticed floating in Weymouth Bay yesterday. Strong protests have been made against the nuisance, and the corporation has called the attention of the Government to the great injury which is being done. The astonishingly poor catches of mackerel in the bay are put down to oil. Bathers complain bitterly.

LAW CLAIM LINKED TO STUART KING

Count Von Platt Claims Descent from King James

There is a romantic link with the Stuart kings in an application made by motion to the London Probate Court on behalf of Count Alfred von Platt, an honorary colonel in the Czecho-Slovakian army. He asks that letters of administration of the estate of Marie Stuart, his aunt, be granted to his attorney in London, Maurice Barry O'Brien.

Colonel von Platt, a reputed descendant of the Stuarts, is making claim to a certain portion of a fund in the Chancery Court.

He is a grandson on his mother's side of Charles Edward Stuart, Count d'Albanie, who died in 1880, and who claimed to be a direct descendant of the Stuarts.

Count d'Albanie was a son of James Stuart, of Scotland, and in his youth fought under the Eagles at Waterloo.

Napoleon invested him on the field with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, for gallantry, and Count von Platt now possesses this decoration.

After the death of his wife, Count d'Albanie spent the greater part of his life in Scotland, and later lived in Belgravia.

Although widespread search has been made in London, Dublin, Edinburgh, Londonderry and various Continental towns and cities, over a period of nearly two years, by Barry O'Brien—who is the son of Barry O'Brien, the biographer of Parnell and Lord Russell, of Killowen—for the original will of Marie Stuart, it has not been traced.

What purports to be a copy, however, dated June 14, 1873, was found in a packet of old letters. In it Marie Stuart describes herself as "Annie Marie Stuart Countess d'Albanie of Belgravia in the suburbs of the City of London."

RED CHURCH DOOR BUCKS FOLKS UP

So Claims Vicar-Advocate of Cheerfulness—Wants More Color

"We are all delighting in the Red Door feeling. Everybody who lives in the New Kent road is feeling rather buoyant these days," says the Rev. T. P. Stevens, vicar of St. Matthew's, New Kent road, explaining why he had introduced the idea of "a church with red doors" into the parish.

"I believe in the psychology of bright color, in the effect it has on human beings," he said. "There is no political idea behind our red door.

"I want the houses in the neighborhood to have doors of bright and vivid greens, reds and yellows. Half a million people pass along the New Kent road every week, and the effect would stir all London and make its people brighter and better."

BRITISH RAILWAY SLUMP.

Railway statistics published by the Ministry of Transport show that the number of passenger journeys in April 1925 was 96,661,890, a decrease, compared with April 1924, of 1,456,592.

Journeys taken by passengers at reduced fares increased by 2,033,797, but the journeys at full fares decreased by 3,490,389.

The receipts from passengers show an increase of £15,029. If the London Tubes and Metropolitan District Railway are omitted, the figures show a decrease in journeys of 2,443,313, and an increase in receipts of £11,790.

The tonnage of freight conveyed was 26,215,149, a decrease of 2,643,781. The decrease in the quantity of coal and coke conveyed by rail was 2,072,420 tons.

DARWIN'S COFFIN NOW DESTROYED

Body Lay in it Some Hours Before Burial in More Elaborate One

A famous relic of Farnborough Village, Kent—Charles Darwin's first coffin, which, as already announced, was recently discovered in the coach-house of an old inn near his home—has just been destroyed.

The relic was recently purchased by the scientist's eldest son, Major Leonard Darwin, and a few days ago was removed from Farnborough in a motor lorry. Fred Goodchild, of Farnborough, the late owner, has just received a letter stating that the coffin has been cremated at the wishes of the Darwin family.

Darwin had it made by a local carpenter from oak on his estate near Farnborough, and many years ago it was on view at a local inn.

It is stated that Darwin's body lay in the coffin for some hours after his death, but when it was decided that he should be buried in Westminster Abbey, a more elaborate coffin was provided.

An offer had been made by Professor Karl Pearson, Professor of Eugenics at London University, to buy the coffin and present it to the University as a relic of the great naturalist.

CARRIED SMALLPOX: FINED BY COURT

Left Hospital for Two Days Without Permission

For leaving a small-pox hospital and coming in contact with the public, Harold Milbourne, 20, of Hucknall, near Nottingham, was ordered to pay 3 guineas as a fine and costs at Nottingham County Police Court.

It was stated that while a patient at Rushcliffe Small-Pox Hospital he was permitted to converse with friends at a distance of thirty feet. When his fiancee came to see him he approached nearer to her, with the result that he was warned, while his fiancee was vaccinated. Two days later Milbourne dissappeared from the hospital. He returned to his home, where he saw his mother and sister, and then cycled to the house of friends, with whom he stayed the night, going back to the hospital after an absence of two days. His sister and brother subsequently developed small-pox.

NEW FLUID FORCES WOOL GROW FASTER

Japanese Invention Makes Three Shearings Year Possible

An invention which makes sheep's wool grow faster was described by Professor Barker, of Leeds University, at the international conference of sheep-breeders at Chester.

He said a Japanese doctor had placed on the market a fluid which, when injected in the veins of a sheep, say, every two days, promotes a rapid growth of wool.

"So rapid is the growth said to be," Professor Barker continued, "that two months' injection produces twelve months' growth at the ordinary rate. Thus two or three shearings each year are possible."

LONGER LIFE FOR WORKING BACHELOR

Oldest English Barrister Says Work Hard and Don't Marry

Sir Harry Poland, the famous criminal counsel and the oldest living barrister, enters his 97th year tomorrow. He still retains his interest in public affairs, and amongst things he remembers are the funeral of the Duke of Wellington in St. Paul's and hoisting the Nelson statue to the top of the column in Trafalgar Square.

He was born when George IV. was King of England and Charles X. King of France, has been a member of the Inner Temple for 74 years, and was called a few months after Lord Halsbury, the famous Lord Chancellor, who lived to 93.

He acted in a case as junior to Lord Cockburn, and at the other end of his career Lord Reading, the Viceroy of India, "devilled" for him. Sir Harry probably prosecuted more people for murder at the Old Bailey, where he practised for close on forty years, than any other counsel, living or dead, but he dislikes to be considered a mere criminal lawyer. He is a great authority on the licensing laws and the incidence of taxation.

Though he has seen many changes on the face of Europe and in social life, in one thing he himself has never changed. He has always been a confirmed bachelor—"that is why I am alive today," he says. That is his sole recipe for longevity—that and hard work.

LAST LOOK SAVES GIRL FROM BEING INTERRED ALIVE

Coffin Re-opened on Mother's Plea for Another Look at Daughter

FACE PERSPIRED

New Laws Necessary to Prevent Living Burial

"People are still being coffined alive and, in certain cases, buried alive," says H. Maxwell Johnson, secretary of the Association for the Prevention of Premature Burial.

"The most recent occurrence of the kind was at Welston, Oklahoma, a few weeks ago, in which a sixteen-year-old girl named West was rescued from her coffin by the merest fluke. The final stage of the interment had actually begun, when the bereaved mother passionately demanded to be allowed a last look at the face of her girl.

"Her appeal was so pitiful that the coffin was re-opened. The mourners were amazed to find perspiration on the girl's face, and examination proved that the heart was in action.

"Cases have occurred in this country. In 1895 a boy named Ernest Wicks was found in Regent's Park, London. The 'body' was taken to the St. Marylebone Mortuary, where the keeper happened to look at it closely. He was led to attempt resuscitation, and, with the assistance of his wife, restored breathing. When the doctor arrived the boy was breathing freely, though still insensible, and the surgeon eventually pronounced him to be suffering from a fit.

"One of the Lancashire county coroners, at an inquest in December, 1902, on the 'body' of a child, told the jury that the child had 'died' four times and that the mother had obtained three medical certificates of death on the strength of her own diagnosis!

"Another case occurred at Hapton, near Accrington, in 1905. A Mrs. Holden, aged twenty-eight, 'died,' and the doctor's certificate of death was given. The insurance company was informed and all the arrangements for the funeral made. While the undertaker was measuring the 'body' he noticed twitching of the eyelids. The woman soon 'came to life.'

"There was also the sensational case of Mrs. Rees, of Nora street, Cardiff, who, in September, 1908, while in a state of trance, had a narrow escape from premature burial.

"The law regarding the issue of death certificates must be changed," declared Mr. Maxwell Johnson. "All that a busy, or indifferent medical man has to do at present to 'cover' himself is to leave in the form the printed words, 'as I am informed.' A doctor must be made to declare that the subject of the certificate is dead of his knowledge, and that is what the Bill aims at which Lieut.-Colonel Fremantle, M.P., has introduced in the House of Commons."

PARENTS DESIRE BOY EMIGRATION

"Big Brothers" Give Advice to New Boy Settlers in Colonies

The Big Brother Movement is becoming as popular in this country as it is in Australia, where it originated.

Richard Linton, the founder of the movement, who is in London arranging for the selection of 250 boys who will emigrate to Australia in September, has been surprised by the number of letters he has received during the last few days from parents in all parts of the country.

All wish that their boys should enter the Commonwealth under the auspices of the movement, which has for its object the befriending, placing in employment and thereafter safeguarding of boys who emigrate.

Some parents have brought boys from long distances, and already a number have been chosen. A boy candidate must be prepared to adopt a country life and undertake to follow the advice of his Australian Big Brother until he is 21.

The fares are: For boys between 14 and 17 years of age, £5 10s.; between 17 and 19 years of age, £11. Where necessary these fares will be advanced by the Commonwealth Government to be repaid in small instalments by the boys.

The Big Brother Movement is spreading to Canada, New Zealand and South Africa.

Royalty Join Choral Announcement That it "Aint Gonna Rain—"

Towards the close of a meeting at the Albert Hall of the National Playing Fields Association, Harold Williams led the singing of "It ain't gonna rain no mo'."

Something like 6,000 people helped with the chorus and the children could be heard above them all. Before the end the Duke of York, the Duke of Sutherland, the Duchess of York and Lady Astor also had their heads together singing, and appeared to enjoy it thoroughly.

They were seated together in the centre of the stage and, with the program on which the words appeared held before them, their appearance was that of a quartette party.

MADMAN HANGS SELF IN A PADDED CELL

The story of a mental patient who hanged himself in a padded room with a "rope" made of portions of an "untearable" canvas shirt, was related at the inquest held at Hereford on Arthur Alfred Jenkins, a gardener.

Jenkins, who had been an inmate of the Herefordshire Mental Hospital for a month, was seen by the head night nurse at 2.15 a.m., asleep in his bed. When she saw him again an hour later the man was hanging.

"It is terrible to be placed in a padded room," said the coroner, "but no other course was open to the authorities in the circumstances." A verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was returned.

ROTARY GOLFERS PLAY KIWANIS

Eight Fairs Finish Square With Four Wins and Four Losses.

The long waited for Rotary vs. Kiwanis game of golf was played yesterday afternoon and eight pairs tee-ed off.: The two teams finished all square with four wins and four losses. The Blind Hole for a golf ball was a tie between Jack Marshall and Wells Fraser and to decide the winner, they had a putting contest, Marshall winning after playing sixteen holes. It looks as if both of their handicaps will be cut down after such a display of putting.

The party enjoyed an excellen dinner at the Club and had a real good time.

M'CRACKEN'S LANDING REGATTA MARRED BY CHILL LAKE WINDS

Attendance Was Below Average, But Sports Above Standard.

MANY EVENTS.

Chairman H. E. Ringel, of Cleveland, Presented Prizes to Winners.

The annual regatta at McCracken's Landing took place yesterday, with an attendance that was a good deal below the average, probably owing to the weather, which was on the chilly side, with a cold breeze whipping the lake to a dark grey froth.

The events were varied and interesting, with splendid competition in every instance, and the officials in charge ran through a lengthy programme in fine style. The prizes made a goodly array, and were presented after the events by the genial chairman, H. E. Ringel, of Cleveland, Ohio, resident at the Lakes, assisted by Mrs. Ringel. Other members of the committee who helped in the programme were J. O. McCarthy, of Brantford, the very energetic and efficient gentleman in charge of arrangements; also R. O. Bailey, of Cleveland; A. F. Choate, of Warsaw, and M. J. Sage, of the Victoria Hotel at the Landing. J. Auston acted as recorder and Philip Sage as starter.

The programme of the day included a number of land sports, with several keenly-contested races, and wound up with a grand display of fireworks on the wharf.

Regular Winners.

In the regatta events, Art Bell and the Misses Myers, who won several awards at the Crowe's Landing regatta on Monday, again captured honors in different classes, and W. Willoughby, who won the silver cup for dinghy sailing at the same regatta, gained possession yesterday of a very ornamental Wedgewood clock for prowess in the same class. The first place in the motor-boat race, for a handsome silver shield given by the "Evinrude" motors people, was won by a lad of about thirteen years of age, T. Currier, who will have possession of the shield for a year. The winner of two years in succession keeps the shield, which went last season to F. Brooks-Hill.

A lease for one year of a silver trophy cup given by the Victoria Hotel proprietor, M. J. Sage, for three years' competition, in the tilting events, was won by James Pierdon.

Tilting Tournament.

Special interest was shown in the tilting tournament, which had numerous entries, and aroused a great deal of fierce competition, in the canoe and skiff races, in one of which two former Argonaut men were matched, and in the diving contests.

The following were prize-winners: Canoe sailing—Bob Beal (silver cup); Davis McCarthy (hatchet).

Open sailing—W. Willoughby (Wedgewood clock).

Men's single canoe—Art Bell (silver cup); J C. Ridpath (paddle).

Ladies' single canoe—Miss Margaret Myers (silver cup); Miss Joan Hedley (silver mirror).

Boys' single skiff—Harry Stabler (watch); Ralph Henry came second in this race.

Fancy diving—James Pierdon (silver cup); Miss V. Myers (paddle).

Tandem canoe—J. C. Ridpath and Miss M. Myers (paddle and umbrella); Art Bell and Miss D. Myers (cuff buttons and handkerchief bracelet).

Tandem skiff—Jim Bartlett and Miss Iva Hendren (cuff buttons and fancy box); Art Bell and Miss D. Myer (knife sharpener and smelling salts).

Upset canoe race—Don Fitzgerald (silver cup); James Currier (camping knife). J. C. Ridpath made a gallant effort in this event, but swamped his boat.

Boys' swimming (fifteen years and under)—Derek Neilson (silver knife); Gordon Strickland (knife sharpener).

Girls' Swimming (fifteen years and under)—Miss Margaret Strickland (vanity case); Miss V. Myers (box of chocolates).

Tilting—James Pierdon (silver cup trophy for one year).

Tug-of-war (three in canoe)—Don Fitzgerald, J. C. Ridpath and J. Currier (belt, pipe and trolling spoon); second-place winners in the tug-of-war, which was well contested, were Art Bell, Donald Myers and Davis McCarthy.

The following were winners in the programme of land sports, run off on the hotel grounds:

Ladies' potato race—Miss Margaret Myers (silver cup).

Wheelbarrow race—Frank Stone and Gordon Witherspoon (pennants); Jack Flynn and G. Clipperton (pennants).

Fat ladies' race—Mrs. J. M. Gouinlock (box of chocolates).

The quoit match aroused a good deal of interest, and was won by Dr. Cleland, of Newcastle, Pa., who received the award of a paddle. Another guest of the hotel, C. N. Langford, of Toronto, captured the tennis game by default, there being no other competitors for the event.

Prior to the distribution of prizes, the chairman, H. E. Ringel, gave a brief statement of last year's financial returns in connection with the regatta, showing donations of $80 and six special prizes, with expenses for printing of $7.94 and for prizes of $72.65, leaving a deficit of 59 cents for this year's committee to balance up.

AFRICANS TO HOLD OLYMPICS IN 1927

First Pan-African Games In History Planned.

For the first time in history a set of games to be known as the Pan-African track and field championships will be held, May 12 to 22, 1927, having been selected as the dates. The meet will be under the supervision of the Egyptian Sports Federation, the organization which holds membership on the International Olympic Committee. The guiding figure in the movement is M. A. Bolanachi, who has been closely allied with track and field sports in Egypt for many years, serving on the Olympic Committee for the past ten years.

On a recent visit to Paris, he said, in reference to the games of 1927. "I am very well pleased with the progress we have made. The new stadium in Alexandria is almost completed, the track has been provided for, the equipment ordered and everything that is required is available on short notice. There is nothing that could be desired that is not already here. The football, rowing and sports organizations all through Africa are anxious to cooperate in every way possible, and none of us see how the games can be anything but a great success.

"All Africa will take part. Entries already have been received from Algeria, Morocco, Tunis, Tripoli, Belgian Congo, Abyssinia, Ethiopia, Somaliland and Egypt. The British colonies of Southern Africa probably will not take part as the distance they would have to travel to reach Alexandria is too great. It would mean that they would have to take a boat and come all the way around Africa to Gibraltar, and that of course would entail too much time and expense.

"Practically all the events of the Olympics will be on the programme. In addition there will be special contests for those who live in Africa but are not natives of any of the countries there. This means that French Belgian, English and other nationalities can take part and represent their own lands.

"The benefits of the games will be great, I am sure. It will awaken the country to sports and will serve to bring Egypt and other lands around to a point where they will have a more moderate feeling toward Western civilization. Many of the events probably would amuse a Western observer but the Africans are going to enjoy the games immensely, and I am certain that we can arrange to hold them every two years, with marked success.

German Goose-Steppers Throng St. Peter's Basilica

ROME, July 31.—(United Press). —In columns of fours, marching with the military precision of the wartime German army with vestiges of the "goose step" still appended the German pilgrims doing the Holy Year in Rome occupy a distinct place in the multitudes of pilgrims who flock into the great basilicas without the slightest semblance of formation.

Americans, English, French, Canadians, South Americans, Spaniards may be distinguished by the skilful connoisseur of cosmopolitan travelers but the German is marked in his military appurtenances by even the most casual observer.

In the vast basilica of St. Peter's, the Germans carry on their devotions drawn up in their columns of fours, marching from altar to altar, commanded by a chaplain or lay superior. They are concentrated worshippers and perform the rites with the same precision which characterizes their military steps.

Pilgrims Well Equipped

The German performs his pilgrimage equipped with all the known contrivances for sight-seeing. Binoculars are strapped over one-shoulder, a box or bag camera is strapped over the other adding to his military accoutrements.

He misses no sights in Rome and gets the last farthing out of his trip His eyes are divided between the guide book and the monuments when he is not in the act of performing his devotions.

American pilgrims, too, stand out, but in quite a different way. They have the distinct advantage of whirling from one basilica to another in automobiles. Most of the other nationalities have to walk because of the cost.

The great basilicas are now being visited by thousands of faithful, speaking their different tongues but united in the one common aim of performing the rites of the Jubilee.

Many in Peasant Costumes.

Sometimes, pilgrims can be designated by their costumes. Those from parts of Italy, France, Spain and Central Europe often come in the costumes of their country. They are generally of the peasant class.

Since the Holy Year commenced, the visitors to St. Peter's have increased many fold. There is now such an influx to visit the dome and lantern of the basilica and to climb into the huge bronze ball which tops the Dome, that two new ticket windows have been established for the sale of tickets to visit the rotunda. The average number of visitors to the Dome daily is 1,200.

AT THE REGENT

"THE DENIAL" GOES BACK TO DAYS OF INVISIBLE ANKLES

REGENT TO-NIGHT

Hobart Henley Picture Written Under Spanish War Beef Inspirations

It may be more or less difficult to remember when a lady's ankles were invisible — unless it rained — and when, if anyone had a bad dream, he blamed it on a Welsh rarebit and not on subdued complexes or whatever it is that they are giving the credit for bad dreams to nowadays.

Those happy days, when a night at the theatre didn't cost more than a chap could earn in a couple of days of honest work, have been revived, however, in "The Denial."

"The Denial" is a picturization of the stage play, 'The Square Peg," by Lewis Beach. It's a Hobart Henley production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; and it has Claire Windsor, Williaim Haines, Edward Connelly, Lucille Ricksen, Robert Agnew, Emily Fitzroy, Vivia Ogden, Bert Roach, Billy Eugene and goodness knows who else in one of those casts that leave nothing to be desired.

But the real inside fact about "The Denial" is that it also has the atmosphere—the real tittivating, reminiscently romantic, delightfully stirring nudge in the ribs of the mind, if one might call it that—of those good old day when the late Theodore Roosvelt was rough riding, balloon sleeves were ballooning Dr. Parkhurst was a-cleaning up New York, and everybody was thinking what an awful place the world was and never dreaming what a delightful place it was going to turn out to be.

"The Denial" is absolutely free from the Revolutionay influence. It was written under the Spanish War canned beef inspiration. It has all the aflvor of the old days—with a kick that has been removed entirely from the new days. It deals with the time when some persons now alive were standing on street corners watching a big, clumsy collection of iron work snort and sneeze down the avenue, and saying:

"Ha! Ha! Those automobiles! Horses'll always be good enough for me!"

"The Denial is an epic of an interesting period. There were lots of other interesting items that have been embalmed in this enthrallingly interesting photoplay.

AT THE ROYAL.

SUCCESSFUL AMATEUR NIGHT AT THE ROYAL.

Last night, the Royal was packed up and down and in addition to the "Fighting and Flying Hoofs" one of the best line-ups of local talent in some time appeared before the footlights. Sam Harris was in a happy mood last night and seemed to get as much fun out of the proceedings as the large audience did. Mr. Harris opened with "Don't Leave Me Mammy," and a serio-comic recitation—then came the talent "far be it from me" to mention which offeirng best, I'm not writing this to cause any "professional" jealousy"— the fact remains that every act received lots of applause and the audience seemed to enjoy every little bit of it. Here they come

Marguerite Dunlop, "Will You Remember Me."

Mr. Cole, Engluish Comic songs.

Irene Foster— "Everything is Hotsy Totsy now and Waiting for the Moon."

F. Forbes—Mouth Organ and Auto Harp.

Myrtle and Mabel Reynolds — Yearning.

"THE MANICURE GIRL" ARRIVES IN TOWN NEXT MONDAY, BOYS!

She's chic, and she's pretty; she's fast ,and she's witty—"The Manicure Girl" from old New York City!

Bebe Daniels plays the role in her latest Paramount picture by that name, coming to the Royal Theatre on Monday next to remain for three days. It's a Frank Tuttle production. Remember, Tuttle made "Miss Bluebeard," also with Bebe! Frederic and Fannie Hatton, co-authors of the Broadway stage hit, "Upstairs and Down," wrote the story especially for Bebe. Edmund Burns is her leading man, and Hale Hamilton, Dorothy Cumming, Mary Foy and others appear in the cast.

If you enjoy a good laugh, don't miss this one!

"FLYING HOOFS" AN INTERESTING WESTERN

A dramatic story, replete with rapid action, which includes some wild riding over dangerous trails, is Hoxie's latest "Flying Hoofs," playing these days at the Royal. Jack has the part of a sheriff who rapidly is losing prestige because of his failure to capture a notorious bandit known as "The Raven."

In time suspicion points to the younger brother of the sheriff and finally the former is arrested by the latter, after a bank had been robbed. The boy is sentenced to be hanged and on the eve of his death tells his brother that while he is not the Raven that The Raven will try and save him. In doubt as to the truth of this statement the sheriff so arranges that he is led to the gallows, risking his life to prove the truth or falsity of the brother's story.

There are two pleasant love interests, one between the daughter of a rich rancher and the sheriff, and the other between the daughter of the robbed banker and the younger brother.

Clifford Smith directed. Charlotte Stevens is the leading woman and Ayls Murrell also has a big role. Others in the cast are Duke R. Lee, J. Gordon Russell, Bartlett Carre, William Welsh and William Lester.

"THE SPORTING VENUS"

She was a wealthy girl, and thought men wanted her solely for her money. But she found one man who wouldn't propose to her because of it—and so she married him.

That's one of the many situations in "The Sporting Venus," which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre for an engagement of three days.

The picture was produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and directed by Marshall Neilan, and it proves to be one of the most entertaining films in many a day.

Neilan is one of the best of directors of comedy on the screen, and it seems a shame that he should make any other kind of a picture —until you see one of his dramas.

In "The Sporting Venus," Neilan has brewed a unique combination of comedy and melodrama, developed many new situations and put a happy ending on his picture that is too good to tell before you've seen the production.

In the cast itself are many favorite faces. Blanche Sweet, who made such a name for herself in "Anna Christie" and "Tess," as a tragedienne, plays a role in this film with a great deal of comedy.

Ronald Colman is her handsome lover, and Lew Cody is an impoverished Count, who must marry money to keep out of jail. Josephine Crowell, as a kittenish old dowager who Cody finally marries when he fails to win Miss Sweet; Arthur Hoyt as a "Scotland Yard" detective, whom Cody's" creditors have set to watch him, and Hank Mann, former comedy star, as a comic valet ,add much to the entertainment valeu of the picture.

"The Sporting Venus" was adapted from the story by Gerald Beaumont.

Peace Celebration at Belleville
August 1st to 8th, inclusive
Commemorating 110 years of Peace between Canada and the United States. The greatest celebration of its kind ever held in Canada.
The "Toronto Scottish" Battalion (in kilts) with other military units will on Saturday night, August 1st, at the Fair Grounds, put on a sham battle illustrating trench warfare, by experienced overseas soldiers, who will go "Over the Top" as our boys did at Vimy Ridge, and put on other military features. "Toronto Scottish" is the most attractively uniformed battalion in Canada and will be accompanied by two bands. The Battalion has the champion Tug-of-War Team and the champion Soft Ball Team of Ontario and will also participate in the military and other events Monday afternoon, August 3.
The most skillful aerial artists in America will entertain you each afternoon and evening, and at night Dolfell the Fire Wizard will ride through actual electrical fire in mid air. The two Wyants will make you laugh for 3 hours every day.
The great International Yacht races attended by 150 yachts from Canadian and United States ports will be the largest yachting event ever held in Canada, August 5th, 6th, and 7th.
A Drum Head religious service will be held on the Armouries Lawn Sunday, August 2nd, and on Sunday evening a Sacred Band Concert will be given on Victoria Park
Addresses will be delivered by prominent speakers from various parts of Canada and the United States on the Court House grounds, Belleville at 10 o'clock each morning during the celebration, except Sunday
The various fraternal societies have been invited to participate in the celebration
There will be historic pageants, midways, ferris wheels, spectacular rides, parades, street dancing, dancing in the parks and elsewhere, music, games, sports and other forms of amusements. Seven days and nights of pleasure and profit.
There will be 7 evening and 6 afternoon performances at the Fair Grounds. GENERAL ADMISSION 50 CENTS. Peterboro vs Belleville baseball league game will be played on Wednesday in addition to the other attractions

SENATORS SET BACK BY CHICAGO FOR THIRD TIME IN FOUR GAMES; COVELESKIE CLOUTED FROM BOX

Sox Hammered Champions for 18 Hits and Eleven Runs.

ATHLETICS WIN

Sam Gray Shut Out Detroit —Yankees Shake Off Jinx.

WASHINGTON, July 30 (Canadian Press).—The White Sox smashed Coveleskie's streak of 13 consecutive victories today by hammering him from the box and winning their third game out of four starts with Washington, by an 11 to 1 score. Grey and Marberry likewise fared but little better from the visitors, but Russel held them hitless for two frames. Score:

Chicago.... ... .410200400—11 18 1
Washington.. ....000000001— 1 10 1

Thurston and Crouse; Coveleskie, Gregg, Marberry, Russell and Ruel, Severeid.

Cleveland 7; Boston 2.

BOSTON, July 30.—Cleveland made it another win over the Red Sox today by taking their third straight game, 7 to 2. Buckeye pitched effectively, while his mates hammered Zahniser persistently. The first Indian run, coming in the fifth inning, was made on a home run by Buckeye into the right field bleachers. The Cleveland outfield all made good catches, Jamieson excelling. Score:

Cleveland ....000021013— 7 15 1
Boston.... ... .000000200— 2 8 1

Buckeye and Myatt; Zahniser and Picinich.

Athletics 9; Detroit 0

PHILADELPHIA, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Connie Mack shuffled his batting order today with the result that the pace-making Athletics hammered out an easy 9 to 0 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Sammy Grey pitched his first full game since July 3, won his tenth game of the season and scored his fourth shutout. Score:

Detroit ....000000000— 0 10 0
Philadelphia.. ....32020011x— 9 15 0

Whitehill, Wells and Bassler, Woodall; Gray and Cochrane.

New York, 9; St. Louis 2.

NEW YORK, July 30 (Canadian Press).—The New York Yankees won from St. Louis, 9 to 2, today, giving them their first three-game winning streak of the year. On fourteen previous occasions, New York had failed to stretch two victories in a row. Waite Hoyt went the route for the Hugmen, holding the Browns to eight hits. The Yankees put the game on ice in the first inning when bunched hits, a base on balls, an error and two passed balls netted four runs. Score:

St. Louis ....000011000— 2 8 2

PICTON BEATEN IN DELORO GAME

Croft Lost Pitching Decision —Errors Bloomed Into Runs.

SCORE WAS 5-3

MARMORA, July 30—Deloro returned to winning form on Wednesday in their fixture at home with Picton. Two hundred spectators witnessed a game which was not devoid of thrills. Leal and Croft were the opposing pitchers for the whole of the game.

Yanover opened Picton's half of the first innings with a single to left field. Fredericks hit into a double play, Johnson to Shultz to Hughes. The next batter was thrown out at first. Deloro failed to reach first base. In the second innings, Quinn was loudly applauded for his spectacular catch of Campney's foul. Through errors Picton registered once. Deloro trooped out in order in their half. In the third, Picton increased their total to two through Quinn's wild throw to first. In Deloro's half, Hughes led off with a single. Ada brought the crowd to their feet with a screaming double to centre for the longest hit of the game, Hughes registering Manager Regan drove in Ada, thus evening the score 2-2. In the fourth, Seal struck out the opposing side in order. Deloro also failed to score. In the fifth Croft scored on three successive errors. In Deloro's half, Leal reached first on an error. Hughes advanced him to second with a Texas Leaguer over short... Quinn reached first on an error, Leal scoring. Regan laid down a bunt along third, scoring Hughes and taking second himself, registered on an error, putting Deloro in front by two runs, a lead which they maintained to the finish. Both teams went out in order in the sixth and seventh innings. Through air tight fielding in the eighth by Deloro, Picton failed to register, leaving two men on bases. Johnston opened the Deloro half with a single over short but got no further than second. In the concluding innings the first two Picton batters were thrown out at first. Fredericks singled to centre. Croft hoisted to Ada ending the game.

Umpires were: Pyne of Wellington, behind bat; Kerr of Deloro, on bases.

The line-up of teams:

HAVELOCK MUST PLAY THE PETES

O.A.L.A. Executive Decide That Previous Game Here Was Not Scheduled.

Johnnie Sutherland's intermediate lacrosse team is still in the running. At a meeting of the O. A. L. A. executive in the Prince George Hotel, Toronto, Wednesday evening successfully presented his claim against the Havelock club that the game played at Riverside two weeks ago with the Havelock-Norwood combines was not a league game, and that Peterboro, therefore, was still entitled to a scheduled home game.

Havelock filled in for the fixture defaulted by the Campbellford-Hastings outfit, whose suspension was not lifted Wednesday night, and subsequently contended that this was their return game with Peterboro. The Petes' management had not consented to this suggestion prior to the engagement, and the O. A. L. A. executive upheld Mr. Sutherland's suit.

The date for the game here has not been decided, but it is hoped the fans will turn out as they did two weeks ago. The team will practice at the Oval this evening and every player is urged to turn out at 6 o'clock.

COLLEGE TENNIS TEAMS ARE TIED

Oxford-Cambridge Won Two Singles and a Double.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—(Canadian Press.) — The tennis teams of Oxford and Cambridge for England, and Harvard and Yale for the United States, were tied, three all, after the doubles and singles matches played to-day. The Americans came through in two doubles and a singles match, while their rivals were victorious in two singles and a doubles match.

Play on both sides was consistent. W. W. Ingraham, of Harvard, singles winner, was pressed in the first set by H. K. Lester, of Cambridge, but won 7-5, 6-3, Charles Watson, 3rd, of Yale, started strongly against D. J. R. Sumner, of Oxford, but wilted under a strong back court game which Sumner uncorked to win the match, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, J. J. Lezard, of Cambridge, captain of the British team, had little difficulty in topping A. L. Hopkins, of Yale, 6-3, 6-3.

In the doubles, Ingraham and Whitbeck, both of Harvard, had little difficulty in coming through over Jonklaas and Sumner, of Oxford, 6-4, 6-2, Arnold Jones, the United States team captain, paired with Watson, of Yale, displayed an even game of tennis to dispose of the English team of Lester and Carleton, Oxford and Cambridge, 6-4, 6-2.

CRICKET NOTES

PETERBOR C. C. v. ROYAL OAK C.C.

The above match will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds at 2.30 p.m.

All members of the Peterboro Club are asked to turn out to practice tonight at 6 o'clock as the team will then be chosen for Saturday's game.

Peterboro members please keep in mind the match on Monday afternoon here with the Rosedale C. C. of Toronto. A meeting will be held concerning same after practice tonight. Everyone turn out.

CANADIAN GIRL ATHLETES PICK TEAM FOR MEET

Will Make Special Effort to Win Relay Race—Have Good Chance.

WEATHER IS COLD

Held Final Work-out Thursday at Stamford Bridge—Dinner Guests.

LONDON, July 31.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The Canadian girl athletes had their last serious tryout at Stamford Bridge Thursday. The track under the influence of a drying wind has improved but the weather is still cold and blustery. An encouraging feature of the afternoons' work was the return to form of the sprinter Josie Dyment who is thus definitely included in the 100-yard dash.

Miss Gibb, manager of the team, is disappointed that Canada will not be represented in the half mile race. Since the Canadian half milers, Miss Gertrude Wood and Kathleen Flanagan, are running in the 250 metre race just previous to the half mile and immediately afterwards will be called upon to go into the relay race Miss Gobb wisely decided to save them for the relay in which the Canadians have an excellent chance. The fact that the 250 metre race is being run in two heats also played a large part in Miss Gibb's decision.

The team for Saturday is as follows:

100 yard dash — Myrtle Cook and Josie Dyment; reserves, K. Flanagan and V. Springstead.

250 metres—K. Flanagan, Gertrude Woods; reserves, M. Cook, J. Dyment.

Hurdles—G. Conacher, V. Springstead.

Relay—M. Cook, J. Dyment, K. Flanagan and G. Woods; reserves, G. Conacher and V. Springstead.

Putting the shot—Jean Godson and Molly Trinnell.

Javelin—G. Ballard and J. Godson; reserve, M. Trinnell.

Long jump—T. Conacher and G. Conacher; reserve, K. Flanagan.

High jump—G. Conacher and V. Springstead; reserve, T. Conacher.

Miss Gibb states that the English team has elected a lady manager for the meet. Miss Gibb spoke enthusiastically of the kindness of P. C. Larkin, High Commissioner. She saw him at Canada house Thursday and he said Canada house was at the disposal of the team and that he would do everything possible to promote their happiness and success.

Following the match on Saturday the team will be entertained at dinner. Miss Gibb was unable to say at what hotel it would be but Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux has promised to attend while among the English notables will be Lord Decies.

BUFFALO WIN FINAL OF SERIES WITH TORONTO IN TEN INNINGS

Manion Chased for Disputing Decision—Judge Landis a Spectator

BIRDS CLEAN UP

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 30 (Canadian Press).—Buffalo won the last of the series with Toronto, today's score being 6 to 5 in a ten-inning battle. Each club had poor pitching to start with, Maley being taken out in the first, and Smith in the third. Then it was a hurling duel between Fisher and Glaser. Kingdon drove in the winning tally with a long hit into left field. Manion went out early for disputing the ball and strike decisions of Umpire Meyers. Judge Landis was an interested spectator. Score:

Toronto.... ... .3011000000—5 11 1
Buffalo.... ... .0040100001—6 10 1

Smith, Glaser and Manion, Styles; Maley, Fisher and Pond.

Providence 7; Jersey City 5

JERSEY CITY, N.J., July 30 (Canadian Press).—Hard hitting in the two final rounds by Providence reduced a two-run lead held by the Jersey City Skeeters and gave the Grays a victory in their season's farewell lineup in the home of the Skeeters, today, 7 to 5. Score:

Providence .. ....001010032— 7 14 3
Jersey City .. ....002200001— 5 12 3

Ellis, Swartz and Lynn; Zellars, Cantrell and Freitag.

Baltimore 8; Reading 1.

BALTIMORE, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Cliff Jackson, holding the Aces to six hits, hurled Baltimore to an 8 to 1 victory over Reading today, giving the locals a clean sweep of the four games. Score:

Reading.... ... .000000001 1— 6 3
Baltimore ....00210032x— 8 11 1

McNamara, Mattison and McCarty; Jackson and McKee.

Syracuse 5; Rochester 2.

ROCHESTER, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Rochester lost an uninteresting game here today to the Syracuse Stars, 5 to 2, when Heine held the Tribe in check with men on the bases. Fifteen of the Tribe were stranded, two each in the last innings. Score:

Syracuse ....012100001— 5 10 2
Rochester ....000101000— 2 13 2

Meine and Niebergall; Moore, Horne and Lake.

BIKE RACE FOR CIVIC HOLIDAY

Valuable Prize For Winner of Lakefield to Peterboro Sprint.

LAST RACE 1922.

Included in the sports programme which the War Veterans have outlined for Civic Holiday is a bicycle race over the 10 mile stretch between Lakefield and the city.

The last race of this nature was held in 1922 and was a peculiarly successful event in that it attracted considerable attention. George street was lined with people watching the finish.

The race that year was won by Jerry Loescher, Harvey Webber running second, and a sliver cup went to the victor.

Similar plans are being formulated to award the winner of the holiday event. Standard road wheels only are eligible, and there should be a large entry of speed demons confident in their own abilnty and proud of their mounts. Twenty-five turned out to compete in 1922.

Entry forms are obtainable from Frank White on Charlotte street, who says that the winning entrant may possibly qualify for the Velodrome meets held in Toronto.

Cyclists should get busy and tune up the old bike and get themselves whipped into form for the coming race classic.

COGS BEATEN 8-5 BY KEENE TEAM

Good Fielding and Hitting by Keene Team Won the Game.

BILLINGSLEY WILD

KEENE, July 31.—Keene defeated Cognawagas at Keene on Tuesday evening by an 8 to 5 score. Robertson, pitching for Keene, was in fine for not allowing an earned run. After the first inning when the Cogs scored four runs after the side should have been retired, the Keene infield settled down and played fine ball. The outfielders had an easy time for Keene, only three put outs being made, all by Fletcher the centre fielder. Cogs also played goor ball in the field but Keene had success with their batting and, coupled with Billingsley's wildness made hits when they were needed the most.

The line up:

Cognawagas—Rooke, 1b; Allen, lf; Billingsley, p; F. Cripps, rf; Prest, cf; Wilson, ss; W. Cripps, c; Williams, 3b; Shadgett, 2b.

Keene—C. Robertson, c; C. Nelson, rf; M. McCarthy, ss; M. Renwick, 3b; E. McCarthy, 1b; M. Robertson, p; R. Comrie, lf; F. Hall, lf; A. E. Fletcher, 2b; W. Fletcher, cf.

MAY FIGHT DEMPSEY

Bout With Bartley Madden is Again Mooted.

NEW YORK, July 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Possibility of a heavyweight championship fight this year at Michigan City, Ind., between Dempsey and Bartley Madden was revived yesterday with the departure of Charley Rose, Madden's manager, for a conference in Chicago with Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons.

Rose went to Chicago in response to a message from Fitzsimmons. He pointed out that Dempsey, upon his arrival here from Europe, had virtually signified his wilingness to meet Madden this fall. The champion has also been quoted as saying that Fitzsimmons had first call on his services for a September contest.

THREE SOCCER GAMES SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Senior and Juveniles at Oval —Juniors at King

For the second time this season, the Thistle and Quaker Oats meet in the replay of the Peck Cup on Saturday afternoon, at Nicholls Oval. Kick-off at three o'clock.

In the previous match, the Quakers failed to gain the verdict over the Jags when they had only eight players on the field and on injury, perhaps, they may be unable to get their full quota. The Quaker boys will trot out a formidable eleven so as to make sure to be a finalist.

Referee Alex McKinley will handle the whistle.

The township boys—Warsaw—meet the C.P.C. in a junior league match on King Edward Park, on Saturday afternoon. Kick-off at three o'clock.

De Laval juniors travel to Dummer to play the fast aggregation in a league game. Sam Calladine, referee.

A real tid-bit is scheduled for Saturday afternoon in the Juvenile League when the league leaders, De Laval, meet the Canadian Woollens juveniles. Kick off at 2 o'clock.

'MACKMEN' APPEAR TO BE ENTRENCHED

Have Not Cracked Under the Pressure of Senators.

NEW YORK, July 31. — Many smart baseball men favored the champion Washington Senators in a battle with the Philadelphia Athletics, because of the youth of Connie Mack's aspiring team.

It was figured that in a hot pennant race, which may extend to the very last day of the season, the experience of the veteran players on the Washington club would keep them on the ground and that the young Athletics would be in danger of blowing up.

Twice this season the Athletics were so close to the exploding point that the critics warned — "There they go. Didn't I tell you!" But they didn't go. On each occasion they recovered just as they were going down and came back with a rush.

They are just now out of their second serious slump and they are moving away from the Washington champions with so much steam that there are distinct whisperings about a worlds series in Philadelphia.

It looks now as if the Senators have cracked. The pitching has gone to pieces momentarily, and if Roger Peck's legs do not hold up the club has not much of a chance to nose out Connie Mack's boys.

MANY VETERANS WITH SENATORS

Severeid, Scott, Ruether, Coveleskie and Gregg Joined Since 1924.

Many veteran major league players are now members of the Washinngton Senators. Some of these have been with the club for a number of years while others have been acquired since the team won the American League pennant and the world's championship last year. The latest acquisition is Hank Severeid of the Browns, who was obtained in exchange for Pitcher George Mogridge and Catcher William Hargrave. Severeid is one of the oldest catchers in point of service in the two major leagues. He is now serving his fourteenth season as a big leaguer.

The veteran of the team, of course, is the famous Walter Johnson, who is now pitching for the Washington club for the nineteenth consecutive year. Prior to the start of the present season he had participated in 721 games with the Senators. He scored a total of 374 victories and suffered 247 defeats, his average being .602. The best season of his long career came in 1913 when he won thirty-six games and lost only seven for a percentage of .837.

However, Johnson is not the only veteran member of the pitching staff. Three veteran pitchers have been acquired since the close of the past season. These are Vean Gregg, former pitcher for the Indians, who was bought from the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League; Wal-Reuther, who was purchased from the Robins, and Stanley Coveleskie, who was obtained from the Indians.

Reuther is now serving with his fifth major league club and for a number of years was considered one of the best left handers in baseball. He started his career with the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League in 1911 and remained with that team for two seasons. At the start of 1913 he received a trial with the Pirates, but he was soon released to the Los Angeles Club of the same league. In 1914 and for most of 1915 he was with the Vancouver club of the Northwestern League. Late in 1915 he was obtained by the Salt Lake City club of the Pacific Coast League. In the following season he was with the Salt Lake City, Portland and Spokane teams.

Ruether started the season of 1917 with the Cubs and he has been in the major leaues ever since then. In July of that year he was released to the Reds and he remained with them until the end of the season of 1920. He was then traded to the Robins for the veteran Rube Marquard. He remained with the Brooklyn club for four full seasons and he was sold to the Senators last December.

Coveleskie, another veteran pitcher now on the Senators' roster, also has been acquired since the team won its world's championship. He is now serving with his third major league club. He started his career with the Shamokin club of the Atlantic League in 1908 and for the next three seasons was a member of the Lancaster club of the Tri-State League. He started the season of 1912 with the Atlantic City club of the same circuit and he finished that season with the Philadelphia Athletics. Before the season of 1913 got under way he was released to the Spokane club of the Northwestern League and he spent two seasons with that team.

As a result of a trade Coveleskie started the season of 1915 with the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League. At the end of that season he was sold to the Indians. He remained with the Cleveland club for nine full seasons and during that time he was recognized as one of the best pitchers in the two major leagues. During his ten years of major league baseball prior to the start of the present season he won 175 games and lost 123.

Joe Judge, the veteran first baseman of the team, is now serving his tenth consecutive season as a member of the club. He started his professional career with the Red Sox in 1914, but he was soon released to the Lewiston club of the New England League. He was recalled by the Boston club at the start of the following campaign and later in that season he was released to the Senators. The Washington team sent him to the Buffalo club of the International League and he spent most of that season with the Bisons. He was back with the Senators at the start of the season of 1916 and he has been with them ever since. His batting average for his nine years of major league baseball prior to this season is .294.

Another veteran member of the Washington infield is Roger Peckinpaugh, former star shortstop of the Yankees. He is also serving with his third major league team and this is his fourth season as a member of the Senators. He first joined the Indians in 1910, but was later released to the New Haven Club of the Connecticut League. He was back with the Indians at the start of the 1911 campaign, but he was released again, this time to the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League. He was back with the Indians once more at the start of the 1912 pennant race and he has been a major leaguer ever since.

During the season of 1913 Peckinpaugh was traded to the Yankees and he remained with the New York club until the end of the 1921 campaign. While with the Yankees he served as their manager for about a month at the end of the 1914 season. After the season of 1921 he was traded to the Red Sox along with Pitchers Quinn, Collins and Piercy for Everett Scott, Joe Bush and Sam Jones. He never played with the Red Sox and soon after his trade to Boston he was transferred to the Washington club.

DEMPSEY MAKES PLAIN STATEMENT

Has Broken With Kearns, Rickard Handles Affairs, and He Won't See Commission.

NEW YORK, N.Y.,—(UP) July 31 Jack Dempsey told me over long distance telephone from Los Angeles, early today, that he had severed business with Jack Kearns, that "Tex Rickard was empowered to handle his affairs in the East and that he would not appear in New York on Tuesday before the State Boxing Commission as ordered. Furthermore, he said, "I have signed on fighting contracts whatever."

This cross continent interview was sought in an effort to straighten out various and conflicting stories that have arisen on all sides regarding the heavy weight champions plans.

GOLFERS TRAVEL IN HOTEL ON WHEELS

Two Trainloads Leave On Tour of Western Canada and States.

CHICAGO, July 31 (Canadian Press).Two train loads —of golfers, including Jim Barnes, British open champion, and several other stars, last night started from Chicago on a tour to the Pacific northwest and Canada. They will travel 5,000 miles and play on 100 links in a score of cities.

All the travellers will live in the trains throughout the journey. The trains, comprised of 21 compartment cars, have been fitted with every modern convenience.

SOFT BALL GAME.

Jopling's Team Defeats Lakefield 20 to 6—Return Game.

Jopling's softball team took a trip out to Lakefield last night and played a twilight game with a team picked in Lakefield. The game was rather a one-sided affair, Joplings winning out by the score of 20 to 6. The return game is to be played on next Monday evening at Chemong.

SOFT BALL GAME.

Tweed Girls Win From Deseronto 10 to 6 at Tweed.

TWEED, July 31.—A very interesting game of soft ball was played on Thursday afternoon at four o'clock between the Deseronto and Tweed High school girls. It was a very snappy game and every girl on both teams played her position well. The game ended with the score 10-6 in favor of the Tweed girls.

The local line-up was: F. Graham, catcher; H. Ryan, pitcher; H. Baker, 1st base; K. Rashotte, second base; A. Quinn, third base; R. Cotton, shortstop; M. O'Keefe, left field; M. Meraw, centre; M. Cotton, shortstop.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 31 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

From off the edge of the green the play to the pin may call for one of two kinds of approaches. You may want the ball to hit the green and then run, or you may wish it to hit and then have a tendency to stop down. If you have to pitch over a trap or other rise between you and the green you obviously want the ball to show stopping tendencies. For such a shot the mashie blade should be sent directly through the ball with the blade at right angles to the ball clear through, finishing the shot with the blade still facing the direction line at right angles. If the green is open and the pin far away you want the ball to roll. With this shot let the blade turn, as it goes through the ball, so that the finish of the swing shows the blade with its toe pointing straight up. This rolling over of the right hand through the ball must take place as the blade goes through, not before. This turning of the blade imparts an overspin to the ball which makes it run.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD PAYNE

By the death of Richard Payne, North Monaghan, has lost a most highly respected and well known resident whose kindness and consideration will be missed by a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Payne was born in 1870 at the residence in which he died in North Monaghan. He was greatly interested in military affairs and joined the Northwest Mounted Police at the time of the formation of that body. His seven years of service with the famous organization were years of varied experience of Indian warfare and of strenuous times during the stormy period that followed the Northwest Rebellion. Mr. Payne was a crack rifle shot and won distinction as a member of the rifle team of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police which toured all over Canada and the States. He was later an enthusiastic member of the 57th Peterborough Rangers.

He belonged to the Order of the Foresters and was a devout member of the Salvation Army where he will be greatly missed by all his fellow workers by whom he was much loved and respected.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Sarah Brokenshire, whom he married on September 21, 1898, two sons, Ernest and Kenneth, at home, and one brother, E. L. Payne of Peterborough.

WILLIAM J. EMERY.

HAVELOCK, July 31. — The funeral of the late William Joseph Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Emery, whose death occurred on Monday evening, took place on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence, Concession st., to the Norwood Cemetery. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. John Lennox. The deceased who was 16 years of age had been ill for some time with leakage of the heart.

ALFRED JAMES FITZPATRICK

The death occurred at the Queen Mary Hospital, Peterborough, on July 27, of Alfred James Fitzpatrick, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzpatrick of Kinmount, in his eleventh year. The funeral was held to St. Peter's Cemetery on the same day. He is survived by his parents, two sisters and one brother.

LEWIS R. BORLAND

Lewis Rosswell Borland, aged 14, eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Borland, died at Nicholls Hospital at 11 o'clock today. The funeral will take place on Saturday at 3 o'clock.

ISAAC ARCHER

Isaac Archer died on Wednesday, July 29, 1925, at Haliburton, where he had gone two weeks ago. His wife and daughter were present at the time of his death.

Mr. Archer's home was at 102 Rosalind St., Rochester, and he had come here for the purpose of bettering his health.

The remains were forwarded from the chapel of D. Belleghem and Son to the C.N.R. station, thence to Rochester for interment on Monday, August 3.

DIED

ARCHER—At 300 Rubidge Street on Wednesday, July 29, Margaret Rubidge Archer, widow of the late F. E. Archer, in her 79th year. Funeral Friday, July 31, at 3.30 p.m.

WOMAN TO TRY CHANNEL SWIM

Mlle. Sion Will Start From Cape Gris-Nez in Morning.

IS CONFIDENT.

BOULONGE, France, July 31.—(Canadian Press). — Jane Sion, French woman swimmer, who will attempt to negotiate the English Channel, to-morrow, starting from Cape Gris-Nez at 3.30 am., arrived at Calais this morning.

French swimmers says if present weather holds for eighteeen hours she is confident of success, and of earning distinction of being first woman to swim twenty mile waterway between France and England.

Mlle. Sion holds the Women's channel record, having stayed in the water fourteen hours and forty five minutes in 1925, abandoning her swim owing to bad weather when she was only four miles from Dover.

SILVER SPOONS GIVEN BOWLERS

New Awards For Friday Night Competition at Bowling Green.

MAKE COLLECTION.

For the past month a new competition has been put on at the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club on Friday nights. Silver spoons are now substituted for the fruit that was until lately the prize awarded to the winning rinks. The idea is to give the winners something which will be a tangible reminder of their victories on the green. In course of time a man might have a set of half a dozen spoons. For those who have fallen short of that number a tournament will probably be held at the end of the season to give them an opportunity of getting a complete set.

The competition will be held tonight and a good attendance of competitors and spectators is expected.

IDEAL ROWING DAY.

Cloudy at Dawn, But Gives Promise of Fine Weather.

ST. CATHARINES, July 31. — (Canadian Press).—The second day of the annual C. A. A. O. regatta, emblematic of the Canadian rowing championship, dawned cloudy this morning but shows promise of developing into an ideal day for rowing. Twelve events are on the card for decision to-day.

URGE SOLDIERS TO FRATERNIZE

Communist Paper Accuses Painleve of Making War For Capitalists.

LEADER ARRESTED.

PARIS, July 31 (Canadian Press).The Communist organ, Humanite, deliberately published a call to the French and Moroccan soldiers to fraternize and end the Riff war, urging them to combine against "European imperialism."

Accusing Premier Painleve of refusing in the interest of French capitalists to make peace, it tells the soldiers to compel an armistice by laying down their arms. This was done to force the French Government to take measures against the Communists, thereby creating a stir. Marcel Cachin, Communist leader in the Chamber of Deputies, gave himself up and was duly accused of inciting soldiers to mutiny.

DOUBLE PENALTY IN CRIME WITH PISTOL

New York Police Head Says Gun and Car Are Greatest Adjuncts.

QUEBEC, July 31.— (Canadian Press.)—"The greatest adjuncts to crime are the automobile and the pistol, and at the next session of the New York Legislature I will recommend that penalties for all major crimes committed with the aid of either of these be doubled wherever possible," said Commissioner Richard A. Enright, head of the New York Police Department, here today in the course of a discussion on the prevalence of crime.

BRITISH LABOR JUBILANT OVER UNITED STRENGTH THAT FORCED GOVERNMENT TO GRANT SUBSIDY

Premier Baldwin Yielded to Coal Miners on Eve of Lockout.

A WAGE VICTORY.

Public Relieved of Anxiety, But See Danger of Nationalization.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The general strike of British coal miners which had been scheduled to start at 12 o'clock last night has been called off.

What bade fair to be one of the worst industrial stoppages in modern times was averted when Premier Stanley Baldwin yesterday promised "subvention" to the mines, thereby enabling the owners to continue their existing wage agreements for another nine months.

Although the Government had previously maintained to the workers that it was not prepared to subsidize the mining industry, Mr. Baldwin finally yielded in the face of a threatening industrial nightmare situation involving a general stoppage in the coal industry, possibly a general cessation of railroad operations and consequently the shutting down of many other industries for lack of coal.

Counting the Cost.

With this menace removed, the people breathe freely again, but at the same time many are commencing to count the cost and to ask where the policy of the Government subsidizing industries is likely to end.

The advocates of nationalization of coal mines boldly pronounce the Government to be on a slippery path seeming to lead to national control or to ownership.

The miners are elated at what they regard as a great victory, and their elation is shared by the entire labor world, which hails the great solidarity displayed by the trades union movement in supporting the miners in the present situation. This is the first time in the history of the labor movement in Great Britain that such an effective union has been secured. It was undoubtedly this exhibition of solidarity that finally broke down the Government's reluctance to adopt the policy of state assistance.

A report, which, however, cannot be vouched for, says the miners secured from the Government an undertaking to make effective the recommendations of the royal commission when its report, following investigation of conditions in the coal industry, is made.

It is emphasized, however, that Premier Baldwin's way out is a purely temporary measure to carry the industry on until spring, when it is expected that a full inquiry into the mining industry will be completed.

Reduction Necessary.

Baldwin told the miners they would have to take a reduction in wages, because wages were going to fall everywhere, and he maintained this stand up to the last moment, and it was only by a dramatic retreat that the lockout was averted.

The crisis, however, has shown the solidarity of labor in opposing these reductions and the Government now knows what it has to face in such a crisis in the future. A new element has been brought into the industrial life of the country, which means that every time in the future there are industrial troubles of a like character there will be the menace of a complete stoppage of all activities to overshadow the negotiations and make it more and more difficult to reach a reasonable settlement. Labor has recovered from its "black Friday" and that is the real meaning of the averted crisis.

Embargo Withdrawn.

The Trades Union Congress committee notified all affiliated unions that the owners and miners had accepted the Government proposals, and hence that the ordered embargo on coal movements was withdrawn and unions were to remain at work.

WEATHER

Another heavy shower occurred last night, and continued for some time later. About one-half inch (.49) had fallen by 6 a.m. This is the first day of August, named after the Emperor Augustus. As was mentioned yesterday July got its name from Julius Caesar. As July had 31 days Augustus was not going to play second fiddle to Julius, and insisted on the same number of days in the month named after him. To gratify his Royal Highness a day was taken from February and given to his month. This only goes to show that jealousy is a trait of character not peculiar to the gentler sex nor confined to the common people, nor is it a modern weakness of the flesh.—W. P.

Canoe Trip From Edmonton To Winnipeg Begun Friday

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 1—From Edmonton to Winnipeg by canoe is the trip being undertaken by Wallace Forgie, former executive secretary of the Alberta Boys' Work Board; Harold F. Patton, of the staff of the University of Alberta, and Alfred J. Johnson, who has been in charge of McDougall Methodist Church Boys' Camps. Friday morning the hardy adventurers cast off on the commencement of their 1,000-mile canoe jaunt down the Saskatchewan to Lake Winnipeg.

The boys hope to make the trip to Winnipeg city in 15 days. Paddling down the Saskatchewan to Cumberland House, on Lake Winnipeg, they propose at this point to take the steamer to the mouth of the Red River from whence they will paddle against the current to Winnipeg, passing Prince Albert and the Pas through the Grand Rapids to their destination.

NEW DIRECTOR OF WHEAT POOL

All Actions of Manitoba Board During Year Are Approved.

OFFICERS LATER.

BRANDON, Man., Aug. 1—Re-election of last year's Board of Directors with one exception was the feature of yesterday's session of the Manitoba wheat pool. C. S. Stevenson, of Shoal Lake, is the new member of the directorate replacing J. S. Carlson, Roblin. The officers of the pool will be elected later by the directors. All of the by-laws passed during the year by the directors were ratified. These included the one for deductions from the proceeds of the sale of pool grain for the building or purchase of grain elevators, and the accumulation of a commercial fund.

A blanket resolution endorsing all activities of the Board during the past year was also passed.

PROPOSAL MADE TO BOTH PARTIES

Government of Nova Scotia Believes Miners and Owners Should Accept.

CONFERENCE HELD.

HALIFAX, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—"The Government has submitted a final proposal, which it believes should be accepted by both parties. This proposal is now under consideration by them, and the Government is awaiting their reply."

The above statement was given out early this morning by Premier Rhodes after he and his colleagues concluded their discussions at 12.30 of the Provincial coal field tie-up, which has paralyzed industry for the past five months. Conferences were held between the Government, the British Empire Steel Corporation and District 26 Board of the United Mine Workers.

Land Wealth of Farmers In Danzig Shown by Pillars

NEUTEICH, Aug. 1.—The tax collector in the Free City of Danzig does not have much trouble determining how large are the farms in the district under his jurisdiction. Since time immemorial there has obtained the custom of indicating ones' wealth in land by the number of pillars on his front porch. Every pillar stands for one "huf", or "hoof", an old German designation which is equivalent to 20 acres.

Certain very wealthy farmers substitue marble pillars for wood. There are several examples of this kind around Neuteich.

Five Children Are Not Cause For Dispossession

YONKERS, N.Y., Aug. 1.—(United Press.)—The possession of five children does not make a person an objectionable tenant, Judge Charles Boote, who has two small children of his own, ruled Friday in denying an application of a landlord who sought to dispossess a tenant on the ground that the defendant was the father of five noisy children.

"There are certain kinds of people in the world who abhor children," Judge Boote declared, "and this house owner seems to be classed with them."

LASH APPLIED TO PRISONERS

Punishment of Three Men in Montreal Inflicted as Humanely as Possible.

ORDERED BY COURT.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press)—A report of the flogging of three prisoners in St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary a short time ago brought the following statement from the Penitentiaries branch of the Department of Justice here Friday:

"A short time ago, a Montreal judge sentenced three inmates of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary and directed that they should be whipped as part of their sentences. There crimes were of such a nature that he considered it his duty to award them the lash.

"A supposed account of the awarding of this punishment has been sent, broadcast, over the world by a Montreal newspaper. The description given of the carrying out of this part of the sentence awarded by the judge is entirely misleading and incorrect. The punishment was carried out in the most humane method possible. There were no faintings, no struggles. There was no salt used and the men were not placed in hospital. The punishment awarded by the court was carried out in the presence of one of the inspectors of penitentiaries, the deputy warden of the institution and the prison surgeon."

TRADE BETTER THAN YEAR AGO

Affected By Vacations and Farmers' Harvest Activities Throughout Dominion.

COLLECTIONS FAIR.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 1.— The weekly trade report of the Canadian Cred it Men's Association Limited reads.

Halifax—Retail business rather quiet. Wholesale trade fair.

Saint John — Midsummer wholesale trade quiet, and retail trade slow. Collections fair.

Montreal— Not much change noted in either whoesale and retail lines, but better volume of business looked for in the very near future. Collections fair.

Toronto — Business as a whole is satisfactory but usual summer quietness is noticed in some lines of goods. Retail trades in the city some lines such as provisions are a little quiet This us due however, to a number of people being out of town on vacation. Sporting goods and summer wear fairly active.

Winnipeg — General trade conditions remain unchanged though a satisfactory increase is noted in some lines in anticipation of coming harvest requirements. Collections fair to good for the pre-harvest period.

Regina— Wholesale trade— steady improvement shown in some lines and retail trade showing improvement. Collections slow to fair.

Saskatoon — Wholesale trade reported slow and retail trade fair. Collections slow to fair.

Calgary — As usual at this period business generally is quiet but is in excess of the corresponding period last year. Collections slow.

Edmonton — Business generally good. Crop outlook improved in certain districts from recent local rains.

Vancouver — Wholesale trade reports boots and shoes fairly good, groceries fair, dry goods fairly good in most lines. Fall goods of dry goods and boots and shoes are beginning to move, though no signs of any great improvement as yet.

GERMANY WILL EVICT POLES IF FORCE IS USED

Germans Who Voted Against Poland Still Remain in Silesia.

SOME HAVE LEFT.

Poles in German Silesia May Be Evicted in Retaliation.

BERLIN, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press).— The Poles in Germany will not be evicted by the Reich Government, unless Poland forcibly ejects the Germans still remaining in Poland. If Poland does this Germany is prepared to make immediate reprisals. Germans in Poland who voted for Germany in the plebiscite in 1921 which resulted in the division of Upper Silesia between Poland and Germany, have been ordered by the former country out of the territory awarded to her. The forcible eviction was expected to start to-day but thousands of Germans began leaving Poland several days ago and have been assembled at Schneidemuehl on the German side of the frontier.

There still remains in Upper Silesia, Germans who voted against Poland. If they are forcibly evicted Germany will retaliate by sending out of Germany, all Poles who voted against Germany in the plebiscite. Some 4,000 or 5,000 of such Poles have already left Germany.

New Sheep Presents Owner With a Five-Legged Lambkin

GLACE BAY, N.S., Aug. 1 (Canadian Press)—H. J. Warner, of this town, entered his barn yesterday to find that the sheep he had purchased the night before had given birth to three lambs. One of the new arrivals was the possessor of five legs and three eyes. If the five footed animal survives it will be presented to the London Zoo.

PROSECUTION ALIENISTS SAY THAT RUSSEL SCOTT IS SANE

Defense Contends That He Suffers From Delusions.

RESISTED EXPERT.

Attempted to Strike State's Alienist During Examination.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The State will match alienist for alienist with the attorney's for Russell Scott, erstwhile Canadian financier, when he undergoes a sanity test on Monday to determine whether he goes to the gallows.

Specialists for both sides have submitted him to lengthy examinations. Scott has resisted tests by the prosecution's experts. He refused yesterday to submit to examination and attempted to strike Dr. William Krohn, when he touched his kneecaps and skull.

Dr. Krohn, who testified for the State in the trial of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, said Scott is sane. The defense contends that he has become insane and suffers from delusions as the result of his confinement in jail and the ordeals of two escapes from the gallows.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Sewage Disposal Debentures to be Sold at $101.50—Pay Tourist Camp Caretaker.

The Finance Committee convened at 8.00 o'clock last night, with Alderman Nagle Phelan in the chair and Mayor Turner, Aldermen Denne, Meyers, Fife and Hancock present.

The City Treasurer was authorized to sell 40,000 sewage disposal bonds at the rate of $101.50.

The committee admitted liability with regard to certain indigents.

Accounts were read and ordered to be paid when certified.

A further sum of $100 was ordered to be appropriated for the purpose of paying the caretaker at the tourist camp for the month of August.

Meeting adjourned.

KATO RE-APPOINTED.

Society of the Godless Will Pay Scopes' Fine

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—(United Press). — The Russian Society of the Godless is collecting $100 to pay the fine imposed upon Prof. John T. Scopes in the Tennessee evolution trial.

As the society solicits its contributions from the Russian peasants, it tells them why the American bourgeois is frightened and is combatting the Darwin theory.

LABOR IS SAVED FROM POVERTY

Leader Says Settlement Kept Up Standards of Living.

COST $50,000,000.

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Aug. 1—English labor today held that the government's provisional settlement of the coal crisis had saved it from being "pushed to the absolute poverty line."

This labor reaction to the adjustment was voiced in a speech of Secretary Cramp of the Railwaymen's Union, in which he said labor could not claim a complete victory but was entitled to congratulate itself on warding off a proposed lowering of living standards.

The government subsidy to tide the mine owners over the winter and permit them to maintain prevailing wage and hours scale will cost ten million pounds (about $50,000,000) it is estimated.

RUHR EVACUATED.

Not One French Soldier Remains in Entire District.

PARIS, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Official announcement was made this morning that the French evacuation of the Ruhr is complete, and that not a single French soldier remains in the mining and industrial basin.

RIFF EMISSARIES ARE IN TETUAN READY TO TREAT

Demand Independence, But Spain Requires Surrender of Artillery and Adjir Fort.

FRENCH PREPARING.

Make Ready For Crushing Drive, While Riffs Are Building Defensive Positions.

LONDON, Aug. 1. — (United Press).— The Times Tangiers correspondent reports that Emissaries of Abe-El-Krim, Riffian chief have arrived at Tetuan, and informed the French authorities that Krim is prepared to negotiate on terms already announced. These terms centre around a demand for independence of the Riffian for holding the negotiations in Tangiers. The correspondent adds that Spain's terms to Krim contain a demand that he must recognize the sovereignity of the Sultan, surrender his prisoners and artillery to the Spaniards and allow Spain to fortify Adjir. In return the Riffians would have a local Independence under Spanish officials and a small Spanish army controlled and financed by Spain.

FEZ, Morocco, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Little by little Abd-El-Krim is abandoning his offensive against the French and the reports of air scouts agree that the rebellious tribesmen are engaged in establishing defensive positions all along the front. Meanwhile, the French command, not concerning itself with the plans of the Riffian leader, is steadily and methodically going ahead with preparations for a blow with which to crush the rebellious Riffians for all time. As it is necessary, however, to train and equip shock troops and to secure numbers of mountain guns, mules and other paraphernalia required in carrying out mountain warfare, it is not likely that the great French drive will be made before the end of August. The situation along the battle front remains one of stagnation. There have been only sporadic raids in skirmishes.

CANADA'S STREETS NOT PAVED WITH GOLD DELEGATE ADVISES LABOR CONFERENCE

Plight Of Unemployed Worse Than In Britain, But Immigrants Desire to Remain in This Country.

LONDON, August 1. — Canadian Press Cable. — Delegate Queen of Canada in opening the discussion on the question of interdominion emigration at the London conference Friday, said that while they had no desire to put any sort of a discriminatory bar against the admission of immigrants to Canada, they were anxious that people should not be sent out under false pretences with the impression that the streets were paved with gold, while as a matter of fact the workers in Canada struggled to live as strongly as did the workers in England.

Mrs. H. Bell referred to her official visit to Canada and said that while there was considerable unemployment in Canada and that the plight of the unemployed there was worse than that of the unemployed in Britain yet the majority of women she had interviewed during her visit were emphatic in their statements that they did not want to return home. She pleaded for co-ordination, and regarding migration schemes she advised the Dominion labor movements to co-operate with the emigration authorities in England, to take more interest in the subject from their own ends, and ensure, for instance, that so many land agents and other interested parties, were not represented on migration bodies in their countries.

FIVE KILLED IN NANKING RIOT

Workers of British Company Attacked Paymaster and Were Fired On.

ONE BRITISHER DEAD.

(By Randall Gould, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PEKING, Aug. 1—One British citizen and four Chinese were killed and several Chinese were wounded in an encounter in the compound of a British owned export trading company at Nanking. Consular advices said the trouble started during payment of wages, the workers attacking the paymaster and the company replying with rifle fire.

Students captured one of the British and took him to the South Eastern University while other Britishers sought refuge on a warship which landed an armed guard.

RAIN KEPT PATRONS AWAY FROM MARKET

Dairy Supplies Were Scarce, With Butter at a Premium.

The rain of this morning kept a good many patrons away from the farmers' market, where the carts were covered for the most part with tarpaulins, protecting to a lesser or greater extent the contents.

In the basket section, dairy supplies were scarce, with butter at a premium. The available supply sold out soon for 38 cents a pound. Eggs were fairly plentiful, at 35 cents a dozen.

Spring chickens could be had very cheap, selling at a late hour at 40 and 50 cents apiece, for brids of two pounds in weight. Hens were priced at 23 cents a pound.

Squaw corn made its appearance on the market to-day, coming all the way from Millbrook, and selling at 25 cents for a dozen small ears.

Potatoes were 35 cents a peck, and apples 40 cents a peck. There were plenty of big new beets and onions and string beans, at the usual prices.

Wild red raspberries were 15c a box. The tame variety sold at two boxes for a quarter and two for thirty five cents, at different stands. Gooseberries were 15 cents a quart, black currants 25 cents.

LADY HAIG WRITES MRS. W. R. MORRIS

Thanks For Presentation of Honorary President's Pin in G.W.V.A. Auxiliary.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, Ontario Provincial President of the Ladies Auxiliaries to the G. W. V. A., who had the honour of presenting an Honorary President's pin to Lady Haig on the occasion of the luncheon tendered the latter in Toronto last week by various women's organizations, has received the following letter from Lady Haig:

"To the President, Ladies' Auxiliary, Ontario Provincial G. W. V. A.:

Dear Mrs. Morris:—Will you please express to the members of your committee my great pleasure at the gift thay gave me of the medal, and I am proud to be now connected with them.

"It delights me very much to see how ready you are all to come into the one organization of men's societies.

"I understood every word and remark you expressed at lunch about the various difficulties having gone through them myself too, as President of English and Scottish brances.

'But you will find your work so much easier once the men organize their part.

"indly forgive a badly expressed and hurried letter and with renewed grateful thanks for the medal.

Yours sincerely, Dorothy Haig.

Question—When do you put in the yeast?—John.

Answer—Six weeks before it is ready to drink.

CANADA'S TRADE HAS IMPROVED

Balance Against United Kingdom is Increasing, While Balance For States Decreases.

BALANCE LARGER.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press)—Canada's trade statistics for the year ending June 30 last, which show a total improvement in balance of $61,321,178, also show the balance of trade held by the United States against Canada to be steadily decreasing, and Canada's balance against the United Kingdom to be increasing The Dominion's balance of trade against the United Kingdom for the year ended June 30 last was $240,283,998 as compared with $227,011,477 in the previous year and $237,904,455, in the 12 months ended June 30, 1923. On the other hand, the balance of trade held by the United States against Canada was $88,404,545 for the year ended June 30 last as compared with $146,983,045, in the year ended June 30th, 1924, and $191,419,674 in the previous year.

RAIN FLOODED ESSEX COUNTY

Fields Are Covered, Roads Washed Out and Pavements Look Like Lakes.

RAINED ALL DAY.

WINDSOR, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Swept by torrential rain that began early yesterday morning and continued practically without interruption the entire day, Essex County is suffering a mild inundation. Fields everywhere are covered with water inches deep, roadways in many places are washed out and in the towns paved streets resemble miniature lakes.

'QUAKE INSURANCE.

RAILWAY BOARD NOW RECEIVING RATE EVIDENCE

Sessions Will Begin in September—Railways to Prepare Their Case.

FILE COMPLAINTS.

Commission Will Visit Important Centres Throughout the Dominion.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—Matters are shaping up for the process of equalizing the freight rate structure in sequence to the legislation passed at the recent session.

Much correspondence about it is coming to the Railway Commission. Public hearings, however, will not begin before the first week in September. By August 15 all the complaints against the existing freight rates will be formally filed and the railways will then be given an opportunity to reply.

After this matter is collated the itinerary of the board for the hearing of the evidence will be arranged. The initial sitting will be in Ottawa, but all the important centres will later be visited and final agreement heard here.

Various Viewpoints.

British Columbia will urge that the eastbound rate on grain and flour be applied to the Pacific route as well, and while this is not now provided by statute, nothing prevents the commission from doing so. The Prairie Government will seek an equivalent of the Crow's Nest rates on numerous commodities westbound, while the Maritime Provinces will claim lower rates to offset their geographical position and will maintain that such was contemplated at the time of Confederation. From Ontario and Quebec no common ground will be taken, but complaints will be of a diversified character. The railways will not object to the principle of revision of the rates, but will maintain generally that the existing structure is not excessive, having regard to the union wages that are paid and the high cost of operation.

Lengthy Sessions.

It is anticipated that the hearings will cover a period of at least two months and possibly more. Probably a dozen lawyers will be engaged, and this will not be an abbreviating influence. The statute calls for equalization "as far as possible," but exactly similar schedules are not to be anticipated, considering the varied density of traffic, the long and short hauls, and the effect of water competition in the west.

LARGE ACREAGE HELD ON OPTION

Land Valued at $1,000,000 is Held in Area of Zinc Find.

LARGE ORE BODIES.

SUDBURY, Ont., August 1.—(Canadian Press.)—More than 10,000 acres of land, representing options to the value of a million dollars, in the vicinity of Larchwood, northwest of Sudbury, are involved in the zinc discovery made this week by the Sudbury Diamond Drilling Co., drilling under contract with the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining and Concentrating Co., of Idaho. Four drills are at present in operation, work having been under way since July 15th, and the results from one drill at a depth of 800 feet show a 100 foot body of zinc, in commercial quality.

GIVE INSTRUCTIONS TO ITALIAN ENVOYS

Are To Ask Low Interest Rate and Long Moratorium on Debts.

ROME, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Mussolini yesterday again received Alberto Pirelli and Mario Alberti, who will go to Washington for its war debts parley. It is learned that the Italian delegates were instructed to stress that Washington must be prepared to consider some means of relieving the present stringent laws against Italian immigration. Another point is the high tariff wall which the United States has built up against the importation of Italy's manufacturers. A long moratorium and low interest form part of the proposals the Italians will lay before Washington.

FREEDOM SHORT.

Haliburton Man at Liberty From Guelph Jail For Very Short Time.

GUELPH, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Leaping through a window on the ground floor of the Wellington County Jail, William R. Nichols of Haliburton County, awaiting sentence on a theft charge, made an escape from the institution, but was at liberty only a few hours when recaptured yesterday by Jail Governor Lorne Cosby in a swamp near Elora.

FRANCE OFFERS SMALL PAYMENT

Would Pay Britain Amount Equal to One Per Cent. on Debt.

REACH DEADLOCK.

PARIS, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press.)— The British-French debt discussions have reached a deadlock which will last, it is believed in Paris, until the French debt Funding Commission goes to Washington and the funding is settled at least in principle.

The French offer about $30,000,000, while the British want $100,000,000. This is one per cent. interest on a total debt of $3,000,000,000.

SOVIET TRADE HIGHER.

May's Total $50,000,000 on European Borders.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 — During May the foreign trade turnover of the Soviet Union on the European frontiers passed the $50,000,000 mark for the first time during any single month since the close of the war, according to customs figures just received by the Russian Information Bureau in Washington.

The turnover for May was $65,000,0000, of which $19,800,000 represented exports and $45,200,000 imports. The figures are for the European frontiers only. The unfavorable trade balance has now continued for four months, due to the cessation of grain exports.

Furs valued at $5,070,000 led the export list, followed by petroleum products worth $4,827,000. The imports included cotton worth $10,400,000, machinery worth $3,330,000, chemicals and chemical products worth $2,481,000. The imports of grain and folur, necessitated by last year's bad harvest, continued during the month. Their value was $12,852,000.

Make your own Mustard Pickles

Home-made mustard pickles. How delicious—and how easy to put up. Here's the recipe:—

MUSTARD PICKLES

1 qt. small onions 1 large cauliflower
1 qt. cucumbers 2 heads celery
2 red peppers

Peel onions, cut vegetables in small pieces, cover with weak brine and let stand overnight. In the morning bring to a boil and drain off.

Take 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup flour, 6 tablespoonfuls Keen's D.S.F. Mustard, 1 tablespoonful turmeric and 2 quarts vinegar. Boil this mixture for twenty minutes, stirring continually. Pour over vegetables hot. Let stand ten days, stirring every day, then bottle.

This is one of the many recipes given in our new Cook Book. May we send you a copy? It's FREE. Write:—

QUEENSLAND SEEKS YOUNG BRITISHERS

Established Training School and Advances Money to Right Men.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press.)—With the object of getting as many young English settlers of a certain type as possible in the next few years, the government of Queensland is offering attractive inducements to public school boys and others who have a little capital of their own.

An Australian Farms College is being established at Lynford Hall, Norfolk, bought for the purpose which will be controlled by H. V. Potts, former principal of the Hawlesbury Agricultural College, New South Wales. Students will receive the necessary training at this college at a cost of $875 for six months. They will be expected to possess $1,250 capital on landing in Australia, which, with passage money and pocket money, totals $2,500. The state, however, will advance to each trained student with $1,250 capital, a sum of $3,750.

It is estimated that the training and acquirement of a fully-equipped and fully-stocked farm will amount to $6,250.

HAVELOCK PEOPLE ASK BOARD TO PLACE NEW STAFF IN SCHOOLS

Public Meeting Held to Protest Present Teaching System.

EIGHTY PRESENT.

Object of Speakers Was Not Reduction in Payments, But . . Increased Efficiency.

(By a Staff Reporter)

HAVELOCK, Aug. 1—Havelock rate payers at a public meeting called Thursday night for the discussion of the school situation, adopted a resolution suggesting that the members of the School Board advertise for an entirely new staff of teachers in both the Continuation and Public Schools, that the present teachers be allowed the privilege of making application to succeed themselves and that all applicants be required to state the salary expected.

A Minority Meeting

This meeting was called by Reeve Curtis on the request of a number of ratepayers who were not satisfied with the result of the discussion at a special meeting of the School Board held last week. Alfred Spencer, a member of the village council, was elected chairman. There were about 80 ratepayers present or less than 15 per cent of the total 550 who help maintain the schools in Havelock. Principal Fletcher of the Continuation and Principal Yuill of the Public School were present and answered every question addressed to them by members of the audience, which included a number of ladies. All the members of the Board, with the exception of Trustee Moore, who is on his vacation, were in attendance, namely, Trustees Roche, Dr. Thompson, Barlow, Fennell and Forde.

Money Versus Efficiency

The majority of the ratepayers who spoke insisted that their main object was not to secure a reduction of the cost of maintaining the schools but to increase the efficiency of the staff. Members of the Board maintained that this claim was inconsistent as by the terms of the resolution which gave the teachers a chance to hold their positions with less salary the question of efficiency was forced out of the calculations altogether. How, asked the trustees can a teacher's efficiency as an instructor be raised by cutting his salary?

Union Fights Union

Trustee Roche, chairman of the Board, was the principal speaker on behalf of the latter. Havelock, he said, is a railway town, and the employees of the C.P.R. have a strong labor union. At present there is a surplus of railway men but the wages have not been reduced. Personally Mr. Roche is in favor of a generous wage scale and he cannot see how railway employees who belong to the Union can consistently object to members of the teaching profession maintaining a Federation having the same aims as the organization of railway men.

Answers Reeve Curtis

At the meeting a week ago Reeve Curtis had quoted figures to show that the cost of education was higher in Havelock than in Norwood. Those who heard him got the impression that Havelock spent $8.00 for every $5.00 expended by Norwood.

Dr. Thompson went to Norwood the day after last week's meeting in order to get first hand information. When he spoke Thursday night he said that he appeared not as a member of the Board but in his capacity as a private citizen.

From the Reeve of Norwood and chairman of the School Board, Dr. Thompson said he had obtained figures showing that in the Public and High Schools of Norwood there are 257 pupils and nine teachers. The annual cost of education in Norwood is $19,580.

In the Havelock schools there are 325 pupils and eight teachers and the yearly bill for maintenance is less than $14,000.

Dr. Thompson said the members of the Board were satisfied that the teachers in all departments were doing their duty. Some of them, however, are working under a handicap as they belong in Havelock and are subject to local prejudice. Pupils do not treat such teachers with the same respect that is given strangers in the community.

Accumulation of Troubles

Dr. Thompson declared that the present situation in the schools is not the fault of the Board but is the result of mistakes that had been made in the past. The Board is not trying to portect any teacher or teachers but would not hesitate to ask for the resignation of any whom they regarded as inefficient or neglectful of duty.

The main speakers on behalf of the dissatisfied ratepayers were Reeve Curtis and S. S. Joyce, who repeated the statement that had been made by them a week ago. The resolution was introduced by Mr. Joyce and suported by Frank Hooper and was carried by a standing vote.

The Board's Attitude.

The next regular meeting of the School Board will be held on August 18th, only two weeks before the schools open for the Fall term. All the teachers of last year are still under contract which cannot be terminated without a month's notice or in lieu of such notice the payment of a month's salary. The latter plan to make a clean sweep of the staff would cost the village over $1200. To turn them adrift now would not be fair either to them or the schools, the trustees say. At this late date it would be difficult for the teacher to secure desirable positions and it would be just as hard for the trustees to replace them as all the best teachers in the Province are already placed for next year.

The Trustees are saying nothing wtih regard to their action when the resolution of Thursday night is officially presented to them. However, they have placed themselves on record as having confidence in the staff. They have, they claim, done everything that is humanly possible to improve conditions in the schools so that it will surprise no one if the resolution when it reaches them will be given a place among the pigeon holes.

DUNSEATH FOUND GUILTY BY JURY

Coroner's Jury Says He Killed Sister-in-law and Committed Suicide.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIED.

SHELBURNE, Ont., August 1. — Canadian Press. — After hearing the evidence relating to the murder of Mrs. Edgar Dunseath in her garden near Creemore, the Coroner's jury last night returned the verdict: "That Nellie Dunseath was murdered by a fork and a hoe believed to be in the hands of Frank Dunseath, her brother-in-law, on the afternoon of Monday, July 27th."

The bones found in the ruins of the Dunseath barn, which was burned on the same afternoon the woman was murdered, weer declared by Dr. W. J. McLean to be human bones, and with regard to them the jury's verdict was: "We have decided from the evidence given, that Frank Dunseath committed suicide on July 27, 1925, in the barn that was destroyed by fire on lot 24."

Fourteen witnesses testified, several declaring that there was bad feeling between Frank Dunseath and his brother's wife.

The dead woman's eight year old daughter testified:

"I saw mother in the garden," she said. "I could see only her head. Uncle Frank went to the garden too, and he had a big stick. I saw him hammering something, but could not see mother."

St. Andrew's Picnic.

The annual picnic held on Friday afternoon at Crow River Bridge, under ideal weather conditions and under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School, was most largely attended, there being about five hundred people in attendance. The picnic was not confined to the Sunday School, but proved a congregational one as well, and cars were provided by volunteer members of the congregation for all who wished to attend, these leaving the church at 1.30 p.m.

The committees in charge were as follows:

Conveyance Committee— Messrs. J. A. Anderson, Neil Morrison, Wilfred Todd, Thomas Campbell, R. H. Townsend.

Lunch Committee — Miss Mary Watson, Mesdames Neil Morrison, J. S. Wallace, John Storie.

Sports Committee—Rev. James Grier, Messrs. N. Morrison, J. Storie, J. S. Wallace, Dr. O. C. Watson.

The earlier part of the afternoon was pleasantly spent in two games of softball, after which there were races for old and young.

The picnic grounds, due to the kindness of Mrs. Allan Watson and Mr. W. J. Dalgleish, were much improved, swings being provided and tables erected. The children also indulged in bathing, etc., while a happy social feeling prevailed among the older folks. About five o'clock all sat down to tables which fairly groaned under their load of good things, to which all did ample justice.

The winners in the races were as follows:

Running race, children under five years—Billy McEachern, Beatrice Curle, J. Anderson.

Girls 6 to 8 — Georgina Nesbitt, Ethel Easton, Mary Smith.

Boys 6 to 8 — Fred. McArthur, Wallace Rutherford, Edward Rutherford.

Girls 9 to 11—Ruby Towsend, Leah Blue, Willena Allan.

Boys 9 to 11—Gordon McCullough, Jack Brown, Douglas McArthur.

Girls 12 to 14—Grace Caddy, Margaret Cock, Eva McKelvie.

Boys 12 to 14—Stewart Anderson, Lester Henson, Hector McMillan.

Boys 15 to 17—Owen Hardy, Joe Smith.

Young women — Amy Hooper, Helen McDonald, Dorothy Ackerman.

Boys' three-legged—Stewart Anderson and Hector McMillan, Lester Henson and Clarence Wallace, Keith Bailey and Walter Twigg.

Fat men's race—Robert McCullough, Alex. McDonald, Reginald McCullough.

Ladies' balloon—Jean Wallace, Mrs. N. Morrison, Mrs. J. A. Anderson.

Married ladies—Mrs. Thos. Hay, Mrs. Wm. Cock, Mrs. J. McEachern.

Married men—Walter Blakely, T. Chaplin, Chas. McArthur.

Girls' sack race—Grace Caddy, Gladys McArthur, Ruby Townsend.

Boys' sack—Lester Henson, Hector McMillan, Donald Rutherford.

Girls' three-legged—Nellie Potts and Leah Blue, Grace Caddy and Eva McKelvie, Gladys McArthur and Willena Allan.

Tug-of-war (captains) — Freeman Bailey won against J. R. Battisby.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Grier, Superintendent Mr. J. A. Anderson and congregation are to be congratulated upon the success of the day's outing as all present concede it, from the standpoint of attendance and pleasure, to be the best yet.

Salvation Army Hold Picnic.

The annual picnic held under the auspices of the Salvation Army was held on Friday afternoon at Crow River Bridge, two trucks being used to convey the picnickers to the grounds.

The weather was most favorable and all report a happy time. Games of ball, bathing and races for all, also musical numbers and community singing, made a pleasant day for all. Capt. and Mrs. Stevens looking well after the pleasure of all. Well filled baskets were enjoyed by all.

WEDDING BELLS.

McGAUGHEY—WINDRIM.

OMEMEE, July 31.—A very quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lindsay, on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, when Verna Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Windrim, was united in marriage to Mr. Lawrence McGaughey, son of Mrs. Lucenda McGaughey and the late Wm. J. McGaughey of Lindsay. Rev. N. S. MacTavish, B.D., Ph.D., of Belleville, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly attired in an ensemble suit of black and perrywinkle kasha, with hat to match and black fox fur. A reception was held at the Benson House to the immediate relatives, after which the bride and groom left by motor for a tour through the Eastern Provinces.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond cluster ring set in platinum.

On their return Mr. and Mrs.

MAKING CHILDREN HAPPY.

Edward West Browning, New York millionaire, has already adopted a little girl and is planning to adopt another.

This little girl has a twenty-thousand-dollar automobile with a moving picture screen in it and a sixteen-tube radio set.

She has a garden containing many thousands of blossoms. Also a 450-acre playground.

Besides this, a magnificent mansion more gorgeous than that of many old world sovereigns.

She also has ponies and dogs, dolls and carriages and miniature railroads aplenty.

This is one way to make a little girl happy, but we wonder if Mr. Browning has ever read the story of the Poor Little Rich Girl.

There are many little girls in and around New York who are happier with a rag doll and a piece of string than they would be with all the luxuries that wealth can buy.

A child's chances for happiness are better if she is taught self-discipline and control and has many small pleasures and presents than if she is indulged to the limit in her desire for very costly things.

Things never yet made a human soul happy. In fact, the most miserable people are those who depend on outward things.—New York American.

IDLENESS CAUSES MOST OF CRIME.

Judge Campbell of the Oregon Circuit Court said something at Victoria, B. C., that will not be popular with modern reformers, says the Sarnia Observer.

He stated that ninety-five per cent. of the crime that had come under his notice was caused by idleness. People got into a shiftless manner of living and the next thing they were committing crime in order to finance themselves. He thought that it would be desirable that the death penalty should be exacted in the dealing with habitual criminals who were a detriment to society and to themselves.

When you come to think of it there are not many of the hard, regular workers in the penitentiary. They have been too busy to get into trouble. You will find eminent uplifters who will tell them that they are working too steadily, that they will impair their health, and that they should devote more time to just "knocking about" so they can improve their minds.

That advice is pretty largely bunk. It is the drifter, the idle person who finds mischief. While unending work is not the ideal thing for a human being, it affords a fairly certain route to security against evil ways. Human nature seems to require a controller in order to keep functioning normally. If this is not provided there are temptations that are irresistible. Unremitting occupation presents the outlet for surplus energy. When once the work habit is formed there is not much likelihood of the individual going wrong. He is too busy and crime requires an expenditure of time.

THE INVISIBLE FACTORS.

One must look below the surface before taking trade figures as the final proof of national prosperity. For fully a century Great Britain has imported more than she exported; yet under precisely those conditions, which seemed so adverse, she grew opulent and strong. The United States, on the other hand, has for many years had a favorable balance of trade, in the sense that exports have exceeded imports. Last year it amounted to a billion dollars in round figures, and there have been years when it went beyond two billions.

It might be assumed on this showing that our neighbors were each year forging ahead by the exact measure of this favorable trade balance. The same course of reasoning would justify the assumption that Great Britain was being impoverished. But that would be an error in both cases. Great Britain has "invisible exports" of such huge proportions, arising out of her investments abroad and her shipping, that she is able to show a credit balance in her national ledger. As for the United States, the Department of Commerce has recently made a careful analysis of her position, and finds that "invisible exchange" creates a final debit balance of over $200,000,000 per annum. That takes the rosy hue out of the trade figures.

Where does Canada stand in this matter? The answer is that we also have invisible exports; but they are not of any special significance. We have a favorable trade balance of large proportions, and we are not, like the United States, eating up that balance by paying invisible exchange. We pay some exchange of that nature; but, happily, ninety per cent. of our war debt interest goes to our own people. They took Dominion bonds to the extent of nearly two billions during the war years, and in so doing made it perfectly clear that for all time to come we shall not need to do any financing abroad. That was a tremendously important discovery. It revealed another of the invisible factors which are operating in our national life—our growing domestic wealth in the hands of the common people.—Kingston Whig.

THE NEW ERA IN GERMANY.

In the graphic phrase of former Chancellor Wirth, the German Government's memorandum to France is a formal admission "that Alsace-Lorraine no longer belongs to Germany." More than that, it is a "voluntary" admission, having been made under no other duress than the logic of accomplished fact. In this he sees "the possibility of a complete and brand-new political era" in Germany. If he or Rathenau had made such a declaration during their tenure of office their lives "would not have been secure three days." The whole statement is not merely his own opinion but that of "a German politician not a Centrist, whose opinions have weight with the Right."

It is the opinion also, or at least the hope, of the Governments of England and France. Nearly a year ago word came to Geneva that Germany was prepared to consider favorably entrance into the League of Nations. Skepticism was natural, not only as to the sincerity of the offer but as to the mood in which France would receive it. That skepticism is not yet completely laid—even, as it seems, in the mind of Herr Wirth. He admits that there are still Germans who, as in the war and before it, "never could find courage to draw necessary statesmanlike conclusions from the realities of the political situation." But the Dawes plan has become a promising fact and now the statesmen of France, England and Germany are working loyally toward the "potential enemies pact." Eleven months have notably strengthened the hope that responsible German statesmanship has turned away from the troubled waters of Russia and is bent upon entering again into the commercial, political and cultural fellowship of Western Europe—this time with a better sense of realities.

Confessedly, the situation is difficult to the point of paradox. While Germany accepts the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, she insists upon her right to bring again the burning questions of her eastern frontier before the League of Nations. France has committed herself to security and disarmament based upon universal arbitration, yet apparently balks at orderly and peaceful discussion such as Germany proposes. Article XVI. of the Covenant, which Germany hesitates to sign, has been repudiated by several of her small neighbors, members of the League, and thus far all efforts to clarify and render it effective have been in vain. Yet Herr Wirth is all the more impressive when he admonishes us that every one who cares for civilization and the economic health of the world "should lend his influence and concentrate his political hopes on the concrete question, so that the work of understanding now in process of building may not be torn down."—New York Times.

LABOR DISPUTES.

The negotiations in connection with the threatened British coal strike are remarkable for the spirit of sympathy displayed toward the miners. All reports agree on the fact that the Government and the public are most anxious that the workers should get a square deal in any settlement which is arrived at. It is obvious that the suggestion of the owners that the situation can only be met by reducing the wages, and consequently the standard of living of the workers, is one which does not appeal to either popular or official sentiment. If there is a possible way of avoiding such a solution as this, it will be chosen. The situation is represented to be that the mines cannot be operated with reasonable profit on the conditions hitherto existing; there must be a scaling down of expenses if the industry is to survive. The fierce competition to which British industrialists are subjected necessitates a general cheapening of production, it is claimed, not only in the coal fields, but in many other lines of activity. Can that cheaper production be secured without diminishing the rates of wages, by improved efficiency? And are the owners prepared to accept the workers' contention that they should be satisfied with a smaller margin of profit? On this depends the outcome of the negotiations; for it is reported that the Government is averse to granting any permanent subsidies to the industry.

These recurring crises point to the necessity of making a determined effort to arrive at a real settlement of industrial problems. It is a great tribute to the moderation and fairness of the Conservative Government that it should present a report like that made public today. All parties are agreed, apparently, on the need of a change in the machinery by which industrial disputes are handled. Modern conditions of industry demand, in fact, that the workers be paid an adequate remuneration for their toil; it is acknowledged to be economically unwise as well as unfair to permit the scale to descend below a just level. The complicated system of trading and distribution requires that wage-earners should be provided with the wherewithal to satisfy their reasonable purchasing requirements. When wages are depressed industry as a whole is depressed. The old method of coercion and repression no longer serves to put a finish to wage controversies. The merits of each individual case must, of course, be considered; but there is a more general recognition that prosperity does not consist in the enrichment of a few and the impoverishment of many. Where wages are good, there is a general prosperity and contentment; where they are inadequate there is the reverse. The problem is to so readjust matters that in all industries decent living conditions are assured. When it is found that such conditions do not exist, there is only one thing to be done, and that is, to bring about a change. The Governments are faced with a perplexing problem, and it is one which is universal. The necessity for some world-wide movement to regulate conditions, such as that of the International Labor office, in connection with the League of Nations, is manifest. Without it, there is bound to be discrimination and ruinous competition, as well as continual disturbance.—Hamilton Spectator.

MANY TEACHERS SEEK POSITIONS

Cobourg Board Had Applications From One Hundred Men.

PICNICS PLENTIFUL.

COBOURG, Aug. 1.—Some indisation of the many Public school teachers seeking positions, may be gained from the following two instances. Owing to a resignatio from the staff, the Cobourg Public School Board advertised for a male teacher. Wednesday night when they met to consider this, the secretary produced one hundred applications from men, which would indicate that a dearth of men teachers does no exist today. There were so many that a selection was not made but left over for another meeting.

Three Hundred Applied.

Doubtless they would have received many more had the position been opn to a lady, as was indicated by a School Board, a few miles from Cobourg, advertising for a teacher. They received three hundred applications about half of these being from teachers who have not had previous experience. The position went to Miss Wagg of Thornbury, a lady with some experience.

Mr. Willard Stillman, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Stillman, Norwood, formerly of Cobourg, has resigned from the Cobourg Public School staff.

Miss B. Sheppard has been engaged to teach at a school near Centenary in Haldimand township.

Sale in Alnwick Township.

Mr. Percy Parker has sold a part of lot 18, concession 7, Alnwick township to Robert Macklin.

Many Excursions Here.

Cobourg has been the mecca for many excursions the last few days. Wednesday, the Knight of Columbus from Rochester ran an excursion by Steamer Ontario here.

Castleton Methodist church held their picnic at Victoria Park Wednesday bringing in a large party.

On Tuesday there were two excursions also. Two special trains brought some seven hundred Canadian National excursionists from Trenton and Belleville. They arrived at noon, during a heavy downpour of rain. The skies soon cleared, however, and a big programme of sports was run off at Victoria Park.

In the afternoon on Tuesday, Steamer Ontario brought in an excursion party from Rochester, of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railway employees.

Another day there was a Shriner picnic. Member of the Rani-Ghor Grotto from Toronto motored down in four large vans. In the afternoon between three hundred and four hundred members of the Lalla Rooke Grotto came over from Rochester by Steamer Ontario. The lake was rought on the passage over and many were sick, but such a little matter, as paying homage to the God Neptune did not detract from their having a good time, and a pleasant visit together. The Shriners were accompanied by their wives and sweethearts.

Big C.P.R. Excursion.

Fully three thousand people are expected to come here on Saturday, Aug. 22, when the Canadian Pacific Railway will hold its annual outing to Cobourg, making Victoria Park the headquarters.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, July 31. — Balancing the supply to the demand made some adjustment in cattle prices at the Union Stock Yards this week, and brought quotations back to almost where they were three weeks ago. Receipts this week were only around 5,600 head, and more quality handyweight beves would have sold at firm prices. On medium to choice butchers and import steers prices were higher by 25 to 35 cents a cwt., but the poor quality plain butchers were only a little readier sale. Butchers' cows improved also about 20 cents a cwt.

Several were engaged in the export business this week and some to the extent of only one or two cars. Rogers & Maybee shipped out 1,500 head, but only 350 of these were bought on this week's market. Kennedy and Co. sent 500 overseas, brought direct from the country. Choice export steers were up to $8.50 a cwt. and choice medium weights sold up to $8.25 a cwt. Export bulls were quite steady at from $4.75 to $5.25 a cwt.

For the best local beef trade packers paid prices equivalent to the exporters.

Failing to get really finished handy-weight butchers, the demand for baby beeves has brought high prices for these, and the good to choice have sold at $10.00 to $11.50 a cwt. Choice handy-weights have sold up to and a little over $8.00 a cwt. Good loads of butchers were $7.25 to $7.50 and good medium $6.75 to $7.00 a cwt. Plain butchers are hard to place and in cases sales were made as low as $5.00 a cwt. Choice butchers sows are back to around $5.00, good cows $4.50 and mediums $4.50 a cwt.

Western shipments of butchers and butchers cows are supplying part of the demand of the abattoirs but are only competing with the common and medium domestic kind. Winnipeg stockers have had a dull market here and were only cleaned up at easy prices. Several loads of springers were supplied to the east and other points this week at somewhat firmer prices. With only three market days next week as Monday is a holiday, the shipments are not expected to be heavy. Rogers and Maybee have two boats to fill and will need all the export stuff that might arrive.

A lighter run of calves and some buying for Buffalo sent prices a dollar a cwt. higher with tops touching 12 cents. Good calves are 10 cents and mediums are up to 9 cents a pound. Finished calves are not wanted much over 200 lbs. each.

Lambs are up a dollar a cwt. for the week and prices at the close for the right ewes and wethers are 15 3-4 cents a pound. Lambs to bring good prices should be sent in under 90 lbs. each. Sheep are firm and up to 7 cents a pound.

Hogs have advanced 25 cents a cwt. to $13.00 f.o.b. on very light runs. The packers are hopeful of holding down any further rise and expect weaker American prices to help them in doing so.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 31. — In a spectacular upward rush, seldom equalled except in war times, wheat available for July delivery here scored a gain in prices of 9 cents a bushel to-day. The closing figures for July wheat, $1.65 1-2 to $1.66, were 15 cents over wheat deliverable to-morrow, and this circumstance served to discredit talk which was current that the market had been "cornered." It was apparent, however, that venturesome traders who had been selling July wheat and expecting to make an advantageous settlement on the last day of the month had greatly over-reached themselves.

Taken as a whole, the wheat market closed irregular, ranging all the way from 1 1-2 cents decline to 9 cents advance, September 149 1-4 to 149 3-8 and December 150 1-2 to 150 3-4, with corn unchanged to 1 1-8 cents down, oats 5-8 to 7-8 cent off, and provisions varying from 30 cents decline to 20 cents advance.

An outstanding feature was that no other market than Chicago witnesed any big jump in wheat prices to-day. At Liverpool, yesterday, however, July quotations had risen in a sensational manner, and there was some curiosity expressed today as to whether there was a possible connection with to-day's occurence in Chicago.

ONTARIO CHEESE AUCTION.

MONTREAL, July 31—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Ontario cheese held here today, the offerings amounted to 2,879 boxes of which 1,320 boxes No. 1 white sold at 22 1-4c per lb., 1,508 boxes of No. 1 colored at 22 1-4c per lb., and 51 boxes special colored at 22 5-16c per lb. The prices paid for No. 1 colored was 1 1-4c per lb. higher, and for No. 1 white 1 1-4c per lb. than the bid prices last week.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.

Sterling cobles $4.85 1-4.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 31. — The receipts of butter to-day were 8,578 packages, as compared with 5,246 for the same day last week, and 8,032 for the corresponding day a year ago. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for butter and prices showed no important change. A fair amount of business continues to be done and the market was moderately active.

The receipts of cheese were 13,022 boxes, as against 8,367 for the same day last week, and 17,280 for the corresponding day a year ago. Although the prices paid at the auction sale showed an advance of 1 1-16c per lb., as compared with the prices bid a week ago. There was practically nothing in the situation to warrant the above as it was claimed by buyers that could make purchases of western No. 1 white and colored on spot at 22 1-8c per lb., and eastern grades at 21 7-8c per lb There was a little more enquiry from foreign buyers for supplies, but the volume of business was reported small and the market on the whole was quiet.

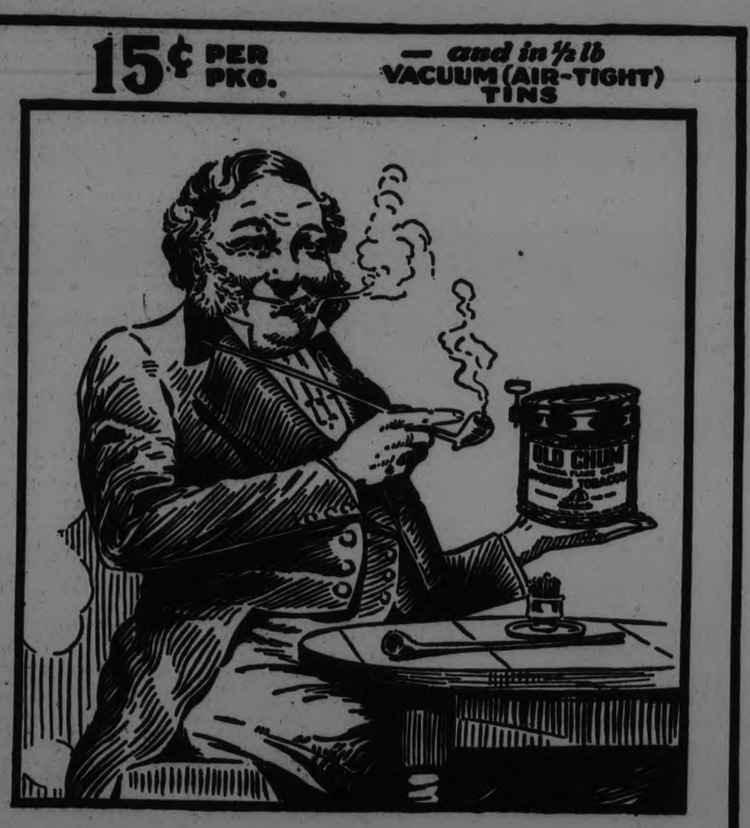
8,500,000,000 Francs Are Staked at French Casinos

PARIS, Aug. 1.—During the past season more than 8,500,000,000 francs changed hands among gamblers at French casinos. This does not include Monte Carlo, where, of course, the largest amounts are staked, or Deauville.

As the establishments take a regular tax of 1 per cent. on all money staked, this shows the profits of casinos amounted to 85,000,000 francs from the gaming table alone, nto counting side profits.

The State tax on the casinos under the new Finance Bill will be increased 80 per cent. for the larger establishments, so the French Treasury will collect a substantial amount.



PRINCE DEFENDS GERMAN POLICY

Wilhelm Says Other Nations Have Sought Their Own Aggrandizement.

"I SEEK THE TRUTH."

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press).—The former Crown Prince has written a book, "I Seek the Truth," with which he takes his place among those seeking to refute the accusation of war guilt against Germany.

"Who would cavil at Bismark, at Kaiser Wilhelm II.," he asks, "for having conducted an expansive policy, when all those powers allied against us had been pursuing the identical policy for many years? At all times those rulers and statesmen enjoyed the greatest prestige who had succeeded in increasing their nation's prosperity. For centuries the paramount object of those nations who became Germany's violent accusers had been their own aggrandizement. By what right then is Germany stigmatized as a would-be devourer of the rest of the world?'

The writer points out that England managed to conquer one-fifth of the globe and says that France grabbed numerous overseas possessions, in many instances with the most ruthless means. Even the mighty Russian realm, which he says was capable of supporting double its pre-war population, is described as striving to extend its vast east-Asiatic domain to the shores of the Pacific.

"But Germany," the writer asserts, "was begrudged the few colonies she had acquired almost without shedding a single drop of blood." The writer then goes to some pains to disrel the wide-spread belief that the old-time monarchial set was responsible for the imperial policy of expansion. It is stated emphatically that the conservatives before all others were the ones to offer unrelenting opposition to the acquisition of colonies.

England is told that, living in a glass house, she is not justified in throwing stones at others for an infringement of Belgian neutrality. A detailed description is given of the bombardment of Copenhagen by the British navy in 1807 and the looting of the Danish fleet, all without a declaration of war.

The pre-eminent object with the view of getting at the truth, the former Crown Prince considers to be the annulment of the note signed by Clemenceau June 16, 1919, which furnished the commentaries to Article 231, establishing Germany's war guilt.

"Not before the spirit of Versailles has been destroyed," the book concludes, "will Germany, Europe, all humanity be at peace."

WELL, ANYWAY THE MILL DIDN'T BURN

And Westwood Villagers Escaped Threat of Fire.

WESTWOOD, July 31.—(Special to Examiner).—What might have resulted in a serious and disastrous fire occurred on Thursday afternoon, when a spark lodged in the roof of the grist mill, and burst into flames. A nearby resident noticed the blaze and immediately gave the alarm, and the fire was extinguished without much difficulty by several who soon arrived on the scene.

Owing to the strong west wind, the villagers felt that a serious disaster had been avoided, as the east end of the village would have been practically wiped out if the flames had gotten much headway.

Mr. Robert Campbell, Roseneath, was in the village on Wednesday and attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret Neilson.

Mr. William Cleary, Gilbert Plains, Manitoba, is visiting friends in this community.

Mrs. Tyler of Chicago arrived on Tuesday to spend a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Charles Brackenridge.

Miss Lydia Brackenridge is visiting friends at Zion.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manley motored to Colborne on Sunday.

Mrs. John Sargent spent Thursday with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Warner.

FIRES STARTED BY TWO YOUTHS SEEKING THRILL

College Students of Wealthy Families Set Five Blazes at Club.

TOO MUCH GIN.

Denied Guilt But Broke Down and Confessed—Arson Charged.

HARRISON, N.Y., Aug. 1—Five buildings on the property of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club were set on fire early Thursday by two college students, sons of wealthy residents of Harrison. "We wanted a thrill," one of the boys told the police and Assistant District Attorney Walter Ferris. The youths are being held without bail until after charges of arson are submitted to the Grand Jury next week.

The prisoners are James Devlin, 21, son of John Devlin, and Rudolph Leppert Jr., son of a cartoonist employed on the Literary Digest. Both prisoners were employes of the New York Telephone Company in Mount Vernon during their summer vacation.

Shortly after midnight guests at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club discovered two new residences constructed on the club grounds for guests, ablaze. A few minutes later the gun house, a gate house and a police booth were also set afire, and the entire fire departments of Harrison and Rye were called to the club grounds. The fires were extinguished. The entire first floors of the two residences were burned, but that was the only serious damage.

Meanwhile, 450 guests at the main clubhouse were thrown into panic. Some had retired and nearly all left the building for the lawns, some taking their belongings with them fearing that the clubhouse would be the next structure to be ignited.

The police found that all of the buildings had been soaked with oil. Patrolman Joseph Haviland recalled seeing Devlin and Leppert watching the fires, and said he had sent them home because they "looked so sick."

The boys were arrested five hours later and admitted being intoxicated claiming ownership to an empty quart gin bottle found in the front seat of Leppert's father's auto which they had useod. In empty five gallon oil can and an empty ginger ale bottle also were found in the machine.

When first taken to headquarters the youths denied their guilt, but after an hour's grilling, their nerve broke and both confessed. An attempt was made to employ Mayor Frederick E. Weeks of White Plains, a former District Attorney, as counsel for the two prisoners.

PROPOSES TRADE GUILD.

Jap Nobleman Would Form Body to Handle Trade With Russia.

TOKYO, Aug 1.—A guild which would handle the Russo-Japanese import and export trade has been proposed by Viscount Shimpei Goto, according to the vernaculars. It is said the proposed guild would be capitalized at 150,000,000 yen. The trade with Russia, according to Viscount Goto's scheme, would be handled by the Japaneses guild and the Soviet Bureau of Trade. The guild would also look after any concessions granted by Russian to Japanese.

GRAIN FOR VANCOUVER.

Pacific Port to Handle Large Proportion of the Crop.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press)—Vancouver will handle a very large proportion of the prairie grain crop this year, says Leslie E. Boyd, chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners. Mr. Boyd estimated this year's what crop would be at least 100,000,000 bushels greater than last year.

DETROIT PEOPLE GIVE FUNDS FOR SCOTT'S BATTLE

"Think His Guilty, But I Like a Scrap," Said One Donor.

PENNIES AND BILLS.

More Than $1,000 Collected —Wife Needs Total of $5,000.

DETROIT, Michigan, August 1. —From the minute he doors are opened in the morning until they close late in the evening, a strange and motley parade passes through the dusty, dismantled former Chinese chop suey restaurant here, now being used by Mrs. Russell Scott and her friends to raise $5000 with which to defend her husband, sentenced to die for a Chicago slaying.

Every phase of the city's cosmopolitan groups, rich and poor, dirty-faced children and grimy workers, as well as well dressed men and women who drive to the place in expensive automobiles, is represented among those contributing to the fund —from pennies to $20 bills the money drops into the baskets placed before them. The fund had reached $1100 Friday.

At a table unsmiling with a drawn expression on her face Mrs. Scott sits greeting those who come and go.

Various remarks are made by those contributing. Some express pity, some stare, and some laugh — and occasionaly one weeps and hurries away.

"Likes Good Scrap."

One man growled: "I think your husband is guilty, but I like a good scrap. Here is five bucks!"

In front of the dreary place are stationed "barkers" and volunteer workers who urge passers-by to enter and contribute.

Some of those working for the fund formerly warked for Scott when he sold stocks.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Five thousand dollars has been collected by the supporters of the fund for the defense of Russell Scott, charged with the murder of a drug clerk in Chicago. A vaudeville show planned for last night to augment the funds was called off. The Lion Clubs of the United States are to be solicited, it was announced.

Fifteen thousand dollars has been set as the goal.

MOCK FUNERAL TO SAVE HONOR

Chinese Grandmother Broke Betrothal When Fiance Lost His Job.

THREATENS SUIT

PEKING, Aug. 1. — How the grandmother of a sixteen year old Chinese girl, Miss Lu, untangled a matrimonial snarl by means of a pretended funeral wherein the grand daughter was cast for the chief role is current tea house gossip. Miss Lu was affianced to Mou Yung-ching, 24, who was in the service of Chief Executive Tsao Kun. Mou had social position and had saved some money, and the marriage was to have occurred in July. While preparations were under way, however, it became known to the parents of Miss Lou that Mou had lost his situation in the executive household and that he had squandered his savings.

An engagement between Chinese young people is a serious affair, involving the honor of both families. It is a contract not easily annulled, so that the question of saving their daughter from union with a penniless husband gave the parents of Miss Lu great concern. When they had about decided that there was no way out, the grandmother stepped into the breach. She caused a coffin to be purchased and brought to the family home. The family went into mourning and word was spread abroad that Miss Lu was dead. The funeral was carried out in most solemn style, one of the conspicuous mourners being Mou Yug-ching.

After it was all over Mou discovered the ruse and learned that his promised bride had been spirited aawy and married to another who was well to do and who had assumed all the expense of the funeral and mourning. Mou is reported to be suing the parents for breach of contract and damages.

DURHAM COUNTY AT WINTER FAIR

Show Committee of Holstein Breeders Visits Cavan To Arrange

THE REGULATIONS.

CAVAN, Aug. 1.—The show committee, of the Durham County Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Club, paid a visit to Cavan recently, visiting the herds of Fred Fallis and H. D. Seymour. If the required cattle can be secured, Durham County will have a county exhibit at the Royal Winter Fair. In a county herd no breeder can own more than two head. The committee consists of President W. Fred Fallis, Vice-President Archie Muir, Courtice, and District Representative F. C. Paterson, of Port Hope.

A county herd calls for a bull two years old or over, one bull under two years, three cows three years old or over, one heifer two years or under three, one heifer one year and under two, and one heifer calf, making eight head in all.

BURNBRAE PERSONALS.

BURNBRAE, August 1.—A gloom was cast over the community during the past week by the death of two of the oldest members of St. Andrew's congregation, Mr. James Linn, whose funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, and Mrs. Alex. Innes, who was laid to rest on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. P. Haig returned last week from Kingston Hospital, where she has been under medical care for some time. Friends will be glad to hear that her health is improving since her return.

A few cases of measles are reported in the Burnbrae district again.

A number of Burnbrae young people attended the social evening of the Zion League, held on Mr. John Thomson's lawn Monday evening. Everyone reported a most enjoyable time.

The Burnbrae United W. M. S. met at the home of Mrs. W. S. Milne on Tuesday evening with over fifty present. As this was the first meeting since re-organization, considerable business was discussed, followed by a short programme, and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess. The offering for the expense fund amounted to $8.00. The next regular meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Malcolm Totton on Thursday evening, August 20. The W. M. S. of Wellman's Corners United Church are to be invited to this meeting.

Mr. Frank Little has purchased a motor-boat, and is busy trying it out at Parker's Landing.

The Seymour road crew has been working lately in the district west of Menie with grader and stone crusher, trying to make some of the roads passable for cars. If the heavy rains continue, some new grading will become almost impassable.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BARN DESTROYED NEAR LAKEFIELD

Second Loss to Eric Grier in Two Years.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 1—A large barn on the farm of Eric Grier, a mile and one-half north east of here, was destroyed by fire at midnight last night. The cause of the fire was unknown. Members of the Lakefield brigade responded to the alarm, taking the chemical engine, but were unable to check the flames.

The barn was a new one erected on the site of a similar building which was burned to the ground two years ago. The loss is partly covered by insurance. None of Mr. Grier's stock was in the barn when the fire was discovered.

Born.—On July 26, 1925, to Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bell, a son.

Just around the bend

See the great picture gallery of Ontario's natural beauty

The Thames—where good roads meet beautiful river scenery. A familiar spot in western Ontario. Sketched by the well known Canadian artist, C.W. Jefferys, O.S.A., A.R.C.A.

Just around the bend of the road, a land of rolling hills, sapphire lakes and silver streams awaits you; a land of orchards and grain fields—of trim villages and beautiful cities and towns.

It's a great picture gallery—and it's yours, because it's in your own Province. There's a masterpiece at every turn. See this gallery from the highways of Ontario. Take the family with you. Drive moderately, and you will enjoy all the more the constant panorama which breaks on your view.

The law of Ontario sets a maximum speed of 25 miles an hour to preserve you and other users of the road from accident and to prevent needless damage to road surfaces by reckless driving.

Let the "speed hound" pass, if he insists. Don't be one yourself. Remember, the road is yours to use, not to abuse—yours to enjoy, not to destroy.

The Government and the Counties are building a splendid and extensive system of highways. They are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in maintaining it. If these roads get in poor repair, who's to blame—those who build and maintain them, or those who misuse them?

To you and all other intelligent motorists, the Government makes this appeal to conserve the highways by sane driving. To the "speed hound" who will not heed, it gives notice that the enforcement of the law regarding fast driving will be more rigorous than before.

An advertisement issued by the Ontario Department of Highways to secure the co-operation of motorists and truck drivers, Automobile Clubs, Good Roads Associations and all other public spirited bodies, in abating the abuse of the roads of the Province.

The Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister — S. L. Squire, Deputy Minister

The whole world loves a fight!

The women will jump up now and claim an alibi, and say I am mistaken, but that won't stop me. I know men love a fight, and was willing to believe that women don't, until my wife sent me down to a remnant sale one Friday. Good-night! I saw two women tear themselves apart and they almost got me.

So, assuming that the whole world loves a fight, I must tell about a row in a farmland woodlot.

A certain wicked crow had located a Kingbird's nest. When that happens there is trouble. The Kingbird is a flycatcher and some little fighter. He attacked that crow before it had time to do any harm to the nest, actually pecking at the crow's head.

The crow was slyly slipping along the farm ditch hedge, and getting nearer to the nest, waiting an opportunity to eat the eggs. However, Mr. Kingbird spotted him and attacked. The crow flew at first with a heavy movement, trying to get into the upper air, and say! what that Kingbird did to him was a fright. It actually flew under him and pecked his side, a tender spot under the wings. Whether it hurt or not I cannot say, but it gave that crow a very uncomfortable ten minutes, pecking at him from above and below, and the crow could only dodge his head, or make slow jabs with his big black beak, which seemed to make flying harder.

The Kingbird is a dark-coloured flycatcher, with a white band or tip to his tail. He is the shape of a Phoebe but bigger. He has a reddish orange crown, mostly hidden by darker feathers. He is the champion of smaller birds against hawks and crows and ois brave and independent. He does NOT eat honey bees, any more than many other birds and statistics and careful observation proves his name of Bee Martin to be most unfair and unjust.

The Kingbird has a white-tipped tail, the Waxwing a yellow-tipped tail. That difference may help one in remembering them.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

TO BE WELL-BORN IS EVERY CHILD'S RIGHT.

It is a general rule that healthy parents beget healthy children. Of course, intervening and accidental causes may impair the physical welfare of the offspring of perfectly normal parents. But it is pretty safe to assume that ancestral health is of vital importance to the baby and guarantees his physical prosperity.

More important than anything else, the blood of both parents must be untainted. It cannot be pure without moral living.

The seven or eight months before the birth of the baby are of vital importance to its future welfare. What the mother eats, how much she exercises and sleeps, how cheerful and calm she is—all these things are fundamental to the welfare of the little one.

The next matter of importance is the sort of treatment the baby has at the time of his birth. Carelessness or ignorance applied now may ruin his future. Out of every thousand babies born seven are cripples. Many are blinded by lack of care at birth.

It is a crime against humanity to permit the physical neglect of mother and baby at this critical period. No community can be called civilized unless it offers means for the decent treatment of the expectant mother and child. If private enterprise does not supply it, then the public must find a way to care for these important members of society. A skilled doctor and a good nurse are essential to every locality.

Hurried or undirected childbirth is responsible for much misery in this world. This is a matter of conecrn to the entire community. Almshouses and institutions are filled with persons who are the victims of neglect at birth.

If anybody in the world is in need of advice and instruction it is the young mother. For her own sake she needs care and advice before the baby is born. For the sake of the child she needs this before and after the birth.

One of the hopeful signs of the times is the growing readiness to talk about these matters. The great privilege in the world is the joy of motherhood. We are not prone to keep our joys to ourselves and certainly this one deserves to be talked over, at least with the doctor or some other informed person.

The right advice at the right time will save heartaches and suffering, the effect of which may continue through a lifetime.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. H. L. Q.—What causes puffiness under the eyes?

A.—There are so many conditions which have puffiness under the eyes as a symptom, that the wisest thing to do is to consult your doctor, to determine just what the trouble is.

* * *

A Reader. Q.—What is the best remedy for a goitre?

2.—What can be done for thin hair?

A.—Treatment for a goitre depends upon the nature of the goitre. It would be well to consult your doctor and have him advise you in the matter.

2.—Shampoo the hair frequently and use a good tonic. For further particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Do you know the man who was the first in Peterborough to hear that Bryan was dead or that Amundsen and his little band of explorers had returned in safe ty? Do you know the man who is the connecting link between the foreign correspondent you met yesterday and the newspaper you read to-day? If you don't then meet the Telegraph Operator. His day's work consists of typing 5,000 words of news and more every day of the year except Sundays and holidays, and there is not a thing happening in any corner of the globe, from the gay, sparkling life of the international capitals to the tragedies of obscure Canadain villages, that he does not hear about.

The Telegraph Operator

From his busy typewriter pours the news of the outside world every minute of the day. To the wires that lead from his desk are connected other wires that multiply as they stretch like the web of a spider across the world.

Reporters and correspondents are busy in every corner of the world. They telegraph the happenings they cover to countless other men who sit, as the Peterborough operator does, day after day before their click ing instruments. With the rapidity of a rapid fire gun the brass contact points pound against each other. Each separate click means the forming of a new letter or the finishing of a letter. If the amateur or novice should attempt to translate these clicksc, his mind would soon become a disordered mass of brain cell that tried vainly to direct his fingers on the typewriter. But the operator writes the words down as fast as they come over the wire— he is neither a novice nor an amateur.

When a United Press man in a foreign country sends a story to the U. P. in this country, or when the Canadian Press that covers all of Canada puts a story on the wire, the senders leave out all the "the's" a's" and other words that can be left out without making the story ambiguous. It takes a clever man, with a clear brain and nimble fingers, to translate the apparent jumble of words that come pounding in across his instruments. And only once in six months is it necessary to call for a "repeat" of a story that does not read correct.

Seated at his typewriter, the operator does not know what may come over the wires at the next moment. It may be the startling news of a new war, the story of a big train wreck, a tale of earthquake devastation, or the announcement of an astounding invention.

The thing the people know is that if anything does happen The Examiner will have printed the story within a few minutes, perhaps, of its occurrence, and a man who is little known or appreciated makes that story a possibility— the telegraph operator.

It was Friday evening on Aylmer street, as in other places. A motorist was breezing along at —oh! a fair rate of speed— when his straw hat was wafted from his head. Immediately following came a truck, heavily loaded. CRUSH-H-H! ! ! It is our personal opinion after viewing the remains that for a certain straw hat we know of the summer is over.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS MAMA AND DADDY FIELD MOUSE

"Oh, you horrid thing!" Doris exclaimed as a little brown creature ran over her feet. "I just hate old mice. They make me creep."

"Some mice should," laughed a merry voice and Doris spied a merry face peeking at her from behind a corn stalk.

"Happy Giggles, you merry little elfin," Doris cried. "I'll bet you told him to do that. I certainly dislike mice."

"But you wouldn't dislike Mama and Daddy Field Mousie," said Happy Giggles, coming out from behind the stalk of corn, "for they are just as neat and clean as they can be. Daddy Field Mousie, the little fellow who just ran over your feet was just as frightened of you as he could be, until I told him you were a friend of mine. Then he said he'd like to meet you."

"Let's call on them, Happy Giggles, will you?" Doris asked, jumping up and down. "Maybe I'd change my mind about some mice."

"You certainly would," squeaked a tiny voice and Daddy Field Mousie came out from behind a corn stalk. "Especially after you have visited our house. There isn't a cleaner neighbor in this vicinity than Mrs. Field Mousie. Come along, she'll be glad to see you."

He was such a pretty little neat fellow in his reddish brown suit and his pure white vest, that Doris couldn't help but like him. He wasn't more than two and a half inches from the tip of his wiggly nose to the end of his body, but his tail was almost as long as he was.

He led Happy Giggles and Doris to a dear little nest all knit of leaves and grasses, swung up like a bird's nest in a tall waving cornstalk.

"He'll Like to Meet You"

"My goodness," Doris laughed, when Mama Field Mousie poked her head out to greet her guests. "I thought that was a bird's nest."

"That's the way we fool folks," chuckled Mama Field Mousie, beckoning them up the corn stalk to her house. "Come right up and take a peek at our family."

Doris followed Daddy Field Mousie and Happy Giggles up the corn stalk to the lovely nest, and peeked in.

She had to part the grasses so she could see, for the wee little nest seemed to have no opening. There, inside on a bed of lovely soft grasses, nestled nine of the dearest little baby mice Doris had ever seen. They were so very tiny they looked more like baby humming birds.

"Oh dear," cried Doris, poking her finger in and rubbing their tiny noses, "aren't they the dearest things you ever saw! They actually are sweet. I'll never say again that I hate mice for this family is an exception."

"Didn't I tell you so," laughed Happy Giggles. "Mama and Daddy Field Mousie are the cleanest of all mice. You'll never find any trash around their doorways."

"Not if I can help it," squeaked Daddy Field Mousie. "For we take great pride in making our houses look neat and clean. I must go out and rustle for some food now."

"We'll come again some day when the children are older," Doris promised, and bidding Mama Mousie goodby, Doris and Happy Giggles ran down the corn stalk and away over the cornfield in search of new adventure.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY AUGUST 2-3

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of pleasant activities in domestic, affectional as well as professional matters, and is good for ecclesiastical and benevolent institutions. But beware change and new projects.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly successful and pleasant year, but should adhere to the old lines and avoid change of importance. A child born on this day should be talented, accomplished and popular. It should make a success of its undertakings and rise in life.

Monday's astrological forecast points to some minor changes or journeys, and while these may benefit, generally it may be difficult to succeed. The nature may tend to the meditative or solemn, especially in heart affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate some changes or journeys which should improve their affairs, which are generally under a retarded influence. They may tend toward the solemn and serious outlook. A child born on this day may have a rather serious and sensitive outlook upon life and may have a fairly unsettled life.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

CHAPTER 4
A Lesson in Love.

"Down East they don't raise any girls like you."

The shadows of evening were beginning to lower, and Mary was busy about the stove and the dining table, preparing supper. Terence, smiling his cheeriest, and now sitting up quite comfortably in an armchair, puffing at a cigarette, was gazing, rapt in admiration, through the haze of smoke at the dainty girl.

"Oh, but you're Irish, so I suppose that's Blarney," Mary answered, nevertheless glowing with pleasure. "You must be feeling very much better to be making up compliments, Mr. O'Rourke."

"But it isn't just a compliment—it's God's own truth, Miss," Terence demurred. "You're as lovely a sight as ever a man set eyes upon. It was like a dream to wake up and see you there—a dream that seemed too good to be true."

He paused to blow a meditative smoke ring. Then he added:

"And don't—please don't call me 'Mr. O'Rourke.' Call me Terence, won't you?"

"All right, then, Mr. O'Rou——Terence," she smiled.

"And can I—can I call you——"

"Mary," she finished for him.

"Ah, Mary, Mary, it's the world's prettiest name."

"Oh, but that isn't true," she argued. "It's just an ordinary name. There are so many much prettier—like Florence, and Gloria, and Eileen, and——"

"Mary's the prettiest of the lot," Terence interrupted. "The fact that it's your name makes it so."

She was setting the table. As she was starting back to the stove, he caught her hand.

"Mary," he said, looking at her intently, "You don't know how glad I am to have been wrecked here. My accident was a stroke of good fortune. I would have wrecked my machine on purpose if I had known of you. If I have no more luck I am already more than repaid for all my trip out here from the East. Mary——"

She struggled playfully to release her hand.

"Oh, you're a flatterer, Mr. O'Rourke,' she said.

"Terence," he corrected.

"Terence, then. Please let me go—the kettle's boiling over."

But he held her tight.

"And I'm boiling over too—with—with love," he said, fervently.

She laughed.

"I can't take that seriously," she bantered.

"But it is serious," he declared warmly.

"Oh, but it couldn't be—yet," she denied.

"Ah, Mary, Mary, quite contrary—listen to me," he pleaded. "Don't you belive that things can happen like that—all in a flash? Don't you think that it is possible for a man to know suddenly—in a moment—that a girl is—the girl he has always been wanting' and looking for? Well, it's like that—'

"But the kettle—Terence," she insisted.

"Let it boil," he replied, clinging tighter to her hand. "Listen, Mary—Love is something that takes a man suddenly—like the measles—no, that's too unromantic—like, like—oh, like I don't know what. It just gets you when you least expect it—don't you see—it just comes that way—I don't have to have known you a long time to know that I love you—I could tell that as soon——"

There was a rattling at the door.

"It's Daddy," whispered Mary, her face flushed with shy happiness. "Now, Terence, you must let me go."

He released her, just in time, as the door opened, admitting her father. Mary rushed to Marshall and threw her arms around his neck, while Terence looked enviously on.

First she kissed her father for himself. Then she closed her eyes, kissed him again, and pretended to herself he was Terence. She was so excited in this, her first taste of romance, that she would liked to have found hersel actually in Terence's arms, if she could have but dared. Terence, watching her, was experiencing similar wishes.

"Poor Daddy," said Mary. "Do you feel better now?"

"A little," Marshall answered, but his tone showed that he was still ill at ease.

"Well, sit you down, dear," she said, "and Mary will have supper on the table in a jiffy. I'm sure that both you and Terence—I mean, Mr. O'Rourke"—(Terence was gloating inwardly at this slip of her tongue)—"must be frightfully hungry."

Marshall was glum and silent through most of dinner, putting in a word only occasionally to keep up appearances, and try to make up for the harsh words he had directed at Terence earlier in the day. Mary and Terence chattered away, but their conversation was confined to only the most general and noncommittal subjects, so far as their tongues were concerned. However, their eyes and their lips talked too, exchanging glances and smiles, and said altogether different things that nobody else has any right to know. Mary wondered whether her father would overhear those silently said things, with his sharp eyes, and she worried because she could not keep the blushes out of her cheeks.

When they had finished dinner, and the men had enjoyed two of Marshall's cigars in a friendly smoking chat together—a sort of tentative pipe of peace—while Mary cleared up, Marshall suggested that Terence retire early.

"You'll need a good night's rest after today," he said, "and besides, I have some things I must talk over alone with my little girl."

His eyes rested tenderly on Mary.

"I'll show you upstairs to your room," Mary offered.

The men said good-night, and Mary accompanied Terence up the stairs.

When they reached the upper landing Terence was seized by an irresistible impulse. He gathered Mary, taken unawares, into his arms, and kissed her long and tenderly. Half afraid, half reluctant, struggling against him, yet really secretly enjoying it, this, her first embrace in the arms of a lovre, Mary withdrew and tried to appear indignant.

"Why, Terence——" she reprimanded him. "How dare——"

"But you know I love you so," he pleaded. "A man must be daring."

"Still, you really shouldn't have——"

"Even so. Then will you forgive me?" he begged.

She hesitated a moment, then answered, slowly:

"Yes—I forgive you."

"Then——" he was going to ask for another kiss to signify her forgiveness, but she darted away, her instinct foreseeing his intention. He caught her hand and left the imprint of his lips on her fingertips.

"Good-night," she said, and started down the steps.

"Good-night—dear."

He went into his room.

Half-way down the steps Mary paused to compose herself, and give her happy blushes time to subside before facing her father. Her heart was full, and her head was reeling with intoxication. She had had her first drink of love's champagne, and found the taste of it not at all to her dislike.

She finally descended, and came to the chair where her father sat in gloomy contemplation. She sat on his knee, curled her arm around his neck, pressed her warm cheek against his, and said:

"And now, what has Daddy dear, to say to Mary?"

Marshall looked at his daughter sadly, caressed her hand, tried to choke back his emotion, and began:

"I've had a knock-down blow, Mary." He stopped. The girl kissed him and tried to comfort him. He went on: "There's something I must tell you, dear. I've had a long talk with Taggart, and—and there's something about my past you should know. It was just fifteen years ago—when you were a little bit of a girl of three—and we lived on the ranch back in Arizona——"

CHAPTER 5
The Enemy Listens.

From trivial things so often arise such serious consequences.

For example: When, one day some three years previous, a new and wild bronco was put into John Marshall's stable in Paradise Canyon, he beccam uncontrollable. They let him vent his anger by himself in the stable. The horse neighed and whimnied and snorted. He plunged back and forth and stamped and kicked. He kicked and kicked. So hard did he kick against the walls of the stable that he loosened several of the boards. But the stable remained standing all right, and nobody thought anything of it at the time. It was not serious enough to bother repairing. Pretty soon everyone had forgotten all about the incident

But on this night Buck McLeod, the man who had sneaked into the canyon, and been captured by Marshall's men, was locked up, a prisoner in this very same stable. Buck had every reason for wanting to get free, and none for remaining. As soon as night had fallen, and all was quiet outside, Buck started to try and find ways and means of escape. It did not take him long to discover the loose boards. He found one which the bronco three years ago had kicked so hard that it required very little pushing on his part to wrench it loose from its support. Cautiously he broke through, and peered about the stable. There was no one in sight. He crept out stealthily and found himself a free map.

He stood thinking a moment what to do next, when he perceived a light shining in the window of the Marshall cabin. He decided to take advantage of his opportunity and see what he could learn. Stealthily he made his way toward the lighted window. When he began to get close he dropped on his hands and knees, to keep out of the range of vision of the occupants of the cabin. As he drew still closer, the spy dropped and crawled on his stomach. A minute later he was lying directly beneath the ledge of the open window. Raising himself cautiously he peered furtively inside. He saw Marshall and Mary sitting on the sofa, engaged in earnest conversation. He immediately dropped his head just below the ledge to safeguard himself against being seen, and then listened intently.

Marshall was talking. Buck heard him saying:

"——and so, my dear, you see I was forced to shoot—in self-protection. But he had powerful friends—so that night I fled with you in my arms. I left the ranch in the care of my friend Taggart. He has managed it for me ever since.

"Things went along fairly well until the last couple of years. Then there came a big slump from which we have never recovered. Since then things have been going steadily from bad to worse. We have had large losses due to cattle rustlers. When I saw Taggart today I learned from him that there aren't half enough cattle on hte ranch to pay back the $100,000 we owe the bank."

Marshall's voice halted on a note of despondency. He began again, falteringly:

"That means dear—that simply means that unless we buy at least 2,000 feeders at once and fatten them for the fall market, we'll lose everything."

(To be Continued.)

STREET NAMES

SIMCOE STREET.

Simcoe street commemorates Colonel Simcoe the first governor of Upper Canada. Colonel Simcoe first crossed the Atlantic as adjutant of the 35th Regiment to take part in the war against the revolted American Colonies. He was wounded in the fighting at the Brandywine River and was later given command of a regiment of Hussars which he brought to a high pitch of efficiency. Simcoe was taken prisoner by the Americans in 1779 when he narrowly escaped with his life. He was released and was soon back into harness again only to become a prisoner for the second time when the army of Lord Cornwallis surrendered to Washington in 1781.

His health having broken down under the hardships of war, Simcoe returned to England and having entered politics he was returned to the House of Commons as member for St Mawes, Cornwall. In the following year, when Canada was divided into two provinces, Simcoe was appointed governor of Upper Canada. He took up his new duties in 1792 and fixed his seat at Newark now Niagara but soon afterwards he removed the seat of government to Toronto of which city he was practically the founder.

His first Legislature consisted of but 7 members but though a small body in numbers the newly formed administration did not lack vigor. Simcoe, right from the beginning of his term of office had a boundless confidence in the future of Canada. He set himself out to develop the agriculture of the newly settled areas, made adequate arrangements for defence against aggression by the United States, had territories surveyed for settlement apd promoted schemes for the immigration of the American colonists who remained loyal to the British flag.

Following his promotion as Major General in the British Army, Governor Simcoe returned to Britain ready to do his bit in an anticipated war against the French. The war did not materialize but Simcoe's exertions in training troops were rewarded by his elevation to Lieut.-General and soon afterwards to the post of commander-in-chief in India. Having set out for India he became ill at seat and was hurried back to England. He was taken to his home where he breathed his last on October 26, 1806.

Simcoe was a fine type of Empire builder, brave, unselfish, and patriotic. Largely as a result of his experiences in the Revolutionary War he had an unreasoning prejudice against the United States, but he had a genuine desire for the welfare of Canada and often showed himself possessed of ideas far in advance of those of the statesmen of the time. He had an undoubted claim on the affection and gratitude of Canadians of all creeds and classes.

A stately monument to his memory has been erected in Exeter Cathedral. In Ontario, a lake, a county and a town have been named after him while the number of towns that have a Simcoe street is considerable.

Tomorrow: Robinson street.

MANY PEOPLE AT UNITED PICNIC

Lakefield Sunday School Pupils Visited Wallace's Point By Boat.

ST. PAUL'S PICNIC.

The United Sunday schools of Lakefield, namely the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist held their annual excursion on Wednesday, July 29th. The steamer Stoney Lake which had been chartered for the day, left Lakefield at 8 a.m. crowded almost to capacity. The destination was Wallace's Point, which was reached about noon after a delightful sail down the River Otonabee.

Lunch was served at o'clock after which sports were held. All enjoyed themselves according to their own inclination until the boat's whistle sounded which remined everyone that the time for departure had arrived.

Lakefield was reached again at 7.45 p.m., and in every way the picnic was a decided success.

The officers of the church wish to offer their hearty thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Cardwell for their kindness in granting them the use of the grounds for the occasion.

The results of the races were as follows:

Boys, under 8 years: D. Smith, H. Charlton, C. Stabler.

Girls under 8 years: R. Jull, E. Lake, M. Rosboro.

Girls under 12 years: . Thetford, H. Parker, P. Morrison.

Boys under 12 years: H. Stuart, D. Dever, S. Kidd.

Girls under 16 years: A. Dench, C. Stuart, G. Thetford.

Boys under 16 years: G. Northey, H. Edwards, R. Hendren.

Girls over 16 years: A. Dench, C. Stuart, G. Thetford.

Boys over 16 years: G. Graham, G. Parker, D. Kidd.

St. Paul's Picnic.

The exhibition of 9 rounds presented a very animated and gay appearance, yesterday afternoon, on the ocasion of the annual picnic of St. Paul's Church. From 2 p. m., the crowd started to gather to witness the programme of sports which an energetic committee had prepared. The races and winners were as follows:

Boys, 100 yard dash, under 12 years—1st B. Allen.

Boys, 100 yard dash, under 16 years, 1st, J. McFadden.

Girls, 100 yards dash, under 12 years, 1st, M. Allen.

Young Ladies' Race— 1st, Miss Condon, 2nd, Miss Coughlin.

Boys—Three Legged Race—1st, P. and B. Allen; 2nd, McPherson and Cain.

Boys' Wheelbarrow Race, 1st, D. White and J. McFadden; 2nd, P. and B. Allen.

The next on the programme was a soft ball game between Lakefield and Centre Douro which resulted in a win for the former by 15 runs to 11 runs. Supper was served in the Exhibition Building from 5 o'clock till 8 o'clock, and the tables groaned under the weight of good things which lay on them, and those who did not have their fill had only themselves to blame. During the evening many pretty and useful articles were disposed off by means of a wheel of fortune, when articles went to lucky investors, ranging from auto tires to a couple of live hens. Dancing was also indulged in until the early hours of the morning.

A Presentation.

Dr. and Mrs. Renwick were the recipients of a very pretty and useful wedding present on Wednesday night. This came from the members of the Presbyterian church choir and took the form of a very smart looking boudoir clock with an electric light fixed on the top. Affixed to it was the following note:

"With sincere good wishes for much future happiness. From the choir and Miss E. Preston."

An Enjoyable Dance.

The cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hunter of Lakefield, near Mount Julian, was last night the scene of a very merry dance and evening's music, when, at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, the fire brigade and band journed thither. Most of the party made the journey to McCracken's and then over the lake to the island, and a small party did the journey by motor boat. When the party was assembled altogether, the number totalled between thirty-five and forty. On arrival the party was greeted by the host and hostess, who gave every one a cordial reception. After everyone had been comfortably seated in various parts of Mr. Hunter's beautiful cottage, the band who had carried their instruments, rendered quite a few selections, which were enjoyed by an attentive and very appreciative audience. The floor was then cleared and the young people then tripped the light fantastic until the wee small hours, when, after a dainty lunch was partaken of, the party gave three rousing cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Hunter to show how their guests appreciated their kindness. Thus a very enjoyable evening's entertainment was brought to a close. The party is much indebted to the efforts of the Messrs. Clink of Toronto for their entertainment in the intervals between dancing.

DUNK SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Man Who Fell Over Cliff Can Now Move Legs.

TORONTO, July 31.—The condition of Albert Dunk, Birch Cliff, formerly of Campbellford, who fell or was thrown over the cliff at Niagara Falls last Friday night, but was not found until Sunday, still remains critical, although he had a restful night. This morning he could move his legs slightly.

NEW HEALTH FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

Aching Backs and Tired Limbs Need Not Be Endured.

Too many women endure suffering that casts a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, splitting headaches need not be a part of woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that the blood is thin and watery and that the sufferer needs the help of a real tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Suffering women who have used this medicine speak of it in the highest terms. Among those who have been thus helped is Mrs. Ada L. Harman, Virden, Man., who writes:—"Following the birth of a still-born child a few years ago, I had a very serious time. I was so weak for months that I could not walk across the room without a feeling of faintness. I had scarcely enough strength to stand up, and when dressing would have to sit down two or three times. My face and lips were colorless, I had no appetite, and life did not seem worth living. A friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got six boxes. Before they were all gone I felt improved. My appetite was returning, color was coming into my face, and I was visibly stronger. I continued taking the pills and fully regained my former good health. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak women, and hope my experience will induce some other sufferer to try them."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

'LIBERALIZE' SAY ENGLISH CLERGY

Thirty-nine Articles Under Fire—Number of Candidates Declines.

REAL DIFFICULTIES.

By KEITH JONES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Aug. 1.— (United Press).— Proposed "liberalization" of the thirty-nine Articles of Faith of the Church of England has precipitated an intense discussion for and against the move which threatens effects striking to the very heart of the church.

Advocates of the change declare that the alarming decrease in the number of young men seeking to become clergymen and the apparent waning interest of the young generally in formal religion illustrate the need of liberalization.

But opponents, especially the Anglo-Catholic wing of the church which is already considering separation from the Protestant-Episcopal section, are objecting vigorously to any alteration in the time tried creed.

Start of Controversy.

Starting as a result of an official inquiry instituted by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York into the reason for the decline in number of candidates for admission to the ministry this question of the revision of the Articles of Faith so as to conform to Twentieth Century enlightenment has suddenly sprung into a prominent place in public discussion.

While acceptance of the "Thirty-Nine Articles" is required for ordination of the clergy only, and not required by the laity as a condition of admission to the church the question of their revision is nevertheless exciting intense interest. It is a step, it is felt, toward the further liberalization of the interpretation of the Bible permitted the laity at large.

The following points in the archbishops' report are attracting the most extensive comment:

Archbishops' Report.

"We believe that it would bring relief" (that is to the dearth of candidates for the ministry—"if it were decided that the Thirty Nine Articles are no longer a satisfactory statement for the purpose of assent, however valuable they may be as a document which sets forth in the language of its day the principles followed by the Church of England. In our opinion a restatement of these principles is required.

"We are agreed in rejecting the suggestion which has sometimes been made that the Church of England attempt to re-write the Creeds. We are, owever, of the opinion that great relief would be afforded if the declaration made by the Bishops in 1922 could be followed up by a statement from the Episcopate as a whole to the effect that, recognizing the intellectual difficulties which arise out of some of the clauses in the Creeds, they would not look upon perplexity or uncertainty on such points as in all cases a barrier to Ordination, and that they would give consideration to all such difficulties brough t before them individually."

"We believe" continues the report "that among the more serious men of the younger generation there are not a few who, though religion means much to them, and they are earnestly trying to think out their own beliefs, yet find themselves out of sympathy with the Church and with what is sometimes termed 'institutional religion' in general."

Liberal Views.

A general inquiry among the "Protestant" clergy following the issuance of the archishop's report showed a distinct trend of comment in favor of the proposed changes.

Said the Bishop of Willesdon, "I think that it would be well if it were decided that the Thirty Nine Articles are no longer a satisfactory statement for the purpose of assent. Some of the Articles are all right but other do not interest the people today as they did in the sixteenth century when they were formulated and, I think, should be done away with or revised."

"The intellectual difficulties that many potential candidates have to face are undoubtedly very real," declared Canon R. A. Mitchell, vicar of St. Michael's, in commenting on the problem. "I do not think however that these difficulties would be removed by any remodelling of the Articles. Far better abolish subscription to the creeds entirely, and be content with the simple assent to the Apostles' Creed."

Opposition.

On the other hand there is a strong contingent in the ranks of the Anglo-Catholics—which corresponds to the Episcopal "high church" in America—who maintain that the salvation of the life of the Church rests not with its deinstitutionalization, but rather by a insistence on rites and forms.

They say that the Church can be saved only by an appeal to faith and not to intellect, and they point to the rather extraordinary strength their movement has developed in the last five years as confirmation of their viewpoint.

It is because of its bearing on the already tense situation that exists between the Protestant, Episcopalians and the Anglo-Catholic Episcopalians that this report of the archbishops is arousing such wide interest. It is possible, it is said, that it may percipitate the break between the factions and rend the Church of England.

PEOPLE'S LEAGUE ENJOYED SOCIAL

Sports and Games Make Up Pleasant Picnic—A Ball Game.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, August 1.—A large number spent Monday evening at Mr. J. A. M. Thomson's where Zion People's League held a social evening. The most exciting feature was a ball game between the "Khaki" and "Whites," the Whites winning by a large score. Another pleasing feature was a tug-of-war between the married and single men, the married men winning. The rest of the evening was spent in playing games. The Zion League is rapidly increasing, as some from Burnbrae, Campbellford and English Line were present.

The Zion Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. W. Scott in August.

There will be a social at Mr. Jno. Simpson's home on August 13, under the auspices of the Zion United Church.

The death occurred on July 27 at her home, of Mrs. S. Innes, 8th Concession of Seymour.

Miss Hazel Ross, of Madoc, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Mackenzie.

Miss Evelyn Barnum spent a few days last week with her aunt, Mrs. J. McKeown, Bonariaw.

Miss Elsie Forde spent Sunday with Miss Gladys Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dalgleish and family spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson and family, of Havelock, attended the funeral of the late Mr. S. Innes.

The junior boys' baseball team motored to Warkworth Tuesday evening to play the junior team there. The score 16-4 in favor of Warkworth.

JUNIPER HELD A MASQUERADE

Forty Children, in Costume, Provide Colorful Picture in Games.

PRIZES AWARDED.

The pavilion at Juniper was crowded on Wednesday evening from seven-thirty to nine with interested onlookers, the occasion being a children's masquerade. About forty little ones were costumed, and it was indeed a lovely scene. Games, such as "The Farmer in the Dell," "London Bridge," were played. The grand march, the one on the programme, arranged and directed by a capable committee composed of Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. W. Sym, and Miss Betty Fairbairn, with Miss Isobel Baird at the piano, was a great success.

The prizes were awarded as follows:

Girls—Tree that thrives at Stoney Lake, Pine, Elinor Piper. Powder Puff, Jane Currier. Old-fashioned Girl, Patricia Cole.

Boys—Cedar Tree, Spencer Piper. Colored Man, Dick Wotherspoon. "Peter Pan," John Annesley.

HYDRO DEVELOPMENT IS LEADING ISSUE IN ELECTION OF THE NINTH LEGISLATURE OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Government Lays Stress on Its Intention to Develop Grand Falls.

GENERAL RECORD.

Oppositon Charges Extravagance in Highways and Other Public Services.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 1.—Electors in New Brunswick go to the polls on August 10 to choose their representatives in what will be known as the ninth Legislature of the Province.

For some weeks the election campaign in New Brunswick has been underway and not in many years has so much interest been manifested in a Provincial electoral struggle. Forty-eight members are to be elected and candidates are in the field representing the Liberal, Conservative and United Farmers parties, while one and possibly two Independents will be in the field before nomination day.

This election, however, marks the decline of the United Farmers party or Progressives in New Brunswick. Whereas in 1920 the United Farmers succeeded in electing seven candidates, they have to date nominated but three, and all these in Carleton, the only county in the Maritime Provinces that sends a supporter of Robert Forke to the Federal House. A. Chase Fawcett, who was the House Leader of the Progressives in the last Legislature, has retired from the political arena and is now a member of the recently re-organized New Brunswick Power Commission. Thus it may be said generally that New Brunswick has turned to the two-party system and the present election is really a fight between the Liberal Government of the day, lead by Hon. Dr. P. J. Veniot, and the Conservative Opposition, lead by Hon. Dr. J. B. Baxter.

Premier Veniot assumed administration of affairs in New Brunswick on April 23, 1924, following the resignation of Hon. W. E. Foster, who lead the Liberal party to victory in the general elections of 1920. Hon. Mr. Foster retired from the Premiership owing to pressure of private business, but he retained his heat in the Legislature as one of the representatives of the city of St. John. The Veniot Ministry included all those who had been members of the Foster Cabinet, and since April, 1924, there have been several changes in the personnel.

Cabinet Changes.

Hon. S. W. Robinson, Minister of Lands, recently was appointed to the Senate, and the portfolio was taken for a time by Hon. J. E. Hetherington, Provincial Secretary. Later Hon. J. P. Bryne, Attorney-General, was appointed to the Supreme Court Bench in New Brunswick and Premier Veniot called Hon. Ivan C. Rand of Moncton to the Government. Hon. Mr. Rand contested the constituency of the city of Moncton, which Hon. Mr. Robinson had represented. A bye-election was held and E. A. Reilly, K.C., of Moncton, nominated as standard-bearer of the Conservatives, succeeded in defeating Attorney-General Rand. Premier Veniot then had Hon. Mr. Rand nominated for the vacancy in Gloucester County, made vacant by the elevation of Hon. Mr. Bryne to the Bench. The Conservatives nominated J. L. Ryan of Bathurst to oppose Attorney-General Rand, but the result of the election was a victory for the Cabinet Minister. When Premier Veniot met the House in March last he still had Hon. Mr. Hetherington as Acting Minister of Lands and Mines, but Cabinet re-organization was delayed until a few weeks ago, when Hon. Allison A. Dysart of Buctouche and M.L.A. for Kent, was taken into the Government as Minister of Lands and Mines, and Hon. Burten M. Hill, former Chief Highways Engineer, was made Minister of Public Works. The Premier himself formerly held this portfolio, but he resigned as Minister of Public Works on becoming Chairman of the re-organized New Brunswick Power Commission, at a salary of $3,500, the same amount which he received as Minister of Public Works. Hon. Mr. Dysart was Speaker in the last House, and is again a candidate in Kent, while Hon. Mr. Hill has been nominated as a candidate in the new rural constituency of Charlotte.

The Prime Minister.

Hon. Mr. Veniot is New Brunswick's 16th Premier since 1867. He is the first French-Acadion and Roman Catholic in the Province to hold the position of First Minister of the Crown. Premier Veniot is a native of Rachibucto, Kent County, N. B., but was educated at Pictou Academy. He was first elected to the New Brunswick Legislature in 1894 and remained in the House until 1900 when he became Collector of Customs at Bathurst. In 1911 he retired from that position and a few years later became French-Acadien organized for the Liberal party in New Brunswick. It was largely due to his efforts that the Liberals were able to carry the French-Acadien counties in the general elections of 1917 and return to power in New Brunswick. Hon. Mr. Veniot became Minister of Public Works in the Foster Government of that day and he retained the portfolio after assuming the Premiership.

Leading the Conservative forces in the present election campaign is Hon. J. D. F. Baxter, K.C., former Minister of Customs in the Meighen Government. He resigned as Leader of the Opposition in New Brunswick in September, 1921, to accept the portfolio in the Federal Cabinet and returned to the Provincial arena this year to again lead the Conservative party. He was elected as Federal member from the constituency of St. John-Albert in 1921 and only a few weeks ago was unanimously chosen Leader of the Conservatives at a convention held in St. John. From the time of Hon. Mr. Baxter's resignation as Leader of the Opposition to accept the Federal portfolio until his reappointment a few weeks ago, the Conservatives had as House Leader Charles D. Richards of Fredericton, who is now a candidate for the new constituency of Federicton, the town of Devon and the town of Marysville.

Hon. Dr. Baxter was born at Carleton, St. John, N. B., in 1868 and educated at the public schools and at King's College, Windsor, N. S., (D. C. L.). He was first elected to the New Brunswick Legislature at a bye-election in 1911, for St. John County. He was re-elected at the general elections of 1912 and in December, 1914, became Attorney-General. He held that portfolio until 1917 when the Government of Hon. J. A. Murray was defeated at the polls.

The Hydro Question.

Perhaps the outstanding issue in the present campaign is the proposed hydro-electric development at Grand Falls. At the last session of the Legislature the Government introduced and succeeded in piloting through the House legislation which provides for the expenditure of $10,000,000 to complete the initial development at Grand Falls. This money will be spent under the direction of the New Brunswick Power Commission, of which the Premier is Chairman, the other members of the executive board being James Burgess, ex-M.L.A. for Victoria, and Dr. E. A. Smith of Shediac, former chairman, while the advisory board to the commission consists of Hon. W. E. Foster, former Premier, A. Chase Fawcett, former Leader of the Progressives of the New Brunswick House, and Elwood Burtt of Fredericton, candidate for the Liberal party in York in 1917.

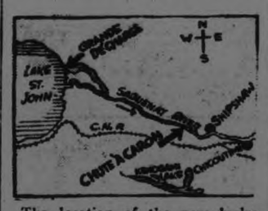
The Government has stressed the fact that they propose to develop and operate Grand Falls as a public ownership enterprise, and claim to have the market for all the electrical energy available which the initial development provides for. Premier Veniot and his party argue that the future of New Brunswick's lumbering industry depends on the utilization of the soft wood areas in the Province for the manufacture of pulp and paper, and taking this premise, make the further point that pulp and paper mills will not come to New Brunswick unless cheap power is provided. The Grand Falls development is the most pretentious undertaking New Brunswick has ever attempted, but the plant when completed, according to Premier Veniot, will produce hydro electric energy sufficient to supply the commercial and industrial needs of the Province. New Brunswick operates the Musquius development, which supplies electrical energy to St. John and points along the Kenebeccasis Valley, and it is proposed to link this up with Grand Falls, plans having been completed for the construction of a transmission line which will form a hydro chain around the entire Province.

The Conservatives do not oppose the Grand Falls development, but argue that the scheme is being proceeded with before sufficient information is available to ensure its success. They ask that further data be supplied as to the amount of power which can be generated at Grand Falls, the cost of the operation of the plant, and definite assurance with respect to markets Further the Opposition take the stand that in view of the tremendous financial outlay involved the people of the Province should be given an opportunity to say at the polls whether they desire the Province to take hold of the project and operate it.

Extravagance Charged.

There is also the issue of the Government's general record, the Premier appealing to the electors on the results of his highways policy, and administration of the other public services. The Opposition charges the Government has been extravagant and that the highways expenditures have been far in excess of what they should have been. The financial position of the Province is another issue, being discussed on the hustings. But the other outstanding issue, aside from the hydro-electric development at Grand Falls, is the administration of the Prohibitory Law. The Opposition charge that the law is being flagrantly violated and that the Government has been lax in its efforts to enforce prohibition, while considerable criticism has been made of the New Brunswick Vendors' Commission, which dispenses liquor, under Government supervision, for medicinal and sacramental purposes. The Government in its reply points out that the Federal duty on liquor has put a premium on bootlegging in the Province, and many, attracted by the huge profits in this traffic, are engaged in the illicit business. To off-set the activities of these people, who are aided in securing their products by the long coast line of the Province, would require a greatly augmented police department, according to Premier Veniot, and the Province is not in a financial position to make the financial outlay which would be necessary to increase the staff of liquor inspectors.

ALUMINUM CENTRE.



The location of the new hydro-electric and aluminum centres in the Saguenay River district of Quebec is shown on the above map. The falls at Grande Decharge, where the waters of Lake St. John flow into the Saguenay River, are already partially developed. During the next three years it is planned to develop 800,000 horespower and to spend $100,000,000 at the Chute a Caron and to build a town of 50,000 souls at Shipshaw. Aluminum and other industries will be located in the Chute a Caron area. The railway line shown in the map runs from Bagotville westward through Chicoutimi to Chambord and then south to the city of Quebec.

BERLIN AIDS MINE OWNERS

Grants a Three Months' Credit of 15,000,000 Marks.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—The newspapers report the gold discount bank has granted to the Ruhr mining industry a three months' credit of 15,000,000 marks because of the present crisis, in which enormous stocks of coal are on hand without a market.

The mine owners declare that the situation is leading to ruin. They have resorted to wholesale dismissals of miners in an effort to economize and many pits are closed down.

W. P. Mackenzie.

"Entertaining angels unawares," that well-worn phrase, might now be changed to "entertaining authors unawares." Due to the proximity and immense size of the American literary market and its greedy habit of devouring the output of large numbers of Canadians, many inhabitants of the dominion may live almost next door to a lady or gentleman with a facile and remunerative pen ad never know it.

There is in Toronto for instance, in the legal and claims department of the Transportation Commission, a Canadian poet who has been writing verse for the past 26 years, whose poems have been appearing regularly in such magazines as Scribner's, Lippincott's and Munsey's, who has published, in fact, over 200 publications.

He is Wellington P. Mackenzie, a Scottish boy, who grew up in York County and who was so impressed by the beauties of the Canadian countryside that he felt impelled to transfer his thoughts to paper.

Wellington P. Mackenzie is now a middle-aged man, but he has never lost his feeling for the charm of the country. James L. Hughes, LL.D., the well-known leader in things educational, was once discussing Mr. Mackenzie's work in a letter to a friend. Referring to the subjects of his poems, he said that this Canadian had a knack of dealing with the simple things that any boy in tune with the universe might hear. "The apple blooms on the trees in the orchard, the perennials in his mother's garden, the touch of his mother's hand on his head, the whispering wind, the mellow tones of the church bell as he leaned on the gate on Sunday evening and watched the red glow on the western sky turn to opal grey; all the infinite richness of a farm life that kindles the soul of a happy boy, has lived on in his life."

ACCEPTED CALL.

TOO MUCH TALK OF VITAMINS

Danish Doctor Says That People Have Vitamins on the Brain.

NOT ENOUGH KNOWN.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 1. — (AP). —Talk about vitamins is a matter of fashion rather than a necessary adjunct to public health, is the opinion of Dr. S. Monrad, Chief of the Queen Louise Children's Hospital, expressed in a recent discussion of the subject.

Dr. Monrad said it is quite true that children need a great many things that are not so necessary to the grown up person, but generally speaking we, as also our children get quite enough vitamins through normal food, when it is good and well made. So far as milk is concerned it ought to be boiled for children but only for a short time, a long boiling causing certain changes in the milk, which makes it less valuable.

With regard to the modern vitamin industry, Dr Monrad said.

"The public has vitamins on the brain, and in things like that business always becomes interested, which is quite natural. It will prove a great business success for a couple of years when the movement will die away, and nothing more will be heard of the vitamins. If children are given ordinary, well made food they thrive well. A sickness like the Children-Scurvey (the Barlow disease is never seen now. It was due to the lack of C-Vitamins, but since the rational care of children has progressed so much and since the milk is boiled less, it has disappeared so that I cannot now even show it to my students.

"Apparently the children are to be filled with vitamins now, and I am afraid it is just as bad as giving them too few. It has, for instance, been proved that it is possible to call forth eczema in rats by giving them too many vitamins, and I consider it probable that the same thing will apply to our children.

Relative to a proposal of mixing vitamins with margarine, Dr. Monrad said:

"If they commence mixing vitamins in vegetable margarine. I shall not know how to butter the bread of the many, many children, who for years and years cannot stand animal fat. There is every reason seriously to warn against these endeavours to overload these poor children with vitamins. And when all comes to all, what do we then know about the vitamins? We do not even know what they are, and we know decidedly far too little to make an industry of vitamins. Much of the talk about vitamins is theory.

DANZIG RIVALS MONTE CARLO

Casino at Zoppot Draws Many People Who Come "For Their Health."

MONEY FOR CITY

ZOPPOT, Free City of Danzig, Aug. 1.—(Associated Press).—This fashionable watering place on the Baltic is rapidly acquiring the name of "Monte Carlo of the North." From all over Europe, especially from Danzig, Poland and Germany, people bent on playing roulette or baccarat flock hither to indulge in games of chance. The fact that the Zoppot bathing beach is one of the finest along the southern shores of the Baltic affords a ready excuse for people to come here "for their health."

Theoretically, gambling is forbidden in the Free City of Danzig. The owners of the beautiful, up-to-date Casino hold no concession from the state for conducting these games of chance. However, the Free City is vitally interested in the casino, for 60 per cent. of the gross income from the gambling tables goes to the city of Danzig and to the other communities within its confines. From the remaining 40 per cent. the owners of the Casino must defray all running expenses.

Every attempt to get at the actual revenue obtained from the Casino meets with an evasive reply on the part of Danzig's officials. One is merely told that the proceeds cannot be used for general purposes, but must be devoted to social welfare. That the profit must be considerable, however, may be judged from the fact that the company which runs the Casino is investing its share of the net profits in a magnificent new hotel facing the ocean and located a short distance from the villa formerly inhabited by the German Crown Prince.

On the whole, it is claimed that the women are the heavier losers. They are said to be more impulsive than the carefully calculating men. One sees every type of gambler, both professional and occasional. The professionals, according to local observers, are not venturesome, but are content to have little profits.

CHILE PREPARING TO WELCOME PRINCE

Most Elaborate Programme is Being Drawn Up For His Reception.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 1 —Aug. 1,— (AP). —Preparations are under way here for an elaborate program of entertainment for the Prince of Wales during his brief visit to Chile in September.

Arriving in Santiago from the Argentine frontier the royal visitor will find the city virtually en fete and with British and Chilean emblems on display everywhere. Some of the streets will be specially illuminated for the occasion. He will be called upon to review the Chilean fleet at Valparaiso, the military here and also the Chilean Boy Scout organizations. There will be a gala day at the races for the "Prince of Wales" trophy.

The British heir will have an opportunity to play a game or two of polo in Valparaiso and later will witness a display of Chilean horsemanship at a native rodeo. Another feature of his visit, according to present plans, will be the presentation of a collection of Aucanian jewels of pre-colonial days.

Two grand balls will be given in his honor, one by the government and another by the British residents in the republic. On the night of the Prince's arrival 115 huge bonfires, representing as many years of Chilean national life, will burn along the foothills of the Andes within easy visibility of Santiago.

MINES RETURNED.

Private Owners Are Again Operating Mines in Russia.

LONDON, Aug. 1.— (AP)— Reports in mining circles here indicate that some approach to the old economic order in Russia is gradually being made. In this connection it was announced recently that the properties of the British Spassky Copper Mine, Limited, which were twice nationalized by the Soviet authorities, were being operated privately again, and that a new issue of capital is contemplated at an early date to be offered prorata to the shareholders.

This follows the announcement a few weeks ago of the Lena Company in which American capital is heavily interested, that it had again been given control of its properties, which cover thousands of acres.

BIG FAST, BIG FEED TO KEEP HEALTHY

Scientist Fasts For Weeks and Then Eats a Great Deal.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—For better health, alternately eat and take long fasts, advises Frederick Hoelzel, lay scientist of the University of Chicago Physiology Department. He recently finished a thirty-three-day fast.

Prolonged hunger is not the ordeal that hunger strikers would lead the public to think, he says, for he never felt better in his life. He lost thirty pounds during the period of abstention, but regained twenty of it in less than eight days afterward.

Fasters should go on a meat diet immediately preceding their enforced hunger. Hoelzel did and felt perfectly normal the first two days of the fast. He had a hard time walking from the third to the seventh day, then he experienced a slight weakness. No distinct hunger was felt until after the third week.

The desire for food after the third week overtopped everything else in the life of the faster. All interest except in things to eat waned. Pains caused by contraction of the stomach prevented sleep. No headaches were experienced and hot weather was found favorable.

Hoelzel broke the fast with orange juice. Ten days later he ate a pound of steak, a pound of shrimp, a pound of halibut and a pound of salmon.

PLEADED FOR SEDUCER

Man Freed On Suspended Sentence at Brockville

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 1— Found guilty of the seduction of a girl under 18 years of age, a Morton man was about to be sentenced to two years' imprisonment by Judge Dowsley in county court here when the father of the girl after a conference with her, instructed the Crown Attorney to ask for leniency as she did not desire the man to be placed in prison. Judge Dowsley then stated that as the parties injured had made the request, he would comply with it and the prisoner was thereupon allowed to go on suspended sentence.

In size, richness, power, performance, comfort... the most surprising value in the six cylinder field.

The Overland Six is one of the outstanding reasons why the motoring public has invested approximately $130,000,000 in Willys-Overland Motor Cars during the first six months of this year.

It is but natural that a car so richly finished in two beautiful colors, so far advanced in engineering, so notable in performance, so remarkably low-priced, should quickly come into its own. Its power plant is a revelation of what experienced engineering can accomplish with six cylinders in power, getaway, quick pickup and consistent economy.

See this remarkable car. Feel the thrill of driving it. Small down payment—a year to pay.

Modern Pavements Make Feet Tired

The miles and miles of hard surface roadways and side-walks are very wonderful, but, being hard, non-resilient, and excellent conductors of heat and cold, they torture our poor feet unmercifully.

It has been found that if tired, sore feet are bathed in warm water containing a few drops of Absorbine Jr. they will be delightfully cooled and refreshed.

But this is not the only use for Absorbine Jr. It is a liniment, antiseptic, and germicide in one—the handiest, most useful article in the family medicine cabinet.

Not only does it kill germs and prevent infection in open cuts and sores, hastening the healing—not only does it limber up to new freshness, tired, stiff muscles, but as a mouth wash, throat spray or gargle it protects you against wandering disease germs and leaves behind a pleasant, clean taste and odor. $1.25 a bottle at your druggist's.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a young woman and have been engaged to a man for seven months. In the seven months he has been to our home but once, and each time he has told me he has made a mistake, and does not care to marry me. I have written him many times but he has not answered.

Shall I give him up —B. H.

B.H. — If this young man has been honest with you and asked your permision to break the engagement, you must be honest with him, my dear. Of course he should have considered the whole problem well, before asking you to be his wife, but all of us are liable to take a misstep now and then. If you were selfish enough to bind him to his promise I am sure you would not be happy in your marriage. Marriage must be founded on mutual love and understanding and without these attributes it is bound to be a failure. I know it will be hard, my dear, to give up someone you love, but you must do it. Try to forget your little hurt and have as jolly a time with your other friends as you can.

Dear Annie Laurie:

Last Summer through flirtation I met a young man. I went out with him for two months. One night he told me I'm not what I used to be, and I think he doesn't care any more. Now, I feel so blue.

What shall I do?

—China Rose.

China Rose: Your story is a little object lesson to the hordes of young women who sometimes feel that it wouldn't feel improper to speak to that nice young man who smiles so often. It proves conclusively that no man, regardless of what he may say, really respects a woman who will acknowledge him without the formality of an introduction—they are safeguards. Before you present a young man to a young lady you make certain that he is the sort of a person you would like your friend to know—a character above reproach. The same holds true of all introductions. If you choose your friends with care you will not have problems confronting you which are difficult to solve—and humiliating.

As for the young man in whom you are interested I am sure you have realized by now that he is not worthy of your conduct.

Dear Annie Laurie:

If a girl is going away to school is it permissable for her to ask a young man to write to her?—Becky.

Becky: Yes, my dear, it is quite proper for you to give the young man your address and ask him to write. However, if he has asked you to write first and it is you who are leaving town, then you may write the first note.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of enquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

PUTTING A DAMPER ON HER EUROPEAN TRIP.

..The little school teacher is going to Europe—all over Europe—this Summer.

She and three other school teachers. They were just delighted with the idea when they first made up their minds to go.

The other three are delighted yet, but Rose—that's the fourth little school teacher's name—isn't quite as delighted as she was.

There's the matter of clothes, for instance.

Rose had a beautiful time shopping for a steamer coat and a sport outfit and a steamer hat and sport shoes and sport stockings and a long veil for dusty roads, ad two little silks for dinners. And she told all the saleswomen she was going abroad and some of them said they wished they were going, and one said, didn't Rose think Europe would be awfully crowded, with so many visitors going this year, and one of them said, "Yes, your first trip? I've been over five times."

And Rose went home perfectly tired out that day.

The next day she heard about Anne's sport suit and sport hat and sport shoes. Anne's rich aunt bought them for her, and of course they were a good deal smarter than any Rose could afford to buy. She hasn't looked at her sport outfit since, and as for the two little silks for dinners she just fairly hates the sight of them.

Anne had two dinner dresses, both of them much prettier than the ones Rose thought were so pretty when she brought them.

And then there's the travelling. Rose was absolutely sick when she saw a woman that she knew traveling with her daughter and they had a drawing room and Rose and her three friends just had two sections in the car.

Whatever she will do when she sees the de luxe staterooms on the ship and realizes that her's isn't one of them—well, I'm glad I shan't be there to see.

And it will be the same thing all over Europe. Rose will be perfectly miserable every time she sees someone else living in a smarter hotel, driving in a faster car, eating at better restaurants—poor Rose. If she could only have left her disposition at home what a glorious time she would have had.

And the worst of it is, the other three teachers will get so tired of her and her jealously and her uneasy vanity, and her self-absorption that she won't see very much of them when they all get home again.

Poor Rose. She's always wishing she had a rich uncle or a "smart" aunt or some generous cousins or something. And what she really ought to be wishing is that she had a rich natuge and a generous heart herself and then she wouldn't need another thing to make her go through life with a song in her heart.

Poor Rose. She's blind and deaf and dumb and lame too—and she doesn't know it. Isn't it too bad?

HOME TOWN RECIPE

A subscriber asked for a recipe for green cucumber pickle. Here is one from Miss Anne McCabe, 291 Burnham street, who also obliges us with a recipe for green tomato pickle.

Green Cucumber Pickle: Put cucumbers in salt and water for two days. Wash in clear water. Scald until salt is well drained off, then add a little alum. Put vinegar on and let come to a boil, adding two cups of sugar to one quart vinegar and mixed spices in a bag.

Green Tomato Pickle: Slice one peck of green tomatoes into a jar. Sprinkle a little salt over each layer. Let them stand for twenty-four hours, then drain off the liquor. Put tomatoes in a kettle with a teaspoon each of the following spices: Ground ginger, allspice, cloves, mace, cinnamon, and scraped horse radish. Also twelve small or three large red peppers, three onions, and two cups brown sugar. Cover all with vinegar and boil slowly for three hours. This makes an excellent pickle if the quantities of ingredients are adhered to strictly.

THE WAY IT SEEMS

Do you recall the Arabian Nights tale of the magic carpet And do you dare say that magic is more? Ask an two who are in love and they will say that the magic carpet does not exist in this very modern oTday. Only it may be a chair, or a sofa, or an automobile — or any place where two who love are together. Then all else on earth passes away and they float through the clouds all rosy and golden and glowing. For love does now as he has ever done, works miracles for those who follow his teachings, and he makes it seem to those in love that there are only two in the world, no, above the wowrld in the clouds of happiness.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

She Tells About an Attractive Afternoon Dress

We have been busy in the shop making tub silks and crepes for smart clients to finish the Summer season in.

Today a dark-haired young girl, Miss Brown, came in, and urged one of the saleswomen to find her a stunning crepe in short order.

Miss Brown sank into an easy seat and announced that she would not move until she had seen a dress she simply couldn't get along without.

She explained:

"I've made a new resolution never to buy a frock unless it is something I simply know I must have."

"It's a fine way to do," I assured her. "I I get a frock that I like very much, I'm sure to want to wear it until it is really worn out."

"The system may take up much more of one's time shopping about, but the satisfaction it gives is worth while." Miss Brown returned.

"You won't have to shop about any more today. You're sure to see something here you want very much," I told her.

And sure enough, she did. Gaby came out in a moment modeling one of the newest crepes for her, and Miss Brown was interested immediately.

"What a heavenly shade," she exclaimed. "Do tell me what you call it?"

"This is ashes of roses color," Gaby informed her.

I could see that the dark rose tint would be lovely with Miss Brown's brunette hair and skin, and told her so. She replied:

"I think I should have to take it anyway, for I'm in love with the little pockets, and those two effective front panels and the plain back effect."

"I smiled and replied:

"Madame simply wouldnt let you take it if the color were not good for you, but fortunately it is."

This Crepe Dress is Ashes of Roses Color and Has Pockets of Tiny Ribbon Flowers

Gaby came over to show her that the two front panels were made by taking little hand-stitched pleats in the top and then turning them in, so the panels had little seams at the top that gradually gave way to fulness.

PROPER CARE OF RUGS.

Rugs of all kinds are in such general use to-day that it is well to know the best way to care for them.

In sweeping a rug of large size, if damp paper, wadded up, or damp tea leaves are sprinkled over the surface first, the sweeping done first lengthways, then across the surface, the rug turned over on the other side and the same thing repeated, then surface dirt will be pretty well out. Then the vacuum should be put on and used evenly up and down, then crossways; the rug is turned and the same thing done to the other side. Then the rug may be scrubbed.

Scrub it with white soap and lukewarm water applied with a soft scrubbing brush. Then rinse it with ammonia water, which brightens the colors. The rug is then stretched flat and allowed to dry, first on one side, then on the other. If there is a grass plot and lines that are strong enough to hold the rug in the shade, it will dry more quickly than on a floor.

Small rugs may be done in the same way if they are Oriental, velvet or of other heavy weaves. All of the hand-woven cotton rugs so [illegible] for [illegible] wash well and are really tub rugs. They may be washed in soap and water, through two suds at least, then they should be well rinsed, and they may be dried out on a line in the shade without wringing and permitted to dip dry. In this way they hold their shape and do not sag at the ends or become full in the middle. When the rugs are dry the fringe may be lightly snapped out, or it may be combed out with a wooden fringe comb. If the rugs have many colors, it is wise to put salt in the water, so that the colors will not run.

Let's Talk It Over

"I am neat, I am so neat,
I swept my mother's room,
The sweepings are all under the sofa,
Now where shall I put the broom?"

I never quote poetry unless I am deeply moved, I hope you will also be deeply moved on reading this "Distracted Mother's" letter.

I have a problem that is beginning to get on my nerves. I thought perhaps some of the pals could help me with a little advice. I have a daughter, twelve years old, who has developed very slovenly habits. She is careless about everything. She never cares to comply with my wishes of being tidy. She thinks nothing of (after being told about it again and again) hanging her dress up by the sleeve, turned inside out on a hook, instead of on a hanger, or letting it lie on the floor and walking over it.

Her dresser drawers are a sight, constantly upside down. I have tried different methods to make her mend her ways, but to no avail. It is half my life to be tidy, and the discouraging part is that they tell me she will never be any different, as it has been proven by others, who grew up to be no different.

Do I have to keep continually correcting her with no results ? I can't be happy with her going on this way. I was once told I did not teach her. Why ever since she was two years old I started by having her place her little shoes together under the bed at night. If I let her go she is twice as bad. I have yet to find any of my friends' girls so careless. Their mothers are all proud of them. I do hope that this letter can be answered soon—a word from the pals would be a great relief.

A DISTRACTED MOTHER.

I'm going to prove a bitter disappointment to you, dear lady. I am going to talk to you in harsh, rude terms.

PROBABLY NINETY-NINE PER CENT OF THE BUREAU DRAWERS OF THE UNIVERSE ARE IN A CHRONIC STATE OF SCRAMBLE.

Yes, I am being rude. Somebody ought to be rude to you—somebody ought to walk all over you with hob nail boots. Here you have a little girl on the brink of womanhood, a little girl full of dreams and adventures, strange impulses, and curiosities—a marvelous piece of material that under your hands might grow into something beautiful and rare. And all you think about it that she isn't neat.

For the luvva Mike, wake up! If she were neat at her age she'd need an operation There'd be something wrong with her. I'm not saying that she should not be trained. She should be trained, patiently and lovingly and firmly, but believe me, the mother who despairs of her child's future at twelve because that child is untidy is in more need of training than the child.

So tidiness is half your life. Then you're making a darn poor use of your life, my dear. You might as well be a nice shiny egg-beater or a vacuum cleaner. Stop thinking about that little girl's bureau drawers—think about her heart. Don't worry about what she's not picking up in her closet—worry about what's she's picking up in her mind.

BABY'S OWN SOAP

Baby's Own Soap

Enjoyed by the young Mom of Canada

Peterborough Fancies.

(By Jeannette.)

Simple and Smart.

An atmosphere of rich simplicity distinguishes the Fall frocks, especially noticeable in the black gowns.

One very effective sample is developed in satin-stripe canton, with godets or circular flares of plain silk crepe and the same plain material in the sleeve trimming. The sleeves are long and the collar is the new 'stole' type, finished with a long silk tassel and topped at the front by a jabot of Irish lace and net.

An accordion-pleated underskirt and sleeve trimming and much application of black beads, with a tiny vestee of fawn colored, pleated georgette above the stole collar, which ends in a beaded ornament and beaded tassel, make interesting portions of another mode made of heavy black canton crepe.

One ensemble dress has an under portion of white silk crepe, dotted with large black coin spots, and is fashioned from black silk crepe, with a jabot of self and button fastening. Another, with a long scarf descending from shoulder to hem at the back, has as its only trimming a large ornament in heavy Chinese embroidery of red and yellow, outlined with bright green wooden beads.

The Chinese motif appears again in a cream frock of French pussywillow crepe, with red and yellow and black pattern and tiny buttons down the front length.

"My idea of auto trouble,' said Barney, "is when the monthly installment falls due and you run out of gas the same day."

Old Dutch

Won't Scratch

Made in Canada

Because

Old Dutch contains no hard, sharp grit which cuts and ruins surfaces. It erases the dirt, instead of grinding it off. This is so because of its distinctive quality and character. To the eye a fine powder—under the microscope flaky, flat shaped particles, which make complete contact with the surface. Being flat shaped, they naturally cover more surface. Therefore, Old Dutch goes further, lasts longer. It erases visible as well as invisible impurities and assures you of healthful cleanliness.

BIG PROGRAMME AQUATIC EVENTS

Canoeing, Sailing, Motor Boat and Swimming Races at Chemong

REGATTA THURSDAY.

The annual Chemong regatta will take place on Thursday of next week, and a good programme of aquatic sports of all descriptions has been drawn up. The feature of the programme is a dinghy sailing race over a six-mile course for the Trent Valley Navigation Company Cup, emblematic of the Championship of the Kawartha Lakes. An open sailing race for the Gordon Cup and a canoe race for the Patte Trophy are also on the programme.

Canoe races, for men, for boys, for ladies, are also on the programme in goodly number. The swimmers have not been forgotten while the motor boat speedsters have races for both outboard and standard boats. Tilting and a gunwale race will provide a little comedy in the programme.

A dance in the evening will wind up the days entertainment, while special bus service from 1:00 o'clock on will accomodate the people from Peterborough who wish to go.

DEMSEY'S DOGS ARE CALLED A NUISANCE

Fighter's Pets Kill Valuable Dogs and Frighten Children.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—Jack Dempsey's dogs are not too proud to fight—in fact, they are making nuisances of themselves by always looking for a battle. Such was the complaint filed with the city prosecutor here by five citizens who said they lived near the kennels owned by the heavyweight champion and "John and Richard Doe Dempsey," his relatives.

One complaining citizen alleged his valuable sky terrier was fatally injured in a bout with one of Dempsey's dogs and others declared they had to keep their children and household pets within doors or expect to see them torn to fragments by the champion's fighting

FLYWEIGHT BOUT WAS POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Rain last night forced a postponement of the 12-round fight between Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, and Hilly Levine of Coney Island.

STARS BUNCHED HITS ON LEAFS

Four Hits Mixed With Two Errors in the Third Turned Trick.

READING WIN.

TORONTO, July 31.—(Canadian Press). — Syracuse scored all their runs in the third inning here today with Wally Stewart getting the battering and won by 4 to 3. Gibson and Standiford pitched shut-out ball, but Grabowski held the lead.

The score:

Syracuse	004000000	4	7 0
Toronto	000011100	3	9 2

Grabowski and Neibergall; Stewart, Gibson, Standiford and Manion.

Reading 6, Providence 3.

PROVIDENCE, July 31.—(Canadian Press).—Providence could do little with Schroeder this afternoon and Reading walked away with the opening game of the series, 6 to 3. The Keys hit Tomlin hard in the first, second and sixth and errors helped in the scoring. The score:

Reading	220002000	6	9 2
Providence	000120000	3	7 3

Schroeder and McCarty; Tomlin and Lynn.

LAKEFIELD WON AT CURVE LAKE

Came From Behind To Win After Being Seven Runs Down.

A FREE-FOR-ALL.

LAKEFIELD, August 1 — The Lakefield baseball team went to Curve Lake last night and won an closely contested game by the score of 15-14. Jack Sabatino was the star of the game, starting at shortstop and finishing at first base. He also hit a home run. Interference by a stranger nearly caused a free-for-all at the end of the game. Score by innings:

Lakefield	0103533—15
Curve Lake	4220024—14

The teams:

Lakefield—Northey p, Woodhouse c, Fitzgerald 1b, Grier 2b, Hall 3b, J. Sabatino ss, Porter lf, McGraw cf, Dench rf.

Curve Lake—M. Taylor, p, Johnston c, Beaver 1b, C. McCue 2b, W. Jacobs 3b; Muskrat, ss; S. Jacobs, lf; R. McCue, cf; B. Taylor, rf.

Umpires—B. Jacobs, L. Charlton.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Today sees the Kingston Ponies, precariously perched on the top rung, half a game ahead of the Petes, here to play their last scheduled game in Peterboro for this season. The Ponies have not yet been able to squeeze out a win at Riverside Park this year, and are coming here hopeful of breaking the jinx and retaining their lead.

* * * * * * * *

Two of the league's best players are out of today's games at least. Duke Dainty, the ace of the Oshawa batterymen, slid into second during Wednesday's game at Belleville and broke his right wrist. The Duke will not act on the mound again this year. Abbie Rose, second baseman of the Petes, cut his hand while at work Thursday and will be out for a couple of games. Jimmie Hall, who has been on the bench for several games with a cut hand, is expected to be back in the game today. He was willing to try on Wednesday in Kingston, but Manager Johnston refused to take a chance on opening the wound again.

* * * * * * * *

Abbie Rose will be badly missed by the Petes. A hard and dependable worker, a good second baseman, a heavy hitter and a brainy player, he has been one of the most consistent players on the team and among the leading infielders of the league.

* * * * * * * *

The Duke has been the mainstay of the Oshawa team for a number of years and has always ranked as one of its leading pitchers. A bit temperamental, like most left-handers, he has created some amusement for the fans, but there has never been much amusement for the batter who had to face his assortment of southpaw offerings—in fact, in all his years of service in this league he has only been knocked out of the box once.

* * * * * * * *

The Petes could go to Toronto on Monday, Toronto's Civic Holiday, for a brace of games with the Oslers, O.B.A.A. senior champions, but with the league race as close as it is and important games scheduled for today and Wednesday, Manager Johnston did not feel like using up two of his pitchers on exhibition encounters. An exhibition encounter that will prove a tid-bit for the local fans, however, will be played on Peterboro's Civic Holiday, when the Royals of Toronto will play here. This is one of the fastest teams in the senior series in Toronto, and it is expected that Irish Rasson will be the beaver. He will be remembered as the little hurler who served them up for the McCormicks in the junior finals last year, and his pitching duel with Frankie Whitehouse in that series will be resumed on the holiday. The game will be part of a field day being put on by the War Veterans, for which a good programme of sports has been arranged.

* * * * * * * *

Lon Purvis of the Ponies is being given great credit by the Kingston papers for the nice play he made, scooping up Hardill's roller and forcing Ash at second by a good throw, but he needed it to make up for his defective strategy in dropping Harrison's pop fly with the bases full, in hope of getting a double play. Umpire Colling called an infield fly and Abbie Rose scored on the error. No mention is made of the latter play by either journal.

* * * * * * * *

The third and deciding game of the Junior City League final series will be played at Riverside Park on Monday evening. Both teams will be on their good behaviour for the battle, as the victory will carry with it the right to defend the O.B.A.A. junior championship trophy, which was brought here by the Lakeviews in 1923 and retained by them in 1924, after a series of hard games. The winners of Monday's game will play Belleville some time next week.

* * * * * * * *

Bill Prindible and his Knights of Columbus juveniles are practicing regularly to remain in shape for the first game with the Oshawa juveniles. For three years Peterboro teams have been making a brave effort to lift the O.B.A.A. juvenile trophy without success, but Manager Prindible has collected a real team this year, one that is strong in every department, and should go a long way towards bringing to Peterboro one of the two O.B.A.A. cups that have so far dodged the various teams from the city that have sought them.

OLD COUNTRY CRICET

LONDON, August 1 (Canadian Press Cable)—Old country cricket results are as follows: Surrey beat Gloucester by 196 runs. Surrey 320 (Hobbs 2, Sandham 85, Ducat 65) and 201 for five wickets declared (Hobbs 38, Fender 58) Gloucester 198 and 127. Lancashire defeated Northamptonshire by 61 runs. Lancashire 202 and 223. Northamptonshire 133 and 231 (Bellamy 64 not out). The Hampshire and Sussex match was abandoned a draw play being the only thing possible for one day. Sussex 186; Hampshire 93 for seven wickets.

Essex beat Derbyshire in the first innings. Essex 302 (Perrin 68, Morris 54, Cudmore 56, Russell 75) and 142 for five wickets, Derbyshire 322 (Lee 65). Kent beat Nottinghamshire by four wickets. Nottinghamshire 154 and 377 (Carr 103, Payton 69), Kent 305 and 329 for six wickets (J. Bryan 172 not out, C. Knott 57). Somerset defeated Glamorgan in the first innings. Somerset 165 and 82. Glamorgan 99 and 110 for five wickets.

BOSTON WIN FINAL.

BOSTON, July 31.—(Canadian Press)—After having lost three straight to Cleveland, the Red Sox hit solidly behind the pitching of Wingfield and took the final game of the series today, 7 to 2. Score:

Cleveland	002000000	2	10 2
Boston	00004111x	7	15 0

Karr and Myatt; Wingfield and Picinich.

BRITISH GIRLS' TEAM DECLINED MILE RACE GIFT

Demonstrated Sporting Spirit By Striking Event From Programme To-day.

NO OPPOSITION.

Canadian Girls Have Olympic Hockey Flag as Amulet.

LONDON, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press Cable. — On the eve of the meet at Stamford Bridge, the Canadian Girl Athletes were strung up to concert pitch. Miss A. Gibb, the manager, said that they would go like greyhounds from the leash today and that there wasn't a single member of the team who would save herself a grain of effort for victory. They are competing in the Canadian Olympic scarlet outfits — scarlet socks, scarlet knickers and white jerseys edged with scarlet and bearing a maple leaf in scarlet on the breast. They are attaching much significance to the scarlet ice hockey flag presented to them by P. J. Mulqueen as a mascot before they embarked for England. The girls spent the day resting quietly and mostly reading at their hotel.

Since the Czechoslovakian team which arrived last night at the hotel Vanderbilt indicted that they are not participating in the half mile event and has been struck from the program. All the teams participating in the meet are to be present at the dinner at the Piccadilly hotel Saturday evening which has been organized by the directors of the Daily Sketch. In addition to Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Czechslovakian Minister is to be present with Viscount Campden, Lord Decies, Brig. General and Mrs. Nairne and Capt. Webster. After dinner, the company will see the Piccadilly revels and join in the dancing. Miss Gibb is organizing "a real Canadian" party for Monday to which most of the foregoing notables will be invited. Miss Gibb yesterday paid a warm tribute to the overwhelming kindness of Mrs. Elliott Lynn of the British Women's Athletic Association.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 61 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Since the putt of five or six feet always annoys the player when he fails to sink it and since this shot presents itself so often, I have been trying to invent a method which would make it next to impossible to miss such a putt. Next time you are on the green with such a shot, try this: Get the line to the cup. Square your putter blade back of the ball against this line. As you grip the putter let both arms rest against your hips. Make the shot entirely with wrist action. This implies that your hands do not move from their fixed position—hence the resting of the arms against the hips. Take the blade back about four inches entirely with the left hand. Then press it forward through the ball, wholly with the right hand. The entire movement of the blade is not over six or seven inches and the forward swing, with the right hand, must be rhythmic—not a jab. If that doesn't run them into the hole for you, nothing will.

FOUR LEAF CLOVER CARRIED BY VICTOR

Glenna Collett Wins Golf Trophy For Keeps.

EASTERN POINT, Groton, Conn., Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The Grisvold trophy passed into the permanent possession of Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., Friday, when, in one of the hardest fought matches in her career, she defeated Mrs. H. D. Sterrett of Hutchinson, Kansas, one up, in the final round of the seventh annual women's invitation golf tournament at the Shenecossett Country Club.

Miss Collett, who recently won the French championship, was pressed by her opponent throughout the match.

When matters looked far from bright for Miss Collett soon after the turn, she found a four-leaf clover and carried it between her lips for the balance of the match.

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

THE PLAY.

With runners on second and third, the batsman drove the ball directly back at the pitcher. It was hit so sharply that the pitcher, off balance as the result of delivering the ball to the batter, was not able to make a play on the ball.

The ball struck the pitcher's rubber and then so "Englished" off that it crossed the foul line midway between first base and the home plate.

Both runners scored on the play and the batsman reached second base before the ball was returned to the infield.

Was it a fair or foul ball?

THE ANSWER.

This play seems so freakish that it might be regarded as an impossibility, yet in my 20 years in the American League I have twice had such a play come up.

It is a tough break for the team at bat, because the hit must be regarded as a foul ball.

This ball settled in foul territory before bounding past or over either third or first base.

The ball is simply regarded in the same light as any other batted ball that settles in foul territory before conforming with the rules relative to a fair hit.

No consideration can be given the fact that the ball hit the pitching rubber. It is simply a batted ball that struck fair and then went foul before passing first or third base in fair territory or going over or touching any portion of the base.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

ANOTHER PLAYING MANAGER.

The recen tappointment of Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals to the role of manager makes the seventh player now piloting a major league ball team.

The others include Dave Bancroft, Braves; Speaker, Indians; Cobb, Tygers; Harris, Nationals; Sisler, Browns, and Eddie Collins, White Sox. Four of the group are outfielders, the rest infielders.

Not so many years ago, playing managers were almost a thing of the past. They were conspicuous by their absence. Virtually every club in both leagues employed bench pilots.

But of more recent seasons the number of playing leaders has steadily increased until today there are more active chieftains in the big show than has been the case in a long stretch.

And they have been enjoying marked success for the most part, too, as fandom knows.

BRING FLAG WINNERS.

Two of them have brought in flag winners. For instance, Tris Speaker in his first regular season as manager led the Cleveland team to a pennant and world series championship.

And last year, Stanley Harris took what was generally conceded to be but a fair ball club and not only topped the American League procession but handed the Giants a rude jolt in the blue ribbon classic.

Harris did the unique in baseball, winning the championship and world title in his initial year as a manager. Moreover, he was the youngest pilot ever to turn the trick.

Cobb has been handling the reins of the Tygers since the start of the 1921 campaign. During the intervening seasons he has finished second once, third twice and sixth once. In the last three years he has had his outfit in the thick of the fight.

Last year was Sisler's first in the role. And he did fairly well, all things considered.

It was also the first for Bancroft and Harris. The former, of course, didn't get anywhere in particular owing to the material at hand. But should do better this season, in fact has started nicely.

COLLINS AND HORNSBY.

For Collins and Hornsby the job is brand new. The former has had his White 3ox up in the first division all season or rather to date. And it looks good to stay there, too.

Last spring many of the experts were picking the Hose brigade to start around the bottom of the heap. And to stay there. But Collins has thus far given them the old laugh and his team has been one of the surprises of the race.

Just what Hornsby will be able to do with the Cards is problematical, of course. They got away poorly. But since Rogers took things in hand a better article of pastiming has been exhibited, the club having copped the majority of its games since the start was named pilot.

* * *

Surely, playing managers seem to be coming back into vogue again with one or more appointments almost every season.

RIFLE MATCHES GOOD THIS YEAR

D.R.A. Meet, Canada's Bisley, Promises to be Better Than Ever.

600 ENTRIES

OTTAWA, Ont., July 31(Canadian Press). — Canada's "Bisley" meeting, familiarly known as the "D.R.A.", promises this year to excel any prize meeting since pre-war days. From early indications, it is expected that about 600 of the best Canadan marksmen will attend this annual shooting meet of the Dominion Rifle Association, to be held from Aug. 17 to 22 at the Connaught Ranges, South Marsh, 14 miles from Ottawa. Last year the competitors numbered approximately 500.

The fine record of the Canadian team at Bisley Camp in the first two weeks of July, when they won the MacKinnon and Kolapore Challenge Cups, and had seven marksmen entered for the final stage of the King's Prize, though they failed to capture it, has undoubtedly stimulated interest in the meeting to be held here. The King's Medal and the Governor-General's competition are the most important matches.

An entirely new feature this year is the inclusion of a two-day trapshooting tournament, open to all Canada. This new feature has been placed on the programme of the D.R.A. to accomodate the Canadian Air Force. Clay bird shooting with small arms is now part of the Air Force training. The prizes to be offered in this tournament are very attractive and already many prominent trap shots have signified their intention of attending.

The programme for this year will not differ very materially from that of last year, except for the addition of about $1,500 to the prize list. The King's Medal competition has been changed slightly, in that both the rapid and snapshooting rounds (the Borden and Dundonald will be shot at the 300 yard range. Last year the ranges were 200 and 300 yards respectively.

In these rounds this year the competitors will be squadded singly instead of by teams, meaning that the marksmen will have to rely on their own judgement instead of being coached by a team commander. The King's Medal is shot for in four main rounds, the other two being the Banker's, deliberate fire, and the Gzowski, fire with movement. The Borden and Gzowski stages feature the closing day of the meet. The competition corresponds in many respects to the King's Prize at Bisley.

The programme for the D.R.A. this year provides the usual competitions open to cadets, tyros and senor shots. The meet is opened with the Tyro, Macdougall, Barlow and Cadets' competitions, and the Bankers' stage of the King's Medal. On the second day the City of Ottawa, first stage, and the Walker Trophy, will probably be shot.

Later on the programme are the second stage, City of Ottawa, McDonald Brier, and Coates competitions, and the fourth day will probably see the first stage of the Governor-General's competition decided, along with the Dundonald stage, Kings' Medal, and London Merchants' Trophy. Closing the meet are the final stages of the Governor-Generals competition and the Borden and Gzowski stages of the King's Medal.

At the conclusion of the meet on Aug. 22 the prizes will be distributed Cash prizes amounting to $12,000 are offered and trophies to the value of $100,000.

CANADIAN DEFENDER LOST RACE

The Canadian defender, Nanada (farthest away) lost the George Cup international yacht race this year to Kathea (centre position), of Watertown, N.Y., with Rogue (nearest camera), of Rochester, annexing second honors. The boats are shown after the start.

ROSEDALE C. C. HERE MONDAY

Will Play Team From Peterborough Cricket Club at Exhibition Grounds.

START AT 1 P.M.

What should be one of the best cricket matches of the season will be played on the Exhibition grounds on Monday afternoon, commencing at 1 p.m. The Toronto players will reach Peterboro at noon and will be met by the Peterboro players Lunch is being served at Hooper's and tea will be served to the players on the grounds. Stumps will be drawn at 5 p.m. to enable the Toronto team to leave on the 5.30 train. All cricket enthusiasts are asked to turn out to see the game. A good wicket is being prepared and the ground is in better shape than it has been at any time this season.

The Peterboro team will be chosen from the following—C. Thorpe (capt.), G. Coutts, G. Langley, P. Manning, F. Dyer, W. Elliott, R. H. Stuart, Dr. Hewitt, H. Foster, G. Monkman, G. Coleman, C. Fenton, Massey-Cooke, R. Fox, and Mr. Hammond.

WESLEYVILLE BEAT ELIZABETHVILLE

Score Was 10-4 in Second Last Game of Series.

WELCOME, Aug. 1.—A garden party was held at the ball grounds of Newtonville Station on Friday night under the auspices of the Wesleyville ball team and the Mission Circle of the Wesleyville Church.

A ball game was played between Wesleyville and Elizabethville; this was the second last game of the series and Wesleyville and Elizabethville teams had both been winners. The game drew a large crowd and caused considerable excitement. It resulted in a victory for the home team with a score of 10-4.

Refreshment booths, fish pond and other attractions were on the grounds for the amusement of the people after the ball game.

The only accident of the evening was when a batted ball fell to the side of the screen and hit Mrs. Bert Nichols on the wrist. Mrs. Nichol had a very painful and swollen arm, but no bones were broken. Financially the evening was very successful.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a young woman and have been engaged to a man for seven months. In the seven months he has been to our home but once, and each time he has told me he has made a mistake, and does not care to marry me. I have written him many times but he has not answered.

Shall I give him up —B. H.

B.H. — If this young man has been honest with you and asked your permision to break the engagement, you must be honest with him, my dear. Of course he should have considered the whole problem well, before asking you to be his wife, but all of us are liable to take a misstep now and then. If you were selfish enough to bind him to his promise I am sure you would not be happy in your marriage. Marriage must be founded on mutual love and understanding and without these attributes it is bound to be a failure. I know it will be hard, my dear, to give up someone you love, but you must do it. Try to forget your little hurt and have as jolly a time with your other friends as you can.

Dear Annie Laurie:

Last Summer through flirtation I met a young man. I went out with him for two months. One night he told me I'm not what I used to be, and I think he doesn't care any more. Now, I feel so blue.

What shall I do?

—China Rose.

China Rose: Your story is a little object lesson to the hordes of young women who sometimes feel that it wouldn't feel improper to speak to that nice young man who smiles so often. It proves conclusively that no man, regardless of what he may say, really respects a woman who will acknowledge him without the formality of an introduction—they are safeguards. Before you present a young man to a young lady you make certain that he is the sort of a person you would like your friend to know—a character above reproach. The same holds true of all introductions. If you choose your friends with care you will not have problems confronting you which are difficult to solve—and humiliating.

As for the young man in whom you are interested I am sure you have realized by now that he is not worthy of your conduct.

Dear Annie Laurie:

If a girl is going away to school is it permissable for her to ask a young man to write to her?—Becky.

Becky: Yes, my dear, it is quite proper for you to give the young man your address and ask him to write. However, if he has asked you to write first and it is you who are leaving town, then you may write the first note.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of enquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

PUTTING A DAMPER ON HER EUROPEAN TRIP.

The little school teacher is going to Europe—all over Europe—this Summer.

She and three other school teachers. They were just delighted with the idea when they first made up their minds to go.

The other three are delighted yet, but Rose—that's the fourth little school teacher's name—isn't quite as delighted as she was.

There's the matter of clothes, for instance.

Rose had a beautiful time shopping for a steamer coat and a sport outfit and a steamer hat and sport shoes and sport stockings and a long veil for dusty roads, ad two little silks for dinners. And she told all the saleswomen she was going abroad and some of them said they wished they were going, and one said, didn't Rose think Europe would be awfully crowded, with so may visitors going this year, and one of them said, "Yes, your first trip? I've been over five times."

And Rose went home perfectly tired out that day.

The next day she heard about Anne's sport suit and sport hat and sport shoes. Anne's rich aunt bought them for her, and of course they were a good deal smarter than any Rose could afford to buy. She hasn't looked at her sport outfit since, and as for the two little silks for dinners she just fairly hates the sight of them.

Anne had two dinner dresses, both of them much prettier than the ones Rose thought were so pretty when she brought them.

And then there's the travelling. Rose was absolutely sick when she saw a woman that she knew traveling with her daughter and they had a drawing room and Rose and her three friends just had two sections in the car.

Whatever she will do when she sees the de luxe staterooms on the ship and realizes that her's isn't one of them—well, I'm glad I shan't be there to see.

And it will be the same thing all over Europe. Rose will be perfectly miserable every time she sees someone else living in a smarter hotel, driving in a faster car, eating at better restaurants—poor Rose. If she could only have left her disposition at home what a glorious time she would have had.

And the worst of it is, the other three teachers will get so tired of her and her jealously and her uneasy vanity, and her self-absorption that she won't see very much of them when they all get home again.

Poor Rose. She's always wishing she had a rich uncle or a "smart" aunt or some generous cousins or something. And what she really ought to be wishing is that she had a rich nature and a generous heart herself and then she wouldn't need another thing to make her go through life with a song in her heart.

Poor Rose. She's blind and deaf and dumb and lame too—and she doesn't know it. Isn't it too bad?

HOME TOWN RECIPE

A subscriber asked for a recipe for green cucumber pickle. Here is one from Miss Anne McCabe, 291 Burnham street, who also obliges us with a recipe for green tomato pickle.

Green Cucumber Pickle: Put cucumbers in salt and water for two days. Wash in clear water. Scald until salt is well drained off, then add a little alum. Put vinegar on and let come to a boil, adding two cups of sugar to one quart vinegar and mixed spices in a bag.

Green Tomato Pickle: Slice one peck of green tomatoes into a jar. Sprinkle a little salt over each layer. Let them stand for twenty-four hours, then drain off the liquor. Put tomatoes in a kettle with a teaspoon each of the following spices: Ground ginger, allspice, cloves, mace, cinnamon, and scraped horse radish. Also twelve small or three large red peppers, three onions, and two cups brown sugar. Cover all with vinegar and boil slowly for three hours. This makes an excellent pickle if the quantities of ingredients are adhered to strictly.

THE WAY IT SEEMS

Do you recall the Arabian Nights tale of the magic carpet And do you dare say that magic is more? Ask an two who are in love and they will say that the magic carpet does not exist in this very modern oTday. Only it may be a chair, or a sofa, or an automobile — or any place where two who love are together. Then all else on earth passes away and they float through the clouds all rosy and golden and glowing. For love does now as he has ever done, works miracles for those who follow his teachings, and he makes it seem to those in love that there are only two in the world, no, above the wowrld in the clouds of happiness.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

She Tells About an Attractive Afternoon Dress

We have been busy in the shop making tub silks and crepes for smart clients to finish the Summer season in.

Today a dark-haired young girl, Miss Brown, came in, and urged one of the saleswomen to find her a stunning crepe in short order.

Miss Brown sank into an easy seat and announced that she would not move until she had seen a dress she simply couldn't get along without.

She explained:

"I've made a new resolution never to buy a frock unless it is something I simply know I must have."

"It's a fine way to do," I assured her. "I I get a frock that I like very much. I'm sure to want to wear it until it is really worn out."

"The system may take up much more of one's time shopping about, but the satisfaction it gives is worth while." Miss Brown returned.

"You won't have to shop about any more today. You're sure to see something here you want very much," I told her.

And sure enough, she did. Gaby came out in a moment modeling one of the newest crepes for her, and Miss Brown was interested immediately.

"What a heavenly shade," she exclaimed. "Do tell me what you call it?"

"This is ashes of roses color," Gaby informed her.

I could see that the dark rose tint would be lovely with Miss Brown's brunette hair and skin, and told her so. She replied:

"I think I should have to take it anyway, for I'm in love with the little pockets, and those two effective front panels and the plain back effect."

"I smiled and replied:

"Madame simply wouldnt let you take it if the color were not good for you, but fortunately it is."

Gaby came over to show her that the two front panels were made by taking little hand-stitched pleats in the top and then turning them in, so the panels had little seams at the top that gradually gave way to fulness.

This Crepe Dress is Ashes of Roses Color and Has Pockets of Tiny Ribbon Flowers

The little pockets weer of narrow, silver-edged ribbon to match the dress.

PROPER CARE OF RUGS.

Rugs of all kinds are in such general use to-day that it is well to know the best way to care for them.

In sweeping a rug of large size, if damp paper, wadded up, or damp tea leaves are sprinkled over the surface first, the sweeping done first lengthsways, then across the surface, the rug turned over on the other side and the same thing repeated, then surface dirt will be pretty well out. Then the vacuum should be put on and used evenly up and down, then crossways; the rug is turned and the same thing done to the other side. Then the rug may be scrubbed.

Scrub it with white soap and lukewarm water applied with a soft scrubbing brush. Then rinse it with ammonia water, which brightens the colors. The rug is then stretched flat and allowed to dry, first on one side, then on the other. If there is a grass plot and lines that are strong enough to hold the rug in the shade, it will dry more quickly than on a floor.

Small rugs may be done in the same way if they are Oriental, velvet or of other heavy weaves. All of the hand-woven cotton rugs so [illegible] for [illegible] wash well and are really tub rugs. They may be washed in soap and water, through two suds at least, then they should be well rinsed, and they may be dried out on a line in the shade without wringing and permitted to dip dry. In this way they hold their shape and do not sag at the ends or become full in the middle. When the rugs are dry the fringe may be lightly snapped out, or it may be combed out with a wooden fringe comb. If the rugs have many colors, it is wise to put salt in the water, so that the colors will not run.

Let's Talk It Over

"I am neat, I am so neat,
I swept my mother's room,
The sweepings are all under the sofa,
Now where shall I put the broom?"

I never quote poetry unless I am deeply moved, I hope you will also be deeply moved on reading this "Distracted Mother's" letter.

I have a problem that is beginning to get on my nerves. I thought perhaps some of the pals could help me with a little advice. I have a daughter, twelve years old, who has developed very slovenly habits. She is careless about everything. She never cares to comply with my wishes of being tidy. She thinks nothing of (after being told about it again and again) hanging her dress up by the sleeve, turned inside out on a hook, instead of on a hanger, or letting it lie on the floor and walking over it.

Her dresser drawers are a sight, constantly upside down. I have tried different methods to make her mend her ways, but to no avail. It is half my life to be tidy, and the discouraging part is that they tell me she will never be any different, as it has been proven by others, who grew up to be no different.

Do I have to keep continually correcting her with no results ? I can't be happy with her going on this way. I was once told I did not teach her. Why ever since she was two years old I started by having her place her little shoes together under the bed at night. If I let her go she is twice as bad. I have yet to find any of my friends' girls so careless. Their mothers are all proud of them. I do hope that this letter can be answered soon—a word from the pals would be a great relief.

A DISTRACTED MOTHER.

I'm going to prove a bitter disappointment to you, dear lady. I am going to talk to you in harsh, rude terms.

PROBABLY NINETY-NINE PER CENT OF THE BUREAU DRAWERS OF THE UNIVERSE ARE IN A CHRONIC STATE OF SCRAMBLE.

Yes, I am being rude. Somebody ought to be rude to you—somebody ought to walk all over you with hob nail boots. Here you have a little girl on the brink of womanhood, a little girl full of dreams and adventures, strange impulses, and curiosities—a marvelous piece of material that under your hands might grow into something beautiful and rare. And all you think about it that she isn't neat.

For the luvva Mike, wake up! If she were neat at her age she'd need an operation There'd be something wrong with her. I'm not saying that she should not be trained. She should be trained, patiently and lovingly and firmly, but believe me, the mother who despairs of her child's future at twelve because that child is untidy is in more need of training than the child.

So tidiness is half your life. Then you're making a darn poor use of your life, my dear. You might as well be a nice shiny egg-beater or a vacuum cleaner. Stop thinking about that little girl's bureau drawers—think about her heart. Don't worry about what she's not picking up in her closet—worry about what's she's picking up in her mind.

Simple and Smart.

An atmosphere of rich simplicity distinguishes the Fall frocks, especially noticeable in the black gowns.

One very effective sample is developed in satin-stripe canton, with godets or circular flares of plain silk crepe and the same plain material in the sleeve trimming. The sleeves are long and the collar is the new 'stole' type, finished with a long silk tassel and topped at the front by a jabot of Irish lace and net.

An accordion-pleated underskirt and sleeve trimming and much application of black beads, with a tiny vestee of fawn colored, pleated georgette above the stole collar, which ends in a beaded ornament and beaded tassel, make interesting portions of another mode made of heavy black canton crepe.

One ensemble dress has an under portion of white silk crepe, dotted with large black coin spots, and is fashioned from black silk crepe, with a jabot of self and button fastening. Another, with a long scarf descending from shoulder to hem at the back, has as its only trimming a large ornament in heavy Chinese embroidery of red and yellow, outlined with bright green wooden beads.

The Chinese motif appears again in a cream frock of French pussy-willow crepe, with red and yellow and black pattern and tiny buttons down the front length.

"My idea of auto trouble,' said Barney, "is when the monthly installment falls due and you run out of gas the same day."

Old Dutch

Won't Scratch

Because

Old Dutch contains no hard, sharp grit which cuts and ruins surfaces. It erases the dirt, instead of grinding it off. This is so because of its distinctive quality and character. To the eye a fine powder—under the microscope flaky, flat shaped particles, which make complete contact with the surface. Being flat shaped, they naturally cover more surface. Therefore, Old Dutch goes further, lasts longer. It erases visible as well as invisible impurities and assures you of healthful cleanliness.

BIG PROGRAMME AQUATIC EVENTS

Canoeing, Sailing, Motor Boat and Swimming Races at Chemong.

REGATTA THURSDAY.

The annual Chemong regatta will take place on Thursday of next week, and a good programme of aquatic sports of all descriptions has been drawn up. The feature of the programme is a dinghy sailing race over a six-mile course for the Trent Valley Navigation Company Cup, emblematic of the Championship of the Kawartha Lakes. An open sailing race for the Gordon Cup and a canoe race for the Patte Trophy are also on the programme.

Canoe races, for men, for boys, for ladies, are also on the programme in goodly number. The swimmers have not been forgotten while the motor boat speedsters have races for both outboard and standard boats. Tilting and a gunwale race will provide a little comedy in the programme.

A dance in the evening will wind up the days entertainment, while special bus service from 1:00 o'clock on will accomodate the people from Peterborough who wish to go.

DEMSEY'S DOGS ARE CALLED A NUISANCE

Fighter's Pets Kill Valuable Dogs and Frighten Children.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—Jack Dempsey's dogs are not too proud to fight—in fact, they are making nuisances of themselves by always looking for a battle. Such was the complaint filed with the city prosecutor here by five citizens who said they lived near the kennels owned by the heavyweight champion and "John and Richard Doe Dempsey," his relatives.

One complaining citizen alleged his valuable sky terrier was fatally injured in a bout with one of Dempsey's dogs and others declared they had to keep their children and household pets within doors or expect to see them torn to fragments by the champion's fighting

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Today sees the Kingston Ponies, precariously perched on the top rung, half a game ahead of the Petes, here to play their last scheduled game in Peterboro for this season. The Ponies have not yet been able to squeeze out a win at Riverside Park this year, and are coming here hopeful of breaking the jinx and retaining their lead.

* * * * * * * * *

Two of the league's best players are out of today's games at least. Duke Dainty, the ace of the Oshawa batterymen, slid into second during Wednesday's game at Belleville and broke his right wrist. The Duke will not act on the mound again this year. Abbie Rose, second baseman of the Petes, cut his hand while at work Thursday and will be out for a couple of games. Jimmie Hall, who has been on the bench for several games with a cut hand, is expected to be back in the game today. He was willing to try on Wednesday in Kingston, but Manager Johnston refused to take a chance on opening the wound again.

* * * * * * * * *

Abbie Rose will be badly missed by the Petes. A hard and dependable worker, a good second baseman, a heavy hitter and a brainy player, he has been one of the most consistent players on the team and among the leading infielders of the league.

* * * * * * * * *

The Duke has been the mainstay of the Oshawa team for a number of years and has always ranked as one of its leading pitchers. A bit temperamental, like most left-handers, he has created some amusement for the fans, but there has never been much amusement for the batter who had to face his assortment of southpaw offerings—in fact, in all his years of service in this league he has only been knocked out of the box once.

* * * * * * * * *

The Petes could go to Toronto on Monday, Toronto's Civic Holiday, for a brace of games with the Oslers, O.B.A.A. senior champions, but with the league race as close as it is and important games scheduled for today and Wednesday, Manager Johnston did not feel like using up two of his pitchers on exhibition encounters. An exhibition encounter that will prove a tid-bit for the local fans, however, will be played on Peterboro's Civic Holiday, when the Royals of Toronto will play here. This is one of the fastest teams in the senior series in Toronto, and it is expected that Irish Rasson will be the heaver. He will be remembered as the little hurler who served them up for the McCormicks in the junior finals last year, and his pitching duel with Frankie Whitehouse in that series will be resumed on the holiday. The game will be part of a field day being put on by the War Veterans, for which a good programme of sports has been arranged.

* * * * * * * * *

Lon Purvis of the Ponies is being given great credit by the Kingston papers for the nice play he made, scooping up Hardill's roller and forcing Ash at second by a good throw, but he needed it to make up for his defective strategy in dropping Harrison's pop fly with the bases full, in hope of getting a double play. Umpire Colling called an infield fly and Abbie Rose scored on the error. No mention is made of the latter play by either journal.

* * * * * * * * *

The third and deciding game of the Junior City League final series will be played at Riverside Park on Monday evening. Both teams will be on their good behaviour for the battle, as the victory will carry with it the right to defend the O.B.A.A. junior championship trophy, which was brought here by the Lakeviews in 1923 and retained by them in 1924, after a series of hard games. The winners of Monday's game will play Belleville some time next week.

* * * * * * * * *

Bill Prindible and his Knights of Columbus juveniles are practicing regularly to remain in shape for the first game with the Oshawa juveniles. For three years Peterboro teams have been making a brave effort to lift the O.B.A.A. juvenile trophy without success, but Manager Prindible has collected a real team this year, one that is strong in every department, and should go a long way towards bringing to Peterboro one of the two O.B.A.A. cups that have so far dodged the various teams from the city that have sought them.

OLD COUNTRY CRICET

LONDON, August 1 (Canadian Press Cable)—Old country cricket results are as follows: Surrey beat Gloucester by 196 runs. Surrey 320 (Hobbs 2, Sandham 85, Ducat 65) and 201 for five wickets declared (Hobbs 38, Fender 58) Gloucester 198 and 127. Lancashire defeated Northamptonshire by 61 runs. Lancashire 202 and 223. Northamptonshire 133 and 231 (Bellamy 64 not out). The Hampshire and Sussex match was abandoned a draw play being the only thing possible for one day. Sussex 186; Hampshire 93 for seven wickets.

Essex beat Derbyshire in the first innings. Essex 302 (Perrin 68, Morris 54, Cudmore 56, Russell 75) and 142 for five wickets, Derbyshire 322 (Lee 65). Kent beat Nottinghamshire by four wickets. Nottinghamshire 154 and 377 (Carr 103, Payton 69), Kent 205 and 329 for six wickets (J. Bryan 172 not out, C. Knott 57). Somerset defeated Glamorgan in the first innings. Somerset 165 and 82. Glamorgan 99 and 110 for five wickets.

BOSTON WIN FINAL.

BOSTON, July 31.—(Canadian Press)—After having lost three straight to Cleveland, the Red Sox hit solidly behind the pitching of Wingfield and took the final game of the series today, 7 to 2. Score:

Cleveland ..... 002000000—2 10 2
Boston ..... 00004111x—7 15 0

Karr and Myatt; Wingfield and Picinich.

BRITISH GIRLS' TEAM DECLINED MILE RACE GIFT

Demonstrated Sporting Spirit By Striking Event From Programme To-day.

NO OPPOSITION.

Canadian Girls Have Olympic Hockey Flag as Amulet.

LONDON, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press Cable. — On the eve of the meet at Stamford Bridge, the Canadian Girl Athletes were strung up to concert pitch. Miss A. Gibb, the manager, said that they would go like greyhounds from the leash today and that there wasn't a single member of the team who would save herself a grain of effort for victory. They are competing in the Canadian Olympic scarlet outfits — scarlet socks, scarlet knickers and white jerseys edged with scarlet and bearing a maple leaf in scarlet on the breast. They are attaching much significance to the scarlet ice hockey flag presented to them by P. J. Mulqueen as a mascot before they embarked for England. The girls spent the day resting quietly and mostly reading at their hotel.

Since the Czechoslovakian team which arrived last night at the hotel Vanderbilt indicted that they are not participating in the half mile event and has been struck from the program. All the teams participating in the meet are to be present at the dinner at the Piccadilly hotel Saturday evening which has been organized by the directors of the Daily Sketch. In addition to Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Czechslovakian Minister is to be present with Viscount Campden, Lord Decies, Brig. General and Mrs. Nairne and Capt. Webster. After dinner, the company will see the Piccadilly revels and join in the dancing. Miss Gibb is organizing "a real Canadian" party for Monday to which most of the foregoing notables will be invited. Miss Gibb yesterday paid a warm tribute to the overwhelming kindness of Mrs. Elliott Lynn of the British Women's Athletic Association.

INSIDE GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 31 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Since the putt of five or six feet always annoys the player when he fails to sink it and since this shot presents itself so often, I have been trying to invent a method which would make it next to impossible to miss such a putt. Next time you are on the green with such a shot, try this: Get the line to the cup. Square your putter blade back of the ball against this line. As you grip the putter let both arms rest against your hips. Make the shot entirely with wrist action. This implies that your hands do not move from their fixed position—hence the resting of the arms against the hips. Take the blade back about four inches entirely with the left hand. Then press it forward through the ball, wholly with the right hand. The entire movement of the blade is not over six or seven inches and the forward swing, with the right hand, must be rhythmic—not a jab. If that doesn't run them into the hole for you, nothing will.

FOUR LEAF CLOVER CARRIED BY VICTOR

Glenna Collett Wins Golf Trophy For Keeps.

EASTERN POINT, Groton, Conn., Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The Grisvold trophy passed into the permanent possession of Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., Friday, when, in one of the hardest fought matches in her career, she defeated Mrs. H. D. Sterrett of Hutchinson, Kansas, one up, in the final round of the seventh annual women's invitation golf tournament at the Shenecossett Country Club.

Miss Collett, who recently won the French championship, was pressed by her opponent throughout the match.

When matters looked far from bright for Miss Collett soon after the turn, she found a four-leaf clover and carried it between her lips for the balance of the match.

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

THE PLAY.

With runners on second and third, the batsman drove the ball directly back at the pitcher. It was hit so sharply that the pitcher, off balance as the result of delivering the ball to the batter, was not able to make a play on the ball.

The ball struck the pitcher's rubber and then so "Englished" off that it crossed the foul line midway between first base and the home plate.

Both runners scored on the play and the batsman reached second base before the ball was returned to the infield.

Was it a fair or foul ball?

THE ANSWER.

This play seems so freakish that it might be regarded as an impossibility, yet in my 20 years in the American League I have twice had such a play come up.

It is a tough break for the team at bat, because the hit must be regarded as a foul ball.

This ball settled in foul territory before bounding past or over either third or first base.

The ball is simply regarded in the same light as any other batted ball that settles in foul territory before conforming with the rules relative to a fair hit.

No consideration can be given the fact that the ball hit the pitching rubber. It is simply a batted ball that struck fair and then went foul before passing first or third base in fair territory or going over or touching any portion of the base.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

ANOTHER PLAYING MANAGER.

The recen tappointment of Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals to the role of manager makes the seventh player now piloting a major league ball team.

The others include Dave Bancroft, Braves; Speaker, Indians; Cobb, Tygers; Harris, Nationals; Sisler, Browns, and Eddie Collins, White Sox. Four of the group are outfielders, the rest infielders.

Not so many years ago, playing managers were almost a thing of the past. They were conspicuous by their absence. Virtually every club in both leagues employed bench pilots.

But of more recent seasons the number of playing leaders has steadily increased until today there are more active chieftains in the big show than has been the case in a long stretch.

And they have been enjoying marked success for the most part, too, as fandom knows.

BRING FLAG WINNERS.

Two of them have brought in flag winners. For instance, Tris Speaker in his first regular season as manager led the Cleveland team to a pennant and world series championship.

And last year, Stanley Harris took what was generally conceded to be but a fair ball club and not only topped the American League procession but handed the Giants a rude jolt in the blue ribbon classic.

Harris did the unique in baseball, winning the championship and world title in his initial year as a manager. Moreover, he was the youngest pilot ever to turn the trick.

Cobb has been handling the reins of the Tygers since the start of the 1921 campaign. During the intervening seasons he has finished second once, third twice and sixth once. In the last three years he has had his outfit in the thick of the fight.

Last year was Sisler's first in the role. And he did fairly well, all things considered.

It was also the first for Bancroft and Harris. The former, of course, didn't get anywhere in particular owing to the material at hand. But should do better this season, in fact has started nicely.

COLLINS AND HORNSBY.

For Collins and Hornsby the job is brand new. The former has had his White 3ox up in the first division all season or rather to date. And it looks good to stay there, too.

Last spring many of the experts were picking the Hose brigade to start around the bottom of the heap. And to stay there. But Collins has thus far given them the old laugh and his team has been one of the surprises of the race.

Just what Hornsby will be able to do with the Cards is problematical, of course. They got away poorly. But since Rogers took things in hand a better article of pastiming has been exhibited, the club having copped the majority of its games since the star was named pilot.

* * *

Surely, playing managers seem to be coming back into vogue again with one or more appointments almost every season.

RIFLE MATCHES GOOD THIS YEAR

D.R.A. Meet, Canada's Bisley, Promises to be Better Than Ever.

600 ENTRIES

OTTAWA, Ont., July 31(Canadian Press).—Canada's "Bisley" meeting, familiarly known as the "D.R.A.", promises this year to excel any prize meeting since pre-war days. From early indications, it is expected that about 600 of the best Canadian marksmen will attend this annual shooting meet of the Dominion Rifle Association, to be held from Aug. 17 to 22 at the Connaught Ranges, South Marsh, 14 miles from Ottawa. Last year the competitors numbered approximately 500.

The fine record of the Canadian team at Bisley Camp in the first two weeks of July, when they won the MacKinnon and Kolapore Challenge Cups, and had seven marksmen entered for the final stage of the King's Prize, though they failed to capture it, has undoubtedly stimulated interest in the meeting to be held here. The King's Medal and the Governor-General's competition are the most important matches.

An entirely new feature this year is the inclusion of a two-day trapshooting tournament, open to all Canada. This new feature has been placed on the programme of the D.R.A. to accomodate the Canadian Air Force. Clay bird shooting with small arms is now part of the Air Force training. The prizes to be offered in this tournament are very attractive and already many prominent trap shots have signified their intention of attending.

The programme for this year will not differ very materially from that of last year, except for the addition of about $1,500 to the prize list. The King's Medal competition has been changed slightly, in that both the rapid and snapshooting rounds (the Borden and Dundonald will be shot at the 300 yard range. Last year the ranges were 200 and 300 yards respectively.

In these rounds this year the competitors will be squadded singly instead of by teams, meaning that the marksmen will have to rely on their own judgement instead of being coached by a team commander. The King's Medal is shot for in four main rounds, the other two being the Banker's, deliberate fire, and the Gzowski, fire with movement. The Borden and Gzowski stages feature the closing day of the meet. The competition corresponds in many respects to the King's Prize at Bisley.

The programme for the D.R.A. this year provides the usual competitions open to cadets, tyros and senor shots. The meet is opened with the Tyro, Macdougall, Barlow and Cadets' competitions, and the Bankers' stage of the King's Medal. On the second day the City of Ottawa, first stage, and the Walker Trophy, will probably be shot.

Later on the programme are the second stage, City of Ottawa, McDonald Brier, and Coates competitions, and the fourth day will probably see the first stage of the Governor-General's competition decided, along with the Dundonald stage, Kings' Medal, and London Merchants' Trophy. Closing the meet are the final stages of the Governor-Generals competition and the Borden and Gzowski stages of the King's Medal.

At the conclusion of the meet on Aug. 22 the prizes will be distributed Cash prizes amounting to $12,000 are offered and trophies to the value of $100,000.

ROSEDALE C. C. HERE MONDAY

Will Play Team From Peterborough Cricket Club at Exhibition Grounds.

The Peterboro team will be chosen from the following—C. Thorpe (capt.), G. Coutts, G. Langley, P. Manning, F. Dyer, W. Elliott, R. H. Stuart, Dr. Hewitt, H. Foster, G. Monkman, G. Coleman, C. Fenton, Massey-Cooke, R. Fox, and Mr. Hammond.

WESLEYVILLE BEAT ELIZABETHVILLE

Score Was 10-4 in Second Last Game of Series.

WELCOME, Aug. 1.—A garden party was held at the ball grounds of Newtonville Station on Friday night under the auspices of the Wesleyville ball team and the Mission Circle of the Wesleyville Church.

A ball game was played between Wesleyville and Elizabethville; this was the second last game of the series and Wesleyville and Elizabethville teams had both been winners. The game drew a large crowd and caused considerable excitement. It resulted in a victory for the home team with a score of 10-4.

Refreshment booths, fish pond and other attractions were on the grounds for the amusement of the people after the ball game.

The only accident of the evening was when a batted ball fell to the side of the screen and hit Mrs. Bert Nichols on the wrist. Mrs. Nichol had a very painful and swollen arm, but no bones were broken. Financially the evening was very successful.

ACCUSED OE THEFT

BROCKVILLE, On., July 31. — (Canadian Press.)—John J. Wilson, aged 16, an orphan boy born in Montreal, was brought here Thursday from Alexandria Bay, where he was held by the immigration authorities upon complaint of the local police for the theft of a boat belonging to a summer resident at Fernbank.

DEMPSEY SAYS HE IS HIS OWN MANAGER

Has Not Yet Agreed to Fight Anyone But Harry Wills.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. —(Canadian Press).— According to his own admission in a telegram to the New York State Athletic Commission, Jack Dempsey, to-day, is his own manager.

"Mr. Kearns now also knows that I will, hereafter, act for myself for my professional engagements," said Dempsey in the telegram.

Dempsey also declared that he had not yet agreed to fight any one but Wills and asked the indulgence of the commission in the matter of his delayed appearance before it, but he failed to set forth his willingness to fight Wills next July 4, as announced by his press agent in Los Angeles.

WOULD RATHER PUT HIS TRUST IN WOMAN'S 'BECAUSE' THAN IN ALL ARGUMENTS OF MERE MEN

Dr. H. J. Jones at Chautauqua Tent, Tells of Workings of Mind.

BODY CHANGES.

First Day Shows Entertainment Power of the Visiting Artists.

"Don't boast of being a materialist, any more than you would boast of having a hair lip or a wooden leg. The wonderful subjective faculties which remove one far from the plane of the materialist are always more highly developed in women than in men. That is the reason why the ladies know ten thousand things for no special reason on earth, like the homing pigeon returning unerringly to its harbor. I would rather put my faith in a woman's 'because' than in all the arguments of men. Follow your instinct, and you can't go wrong. Joan of Arc went on from victory to victory, as long as she obeyed her voices. It was when she disregarded them that she went down to defeat and finally to the stake. The Protestant Reformation came about through Martin Luther's obedience to his instinct, and the Israelitish prophet hearkened to this still small voice, which is not a matter of conscience either, when Elijah listened to its commands."

Dr. H. I. Jones, lecturer at the Chautauqua tent last evening, held his hearers' keen attention through an hour's talk, in which he touched lightly, in a pleasant, chatty manner, and with a genial, humorous mode of address, on some of the manifestations in every-day life of the mysterious workings of the mind.

The 1925 Dominion Redpath Chautauqua opened here yesterday with a programme which was excellent in the extreme, and a very favorable commencement of what promises to be a splendid five days' entertainment. The big tent at Central Park held about three hundred people for yesterday afternoon's concert by the Jugo-Slav Tamburica Orchestra, and was well filled last evening for the lecture on "The Fountain of Science," given by Dr. Hilton I. Jones, assisted by the same musical organization. Both lecture and music held the interest of the audience and brought applause that was spontaneous and generous.

Men Like Their Thoughts.

"Men become like the thought that is in them," said the lecturer, going on to elaborate some of the results of recent scientific discoveries in the realm of mind and matter.

Taking as an experimental source the tears of a very tearful lady, it was found that "the tears she wept in anger contained seven times as much salt as the tears she wept in joy," proving that the chemical combination of the tears was changed by the state of mind of their possessor, "as in every other tissue of the body. If you eat hard-boiled eggs, that is, especially the yolk of the eggs, while you are violently angry, you will become seriously ill and probaby die. The saliva in your mouth turns red when you get mad, and the same thing happens to the gastric juices of the stomach."

"The adolescent change in the body is a chemical change. We are at last coming to understand that life itself is a definite cnemical reaction, and the thing that we call old age, caused by the exhaustion of certain chemicals in the body, may in time be controlled, for the Fountain of Youth, like the Kingdom of God, is inside a man's own body."

Experiments with ground pituitary gland extract and the extract of the thyroid gland had been found recently to accelerate to a very material extent the growth of certain animals, and the speaker predicted a future time when such chemical compounds will be sold to farmers, who will use them to increase to three and four times the present rate the growth of their cattle, hogs and sheep.

Wisdom in the Adam's Apple.

"The difference between the wise man and the fool lies in his Adam's apple. Remove enough of it when you remove a goitre growth and the patient will get well, but he will be an idiot. The adrenal glands secretion "is the thing that makes your hair stand up on end when you are frightened, and it is the thing that decides the fighting quality of a man. A small football player with sufficient of this secretion in his body will be a hero on the field. You can't down him." Recent experiments with this secretion had resulted in the keeping alive for several days by its injection of dogs that had been beheaded and electrocuted, and babies that had been born dead.

Dr. Jones also referred to the production of insulin from the islands of the pancreas, and went on to speak of the beneficient bacteria provided within the body to withstand the onslaughts of germ diseases from without. A cure for pneumonic collapse is the injection into the body of the patient of a quantity of Worcestershire sauce. "This flavors up the patient with a new taste. The bacteria in his body, which have struck on account of lack of novelty in their diet, go ahead and get busy, start to work on the invading forces, and the man gets well."

So the Indian snake charmer immunizes himself from poisonous reptiles by injecting from time to time a small quantity of the deadly virus into his own veins. "He gets very sick, but he doesn't die, and finally he can handle the most venemous reptiles unharmed."

"We are gradually coming to realise that life itself is a chemical reaction, chemically protected. We are a race of people who worship at the shrine of disease, because we won't try to find out just how our body is constructed. It is a disgrace to be sick, because when you are sick it is a sign that either you or some of your ancestors have broken natural laws."

'Aristotle divided human knowledge into two classes—physics and metaphysics—and just so are there two sorts of people in the world—the thick-skinned materialists and the thin-skinned psychics."

The Subjective Consciousness.

"Every person possesses a reasoning, willing consciousness and a nevr-sleeping, never-forgetting subjective consciousnes. There are many faculties of this subjective mind. Mathematics is one, and so is music. Many of the world's wisest men cannot even sing a tune. And so are the love of the beautiful and religious sense."

The speaker went on to describe the variations of the muscular system, with its two types of muscle, the voluntary and the involuntary. Reflections never can lie. If you want to find out the quality of a man, don't pay attention to anything that he does when on guard. It is the minor things, he does and says when off guard that count."

"You are what you are to-night, rich man, poor man, beggar man or theif, because of the involuntary reaction of your muscular system. And this system is controlled by the action of a wonderful set of ductless glands. And these in turn are under control of the vegetative nervous system, with thousands of ganglia up and down the body."

Proper Food Values.

Onslaught of pellagra and beriberi and scurvy had been discovered to have been caused by the elimination in the diet of the victims of proper constituents of food. Pellagra came from corn that had been denuded of certain of its elements, necessary to proper digestion, beriberi from polished rice and scurvy from the preference for canned goods in the whaling ships.

"Take a victim of pellagra, in a dying condition and feed him with apple skins and he will get well," said Dr. Jones, going on to elaborate on the connection between the vitamins in foods and the proper functioning of the ductless glands.

"Parents are responsible for the moulding of the lives of their children, because the child is a natural-born actor, and will follow out unerringly the suggestions made to its subjective mind, for the subjective life is controllable exclusively by the nervous system. Tell a child that it is no account and worthless and it will inevitably become a man of that type."

"The blessings and horrors of habit are manifold. A habit may become a chain to drag a man down to degradation or it may be made a golden chain to lift him upward and onward."

In this connection, Dr. Jones spoke of the beneficent effect of auto-suggestion on the victim of habit, and told the story of the wife who, by means of reading her husband to sleep at night, and then later conveying by her voice suggestions to his subjective consciousness, broke him of the habit of excessive cigarette smoking, which was hampering his career.

A noted believer in the power of this sort of suggestion, said to his class of pupils on one occasion: "Give me two hours of your young man, and I will guarantee to make of you whatever you wish to be."

A full length mirror in the room was another recommendation of the speaker, with a programme getting up in the morning and saying: "Don't I look good to-day."

"Rise with gladness," was the admonition. "Don't poison the day before it starts by thinking how badly you feel."

Another most important hour, in fact the important hour of the day, is "for I would rather have it than all other eight hours of the day, as far as personal success is concerned," the last hour of the day, the hour when one falls asleep, the hour that controls the state of the mind during the night. "The most cruel punishment a parent can mete out to a child is to send it supperless to bed. Rather flog it within an inch of its life than send it to sleep without your blessing." The faulty habits of the majority of people in getting to sleep without loss of time were remarked by Dr. Jones, who thought a minute or two should be sufficient to send anyone to sleep. "Never go to sleep with a worry on your mind. It will wreck your physical system. To strengthen your body and mind, and assure you of health and success, give yourself the first hour of the day and also be very careful of the thoughts which dominate your mind as you fall asleep."

The inevitable baby which has such a habit of turning up at lectures and functions where silence is an important thing to the majority of listeners, was present last evening. Whether the babies of the city are eager for instruction in the formative period of life is an open question, but it is a fact that they are rarely absent from lectures and church services. This baby brought along a celluloid rattle, which formed a rustling accompaniment to a large portion of the speaker's address, and distracted the attention of many in its vicinity.

Musical Programme.

A section of the programme that was most enjoyable was the music by the Jugo-Slav Tamburica Orchestra, which formed the opening portion of the evening's entertainment, and also gave the concert in the afternoon.

This was a sextette of clever musicians, whose soft, charming playing of the strings of their Slavic instruments was exceptionally good. In native costumes of white, with red and gold laced jackets, and blue sashes, their music stands effectively adorned with festoons of yellow flowers and streamers of rose-colored crepe paper, they gave a splendid and attractive programme of music in the afternoon and evening, interspersing operative numbers with popular selections, with solo numbers in English and Slavic languages.

One of the most interesting numbers in the afternoon was the rendition on the six stringed instrument, five of which resembled the mandolin and guitar type, and one, the background of the group, being a huge affair like a bass fiddle, with a mother of pearl top, of a Jugo-slav folk song, depicting the courtship of an old man for a young frolicksome girl, with slow music for the man's pleadings, and fast, staccato effects for the girl. A Jugo-Slav national dance was also played, and a one-step, said to be composed a century and a half ago. Operatic selections included pretty intervals from "Lucia Di Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," "Martha," and "Il Trovatore," and popular numbers given were "Blue-Eyed Sally," "Follow the Swallows," "Yearning," and "No Other."

The haunting bars of "La Paloma" were beautifully rendered by the softly played strings, with the Slavic temperament of the musicians always evident in their music, and "Napoleon's Last Charge" made an effective final number.

This evening, The Great Laurant and Company give a spectacular production of magic and mystery, and tomorrow evening, there will be a [illegible] by Julian B. Arnold, the

HERE'S CONSTANCE'S RECIPE FOR HUSBAND

Screen Star Also Expounds on Virtues of Man Not To Marry.

Here's Constance Talmadge's ideal of a husband — NOT TO HAVE:

One who:
Wears rubbers.
Uses grease on his hair.
Carries a pocket mirror and comb for use at the office.
Steps on your toes while dancing.
Crunches celery with his back teeth.
Reads over your shoulder.
Wears a sport shirt with a New England Adam's apple.
Plucks his eyebrows.
Wears a bow tie with a rubber band.

An ideal husband to have, according to Constance, should, as generally classified, be a regular fellow." He must:

Be good looking.
Possess a sense of humour and "laugh at my jokes, even though he has heard them before."
Be able to play Mah Jong and poker.
Be a good conversationalist.
Possess "horse sense."
Be able to enjoy opera as well as musical comedy.
Know how to wear a dress suit, even though he rents it.

And "must sympathize with me when I am angry."

And having issued the above ultimatums to would-be husbands, the screen star emphatically denied again for the 'steenth time, that she was engaged or had any present intention of becoming engaged to wed. In her new First National comedy, "Learning to Love,' she arouses a storm of mirth by seeking to apply her ideals to the problem of selecting a husband. Antonio Moreno is finally the lucky man.

This picture, produced by Joseph M. Schenck, will be shown at the CAPITOL Theatre, Monday.

PRONUNCIATION OF "CHEE-CHAW-KOZ"

Manager of Capitol Settles The Argument and Translates Title's Meaning.

"How do you pronounce it, and what does it mean?"

That is the question that manager Crowe of the Capitol Theatre has been answering ever since the first notice of the booking of "The Chechahcos" the first real Alaskan made motion picture. To settle all arguments the awswer is given herewith.

The pronounciation is CHEE-CHAW-KOZ, with the accent on the second syllable. It is the Alaskan word used to designate a tenderfoot or newcomer to the territory, as distinguished from the "sourdough," or old-timer. One remains a chechahco until he has passed through at least one winter of driving snow and sixty below cold waves.

The reason for the title, as explained by Captain Austin E. Lathrop, the producer, is identical with the reason for the production. Alaskans were sick and tired of seeing California mountains and fancied Alaskan costumes and customs depicted by actors who had never been nearer Alaska than Seattle, or Hollywood.

More than six months was spent in assembling a cast. Popular movie names meant nothing unless backed by real ability and nerve enough to undertake the admitted hardships of the work. It is no secret that several well-known and luxury loving stars refused to take the risks, even when offered twice their usual salary. Virtually the entire cast was selected from the speaking stage and includes several nationally known actors and actresses.

Heading the feminine contingent Eva Gordon internationally known the star of the Danish Players of penhagen, who finished a triumtour just about the time this duction was started. Alexis B. , the villain, was for many years Otis Skinner and Dustin Far- Gladys Johnston, the ingenue, ell-known in travelling musical anies from coast to cosat, while rd Webster played the lead in l Fox Pictures, notably "Mo- Hart" and "In Again."

ing the filming of the picture lent Warren G. Harding visite company on location. The that were completed were run r the distinguished guest and came so interested that he re- d that the world premiere he in Washington. A few weeks the executive died in Californ- but his request was passed on Associated Exhibitors when that firm took over distribution of the film. Washington officials were communicated with and the premiere was held under government auspices as the dead President had requested.

It is the first time in the history of motion pictures that such an honour has been conferred on any production and naturally the sponsors take a great deal of pride in the tribute.

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE MANICURE GIRL" HAS POPULAR CAST

Bebe Daniels Starred in New Paramount Picture Due Soon.

"The Manicure Girl," Bebe Daniels' latest starring picture for Paramount, is due at the Royal Theatre on Monday next to remain for three days. The story is an original for the screen by Frederic and Fannie Hatton, who wrote "Upstairs and Down," a play which had an unusually successful run on Broadway.

Bebe, as Maria Maretti, is a manicure girl in a fashionable hotel. She is most popular with the men patrons, much to the displeasure of Edmund Burns, her sweetheart. Hale Hamilton, in particular, is unusually attentive. Hamilton, as James Morgan, a wealthy married man, sends her flowers and encloses a ten dollar bill "for theatre tickets." That's what starts all the trouble. Burns insists that he can buy their tickets; there's a quarrel—result: broken engagement.

Bebe accepts the attentions of Morgan for some time— until she meets Mrs. Morgan and the two of them get their heads together on the best way to cure a frivolous husband and a jealous fiance.

Charlotte Walker plays Mrs. Morgan in the production. Ann Brody is Burns' mother, and Dorothy Cumming is proprietress of the beauty shop where Bebe works.

There's plenty of New York atmosphere in the picture—and laugh scenes galore.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE" IN MOTION PICTURES!

No, they haven't made a picture version of the phenomenally successful New York stage play—yet, but the Anne Nichols piece is on the screen nevertheless.

Here's how it all came about.

In her latest starring picture for Paramount, "The Manicure Girl," Bebe Daniels, who works in a beauty shop in a high class hotel, receives a gift of some roses from a wealthy married man. Accompanying the gift is a ten spot for theatre tickets, because Bebe had told him she was very fond of the theatre.

But Edmund Burns, Bebe's fiancee in the picture, doesn't take kindly to the gift and makes the girl return the money, saying that he is able to buy their theatre tickets. They go to a show that night, and the show is—"Abie's Irish Rose." So that's that!

"The Manicure Girl" opens on Monday at the Royal. Frank Tuttle, who directed Bebe in "Miss Bluebeard," made this one too. The story was written especially for Bebe by Frederic and Fannie Hatton. Hale Hamilton, Dorothy Cumming and Mary Foy are a few of the well known names appearing in the supporting cast.

COUNTRY STORE NITE

ROYAL MONDAY

ETERNAL FEMININE FLOCKS TO A SALE

Age Old Instinct Guides on Bargain Seeking Forage.

Last night it started. Husbands masticating their meat and potatoes heard vague remarks iterated by Friend Wife which appeared to deal with certain yards of stuff at less than half price, and mind you dresses — good dresses — at five dollars, and you should see the silk stockings and the towelling and —are you listening?

All through the city rang the soprano chorus and as the tired tax payer tried vainly to read the evening paper he was forced into the open and dragged down town to view the windows decked to promote quick sales.

While Friend Wife enthused the husband had gloomy forebodings of the dire fate which would befall next week's pay envelope.

And this morning—did rain put a damper on the sale, zealots? It merely added to the zest for the capture of fat juicy bargains.

Some proceeding down street casually were swept into the maelstrom and borne willy nilly through a mill race of clutching fingers and sweeping dress goods till all hope must needs be lost.

Ladies carefully fortified against the elements dashed into the throng —sales girls sprinted from other stores to get a bargain and dash back before their absence should be noted—motors pulled up to the curb unloading their quota of frantic females. All wore the look of a crusader on some high and purposeful mission. One could readily see how women have attained a position of dominence in the world of affairs today.

One lady pulled up to the curb; rushed in the store and out again—she leaped into the car, stepped on the gas and departed. She was back again within five minutes, presumably fortified with funds with which to satiate her craving for bargains.

People rolled up in American cars and joined in the thronging tide—they, too, are not immune.

Many are armed with baskets of a gaudy design which have been seen filled with soap and other household commodities in grocery store windows, big market baskets also form part of the equipment. Movement then—people come out loaded with parcels and stop to gaze at the window again regretting that the exchequer has become depleted or fearing what the good man will say to further extravagance.

There is, however, a glow of positive triumph on every face issuing from the melee—satisfaction that a saving, no matter how infinitesimal, has been achieved.

One lady stood for fifteen minutes with her head protruding from the second story window and the rain pelted down all the while. She may have been looking for someone but judging by the state of the hat on her head and the appearance of one in her hand, she was preparing an alibi.

The husband will be regaled tonight with tales of miraculous purchases, he will eat supper in a stupor and will gaze with uncomprehending interest at the piled up stacks of goods and chattels which have been added to the embellishment of his home. Then the ghastly realization will flash to his inner consciousness and he will articulate a gasping query in a faint far away voice, "What did it cost?" Then will flow the gushing tale which will be full of consolation and he will be forced to agree that a definite saving has been effected and that sufficient goods have been purchased to last throughout the next decade.

The good man thus assured will relax and take up his pipe again, convinced; but he knows and every man knows that the next sale will again see the feminine phalanxes flocking to the fray.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

The truth concerning God's Kingdom to come are not fully known, even by those who have had their eyes opened to see the falsity of the dogmas, promulgated today by the various religious organizations. However, knowledge is increasing in regard to the Kingdom of God. Truth is being diffused all over the land, and will eventually fill the whole earth. In that day it will not be necessary for one to say to another, "Know ye the Lord," for all shall know Him, from the least to the greatest. Those who now are opposing truth, endeavoring to keep the masses in ignorance by teaching false doctrines, are putting forth efforts that will not prevail. They might as well try to sweep back the ocean with an ordinary broom as to stop the onward march of truth. Read what the prophet says in regard to those who once were watchmen in the interests of the people, Isa. 56, 10:11, and again read what the Lord promises to all that seek Him, Isa. 55, 1:4.

OBITUARY.

JOHN GRAHAM WEIR.

John Graham Weir, who died at his home, 181 Romaine street, on July 25, was one of the oldest of Peterboro citizens, as he was born in the township of Otonabee, February 1st, 1844, where he resided until four years ago, when he moved into the city.

He was the youngest son of Robert Weir, who had been a major in the Enniskillen Dragoons, Fermanagh, Ireland, and died in Otonabee township in 1878.

His wife, Lavina Victoria Weir, who predeceased him on November 19, 1924, was the daughter of George S. Tennyson, late of England.

He was one of the oldest and staunchest Orangemen in Peterboro, and in a period of 50 years missed very few of the annual celebrations. He was a member of the Anglican church.

Around The City.

The work on the new Sewage Disposal Plant is being pushed forward. Between 80 and 100 feet of double piping remains to be laid. The number of men employed on the job varies from time to time but is at present in the neighborhood of 50. T. R. Wilford and Co. of Lindsay are the contractors.

A trio of respectable citizens went on a frolic the other evening, and dressed up in a variety of startling attire to pay surprise visits to their friends in the neighborhood of Rubidge street. The leader was artistically costumed in a dress suit with a full-bloomed blue shirt, a black and yellow skull cap and a tall silk hat. His companion, a tall "lady" sporting a tiny moustache, wore a stylish outfit of grey, with a large hat and a fur neckpiece. Their "chauffeur" was tastily decked out in cream sports shirt and trousers with a small grey hat.

There will be a meeting of the Exhibition Board at 7.30 p.m., August 4, in the Chamber of Commerce.

There was only one case before the Magistrate this morning. A man was fined $5 and costs for being intoxicated in a public place.

WEDDING BELLS

HART—MAHOOD.

St. Andrew's United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, at half past one o'clock to-day when Erma Mildred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Mahood, was united in marriage to W. Ernest Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hart, Lindsay.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Langford.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of lure lace and white georgette, with large white net hat, touched with shell pink, the long net streamers being caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses.

The only attendant was Master Harvard White, dressed in white sailor suit and carrying a shepherd's staff, tied with white ribbons.

The wedding music was played by Mr. John Crane, organist of the church.

Mr. C. Mahood of Toronto, and Mr. R. Mulligan of Peterboro, acted as ushers.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. G. H. King sang very sweetly "Oh, Love Divine."

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 387 Monaghan Road. Mrs. Mahood, mother of the bride, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Hart in receiving the guests, and wore black Canton crepe with touches of white, a white lace scarf and black hat, and carried Columbia roses. Mrs. Hart, mother of the bridegroom, was in black charmeuse satin, with crimson trimmings, black hat and corsage bouquet of sunset roses.

After the buffet luncheon, which was served to about 60 guests, and was catered for by Messrs. T. H. Hooper and Sons, Mrs. H. Bothwell, aunt of the bride, rendered some beautiful music, while the bride slipped away to change to her travelling suit, a French ensemble of apple green crepe romaine, with hat to match, and choker of beige fox.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart left on the 3.45 train for Detroit and other points. They will reside in Windsor.

LYNCH—DEMAS

The marriage took place at the Church of the Sacred Heart, in Marmora, on Monday, July 27th, by the Rev. Father Traynor, of Leona Demas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Demas of Marmora, and Joseph Lynch of Peterboro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Lynch, Prince street.

The bride wore a pretty costume of white creep de chine, with hat to match and bouquet of Columbia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Neill of Marmora, was attired in pale blue crepe de chine, and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas. Mr. Thomas Drumm acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will reside in Peterboro.

TWO KILLED AND MANY HURT AT WELLAND CANAL

Heavy Steel Form Came Loose and Crumpled, Covering Two.

OTHERS GOT OUT.

Nine Who Were Injured Are in Hospital and One is Dying.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Edward Lynch and his youngest son, name not available at present, are dead; Thomas Alder, superintendent of construction, is reported as dying at the General and Marine Hospital, in this city, and eight men were injured in a serious crash of heavy steel blowform on section three of the Welland Ship Canal here this morning. The structure, which is used for pouring cement for the gigantic canal walls, entombed Lynch and his son and their bodies have not yet been recovered. All the injured men were at work on the form when a shackle gave way below and the huge steel mass crumpled from its own weight in the centre like a piece of tin. It was in this debris that the Lynchs and others were caught. Rescue efforts were first devoted to getting out the injured men, who were rushed to the Homer Construction Hospital.

The contract was in charge of the Peter Lyall Construction Company. The names of the injured at Homer Hospital could not be given at this hour.

CANADIAN DELEGATES TELL OF DEPRESSION

Issued Warning in Press Describing Condition in Industry.

LONDON, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—John Queen, M.L.A., Winnipeg, Manitoba, one of the Canadian delegates to Empire Labor Conference, and James Simpson, the Toronto representative of the Canadian Labor Party, at the conference, issued a warning in the press here to-day to would-be emigrants to Canada.

They declared that industrial depression in the Dominion is acute and that are tens of thousands of unemployed in Canadian cities.

BISHOP IN JAIL.

Quarrel Between Rival Factions Over Church Ends in Arrest.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— With Bishop Adam Rodzestvensky in jail, after being ousted forcibly, Archbishop Platon Dodzestvensky was to-day in possession of the Cathedral of St. Nicholas.

For five weeks the Archbishop's followers, armed with court orders, had besieged the Cathedral in an attempt to remove Bishop Adam and his faction, but they refused to vacate. The Cathedral is the seat of the Russian Orthodox church in the United States, the properties of which are worth $40,000,000.

Jap Warship, Ordered Scrapped, Will Be Used as a Floating Museum.

TOKYO, Aug. 1.— (Associated Press.) — The warship Mi[kasa], which was to have been scrapped, will be converted into a naval museum off Tokosuka. So far as scrapping regulations are concerned, the old vessel will be merely useless as a warship. The Mikasa, however, will be reconstructed as a floating museum for the exhibition of various relics, papers and other articles having to do with the Russo-Japanese war. The Japanese authorities are honoring the memory of Admiral Togo for his distinguished service in the Japan Sea Battle.

ESKIMOS BECOME MORE CIVILIZED

Eat Grapefruit, Have Bank Accounts and Jazz Records.

EDMONTON, Alberta, Aug. 1.— When an Alberta & Great Waterways train left here recently bound for the north country the miniature diner carried a strange passenger. He was an Eskimo who had been committed for murder that grew out of a "love nest" case in the Arctic Circle.

He was dressed in bell-bottom trousers and was eating soup — noiselessly—and grapefruit.

The traders that come down to civilization—Edmonton is terminus for the last line of steel leading to the British northwest—report that the Eskimos have concluded they need a change of diet. Blubber, the ham and eggs of the far north country, is still a staple and fish is still eaten regularly.

But eggs are, too, and the Eskimos pay $1 a dozen for them when the first boat comes in on the Mackenzie River. They pay fancy prices also for grapefruit, of which they are fond, and they delight in chocolate covered ice cream bars.

Have Bank Accounts.

A returning traveller showed the writer a number of photographs he had taken at the last traders' outpost, and one was the photograph of a motorized Eskimo fishing fleet, the flagship of which had been named by its Eskimo owner the Henry Ford.

"You can't go anywhere without finding civilization these days," the adventurer complained. "I learned up on the Arctic Circle that the Eskimos have bank accounts. They bank in Seattle. They have checkbooks and buy the latest type of fishing vessels, paying for them by check.

"They send their money out by the whalers. The sailors on the whaling ships taught the Eskimos how to stow away their reserve funds and they bank for them, or carry out the mail, in order to curry favor for trading purposes.

Phonographs in Igloos.

"You can find phonographs in igloos all around the Arctic country today and a collection of pretty fair records. The Eskimos like jazz music as well as the people in centres of population.

"A big radio station is being installed this summer on the Aklavik delta, the farthest north trading post of any consequence, and there will be another on Herschel Island, the farthest north outpost of the mounted police.

"Next winter the Eskimos will probably be getting radio concerts at the post.

"No, there isn't any use searching. Some of us were born too late. Civilization has beaten us in—everywhere."

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Upward Movement Was Less Uniform To-day

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press)—The upward movement in stock prices was resumed in today's brief session of the Wall Street market, although the advance was by no means uniform. Despite the absence of many brokers and traders over the week-nd, there was a good demand for stocks, which was stimulated by favorable trade reports from several of the basic industries. Motors, which were in free supply, yesterday, as a result of price cuts, received better support, Mack trucks, selling over two points above yesterday's final quotation, and several others moving up a point or so.

Speculative Buying Caused Fresh Upturn In Wheat

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— New speculative buying set in right at the opening of the market to-day and quickly brought about fresh upturns in price.

Much of the buying was based on an opinion from a trade leader that is debatable whether the United States this season has produced sufficient milling wheat for home requirements. Bullish crop reports from Canada tended also to lift values, much territory in Saskatchewan province being represented as likely to produce hardly half an average yield.

Opening prices 1-4c. lower to 3-8c. higher, Sept. $1.49 to $1.49 3-4 and Dec. $1.50 1-4 to $1.50 3-4, were followed by an advance to $1.51 for Sept. and $1.52 1-2 for Dec.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8c. off, Sept. 41 1-2 to 41 5-8c., eased down a little further and then rose all around to above yesterday's finish.

Few Transactions During Short Session Of Exchange

TORONTO, August 1.—Canadian Press. — The short session of the Tororto Stock Exchange to-day was in sharp contrast to the previous sessions of the week. With the exception of smelters and Brit. Columbia fishing, trading was almost at a stand still. Transactions were just enough to make effective a number of material declines, among them Atlantic Sugar's drop of 2½ at 32 on two sales. Smelters experienced another rally, closing at 108½, a opinion and a half gain. Sugar preferred eased down one and Twin City 1-2.

WEST PROGRESSIVES DISCUSS ELECTIONS

Conference Will Be Held For Discussing Co-ordinating Policy.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 1.—(Canadian Press).—To discuss the preparations for the next Federal elections and a co-ordination of policy, Progressives from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Ontario will attend a conference here on Thursday next, according to an announcement made by A. Baynton, Provincial Chairman of the Saskatchewan Progressive Association.

Progressive members of the House of Commons, including Robert Forke, leading and constituency representatives, will attend.

SIX CRUISERS WILL WELCOME PRINCE

Royal Guest Due To Arrive in Argentine on August 17.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press)—Four cruisers and two scout cruisers of the Argentine navy will meet the Prince of Wales about 45 miles outside the port of Buenos Aires and accompany the cruiser Curlew, on which the Prince will arrive on August 17, for his visit to Argentina.

The Prince, after his extended tour of South Africa, left Capetown on July 29th for South America on board the battleship Repulse. On August 14th he will transfer to the Curlew which being of a shallower draught will be able to bring the visitor directly to the quay at Montevideo, where he is to call before coming to Argentina.

WANT REGATTA.

It Is Unlikely That Canadian Henley Course Will Be Changed.

ST. CATHARINES, August 1. — Canadian Press. — After a night during which the rain poured down incessantly the weather seemed to be clearing this morning and though the sky is still overcast there is a good chance of the final day's racing of the A.A.C. regatta here being rowed under good weather conditions.

No action will be taken at present in regard to the invitation of National Association of the United States to hold the next Canadian Henley Regatta in 1926 upon the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia, in connection with the Sesqui Centennial celebration in that city, but a sub-committee will be appointed by the executive to take up the matter of Canadian representation at Philadelphia with the Sesqui Centennial celebrations. It is very unlikely that the Canadian National Regatta will be moved from the Canadian Henley course at St. Catharines.

MOTOR FROM TEXAS.

Mrs. C. F. Wiskin and Two Daughters Make Trip of 2,700 Miles.

Mrs. F. C. Wiskin, formerly Miss Carrie Doupe, of Ashburnham, is in the city renewing old acquaintances after an absence of eight years.

Mrs. Wiskin and her two daughters, Bertha and Kathleen, motored from their home, El Paso, Texas, leaving about a month ago. They took two weeks to come to Peterborough, travelling in all over 2,700 miles. Another daughter accompanied them, who is visiting friends in Michigan.

The trip looks to be a most pretentious one for three women travelling such a distance without any of their male relatives in case of trouble. At nights they tented where night overtook them, and completed the long trip without any difficulties, either as to motor trouble or disturbances of any kind.

At Detroit Mrs. Molton, a friend, accompanied them as far as Peterborough.

They left on their return trip this morning, and they are hoping for as good fortune in the long return trip as they had coming up.

NOVA SCOTIA MINERS' EXECUTIVE APPROVES TRUCE TERMS PROPOSED BY GOVERNMENT PROVIDING FOR SIX MONTHS' CONTRACT PENDING A FULL ENQUIRY

Premier Rhodes Makes Public Draft Agreement Calling for Concessions by the Miners, the British Empire Steel Corporation and the Provincial Government.

FINAL EFFORT TO RESTORE PEACE AFTER FIVE MONTHS' TIE-UP OF COAL INDUSTRY

Wage Scale About Eight Per Cent. Less Than 1924 Rates —Thorough Investigation of the Coal Industry by the Government.

HALIFAX, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—An interim contract between the British Empire Steel Corporation and District 26 of the United Mine Workers for a period of six months pending a full inquiry into the coal industry of the province, the contract to contain 1924 working terms and 1922 wage rates, or six and eight per cent below the 1924 contract, a referendum by secret ballot by the Government to determine whether the check-off be continued or not, and an undertaking by the Government to rebate one-fifth of its coal royalties for twelve months, are provisions of the "final proposals" which the Nova Scotia Government have made to the corporation and miners in an endeavor to end the five months' tie-up of the industry. The proposals were made public last night by Premier Rhodes. The district board of the miners has agreed to recommend the proposals to their membership for acceptance, it was also announced last night, and the directors of the Corporation will consider them at a meeting in Montreal probably on Wednesday next. Acceptance by the district board is made on this understanding, that their case before the commission of inquiry will not be prejudiced by their present agreement to the Government proposals.

The board in making public their acceptance, made it known that when the first conferences instituted by the present Government opened in Sydney on July 21, the Corporation asked for a twenty-five per cent. wage cut for three months, a fifteen per cent. cut thereafter, and the abolition of the Union check-off.

Additional terms of the Government proposals provide that employment shall "be given to regular employees at the mines, shops, piers and other departments of the company before outside labor is engaged," and that "all controversial points not disposed of be referred to the commission of enquiry for investigation."

Government's Statement.

Following is the memorandum delivered by Premier Rhodes to R. M. Wolvin, president, British Empire Steel Corporation, and J. W. McLeod, president, United Mine Workers of America, District No. 26:

"The Government is convinced that the present intolerable conditions throughout the province, due to the deplorable position of the coal mining industry, can be overcome now only by some agreement founded upon mutual concessions made by all parties for the common public interest. Such an agreement cannot be taken as a disposition of the rights and equities involved, for they are too complex and diverse satisfactorily to be dealt with other than in the light of a full inquiry into the coal trade of Nova Scotia. It may be accepted, however, as a working basis for the resumption of operations which must resume at once to avoid disorder in the province; and where concessions have been made it is postulated that they have been made at the request of the Government and for the general benefit of the people of Nova Scotia."

In this spirit the Government commends to the Corporation and to the Union the undernoted outline of settlement, and its acceptance should be the bounden duty of all the parties interested in order to alleviate distress within the province, to protect the presently endangered property and interests of the crown in the coal areas of the province, and to relieve the provincial treasury from the present deadly drain upon it.

Six Months' Contract.

A.—An interim contract between the Corporation and the Union for the period of six months pending a full enquiry into the coal industry of Nova Scotia.

B.—Terms of the contract to be those of the 1924 contract.

C.—The wage scale to be that of 1922 contract, which it is estimated is between six and eight per cent. below the scale of 1924.

D.—Employment to be given to regular employes at the mines, shops, piers, and other departments of the Company before outside labor is engaged.

E.—In consideration of the immediate resumption of work under the foregoing provisions, the Government is prepared to rebate one-fifth of the royalties payable to it upon coal mined by the Corporation from the date of the commencement of the above agreement for a period of twelve months.

F.—The Corporation has introduced the matter of the check-off as a point to be considered immediately although it was not an issue when the present dispute commenced. It affirms that although it is a right or privilege exercised by the workmen for a period of about forty years and recognized by the laws of the province, yet a majority of the workmen are opposed to it. Therefore, the Government will hold a referendum by secret ballot to determine whether the check-off be continued or not. Both sides agree to abide by the result.

G.—All controversial points not disposed of above to be referred to the commission of enquiry for investigation."

Reply of Miners.

In agreeing to the Government proposals the district board made the following statement to Premier Rhodes:

The district executive board of the United Mine Workers has given careful consideration to the proposal for settlement, submitted by the Premier and members of the executive council.

"The district board has from time to time received definite instructions from the membership in reference to wage rates, terms of contract, etc., and recognize that this proposal embodies great concessions on the part of the mine workers, yet as evidence of the sincere desire of the district board to agree to a settlement of the present dispute by certain concessions, it is the unanimous decision of the district board to agree to recommend to the membership, for their acceptance, the proposal as outlined in the memorandum submitted by the Premier.

"The district board desire to state plainly that this decision to recommend the proposal for acceptance as a basis for the resumption of operations is at the direct request of the Government, and is not to be construed as a final disposal of the

CROP BURNED IN BARN FIRE

Calf, Hay, Oats and Peas Lost When Lightning Strikes

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 3. — Yesterday at 3.30 a bolt of lightning struck the barn belonging to John Moore, who lives about three miles out of Millbrook. The fire which resulted totally destroyed the building and contents, which constituted forty loads of hay, ten of peas, 300 bushels of oats and one calf. The barn was partially covered by insurance, but the crop which had been harvested was a total loss.

PRIVATE WAR IN REICHSTAG

Parliamentary Leaders of Communist Party Forcibly Removed From Hall.

USED LANGUAGE.

BERLIN, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Disturbances by Communist deputies during yesterday's session of the Reichstag resulted in the two parliamentary leaders of that party, Herr Jadasch, and Emil Hoellin being forcibly removed from the Reichstag by officers. They were ordered suspended for the remainder of this season. The trouble started when the Communists refused to accept a parliamentary order limiting the length of speeches. Deputies Jadasch and Hoellin used language for which the presiding officer ordered them to retire.

Admiral Beatty Proposed As Next Governor General

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Daily Express, Lord Beaverbrook's paper, referring to the forthcoming expiry of Lord Byng's term as Governor-General of Canada, suggests that Earl Beatty, Admiral of the Fleet, is qualified to be Lord's Byng's successor as the Dominion's Governor-General.

MACMILLAN TO LAUNCH PLANES

Wireless From Arctic Explorer Says Operation Will Take Four Days.

WEATHER BAD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Because of the difficult operating conditions, four days will be required to put the planes of the MacMillan Arctic expedition at Etah into operation, the Navy Department was advised Sunday by Lieutenant-Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd.

"Peary and Bowdoin laid to this morning from 4.10 to 8.10," said Commander Byrd's despatch, sent from Etah early yesterday.

"Followed close to coast line and had a good view of many gigantic glaciers. Arrived East tonight nine o'clock. Weather bad with wet snow and fog covering hills down to a hundred feet.

"Only one small beach in whole harbor, as beach line is almost universally rocky with many cliffs and rocky little hills arising from water's edge. Planes will have to be erected on beach due to lack of space on the Peary. The beach is sandy and pebbly, so that runways will have to be made for each plane to keep wheels from sinking in."

Malta advices Saturday night said British warships Worcester, Wren and Whitehall had gone to Gibraltar for the reported purpose of watching development in Morocco.

NON-CONCURRING MINORITY OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH REFUSED RECOGNITION AS "CONTINUING"

Pan-American Council Will Recognize Another Name to be Agreed.

SAYS PIDGEON.

Moderator of United Church Returns From Reformed Church Meeting.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—"The non-concurring minority of the Presbyterian Church in Canada has not been recognized as the Continuing Presbyterian Church by Alliance of Reformed Churches throughout the world, known as the Pan-American Council. The alliance has decided to admit them as a new church, under whatever name will be determined by the proper authorities."

This was the statement made here this morning by Dr. C. C. Pidgeon, of Toronto, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, who passed through the city on his way back from attending the council meeting of the alliance of reformed churches throughout the world, held in Cardiff, Wales, beginning on July 23.

Carry Saint's Picture To Avert Earthquakes

CERIGNOLA, Italy, Aug. 3. —(Canadian Press).—The continuance of earthquake shocks here, following those which began last Tuesday night, has heightened the alarm of the population. So far the shocks have been limited to this city.

A great religious procession was held to-day, more than 20,000 persons following through the city a picture of Holy Mary of Riplata, the Protectress of Cerignola, imploring the saint to save the city from destruction.

Peasants are sleeping in the open air, fearing the collapse of their houses.

Cerignola is a city of about 35,000 population in the Province of Foggia, Southern Italy. One hundred buildings were destroyed by earthquakes there last week

FRENCH HINT TO RIFFS ADVISES AN EARLY PEACE

Premier Intimates Combined Offensive Unless Tribesmen Accept Terms Offered.

PETAIN RETURNS.

Reinforcements Restore the Morale of French Troops—Riffs Sounding Spanish.

PARIS, August 3. — (Associated Press).—Premier Painleve declared Saturday that Marshal Petain and General Primo de Rivera, head of the Spanish Military Directorate, reached an agreement at their recent conference on Morocco for joint Franco-Spanish operations against Abd-el-Krim "if he prefers to fight rather than to negotiate."

M. Painleve intimated the combined offensive would take place soon. This is supposed to mean the French desire to finish the Moroccan campaign before the rainy season, which commences in October and during which military operations would be almost impossible.

Marshal Petain said: "The military situation in Morocco is daily becoming more favorable. I bring back an excellent impression from my visit to the front."

The departure of the American aviators who expect to fight for France against Abd-el-Krim's Riffians in Morocco has again been postponed. Mechanical difficulties make it impossible for the planes of some of the eight American fliers to start before Wednesday. It is possible that others of the party may leave Tuesday by train for Bordeaux and take a steamship from there to Morocco.

Marshal Petain returned to Paris from Morocco Saturday and presented a report on the situation to Premier Painleve. Afterward the Premier gave a statement to the press praising the Marshal's work in co-ordination of the Moroccan command and preparing the way for General Naulin, with whom he prepared plans for future operations. M. Painleve added:

"Our energy in the conduct of the war will not be less than our desire for peace. Every precaution is being taken to prevent heavy losses to our troops, but the Riffians and Djebalas must submit and accept the just and generous terms which France and Spain are offering them."

Both M. Painleve and Marshal Petain declared the morale of the troops excellent since the arrival of reinforcements and that the tribes were showing confidence in the French.

Havas despatches from Tangier Saturday report the arrival of two emissaries of Abd-el-Krim in Tetuan Saturday, where they were received by Primo de Rivera, who told them

LONDON HOLIDAY CROWD SEIZED TRAIN AND FORCED SPECIAL RUN TO MARGATE

Cheerful Incident of August Bank Holiday Exodus—Seventeen Trains For Scotland in Two Hours.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Part of the huge crowd bent on celebrating at the seashore the August Bank Holiday, which gives Londoners a vacation from Saturday to Tuesday, gathered at Victoria Station here on Saturday, spied an empty train and proceeded to fill every seat in it.

"That train does not go anywhere," protested the railway officials.

"Yes, it does," shouted the spokesman of the crowd. "It goes to Margate."

And they refused to budge until the stationmaster told the engineer to "go to Margate." And go he did to that favorite seaside resort amid the rousing cheers of the crowd.

This was only one of the exciting incidents while the record-breaking London week-end crowd poured into the stations, storming the barriers in eagerness to reach the trains. Seventeen trains left for Scotland alone Saturday night between 7.30 and 10 o'clock.

At Euston Station, which serves many favorite holiday resorts, hundreds were lined up all night in order to find places on the early trains Saturday morning.

MAN BRAVELY SAVES WOMAN

Struggles Half an Hour in Waters of Laprairie River.

BOAT UPSET.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—After struggling in the rushing waters of the Riviere de Laprairie for half an hour, Eric Gilman, 16, saved from drowning two women who had engaged him to row them from St. Rose to an island opposite the town. In mid-stream the boat upset, and the three occupants were thrown into the river. Gilman, who is an expert swimmer, managed to get the women ashore, where they regained consciousness in a few hours.

FELL TO DEATH IN CANAL TO-DAY

Man Slipped From Gang Plank—Leaves Widow and Family.

BODY FOUND.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—Jas. Wright, 59, of Merriton, helper on the Welland Canal, lost his life in Lock 23 near Thorold, early this afternoon while attempting to board the steamer Jollyinez. He missed his footing and fell between the steamer and the lock walls, striking his head in the descent. His body was not found until four hours later. He leaves a widow and grown up family.

WAINWRIGHT HERD OF BUFFALO GETS HOMESICK IN FAR NORTH AND STARTS FOR FORMER HOME

Animals Ford Rivers and Overcome Obstacles on Way South.

1600 HEAD THERE.

Trappers Tell of Seeing Animals Hemmed in By Lakes and Swamps.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 3 (Canadian Press)—The bulk of the buffalo herd shipped from Wainwright National Park to Wood Bison Reserve in the far north recently, is reported to be on its way back home again.

According to trappers reaching this city, the animals are making their way through the northern woods, fording rivers and overcoming other obstacles. A large herd is reported to have been seen in the vicinity of Fort Chipewyan, hemmed in by the broad waters of Lake Athabasca and a maze of channels and swamps.

More than 1,600 bison were shipped north by rail and scows to roam at liberty on the fringe of the Arctic Circle.

SPANIARDS KILLED.

Fifty Casualties in Fighting Rebels—Fighting Was Fierce.

MADRID, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Fifty Spanish soldiers were killed or wounded yesterday in dislodging a concentration of rebels between Bulheriff and Tauriat Amaran. This announcement was contained in a War Office statement issued yesterday. The fighting in the operation is described as having been fierce.

Twelve Spanish casualties in "a police" operation on the western front also is recorded in the statement.

PILGRIMAGE TO ROME.

Organizations of Catholic Laymen Busy Arranging Representations.

WASHINGTON, Aug 3 (Canadian Press).—A national pilgrimage to Rome for Holy Year in connection with the tour of the National Council of Catholic Men is being arranged for representatives of organizations of Catholic laymen.

The party will sail from New York on September 19 and those arranging for the pilgrimage say they expect the largest number of pilgrims ever to leave the United States to make the trip.

WEATHER

Rain in abundance seems to be a characteristic of this summer, and but little demand has been made upon Ross Dobbin's extensive system of waterworks for supplying any deficiency of nature. June gave a total of about 4½ inches, July 2.58, and the first two days of Aug alone about 1½ inches. Saturday's fall totalled .79, while Sunday's storm gave .63. This storm was much heavier farther north, and was accompanied by hail and high winds. While so much rain will have a beneficial effect on pasture land, it is becoming serious to some of the farmers whose land is heavy, and whose crops are still in the fields, cut or uncut. The thermometer yesterday reached 84 degrees.—W. P.

NEW BRUNSWICK CANDIDATES UP

Ninety-Eight Expected to Contest 48 Seats This Month.

LARGE CROWDS.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—This is nomination day in the provincial general elections in New Brunswick. Large crowds attended the proceedings where there was speech making from the hustings. Indications this morning were that 98 candidates would be nominated for 48 seats in the Legislature. Restigouche, where Hon. C. S. Labillois is in the field as an Independent Liberal, and Kings, where John E. McAuley announced his candidacy some time ago as an independent Conservative, are constituencies which are apparently to have three cornered fights.

STORM CITY HALL.

Police Forced to Fire, and Troops Called to Help.

ROME, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press) —Four persons were killed and fifteen injured in a fight today at San Giovanni in Fiore, in the Province of Calabesia, Southern Italy, when a mob demanding abolition of communal taxes and dismissal of all city medical employees not natives of the place, stormed the city hall. The police were forced to fire and troops were rushed from Cosenza, twenty-five miles to the West, to restore order.

SCOTT LAWYERS COIN NEW TERM

"Cell Shock" Is Plea Put Forward For Former Promoter.

HEARING TO-DAY.

CHICAGO, August 3. — Canadian Press. — A new term, "cell shock," will be put into legal and scientific vocabularies, if the sanitary hearing beginning to-day before Judge Joseph B. David, saves Russell Scott from the gallows.

"Cell shock" is the term the attorneys for the former promoter and financier from Canada have used to describe the mental debility they say he has suffered from since his conviction ten months ago for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, slain in a hold up in April, 1924.

The court declared the alienists would be limited to five on each side.

CONFESSION FAKED.

Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman was notified to-day that the purported confession of John Gordon, a prisoner at Wichita, Kansas, that he killed Jos. Maurer, for whose death Russell Scott was sentenced to hang in Chicago, was a hoax. Sheriff C. E. Groves at Wichita, telegraphed that Gordon had retracted the statement.

STRIKING MINERS VOTE WEDNESDAY

Ballot is Designed to End Strike Which Has Tied Up Mines.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Striking coal miners in Nova Scotia district 26 of the United Mine Workers of America will vote Wednesday next on the Provincial Government's suggested wage agreement designed to put an end to the strike which has tied up the mines of Cape Breton for more than five months. The question of check-off is not included in the ballot but remains for the time in the hands of the Government. J. W. McLeod, local president of the Union, announced this to-day.

NOTHING SO RARE AS A REAL INDEPENDENT AND FEW INDEPENDENTS LIKE J. S. EWART, K.C.

A Canadian Author Whose Works Can Be Found in the Libraries of the World's Diplomats—A Man Who Is Fundamentally Without Fear of Any Kind.

Among the many who today preach wider freedom of nationhood for Canada there is perhaps no more fearless and consistent exponent than J. S. Ewart, K.C., of Ottawa, lawyer, student of constitutional affairs, polemic, author and sincere patriot.

At a time when the word "Nationalist" had more or less fallen into disrepute in the dominion by reason of the narrow and somewhat sectional interpretation placed upon it by Henri Bourassa, and of the political campaign waged by the followers of the latter in 1911, Mr. Ewart was not afraid to proclaim himself as a "Canadian Nationalist." And today, when the proposal to design a new Canadian flag (based, be it said, upon the Union Jack) brings forth a storm of protest from influential bodies all over the dominion, Mr. Ewart is not ashamed to declare himself as a straight "independendist."

No mean brand of courage is required for the preaching of political automomy or independence in Canada even today. But Mr. Ewart is possessed of a temperament which is without fear fundamentally, and in addition is in the happy position of having no axe to grind, no position in public life to covet, and nothing but what he regards as the welfare of his country to concern himself about. He is independent financially, as he is independent in his views, and his conception of Canadian status. He has never been in politics, and is in an even happier position than a Senator in the matter of freedom of thought and opinion. He cares little for what is called "public opinion," and in his capacity as an author and writer has no desire to be in the "best sellers" class. Most of his works have, in pamphlet form ,been circulated free to a comparatively limited number of readers, and few of them will appeal to the popular imagination. But it may be said that few writers in Canada have had a wider circulation outside of Canada that has John S. Ewart. His works are of the type which might be expected to grace the library of a diplomat.

Mr. Ewart was born in Toronto 76 years ago; but he evinces a physical and mental activity which might be envied by a man half his age. He attended Upper Canada College in his youth, but, while he was appointed some years ago president of the University Club in Ottawa, he has no university degree, having never attended the halls of so-called higher learning. He was called to the Ontario Bar in 1871, to the Manitoba Bar in 1882, and was created a king's counsel in 1884. He practiced in Toronto from 1871 until 1882, and in Winnipeg from 1882 until 1904. In 1910 he was Canadian counsel on the North Atlantic Fisheries Arbitration at the Hague.

As a barrister, however, he gained chief prominence in connection with the Manitoba school question, when he championed the cause of the Roman Catholic separate schools of that province, and in the first instance won before the Canadian courts. Appeal from this decision was made to the judicial committee of the privy council in England, and there Mr. Ewart was unsuccessful, it being held by the British court that there were no separate schools in Manitoba when that province was brought into the union. A second appeal was taken by Mr. Ewart, and the decision of the judicial committee was to the effect that separate schools having been established by an act of the legislative assembly of the province, and the legislation having been subsequently repealed, the Roman Catholic minority had the right, under section 93 of the British North America Act, to appeal to the privy council of Canada, which was the federal government of the day. The federal government thereupon sent a direction to the government of Manitoba pressing it to observe the effect of the second judgment, and to restore the Roman Catholic rights. The province refused to do so, and the Tupper government at Ottawa undertook to pass remedial legislation, with results which today are well known. The Tupper government was defeated on the issue, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier formed a cabinet.

Mr. Ewart is the author of the "Kingdom Papers," "The Kingdom of Canada," and of the more recent and voluminous work in two formidable volumes, "The Roots and Causes of the War from 1914 to 1918." He is also engaged in the publication of a new series of "white pamphlets," entitled "The Independence Papers," the first of which deals with the subject of "Canada and the Next War."

The author is confident in his own mind that "another great struggle cannot be long delayed," and asks the pregnant question: "Shall Canada, as in 1914, engage again in terrific European wars simply because the United Kingdom has become involved in the struggle."

Mr. Ewart has a faculty of setting forth his own inferences and opinions in the Socratic method of asking questions.

John S. Ewart, K.C.

John S. Ewart, K.C.—As Others See Him

Canadians, as a whole, do not realize the unique position which John S. Ewart, K.C., holds among contemporary writers on political topics. He is unique, at any rate, among Canadians. But it is no secret to anyone in the Dominion that American journals, as a general rule, do not make a practice of devoting either much space or attention to the work of Canadian writers living in Canada.

When Mr. Ewart's latest work, The Roots and Causes of the War 1914-1918," was published a short time ago, The Literary Review of The New York Evening Post devoted its front page to a discussion of it. The article was written by A. Hamilton Gibbs, the well known British author and brother of Sir Philip Gibbs.

We have had Churchill on the navy," he says, "Maurice on the last four months, Buchan on the actual fighting, Asquith on the Genesis of the War and a host of minor works treating of some particular angle, all of them very excellent as far as they go, but none of them going far enough to satisfy the mind eager to crawl under all the literary camouflage and penetrate to the sources and the fundamental truth of why World War had to be. It has remained for John S. Ewart, the eminent King's Councillor, to bring to this vital question the full vigor of a trained legal mind and, with the courage of intense conviction, to set down on paper the naked truth—in so far as it is ever humanly possible to do so."

And if one more example is needed, The New York Times, mouthpiece of conservative American thought, considered the work of sufficient importance and outstanding enough to merit the entire front page of its literary section.

"Whatever the standard of appraisal, however," reads the review in part, "it may with safety be said that no study of the subject quite comparable to Mr Ewart's two stout volumes has yet come from an English pen."

ELECTION COMING SAYS MR. BURNHAM

"Everything Is Set For It," He Says, But Can't Be Sure.

Asked today "What are the prospects of an election?" Mr. Burnham told The Examiner:

"I do not think there is any doubt of it. In fact, everything is all set for it, but of course one can't be too sure about it.

"What is the situation? Our export trade except to the United States and Great Britain was practically ruined by the war. It is slowly coming back. The United States has superseded Great Britain as our best customer. We must do all we can to encourage such things, I would think. Protection though much higher in the United States than in Canada did not produce higher prices to the American consumer. Our farmers even in the West are perfectly satisfied with the prices of American machinery. Such things as boots and shoes are or were far lower there than here. What does all this mean? That Protection did not work out in Canada as it did in the United States. I do not think our people will ever stand for the perfectly outrageous prices of clothing, boots, shoes, underwear, etc,, etc., in Canada of a few years ago.

If we had not obtained relief there would have been a rebellion. Protection made the United States and made a prosperous and happy people there. Canada was bled to death by those who enjoyed the privilege of protection here. If we can have American Protection, by all means let us have it, but if it is to be the brand we had a few years ago, personally I would think the future for the Canadian consumer very dark.

"Are we to have this improved protection? If not, then we have a pretty good idea what will happen."

WANT INDEPENDENCE.

Krim Insists It Is First Condition of Peace—Refuse Terms.

PARIS, Aug. 3 (United Press).—Envoys of Abd el Krim, Riffian war leader, have seen Spanish dictator Primo Riveria, at Tetuan, but failed to establish contact with the Franco-Spanish peace envoys at Tangiers, The Quai D'Orsay stated today.

The Krim representatives significantly refused to accept the Madrid peace terms, but they talk "around them with Riveria."

Krim insist on Riffian independense as a primary condition to peace.

A. O. F. PICNIC

Queen Alexandra Circle 136 Entertained by Mrs. F. Shurety.

The Queen Alexandra Circle, No. 136, A.O.F., held their annual picnic at the home of Mrs. Fred Shurety, River Road, the guests numbering one hundred, spending an enjoyable afternoon and evening. Tea was served on the lawn and a baseball game was played btween ladies and gentlemen and caused much merriment. Quite a number of races were run off and the prizes were numerous.

An interesting part of the programme was a visit to the filtration plant by the adults, the details of which were demonstrated by the operators. The evening closed with old time community singing and cars conveyed the guests, happy and satisfied, to their homes, after their outing.

YOUTHS ON TOUR PRAISE FACILITIES

Say That Accommodation at Exhibition Grounds

A group of five youths made the streets bright this morning with three motorcycles and a hectic red and yellow flivver. They were Parkdale fellows out for Civic Holiday which is being held in Toronto today, and they had chosen to hike down this way as the most profitable means of putting in the day.

They were loud in their praise of the accommodation afforded at the Exhibition Grounds, where, they said, they were allowed to run their machines into a place of shelter and afforded every possible convenience. When told that this measure was intended to encourage the tourist business, one remarked that that kind of treatment would certainly bring them again.

The five of them had just purchased an equipment of gob hats and a box of crayons and were busily engaged in hiding the white cloth under vivid red and green markings which might indicate piratical purposes judging from the profusion of skulls and crossbones. One legend bore the refrain, "Don't vamp me, I've got a girl."

Then, amid a great barking and coughing of engines, they were away. "To Lindsay, I guess, and then home," was shouted back, and they were off.

KLAN HUDDLES IN CELLAR AS CROWD ATTACKS

Dozen Persons Injured, Farm House Wrecked By Mob.

NOT POPULAR.

Five Hundred People Break Up Meeting—Three Men Arrested.

WESTWOOD, Mass., August 3. — Canadian Press. — Injury to a dozen or more persons, wrecking of a farm house in the Islandon district here, and the arrest of three men for carrying concealed weapons, was today's aftermath of the Ku Klux Klan's first attempt to hold a meeting in this section since the state police announced that the department would no longer supply guards for the Klan gatherings.

The meeting in a field off the Boston-Providence highway here yesterday ended in a riot which the police of three towns were unable to quell when a mob of 500 anti-klan sympathisers and three score klansmen staged a pitched battle with fists, rocks and bricks.

The most of the klansmen reached their cars and escaped, but a handfull were bottled up in the house of Stephen Illstri, where they huddled in the cellar while every window and much of the furniture disintegrated under a hail of rocks from the outside.

The state officers finally dispersed the crowd and escorted the besieged Klansmen to safety.

WOMAN KILLED IN CAR CRASH

C.P.R. Engine Strikes Auto —Husband and Sons Injured.

AT MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. William Reddy, 43, of Main Street West, Hamilton, died here yesterday at the Western Hospital from injuries received when the auto in which she and her family were driving was struck by the engine of the Canadian Pacific Railway Rigaud local, westbound, near Montreal West Station. Her husband, 46, suffered a possible fracture of the right arm and shoulder. Her eldest son, James, 17, is in a serious condition with two ribs fractured and internal injuries. Two other sons, Norman and Earl, received bruises. They are all confined at the Western Hospital.

CAR OVERTURNS CHEMONG ROAD

Auto Crowds Homer Borland's Coupe From Highway—Turns Turtle.

NO SEVERE INJURY.

Homer Borland and two ladies who were with him narrowly escaped loss of life or limb when the car in which they were driving overturned last night about 6.30. They were returning from Young's Point and were about a mile from Peterboro on the Chemong Road when Mr. Borland endeavored to pass a car that had been running ahead of him for some minutes previously. Mr. Borland alleges the other driver left him insufficient room to pass, crowding him too closely to the ditch at the side of the road. Due to the greasy character of the surface the tires skidded dangerously and Mr. Borland in his endeavour to bring his car to the middle of the road, felt it overturning. In the crash which resulted not one piece of glass was left intact and the top was smashed but fortunately those in the car were not seriously hurt. Mr. Borland received some minor bruises on his leg but the other two occupants escaped uninjured. One of the ladies this morning discovered a piece of glass which had been in her hair all night. The automobile which caused the mishap was thought to have been from Lindsay but it sped on, not pausing to learn the extent of injuries.

FREE PRISONERS ALL OVER ITALY

King Victor Emmanuel's Twenty-fifth Year of Reign Marked.

ROME, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—An amnesty decree of far-reaching proportions, freeing all political offenders except murderers and releasing from the jails prisoners of all kinds has been granted as an act of royal clemency and as a contribution to the national pacification on the occasion of the completion of the quarter century reign of King Victor Emanuel. It is estimated that between ten and twelve thousand persons will be affected.

How Frank McKay Saved the Home

Frank McKay was in moderate circumstances when he bought his new home in Cedardale. But he was able to give $1,000 cash and a mortgage for the balance.

A few years passed. Frank McKay's income grew. The mortgage payments were always easily and regularly made.

Then, with only $4,000 still to be paid on the house, Frank McKay fell ill, lingered a short while—and died.

At once, of course, his income stopped. His widow and two children were confronted with the problem of how to carry on.

But they did not lose their home!

Four years before Frank McKay had provided against just this emergency. He had taken out a North American Life Mortgage Policy.

The payment of this policy saved the home.

It is always best to play safe. Our booklet, "About That Mortgage" tells you the advantages of mortgage insurance. Write for it to-day.

UNITED CHURCH ELECTS ELDERS

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, of Campbellford, Announces Result of Nomination.

INDUCTION SUNDAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 3.— At the service in St. John's United church yesterday the associate pastor announced that the following 16 members had secured the highest number of ballots and were accordingly elected elders of the congregation:

W. J. Armstrong, W. H. Ashton, A. J. Bonney, E. J. Bonney, D. W. Douglas, A. S. Free, J. L. Hoover, G. A. Kingston, A. H. McKelvie, P. B. Nelson, G. F. Phillips, Thomas Rowe, William Runnells, Neil Thompson, C. A. Wilson and Alex. Winter.

These elders were elected by ballot without nomination, and only members of the united congregation were allowed to vote. They will be inducted into office at the morning service next Sunday, according to the form of the former Presbyterian church. Rev. Wesley Elliott, who is on his vacation, will return to assist Mr. McIntosh in this impressive and epochal service — the first time elders have ever been inducted in what for so many years was the Methodist church of Campbellford.

The board of stewards was elected at a congregational meeting some time ago. This board consists of 12 members and a representative chosen from each of the various societies in the church. Elders and stewards will constitute the official board of the congregotion.

AULD KIRK IN STIRLING YET

Charge That Voted Out of Union Ordains Elders in Old Way.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

STIRLING, Aug. 3—On Sunday, August 2nd, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a most impressive service at which eight new elders were ordained. The service was largly attended, it being a joint service of the two associated charges of St. Andrew's, Stirling, and St. Andrew's, West Huntingdon, both of which in the recent vote of Church Union voted by large majorities to remain in the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The minister, Rev. Robert Simpson, conducted the service. The topic of the sermon was "The Eldership," which dealt with the origin, the duties, and the qualifications of an elder. It was pointed that the Presbyterian church derives is name from the fact that this church is governed by elders which is the English equivalent of the original Greek word Presbyter; and thus the Presbyterian Church might fittingly be called The Eldership Church.

After outlining the character of a true elder from the pastoral epistles he used the dignified and time honored ordination service in solemnly dedicating the following to the holy office: Messrs. Roger Meiklejohn, John M. McGee, and Robert Eggleston of Stirling; and Messrs. Howard Ashley, Peter Fargey, Richard Haggerty, Albert Duggan and Archibald Horton of West Huntingdon.

These two congregation being now fully reorganized are going forward hopefully and harmoniously to carry on the work without losing sight of the ancient landmarks which their fathers set.

DECORATION DAY.

Orange Lodges Parade to Mount Pleasant Cemetery on Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 3. — Undismayed by the falling rain members of the True Blue Lodge, Number 35, and of the Ladies Lodge Number 429, marched to Mount Pleasant cemetery Sunday afternoon and with the impressive ceremony of their order, laid floral tributes on the 12 graves in which rest their departed brethren. The parade was headed by the fife and drum band, which rendered excellent music under the leadership of Charles Long, who is also Worshipful Master of the True Blues Lodge. The marshal of the day was John Ibey, who for the past 25 years has held the position of director of the Band.

There was in the cemetery one more grave to decorate, Martin Frederick, a member of the lodge, having passed away since the decoration ceremony a year ago. Those departed brethren, to whose memory floral tribute was paid, were:

Bert Boyce, H. Hodge, Robert Linn, C. Ibey, Mrs. George Webber, James Carruthers, John Thompson, T. Free, W. Phillips, S. Frederick and Martin Frederick.

ALIMONY AWARDED.

Giants' Pitcher Must Pay Wife $500 Per Month.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Supreme Court Justice Cropsey directed Hugh McQuillan, pitcher for the New York Giants, in Brooklyn Saturday to pay Mrs. Nellie Tracy McQuillan temporarily alimony of $500 a month during the baseball season from May to September, pending trial of her suit for separation. Applications for consul fees was denied Justice Cropsey held that Mrs. McQuillan had sufficient funds to pay her attorneys, James F. Kelly and Maurice Janklow of 50 Court street, Brooklyn.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Twisted, swollen, unsightly joints are rapidly freed from pain and brought back to normal with Rheuma.

Lame people walk without aid; sleep comes to those who have been unable to lie in bed; hands that were helpless because of terrible rheumatism are now able to do their share for the support of the family.

Rheuma is a wonderful remedy for rheumatism, gout, neuritis, lumbago and neuralgia.

It is a wonder-worker; it never falters, never gives up until every vestige of poison is expelled from the body.

Rheuma acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder all at once and quickly brings long prayed for comfort to distressed sufferers. McDermid & Jury and all good druggists sell it with guarantee of money back if it isn't satisfactory.

BANDIT'S SHOTS KILL 3 IN CAR

Two Young Women and a Man Slain in Their Parked Car.

ANOTHER INJURED.

DENVER, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Two young women and a man were shot and killed here last night by a hold-up robber when he attempted to rob them of their valuables while they were sitting in a parked automobile. Another youth was shot through the head. Mrs. Marie McCormick, 25, was killed instantly by the robber's shots, while her sister, Julia Stearns, 23, and Fred. Funk, 24, died while being taken to hospital. Carl Perry, 25, the other youth, is in a critical condition.

The robber, according to Perry's statement, approached the parked automobile and pointed his revolver through the window of the machine. He demanded that they hand over their valuables.

Miss Stearns screamed, and the bandit instantly fired at her. He then fired half a dozen shots at the other occupants of the automobile.

HEAVY LOSS IN DETROIT FLOOD

Streets and Basements Inundated by Rain Storm—One Man Drowned.

$2,000,000 LOSS.

DETROIT, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Police and fire department officials yesterday fixed $4,000,000 as the approximate damage caused by Friday's rain storm in and about Detroit. The rainfall was 4.71 inches between 6.30 a.m. Friday and 1 a.m. yesterday. The greatest losses were reported by industrial plants where machinery in basements was flooded.

SOLDIER KILLED IN FALL OFF COASTER

Two Fatalities Over Week End in Mantioba—Auto Upset.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press)—Two fatalities were reported from Manitoba points during the week end.

Robert Hamilton was fatally injured near Gilbert Plains when the automobile he was driving struck a cement culvert and turned over.

At Winnipeg beach Corporal D. P. Kavanough, a patient at the soldiers' home was fatally injured when he fell from the top of a roller coaster.

Rev. S. C. and Mrs. Moore, of Colborne, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley on Friday, and are remaining as guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Zion, for a holiday. Mr. Moore's health is not very satisfactory.

Mrs. B. R. Raper, and two children, Leon and Dorothy, who have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Mullen, left this week for Campbellford, and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bateson before returning to their home in Toronto.

Millbrook Civic holiday will be observed on Monday, Aug. 3. No local sports are being provided, and the holiday will probably see an exodus from the village to outside points for the day, or for the week-end.

NOVA SCOTIA MINERS'

rights for which the men are contending.

"The district board has been influenced in this decision by the assurance by the Government that a thorough enquiry will be made into the coal industry and our interpretation of this pledge is that we believe a full, free and fair opportunity should be afforded to establish and prove our contention that the coal industry in Nova Scotia is making ample profits that should ensure higher wages than the 1924 rates.

"In conclusion, the unanimous decision of this executive board of District No. 26 of the United Mine Workers of America, is that in view of all the circumstances surrounding the present dispute, that this proposal by the Government on their responsibility, as a final solution, is hereby accept for reference to membership for notification."

Reasons for Acceptance

In releasing the text of the executive's reply to the proposal of the Government, District President John W. MacLeod, on behalf of the district executive, gave out the following statement:

'The district executive in deciding to accede to the request of the Government that the terms laid down in what was represented to their ultimate offer be recommended for acceptance by the membership were actuated by the following considerations:

1.—Their belief that the resumption of work under an arrangement that contains within it the promise of more satisfactory conditions eventuating with the expiration of the interim contract is of vital importance at this juncture.

2.—The Government's assurance and our insistence that the proposed interim contract, if finally ratified, will be entered into without prejudice to the contentions of the men which still remain to be finally passed upon by an independent commission, fully clothed with authority to conduct a searching enquiry into the entire situation.

3.—The conviction that while the concessions the men have been called upon to make are great, a fair inquiry into the merits of the dispute will disclose the soundness of the miners' position and consequently enforce better wage and working conditions.

Consider Public Interest.

4.—The knowledge that while the men are well able to continue the struggle for an indefinite period there is merit in the contention that the interest of the general public demand the immediate resumption of work and that these interests are entitled to consideration by both parties to the dispute.

5.—When the conferences were resumed at Sydney last week the demands of the Corporation included a 25 per cent cut for three months, a 15 per cent. cut thereafter and the abolition of the Union check-off, which if enforced would have meant the return of the men to a condition of serfdom. Moreover, the Corporation contended throughout the negotiations that it could enforce the economic pressure necessary to grind the communities affected into submission.

"The Government which has been charged by the electorate with the responsibility of settling the dispute, on the other hand, after failing to bring about a settlement by negotiation has made a proposal, based on its knowledge of these nogotiations which it believes to be just a temporary arrangement.

"The Government has assured us it is prepared to back this proposal to the limit, and at the Premier's request we have decided to recommend its acceptance as our contribution to the general welfare of the province as well as the wisest course open to us at this time."

MILLBROOK FLOODED IN BIG RAIN STORM

Cisterns Overflowed, Water Poured Into Cellars and Crops Laid Low.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 3.—Quite a flood developed on King Street on Sunday afternoon as a result of the three hours, or more of excessive rain, the water being practically even with the pavement from the Queen's Hotel to Jeffrey's creamery.

All the creeks were augmented in volume, the overlow from the one back of the town hall finding an outlet along the roadway between that building and S. Donnely's residence, thus becoming responsible for the surplus water on the main street.

Attwool & Sheppard lifted some logs at the dam, but the creek from their pond flowed completely over the roadway.

A midsummer flood is an unusual occurrence in Millbrook, this unwelcome happening generally taking place in the late spring as a result of rapidly melting snows on the surrounding hills, making an excess of water in local creeks and ponds.

Flooded cellars in stores and houses in the downtown section were inevitable on Sunday, and the event was the more unfortunate from the fact that many of the business men were out of town for the week-end because of the civic holiday on Monday.

Several householders, on higher ground, report two or three inches of water in their cellars from another cause, cisterns running over the top because the overflow pipe could not carry the water off fast enough, so heavy and continued was the downpour.

Much alsike is still in the fields throughout the district, the frequent rains lately having delayed both drawing in, and threshing, in many cases. Quite a number have had their fall wheat cut, and this would be thoroughly drenched in Sunday's unwelcome storm. Standing grain would undoubtedly be beaten down considerably, not only by the heavy rain, but also by the hail, which fell about five-thirty, the stones being the size of large peas.

Thunder and lightning were accompaniments of the storm most of the time it lasted, and the attendance at the evening services in the churches was small, as the rain had not ceased until some time past the hour for opening.

OMEMEE PERSONALS.

OMEMEE, Aug. 3.—Miss Daisie McAughey has passed the departmental examination in physiography.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Weir and son, Garnet, of Port Perry, visited Mrs. Weir's mother, Mrs. Francis Fee, on Thursday.

Mrs. M. McLaughlin, a former resident of Omemee, called on old friends on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peck and two sons, of Coldwater, are the guests of Mr. Ira Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington Bennett, of Toronto, are the guests of the former's aunt, Mrs. William Bannon.

Mr. Curtis, of Coboconk, who has been angaged as principal of the public school, was in town on Friday in search of a residence.

Miss Bartley, of Lindsay was a visitor in town on Thursday.

Mr. Lorne Skuce, an ex-teacher of the public school, spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Percival, of Detroit, are enjoying a holiday at the former's foster home with Mr. Ira Shaw.

In spite of the chilly winds, the Sunday School scholars and members of the Anglican congregation turned out in large numbers to attend the annual picnic to Thurstonia on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parker have moved into their new bungalow on King Street East.

WRONG KIND OF SCENERY.

Law passed by the Legislature of the State of Maine has just gone into effect prohibiting advertising signs on public roads.

Good work. People will be able to admire scenery in Maine without finding it competing with the most exuberant brands of pork and beans, tooth-powder, liver pills, hair tonics and paint.

There is one motor tire concern in the United States which puts up a really admirable line of road advertising. Meets you with a handsome sign-board on which are told salient facts about the next place you are coming to.

But one swallow does not make a summer. Most of the advertising which blazes the paved highways of the continent is without compensation.—Ottawa Journal.

IRELAND MOVES ONWARD.

The Irish Free State is progressing rapidly toward financial independence. The latest report shows a budget deficit for the last fiscal year amounting to only $2,500,000, against a deficit of $35,000,000 the preceding year. In the present fiscal year the state's revenues far exceed expenditures and a $10,000,000 surplus reposes in the treasury.

President Cosgrave's encouragement of agriculture and the development of electricity is sound policy. The insistence of the Government that Irish products should be of supreme quality rather than vast quantity is wise. With soil fertile and climate favorable, the farm and dairy produce of Ireland should command top prices in any open market within short shipping distance.—New York American.

IT IS NOT BUNK.

A few days ago two men sat in the parlor car of one of our trans-continental trains. The one was apparently nearing man's allotted span; the other was a young man about thirty. "There's something worth reading," said the old gentleman, turning to his companion. "It is the speech Bryan had prepared to deliver to the jury in the Dayton evolution trial. He says some grand things." "I've read it," replied the other laconically. "What do you think of it?" asked the old gentleman. "It's mostly bunk," said his younger companion. The old gentleman said no more, but turned in his chair and gazed wistfully out of the window.

The old gentleman's thoughts would have been worth much. He had reached the time of life when his eyes were turned toward the setting sun. He had read the undelivered address of William Jennings Bryan and no doubt his heart had glowed as he read the Great Commoner's vivid defence of the eternal truths of the Bible. Perhaps his mind went back to the time when he was young and he, too, was skeptical and thought it smart to be cynical. But he had lived since then, and out of the fullness of years had probably come great experiences, experiences when earthly comfort seemed futile and he had turned for succor to the Saviour of Men, of whom the late William Jennings Bryan was always such a fervent champion.

Whether the theory of evolution is a correct or false one, we are not prepared to say, nor are we vitally concerned. But this we do know, that although it is nearly two thousand years since the great sacrifice of Calvary, in all those two thousand years there has been produced nothing finer, nothing sweeter and nothing that conduces more to peace, contentment and happiness than simple, loving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The Old, Old Story that has brought comfort to weary souls all down through the ages is not "bunk." It is the grandest message of all time and one that millions still love to hear.—Kingston Whig.

CANADA'S CROPS.

There is such a thing as being too optimistic in crop reports for Canada. It is only natural that people should make estimates of what can be expected from the acreage sown, but it is absurd to count upon the greatest possible yield from this without taking into consideration the many adverse conditions which may arise to prevent this. This year early conditions seemed to hold great promises and many optimistic reports appeared in consequence, but it will be just as well for the country to notice that the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, was not responsible for any of those. He has just returned from studying affairs—political as well as agricultural—in the West and he discounts the statements as to a tremendous wheat crop. "The bumper yields spoken of and anticipated two or three weeks ago," he said, "have been modified considerably by a shortage of rainfall, and severe heat in certain districts. Notwithstanding this, however, there is every promise of a good, fair, average crop. Moreover, it will be earlier than usual and will be distributed over practically the entire grain growing areas."

We do not refer to this in order to cause any disappointment, but in order that people may not raise their hopes too high as to what may be expected from the harvest this year. A bumper one would be of immense service, of course, to the country, but it is better to recognize now that this cannot be expected, than go on thinking that it will come. A good average fair crop is something very well worth while being thankful for, and we will go so far in being so optimistic as to think that, judging from reports of crops in other countries, Canada's average one this year may be worth more than the average price. In the meantime the people can go on endeavoring to build up the prosperity of the country in every possible way. They can, for instance, wherever they go, abroad, boost the advantages and opportunities which Canada offers for the investment of capital and the development of its wonderful resources.—St. Catharines Standard.

Sunday, July 18, there passed over the River Rouge bridge at Detroit 27,326 automobiles and eight vehicles drawn by horses. Dull days ahead for the glue factories.—Ottawa Journal.

THE FUTURE IS NOW.

Possibilities of a great new industry of world-wide importance are opened for Ontario in the discovery of zinc deposits in the Sudbury district. Should the deposits prove as extensive as they are expected to be the Province will possess a new industry of unlimited potentialities, and Ontario will supply a happy sequel to Quebec's good fortune in securing the immense wealth of the Aluminum Company of America.

One can not avoid noticing, however, that each instance represents American enterprise. In the case of the Aluminum Company it may be taken as a profitable compliment that an established American institution should find in Canada industrial advantages so great that it becomes worth while to move across the border. But the case of the zinc discovery contains something less pleasing to national pride. It is American initiative which has located the zinc deposits and it is consequently an American syndicate which proposes to proceed with its development and an American syndicate which will reap the reward of enterprise and energy.

There is nothing an American can do which a Canadian can not do as well or better; the outstanding success of Canadians in the United States has proven it. But Canadian ability avails little if it is not used, and cases such as the zinc discovery raise the question of whether or not Canadian enterprise is being properly encouraged to develop Canadian wealth. There is the possibility of being unduly overawed by a wealthy neighbor; there is the possibility of becoming too seriously inoculated with political wailings of hard times, and there is that insidious and fatal habit of talking and thinking too much of Canada's splendid future. The future is all right, but it means nothing without energetic employment of the present. Canadians must learn to think in terms of now, or their future may gently disappear under their noses into the pockets of practical neighbors who prefer real dollars to legendary ones.—London Advertiser.

UNDERSTANDING AMONG NATIONS.

What makes a good citizen? Certainly not the multiplication of statutes. Certainly not the ordinance which has no moral backing; which makes something legally wrong which is not morally wrong. Definitions are dangerous, but here is one sufficient for our purpose. A good citizen keeps the spirit of the law when he could safely break it to his own advantage. As a New York policeman might put it, "he spits off the sidewalk when there's nobody looking."

If this is true of the individual, upon whose best qualities society is based, without whose best qualities society cannot endure, is it not equally true of those entities which we call nations? It is possible to have peace in the world when the relations of states with each other comply with the standard here set forth for the private citizen. There might grow up such a thing as an international common law founded, like the English common law we have so foolishly discarded, not on statutes but on the accumulated experience of men dwelling together in unity, not one of them sufficient unto himself.

What are the obstacles? First and foremost the bad habits of the member nations. They have developed methods of government which do not reflect the simple citizenship standard we have set up. They have cultivated sectionalism and made legislation a matter of dicker. We criticize the frightened jealousies of other nations. But in 1861 Seward proposed to Lincoln that we should deliberately pick a quarrel with another nation, inferentially Great Britain, in order to unite North and South in the common defense. Lincoln never even replied to the proposal, but we can see what bad national politics could do to international relations.

Only a few years ago we were positively nauseated with talk of "ideals." There is no need to resurrect that frowsy fly-blown word. We know how two great nations can live side by side in amity, with the broadest differences in the conceptions of government. Our own northern frontier has been unfortified for more than a century. There is not a gunboat on the lakes and only our own foolish sumptuary legislation could produce friction along that border of something like three thousand miles.

What do we claim as our greatest civilising influence? Is it not transportation, the easy communication between man and man, between locality and locality? If that is true of our forty-eight states, is not every barrier in Europe a possible cause of irritation tending to breed future wars?

Certainly a body of international legislation such as Congress passes every session might well be the worst calamity the world ever saw. But if we work up from our conception of the good citizen until we have established a like conception of a good state, with precisely those moral qualities, an understanding friendship of nations might be something more than a dream.—Wall Street Journal.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press).—Receipts for butter on Saturday were 5,991 as compared with 8,578 on Friday and 4,434 on the same day a year ago. The receipts for the week ending Saturday were 34,412 as compared with the corresponding week last year of 28,389.

The receipts of cheese on Saturday were 9,164 packages as compared with 13,022 on Friday and 5,846 on the same day a year ago. The receipts for the week ending Saturday were reported to be very quiet, high prices affecting buyers here to a considerable extent. At the country auctions at the previous day, the sales were fairly high with prices much higher than in the city. Despite this, it was impossible to tempt buyers here with prices on the same level as those in the country on the previous day. There was little demand from foreign buyers and on account of tomorrow being a general holiday in England, little export business is expected for a couple of days.

There was a much better demand for eggs on Saturday. The extra orders were for local dealers, and it is anticipated that the improvement in demand is a foreboding of a generally improved status of the trade. Prices remained firm, the calls being on no special line, but on eevry line offered. The receipts of eggs on Saturday were 1,027 as compared with 1,077 on Friday and 1,527 on the same day a year ago. The receipts for the week ending Saturday were 9,280 as compared with 8,899 for the corresponding week a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 1 (Canadian Press).—Expected reduction of unofficial estimates of the 1925 domestic yield of spring wheat had much to do with a lively fresh advance in wheat prices today. The wheat market closed strong at 2 1-8 to 4 1-2 cents net gain, September $1.53 1-2 to $1.53 3-4 and December $1.53 7-8 to $1.54, with corn 1-8 to 1 cent up, oats unchanged to 1-8c higher, and provisions ranging from 10 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

General belief prevailed that private crop reports to be given out on Monday would show a material cutting down of figures on the probable production of spring wheat in the United States as compared with the estimates issued at the beginning of last month. In this connection, a good deal of notice was taken of a statement from a trade authority here, that it is debatable whether the United States this season has produced sufficient milling wheat for home requirement. Further stimulus for the buying side of the market came from Canadian crop reports, much territory in Saskatchewan province being pictured as likely to produce hardly half an average yield.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here Saturday as follows

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.
Sterling cables $4.85 1-4.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

By F. J. McCONNELL and GEORGE W. PYPER.

"Oh, but we'll find a way out, Daddy." came Mary's voice reassuring her father. "We must find a way—and we will."

There was a moment of silence; then Marshall spoke again:

"The only money we have is this——"

At these words the spying Buck lifted his head again and looked in the window. He saw that Marshall had brought out a bag, opened it, and was taking from it several large rolls of bills.

"——$50,000 left to you by your grandfather, dear," Marshall's voice continued. "But I can't use this, dear. It was left only for you, to be spent on sending you to school in the East, and the balance for you to use on yourself to do what you want with——"

Mary's voice interrupted, exclaiming excitedly:

"Daddy, if that money can save the ranch, please, please use it. You must, you must, It's been in the family idle for years. If it was left to me to do what I want with it—as you say—well, that's what I want to do with it—save the ranch for you, dear Daddy. You will use it now, won't you, Daddy?"

Deep emotion was apparent in the old man's voice, as he replied:

"You are a loyal, darling girl, Mary—true blue and thoroughbred—and you never will know how much your Daddy appreciates your doing this. Dear, dear little girl."

"Why, it's nothing, dear old Daddy—nothing at all," came Mary's voice. "Could you suppose there is anything in the world I wouldn't do for you?"

"It is very, very sweet of you." A pause Then Marshall went on: "But there is still another problem to solve. I don't dare show myself in Pico or Latigo. There is a price of $5,000 on my head. That shooting still hangs over me. That is why we have been forced to live on this side of the border, away from my property, all these fifteen years, and leave the ranch affairs in the hands of Taggart. It wasn't murder—it was self-defense—I would swear it before God. But all the evidence is against me—the circumstances point to murder. I would be taken sure, and they would prove murder against me. Taggart must have the money to pay for the feeders at once. But how can I ——"

Mary's voice interrupted again:

"I'll take it to him myself," she exclaimed excitedly. "Oh, no, my dear—you couldn't—it would be too dangerous."

"No, it won't Daddy. Please, please. Nothing will happen to me."

Marshall protested, but to no avail; Mary was insistent. Finally her father reluctantly acquiesced to her entreaties, warning her to the strictest caution.

"I'll start first thing in the morning," said Mary.

Buck, the spy beneath the window, was satisfied. He had heard all he wanted to know. He crawled away from the window, and slunk around the corner of the house, then hurried away in the darkness to take his departure from Paradise Canyon.

CHAPTER 6.

"Topas" Taggart's Plot.

Another morning has been born in Pico.

Pico—known as the toughest town on the border. Pico—rendezvous of the riff-raff of two nations.

Pico is awake. The few shops have opened their doors. Cowboys and Mexicans are riding in the streets. Revolvers placed so they are easily reached, are a conspicuous part of all their costumes. No man goes in these parts without a gun or two. Many of the "greasers" conceal daggers as well.

Down the main street trudges a herd of cattle, flanked by cowboys. The many pounding feet on the dirt road send up a cloud of dust that almost obscures the houses. A cowboy waves a handkerchief at a smiling girl in a window. At the corner of an alley a group of small boys, smoking cigarettes, are shooting dice. An old Indian stands contemplatively, watching the cattle go by. Here come two painted, Mexican senoritas—they giggle and flirt with the cowpunchers.

A typical cow town—but Pico is even more hard boiled than most cow towns.

The Pico Bar—the town's unofficial chamber of commerce and social gathering place—is open. Within these tawdry walls men do business, lay plots, seek pleasure. Commerce, politics, crimes, and romances of a kind, all have their genesis in the Pico Bar.

The clink of glasses on the bar is heard through the doors. Suddenly the raucous cacophonies of the inevitable mechanical piano shriek forth through the saloon's swinging doors—some extravagant person has dropped a nickel in the slot.

"Stop that noise—who started that thing?" roars a harsh voice within.

There follows a volley of oaths and the sound of shattering glass. The oaths come from a tall middle-aged man, with a hard set face, who has arisen from his table and hurled his own and his companion's beer glasses at the annoying piano. Then he pounds the table ferociously with his fist, and calls, "More beer." The bartender hastens with the glasses as the man sits down.

The angry customer is Taggart—the man who is managing the Bar M Ranch for John Marshall. From his vest there dangles a large, curious looking topaz watch charm. For the man with the topaz watch charm who waited on the road the day before and disappointedly received from the pursuers of John Marshall the news that the latter had slipped away; and the man Taggart, trusted friend of John Marshall, managing his ranch for him, were one and the same.

"Topaz" Taggart, he was called, because of his strange, almost fanatical faith in that topaz watch charm. Politician, attorney-at-law, gambler and ringleader of Pico, Taggart superstitiously imagined that his fortunes depended upon that topaz charm, which he wore constantly. With it he would dare anything, and trust to luck. Without it he would have been reduced to cowardice.

In Taggart, the ranchowner Marshall had placed the most implicit confidence during the fifteen years since he had fled across the border. Unable ever to come back on the American side safely, he left the entire management of the affairs of his ranch in Taggart's hands, and never doubted Taggart's control of them.

The sound of the nickel piano finally ceased, and Taggart looked relieved.

"Now we can talk," he said to his companion.

The other man, a paunchy, sour-faced individual, was "Doc" Willets, the town chemist and assayer, one of Taggart's political henchmen. Willets owned the ranch adjoining Marshall's.

"Now you see," said Taggart, "Marshall trusts me absolutely. He never would guess the truth about his steers."

Both men grinned nastily.

Taggart puffed at his cigar, and continued:

"Now, if he fails to raise the cash, his ranch will be sold for taxes." He paused, puffed, slapped his knee, and leering, went on: "And we can buy the place with the money we got from that last bunch of steers."

Willets nodded and chuckled.

"Let's have another drink on that," he said, and called the bartender.

An excited man burst through the swinging doors and rushed up to Taggart's table. It was the keeper of the general store around the corner.

"Look, Mr. Taggart, at these," said the storekeeper, holding a hand full of brown topaz stones under Taggart's eyes. "You'll like them. Are they real?"

Taggart excitedly examined the gems and asked.

"Where'd you get 'em, Bill?"

"That old Injun—Komi—just gave 'em to me for some grub," replied the storekeeper.

Taggart veiled his excitement, shrugged his shoulders indifferently, and shoved the gems back at the storekeeper.

"Yes, they're real all right, Bill—pretty good bargain for you," he said.

Beneath his exterior pretense of calm, a great wave of excitement, stirred by the gems, was surging in his mind. Taggart, and Taggart alone, knew something of the strange secret guarded by Komi. And this secret was the real reason for his desire to acquire the Marshall ranch.

"Well, thanks, Mr. Taggart—g'by," said Bill, and departed.

Taggart and Willets had barely recommenced chatting when they were again interrupted by a newcomer entering the saloon. This time it was Buck McLeod, the escaped prisoner from Paradise Canyon who had spied at Marshall's window the night before. Buck lost no time in reaching Taggart's table and seating himself.

"Well, Buck, any news?" Taggart asked eagerly.

"News, Chief?" Buck grinned and quaffed at the drink which had been brought him. "I've got news that'll make your eyes pop out."

"Well, out with it—quick, what is it?" Taggart commanded.

Buck related his adventures in Paradise Canyon, and ended, with emphasis, on the statement.

"So Marshall is sending his girl in to the bank this morning with $50,000."

Taggart's eyes flashed at this announcement, and he jumped up, exclaiming.

"I knew the old fox had some cash planted somewhere. That's why I told him his ranch affairs were in such bad shape. He doesn't dare show himself—for fear of capture."

"Doc" Willets leaned forward, grinning, and said,

"Look here, Topaz, this is too good a chance to overlook."

Willets glanced at Buck and winked. Buck winked. Taggart dropped back in his chair grinning.

"Right you are, boys," he said.

They put their heads together.

"She'll probably be coming in over the upper trail," Willets whispered. "Need more be said?"

"I get you, Doc," answered Taggart, with a broad leer. "Well, there's no time to lose. You know your stuff, Buck. Are you ready?"

Buck nodded. Taggart rose and called to three cow punchers at the bar.

"Got a job for you, boys," cried Taggart.

The men followed him and Buck to the door. Willets, grinning, came up behind. The group talked in low voices just outside the saloon, the men nodding as they grasped Taggarts instructions. Then Buck mounted his horse, and the other four quickly followed suit.

Taggart and Willets, puffing at their cigars, watched grinning as Buck and his men disappeared in a cloud of dust.

COAL STRIKE GRAVE

Sir William Joynson Hicks, British home secretary, admits that he will have "a grave responsibility indeed, if a coal strike matrealizes in England.

ROMAN OPERA IS POORLY PATRONIZED

Largest Deficit in History Attributed to New Amusements.

ROME, Aug. 3.—(Associated Press).—Moving pictures, the radio and other new fangled forms of amusement have so far claimed the affection of the Romans that the capital of the nation which is generally considered the home of grand opera is unable to support its single lyrico-dramatic institution, the Costanzi Grand Opera House.

Playhouses dispensing light opera managed to eke out a more or less profitable livelihood during the season now ending, but the Costanzi, which ranks, after the Sala of Milan and the San Carlo of Naples, as the most pretentious of Italy's opera houses, fell upon evil days and rolled up the largest deficit in its history.

Its management, it is declared in musical circles, has made it clear that Costanzi can maintain its position in the operatic field and save itself from slipping into the category of provincial operas, only if aid comes in the form of a large increase in its allowance from the Municipality of Rome and of a parallel augmentation of the already comfortable Government subsidy.

During the 1924-1925 season the Costanzi spent nearly 5,000,000 lire in producing 12 operas on a scale worthy of the nation's capital. New settings were made, distinguished singers were enticed by good salaries, the ballet re-organized and the orchestra was improved to rank with the best in Italy.

The expenditure sheet contained such items as: Singers, 1,410,000 lire; orchestra, 890,000; chorus, 440,000; ballet, 170,000; sets, 385,000.

In an effort to attract the Romans 143,000 lire was spent on advertising and publicity, but to no avail. The number of season subscribers slumped to a lower total than ever before and the house was often almost empty.

Blame for the sad state of affairs, lovers of grand opera assert, can be placed squarely at the doorsteps of the movies and the radio. The Costanzi, it is declared, can put up a fight against these invaders only with the aid of officialdom.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

A Tale of Two Widows

One receives each month a cheque for $100 from the Imperial Life. She lives comfortably in her own home, free from worry or anxiety over money matters.

Her husband, when alive, invested his savings in Imperial monthly income assurance, adding an extra policy every time he felt he could save another dollar a week.

The other woman is a janitress in a down-town office building. Her husband earned just as much as the first man. But he speculated with his savings, and at his death left his widow penniless—in fact, with family debts to pay.

Now, what about your widow? Will she be the respected and welcome guest of your present neighbours and acquaintances? Or will she be forced to join the ranks of poorly paid female wage-earners? There's only one answer—if you care.

TOWN COUNCIL REFUSED OFFER

Toronto Company Made Bid for Plant of Langslow, Limited.

ISSUE DEBENTURES

COBOURG, Aug. 3.—The offer of a Toronto Company to take over the plant of Langslow Ltd. on certain conditions has been turned down by the Town Council. $35,000 was the consideration offered the town.

It is stated here that the Langslow interests have obtained control of the Rice Lake Canoe Co. plant, and that the industry may open up in a few weeks time.

Issuing Debentures.

The Town of Cobourg has passed a by-law providing for the issue of 5 year 5½ per cent debentures for the following expenditures created in past years: sewer, connecting Jackson property on William street with Ontario street sewer, $111.23.

The Park lavatory, $2,664.82.

Town's share of the purchase of the Cobourg-Port Hope toll road, $720.

Town's share of changes made at William street crossing to ensure greater safety to the travelling public, $618.98. Total $4,115.03. The first item is to be raised by frontage tax, and the balance by general assessment of $987.67 yearly for five years.

Polo Teams Coming.

Polo teams from Rochester, Buffalo, Pittsburgh and two from Toronto are expected in town and will remain here for two weeks and compete in the polo matches that will precede the Horse Show.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. James Deviney, Vernonville, who had a serious operation in Cobourg General Hospital was able to leave the hospital this week.

Mr. Charles Newson of Lang, Sask., is visiting with friends in East Northumberland.

The condition of Mrs. Percy Morgan, the Grafton lady who was so seriously burned a short time ago, is reported to be about the same.

Mrs. A. J. Armstrong left on Saturday for her cottage at Stoney Lake. Her daughters, Miss Eleanor Armstrong, nurse-in-training at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, and Miss Kathleen Armstrong, New York are with her.

Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Brighton, a former Cobourg pastor, is spending holidays at Coe Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Tooge and Mr. and Mrs. Peacock, Toronto, are spending their holidays at Walnut Farm, Roseneath.

Mr. Paul McCullogh, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. McCullogh returned last week from England and France where he spent a year and left a little later on a business trip to Florida.

Dr. A. H. Miller, son of Mr. John Miller, J.P. of Castleton, came down from Toronto with his family for a holiday at Victoria Beach, near Colborne.

Mrs. E. A. Curvin, her daughter Mrs. Brayley of Flint. Mich., and the latter's little daughter have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Wilce White a Barnley.

GIRL CYCLIST KILLED.

Driver of Car in Kingston Under Arrest.

KINGSTON, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Florence Timms, aged 18, an Old Country girl, employed as a maid at the home of Bishop and Mrs Bidwell, who are now both in England, was fatally injured Saturday night while bicycling when she was hit by an auto at the corner of Place De Armes and Wellington Street. She lived only a few minutes after the accident. The driver of the car, Harry Peters, of Sydenham, is under arrest, the charge being reckless driving, pending the coroner's inquest, which will be held to-night.

SEVEN BISLEY RIFLEMEN HOME

Advance Canadian Contingent of Canadian Team Reached Montreal Saturday.

WARMLY GREETED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Seven members of the Canadian Bisley team, which competed in the recent annual rifle meet held at Bisley under the auspices of the National Rifle Association, arrived here Saturday night on board the S.S. Canada.

They were met by various representatives of local rifle associations and were highly congratulated on their achievement in winning the Rajah of Kolapore's cup and the McKinnon cup, the former being, next to the King's prize, the most coveted of all the bisley prizes.

The whole standard of the shooting this year was much higher, said Major C. R. Crowe, of Guelph, Ont., who brought back the first contingent of the team, and it was more difficult to win prizes. The Kolapore cup, which was last won by Canada in 1909, was obtained with a record score, ten points higher than the South African team last year.

Members of the team to return Saturday were: Major C. R. Crowe, Guelph; Captain D. M. Galbraight, London, Ont.; Lieut. Desmond Burke, Ottawa (last year's King's prizeman); Lieut. H. E. Rowlands, Hamilton (winner of the Donegal cup and the National Rifle Association cup); Sergt. C. H. Tyers, Ottawa; Pte. W. J. Irvine, Ottawa, and Staff Sergeant A. S. B. Wilson, Ottawa, winner of the High Commissioner's cup, and a King's badge for being in the final stage of the King's prize.

LADIES' AID MEETING

Many Members Were Present in Spite of Wet Weather.

NORHAM, Aug. 3.—The Ladies' Aid held its regular meeting on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Martin Peterson and although the day was showery there were over thirty members and visitors present. After the usual business was disposed of the following program was given: A solo by Miss Ruby Everson, accompanied by Miss Mae Mitchell, of Moose Jaw; a reading by Mrs. J. Newman; and an instrumental by Miss Grace Smith, of Ottawa. Mrs. Marcius Massey closed the meeting with prayer after which lunch was served and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

Mrs. Lloyd Smith of Ottawa and family are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson.

While herding the cattle on Monday Mr. Marcius Massey was thrown from a horse he was riding and received quite a shaking up.

Messrs. Charles Pierson and Albert West are busy excavating for a new cement vault on the road leading to the Warkworth cemetery.

While at his work on Tuesday Mr. Bert West received an injury which necessitated an operation which was performed at 2.00 a.m. by Drs. Flock of Belleville and Armstrong and Haight of Warkworth. Mr. West is doing as well as can be expected.

Miss Hazel Everson of Belleville, has returned home after spending a two weeks' vacation with friends at Roblin, Kingston and Norham.

Miss Dora West left for her home in Hamilton on Wednesday after a visit with friends in this vicinity.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. William Goodfellow, on Monday, July 27th, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Morical, of Grandforks, Michigan, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dillworth, Meyersburg.

William Grealock, of Morganston, has purchased the home of Nicholas Lean and intends moving into it in the near future.

Mrs. W. Rankin of Smithfield is visiting friends here.

POLICE STOP SOUVENIR HUNTERS AT NANCY WRECK

Souvenir hunters had succeeded in excavating the after part of the old British schooner Nancy at Wasaga Beach, Ont., pretty thoroughly before the provincial police arrived on the scene. On the left above is shown the sternson knee that supported the stern-post of the vessel and the series of pools out of which most of the relics have been taken. Where the man is standing the keelson is about four feet under water. To the right is Provincial Constable Fred Simpson preparing to nail up a notice requesting the public to leave the hulk alone. Below is the monument erected by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Ottawa in commemoration of the battle of Fort Nottawasaga, in which the Nancy was sunk. It is to be unveiled on August 8th.

BRITISH PUBLIC REALIZES LOSS IN SETTLEMENT

Relief at Passing of Crisis Succeeded by Gloom Over the Cost.

BECOMING CLEAR

Lloyd George Calls Temporary Solution a "Hold-up" —Enormous Price.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The intense relief of the British public over settlement of the strike gave way Saturday to gloom almost equal to that caused by the crisis when it became apparent the Government's solution probably would hit the taxpayer for another 4 pence in the pound on income.

The full meaning of Mr. Baldwin's subsidy plan is just becoming clear to the already heavily burdened average citizen, and it did not improve his feelings to read that the miners were not satisfied with continuation of the old scale of wages, but would fight until wages are equal to the cost of living.

The Daily News, while holding that the Government took the right course, contends that neither side is able to claim victory, saying "there is very little satisfaction in a truce which, at the eleventh hour, the Government bought at the public expense."

The Daily Express takes the view that the Government has merely bought postponement of the trouble, which will recur in aggravated form in the spring.

The Daily Chronicle and The Westminster Gazette severely denounce the Government, contending that the only hope lies in the Liberal Party.

Lloyd George's Stricture.

"There is only one agreement among the miners, mine-owners, House of Commons and the public, and that is the Government has mishandled the situation," Lloyd George said, in a speech here on Saturday. "The Government was taken by surprise. This has been going on since February and they were taken by surprise in July. No plan, no proposals, no suggestions. Even the strike emergency organization was not ready.

"The settlement means the taxpayer is to be milked dry. It is the worst transaction the Government has ever made. The precedent now established will be very difficult to deny when a crisis comes in other industries. How can the Government discriminate between the mining industry and the railways, or, supposing there is a strike, which God forbid, of sailors. They are all vital and if the taxpayer is to be called on to pay a subsidy in each case you will have both worker and employer combining to milk the taxpayer and there will be no cream left for anybody.

"Can any one of sense and responsibility say the subsidy plan will cost less than £20,000,000?"

While Lloyd George's attack represents considerable political bias, the subsidy likewise has irritated a number of members within Baldwin's party itself. A meeting of those Members of Parliament who represent the nation's industries is called for Tuesday when the question will be thrashed out. This group of influential members is said to be frankly startled at the possibilities of the Government's subsidy plan and its effect on other industries.

Blame Churchill.

As was natural, political observers to-day looked around for a scapegoat and again resorted to the favorite pastime of "blaming Winston Churchill."

It is disclosed that Mr. Churchill during the final negotiations with the coal owners started by agreeing the owners should retain 4d a ton profit. It is this amount the their stubborn demand for 1s 3d a ton profit. Iti s this amount the Government agrees to guarantee and everything above also is to be kept by the owners.

HAVELOCK NEWS

HAVELOCK, July 31.—Mr. and Mrs. John Barlow left on Tuesday to visit relatives in Souris, Man., and Banff, Alta.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pacey of Toronto, are visiting the latter's mother Mrs. M. J. Clark.

Mr. Donald McGregor, of Toronto, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Margaret Clarke, of Toronto, is spending her holidays at her home here.

Miss Inez McLaughlin, of Toronto, was the Sunday guest of Mrs. S. Ellis.

Mr. J. Wilson Livingstone of Toronto, is spending his holidays with his grandmother, Mrs. J. Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Josh Parcels visited friends in Roseneath on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Harrison, Mr. Albert Harrison, Mr. Harry Ross, of Peterborough, and Mr. Allan Sherwin and Mr. Cecil Scriber, of Hastings, were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Harrison.

Miss Helen Fennell and Mr. Denike Fennell are visiting friends in Toronto.

WHEAT HARVEST PROMISES WELL

Seymour Farmers Have Good Yields—Wet Weather Hinders Cutting.

SOME THRESHED.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 3. — The recent wet weather has delayed harvesting operations and very few farmers have been able to get their wheat crop under cover.

Threshers are starting out later than usual but enough of this work has been done to demonstrate that the wheat crop will yield above the average.

William Foy of the Burnbrae district last week threshed for W. H. Little on concession six, Seymour, 228 bushels of wheat from six acres, a yield of 38 bushels to the acre. Mr. Little also threshed some rye but as the crop was not all disposed of the yield per acre could not be estimated. This grain, however turned out well to the str.

George Barnum of town started the season's campaign last Thursday at the farm of Harry Bedford, whose wheat crop yielded 57 bushels, an estimated turn out of nearly 40 bushels to the acre. Wheat this year is an excellent sample and the grain will weigh well.

Signs Point to Three-Cornered Contest in Northumberland When Election Called.

There will be a Progressive party convention at Warkworth on Friday for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest the Federal election in Northumberland.

Sir John Aird, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, says: "I am proud of the Canadian banking system. It is the best in the world, and Canada has come through the war crisis better than any country in the world. We have had one little failure, of which much has been said, but the effect of this will soon pass. Our banks are in a position to take care of any business offering, home or abroad."

RAINS INJURE FRENCH CROPS

Oats Sprouting and Rot Appears in Many Fields—Hail Damage.

BREAD PRICE UP.

PARIS, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press Cable). — Heavy rains have done considerable damage to grain and many fields have been beaten down. Many fields are also suffering from rot. Winter oats are already sprouting in many districts. The bad weather and the stopping of reimbursements to French exporters of the Customs duties on imported wheat on July 31 are responsible for an increase in the price of flour from 169 to 179 francs per quintal. In consequence there will be an increase in the price of bread, effective on August 11, from one franc 60 to one franc sixty-five per two-pound loaf.

The wine crop is likely to suffer as badly as the grain. Mildew is spreading in many districts and grapes are falling from the vines before they ripen. Hail storms have also damaged many vineyards.

FRENCH HINTS TO RIFFS

the conditions the French and Spanish were willing to grant the rebel chieftain should he ask peace. After the reception the Riffians immediately returned to Tangier. It is not thought Abd-el-Krim will make any strong offensive either against the French or Spanish until the delegates have reported to him in Ajdir.

A council of war caids from the Djebalia and Andjera tribes is being held at Ajdir, and Abd-el-Krim's principal assistants, Jeriro, Hadjari and Oul Karfa, are expected shortly from the front.

Heat Interferes With Aviation.

FEZ, Aug. 3. — The sirocco has proved too much for the observation balloon, according to word from Souk el Arba de Tissa, where the French have been trying out the first one on the Moroccan front during the past fortnight. The strong hot wind from the Sahara broke the balloon loose from its moorings and smashed it against a blockhouse wall, where it caught fire and burned completely.

The heat is greatly handicapping aviation in general. It is impossible to fly during the full blast of the sirocco, and even the normal hot weather here, which is 110 to 120 in the shade, as the planes are, of course, fully exposed to the sun, is adding difficulties and dangers to aviation. It makes the air lighter, so greater effort is needed for the motor to lift the planes loaded with bombs from the ground, and motors naturally overheat at this season more easily anyway.

The heat affects the planes up to an altitude of 2,000 feet, and most of their work — bombing, machine-gunning and dropping supplies — has to be done flying low. Consequently, the most serious aerial work is restricted from morning to evening.

BATTLE OVER CHEESE.

Campbellford Makers Want C.N.R. to Supply Man to Help Load.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 3.— A special meeting of the cheese board was held Saturday evening at the request of J. I. Irwin, the official grader, who desires to have Campbellford's day for shipping cheese changed from Saturday to Thursday as he finds the present date inconvenient on account of his engagements at other shipping points in the district. He also asked that the different factories have their cheese at the depot not later than noon.

The members of the board present agreed that it would make no difference to the factories on which day the cheese is shipped, but before any change is made the buyers will be consulted.

Railway Official Sarcastic.

The C.N.R. still refuses to furnish a man to help load the cheese and this expense is being borne by the factories. When Superintendent McMillan, of the Belleville-Lindsay division, was appealed to, his reply was that if this request were granted the cheese men's next move would be to ask the railway company to transport the cheese from the factories to the depot.

YOUNG MAN FELL BENEATH MOTOR

Car Ran Over His Legs Causing Severe Bruises and Scratches.

DUNSFORD, Aug. 3.— What might have proved a serious accident occurred in Dunsford the other evening just in front of the blacksmith shop when Ross McGahey jumped off the fender of Bertram Thurston's car, falling on the ground, and the car ran over his legs. Both legs and arms were badly scraped and bruised.

The injured young man was carried in the home of Mrs. Stacey and is recovering very nicely.

Whiten Cloudy Teeth

Under that film on your teeth (run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel it) are the clean, glistening teeth you envy. Combat it this way—see what pretty teeth you have.

IN the United States to-day, it is estimated that over half a million people a day are cleaning their teeth in a new way. These are people who used to have dull and dingy teeth. That is why you see gleaming teeth wherever your eyes turn.

Now leading dentists tell how to clear up dingy teeth. A method that supplants old type dentifrices — combats, without harsh grit, the stubborn film that covers teeth and makes them ugly.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. This offers you free a 10-day tube of the way authorities advise combating it. Simply mail the coupon.

The Great Enemy of Teeth

Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause according to the world's dental authorities, of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

JERSEY CATTLE DO NOT SUCCEED IN THE FAR EAST

British Exiles in India Have Imported Cattle for Years.

CLIMATE TOO HOT

Where the Weather is Suitable the Pasturage Won't Agree.

CAPT. GEORGE CECIL,
England.

For many years past attempts have been made to acclimatize cattle exported from the Channel Island of Jersey into eastern countries. The British exiles in India, anxious to drink the delicious milk of Jersey cows, have imported these animals. Gourmets, and bent on savoring a more satisfactory butter than that which is made from buffaloes' milk, have begged the dairy farmer to fill his stalls with Jersey-bred cattle. The white men who earn their living in Burma, Ceylon, Siam, Java, and Malaya, knowing a good thing when they taste it, have swelled the cry. But all in vain. The dairy people, aware from experience that these cows will not thrive in the tropics, decline to waste money. The Egyptian milk dealers also refuse to accommodate their British customers, of whom there are a considerable number. "Cows produced from the south of France," they declare, "answer the purpose."

So far as Siam is concerned the buffalo alone can stand the appallingly enervating heat which endures all he year round. The other eastern countries, however, possess mountain "stations" many hundreds of feet above sea-level where the Jersey cow might be expected to flourish Unfortunately, pasturage resembling the rich Channel Island grass and clover fields (which by the way are manured with a preparation of burnt seaweed) does not exist. In the Himalayas, as well as in the mountains of Ceylon, Java, and Malaya, one occasionally comes across a few Jersey cows. But the pasture fails to agree with them and their milk is not what it should be. And, worse still they die prematurely for want of proper nourishment.

An Unfortunate Speculation.

These cows are imported by prosperous white officials, sea planters and retired military officers who, having long since lost touch with England, elect to end their days in the "hills," as even the most lofty peaks in the Himalayas are known. There lives, for example, at the foot of Mount Everest, a ninety-year-old general who fought in the Indian Mutiny of 1854. For close upon forty years the aged man has led a hermit's life, farming on a small scale and interesting himself in his dairy. In the remote past he sent to Jersey for thirty head of cattle, hoping to breed and to make countless rupees by filling the needs of Anglo-Indians all over the country. Most of the animals quickly died off, the calves did not thrive, and the undertaking was a dead failure. Today, the descendents of the herd are limited to one cow, whose milk has little of the true Jersey flavor; decidedly a disappointing experience.

Better luck has attended a Ceylon tea planter who leads a pleasant if uneventful life under the shadow of Adam's Peak, where, according to the Buddahist priests, the ark rested. Rejoicing in three Jersey cows, he does a thriving business, supplying his white neighbors for miles around. Heat being unknown at this altitude, the milk and butter travel well.

Fresh Butter as a Present.

The Jersey breed has been introduced into North Africa, though without success, the heat of summer having played the very mischief with it. In the Highlands of British East Africa, however, they do better, for if the pasturage leaves something to be desired during the dry season, it proves nutritious for a number of months. The native cow keepers do not aspire to importing these cattle, indeed, the best educated amongst them have not the least idea where the Channel Islands are situated. The white settlers, of whom there are a number in Kenya Colony, alone favor Jersey cows, their butter being immensely esteemed. In such request is it held that a few pounds are looked upon amongst the exiled Britons as a handsome present. At Christmastime and on birthdays much of this commodity changes hands.

One white farmer in Kenya has been at special pains to turn his Jerseys to account. He has worked up an excellent and remunerative butter and milk convention, the colored dairymen sending him many an order; while as a stock breeder he is equally successful, his cattle fetching good prices amongst the white population. Indeed, such is the demand that a waiting list has been found necessary, prospective buyers having to wait their turn. Sometimes the breeder livens up things by holding an auction, and much to his advantage, particularly when there are many bidders with their pockets full of rupees. The Indian currency, by the way has, together with Indian labor, been introduced into British East Africa.

"Ware Lion."

In some "districts" it is safe to keep the cattle out at night from May till October, there being no lions in the neighborhood. On the borders of the shooting territory they must be housed in substantially built sheds, and eveno with these precautions lions are known to find their way into the stalls through a weak spot in the roof. In the day time accidents also may happen the Jerseys being pulled down while grazing in the open. A native watcher is on duty, and, rifle in hand, he is supposed to be more than a match for the marauder. But Sambo's bravery is a limited quality; he may, on sighting the lion, drop the death-dealing weapon, turn and run for his very life. The intruder then slaughters the cow at his leisure, makes a meal, and is lost sight of in the thick, coarse grass. Sambo gets the sack.

Jersey cattle occasionally find their way to France, Belgium, and Switzerland, and rather to the annoyance of the inhabitants. The French consider their own cows the best in the world, the Belgians and the Swiss being equally patriotic. An instance, perhaps, of narrowmindedness.

FINE WEATHER AID TO HARVEST

Crops at Bailieboro Are Very Good and Farmers Expect Prosperity.

PRICES LOW

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 3.—The fine weather which has prevailed during the past weeks has been splendid for the farmers to make their hay. There has been a great deal of hay cut and handled and the majority of hay in this district is safely under cover. The hay crop throughout the district is fairly good this season, in most cases the timothy is heavier than the clover hay. Some of the crops in this vicinity are averaging from two to three loads per acre.

The wheat and alsike crop ripened very fast farmers having commenced to cut their fall wheat and alsike Both the wheat and alsike are good crops in this district, and altogether the farmers are looking ahead to a fairly prosperous year if the prices for local produce only continue good.

Wheat at present is selling at about one dollar and ten cents per bushel, and barley at seventy-five cents, which is an unusually low price for grain at this season of the year. The local creameries are paying from thirty-three to thirty-five cents per pound for butter fat.

EFFECTIVE CURE OF RETAINED PLACENTA

Manual Manipulation Not a Good Method—Iodoform Simple and Better.

The cause of retained afterbirth is not definitely known, but it is generally assumed that it is associated with contagious abortion, inasmuch as these two diseases are quite often co-existent in the same herd. The animal which retains the placenta should therefore be considered as a suspicious aborter and be given special isolation and treatment as such.

Formerly, the practice has been to remove the afterbirth by manual manipulation. This often resulted in torn parts, subsequent infection and death. Latterly, recommended treatment has been as follows: If animal is healthy and weather fairly cool, wait for 48 hours, then apply gentle traction. If the placenta still does not come away readily, wash the hand and arm of the operator and the external parts of the animal in a 5 per cent. solution of creolin and insert into the uterus a previously prepared one half ounce gelatine capsule filled with iodoform or one half iodoform and one half boracic acid, or failing the iodoform insert two capsules of boracic acid. If placenta still does not come away at end of another 36 hours, insert another capsule or capsules depending on the material used. If iodoform has been used the first time it is not so necessary thereafter. Continue this treatment every 48 hours until the placenta comes away in about 8 to 10 days. Then douche the vagina and uterus thoroughly with normal salt solution (1 ounce salt to 1 gallon water every day until cleaned up. This treatment is comparatively easily applied and fairly effective, the cows cleaning up rapidly and not exhibiting the non-breeding tendencies which so often follow the manufal removal of the placenta.

CROP REPORTS

Crop prospects have been improved due to rain in the dry area. More is required especially for pastures. Clay land in south-western Ontario is too hard to plow and therefore little preparation for fall wheat has been made.

The outlook in eastern Ontario is very bright with prospects for a heavy yield of practically all crops. Haying has been slow because of catchy weather but a record cut will be harvested in many localities. Dairy farmers of this section are profiting by the good pastures and more encouraging cheese prices.

There has been too much rain in northern Ontario. The crops in the Monteith and Cochrane districts show the effect of continued cold and wet weather. In the New Liskeard and Englehart belt, crops though late are promising. Owing to the small number of live stock and the abundant growth of grass, much is being wasted in this territory. Another large crop of hay is being cut while hundreds of tons of last year's production are still on hand. Conditions are satisfactory on Manitoulin Island and in the Sault Ste. Marie farming area.

Wheat harvesting is general in the southern and central parts of the Province and threshing is commencing in some counties. The yield is not large but all reports mention the high quality of the grain. Returns of from 22 to 25 bushels per acre have been realized in Lambton County. A second crop of Alfalfa is being cut in Kent and neighboring counties.

Bruce.—Practically 75% of the hay has been harvested in southern Bruce, while in the peninsula, haying has just begun. We have noticed some of the finest fields of Alsike during the past two weeks that we have observed during the past five years in this district, especially in the northern district. Wheat cutting will commence early in the week as it has ripened very fast during the past few days. Field crops have never looked better for this time of year. Corn has grown rapidly during the past ten days.

Dundas.—Recent rains have made haying operations rather catchy consequently delaying harvesting of the heaviest hay crop that this county has had for many years. Cheese touched the 22c price at local Board during the week. Sweet cream jumped to 48c per lb. butter fat. Eggs 32c per doz.

Kent.—There is every indication that the corn will suffer severe loss from the corn borer. Present counts of egg masses in the most severely infected areas show an average of 240 eggs per plant. 99% of which will hatch and 25% of the grubs will live over until fall under average conditions. As many as 800 eggs have been counted on one plant. Egg laying in this district will continue another week. Already there are corn borer larvae half-grown, and injury can be noticed on the leaves of practically every plant in these badly infested areas. The acreage of corn in Romney township has been cut down 50% this year on account of the corn borer.

Lambton.—Many fields of fall wheat have been harvested. Stook threshing is general over the country. Reported yields of fall wheat would indicate an average of 22 to 25 bushesl per acre. The shorter plants in the sheaves have only a short wheat head and in the majority of cases they are not filled. In all probability the cold weather of spring and frosts have affected these plants. Barley is ripening and will be followed shortly by oats.

Lincoln.—The peach crop is sizing up well and where spray measures were taken the quality of the fruit will be extra good. Plums are rather scattered in some districts and in others are heavy. The total crop however, is below normal. Grapes are sizing up well and from present indications promise a full crop.

Prince Edward.—The milk flow has fallen off on account of two weeks extremely dry weather. At yesterday's Cheese Board in Picton, 1047 cheese were boarded, selling at 22-3-16; 125 twins at 22-7-16. Generally, the crops of Prince Edward are the best for several years.

MINERS' SECRETARY.

A. J. Cook, secertary of the miners' federation, who left this week for Paris to attend a conference of the miners international federation, declared the situation was uchanged from the miners' standpoint. "We have made all our preparations. We are fully prepared for the struggle," he said.

SET UP UNIFORM STANDARD FOR DAIRY PRODUCTS

Department Finds That the Public Has All the Grading It Will Stand.

TASTE ACQUIRED

Will Be Some Time Before British Importer Will Accept Grades.

With reference to the setting up of a uniform standard of grading dairy products for the Dominion, a question which has agitated the minds of members of the House of Commons, it should be remembered that a uniform system of grading has been in force wherever grading is done provincially. It is only recently that grading has been done Federally.

Then in regard to a system of grading dairy products for home consumption, as well as for export, we find that the public have about all the grading they care to stand for now. These reforms have to be carried out more or less gradually. We have adopted an entirely new idea in the matter of grading cheese and butter for export, completely reversing the practice that had prevailed for the last thirty years. This the Department has done fairly well in even adopting a grading system for export only.

The home market has grown up as the result of a taste acquired by the public over a long series of years and the people are not demanding a grading system of dairy products for home consumption. That of course, would mean an increased number of inspectors and a much greater cost.

It will probably be a few years yet before grading for export is fully accepted by the British importer, so that there is time enough to talk about home grading. There is, however, voluntary grading and the same principle is adopted in regard to inspection and grading of eggs. It is not a new principle, but the government may not think it advisable to go beyond this at present, and probably will not contemplate any new rulings.

It is but honest to admit that in the matter of grading we are somewhat behind the times, just how many years it is for experts to say. There is the risk that neglect to grade for home consumption may mean that second-grade and third-grade cheese and butter may be left for our Canadian consumers, but it is largely a question of the cost of operation and also the advisability of going ahead rapidly or otherwise.

The Department take spride in having made progress. We started out late in the day, but we are going ahead. Undue haste, however, is to be deprecated and we believe the farmer will agree with this opinion. Activities that have to do with production are left to the provinces, and matters respecting marketing and grading are left to the Federal authorities. The Department has to determine the lines of demarcation between provincial and Federal activities and all these detail take time and demand patience.

MANY GOING OUT AS HARVESTERS

Applications For Tickets Would Indicate That 50,000 Will Be Obtained.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 3.—Announcement made last week that the record number of 50,000 harvesters will be needed from the East to gather the western Canadian harvest this year has already brought forth a heavy crop of replies and enquiries from all over. Letters are being received at Canadian Pacific headquarters here by the score from points as widely separated as Michigan and Ohio in the American middle west to Nova Scotia. In between these points some enquiries are coming in from Vermont, Maine, Boston, New York, Brooklyn and the Maritime provinces.

The great majority are from Quebec and Ontario and judging by the number of letters already received and with the date of the first excursion from this city fixed at August 18, it is confidently anticipated that the number required —large as it is—will be easily met.

In the meantime, general reports of conditions of the crop in the prairie provinces are optimistic.

FALL WHEAT IS ALL IN STOOKS

Spring Wheat and Barley Are Also Ripening Fast.

DUNSFORD, Aug. 3. — The heavy rain on Tuesday was a great help to the crops although a few of the farmers were rather disappointed at getting the last of their hay wet. However, in most places the haying season is past and large fields of stooks of fall wheat can be seen all along the road. Very little of it has been drawn in yet, although Vern Thurston has taken the lead and has had his in the barn since Monday. The spring wheat and barley is getting quite ripe too. Some of it will be ready to cut next week.

The raspberry crop has been extra good in this vicinity, both wild and tame ones being plentiful. There are lots of green ones on the bushes yet.

IN WOODLAND COURT.

By Wallace Havelock Robb.

"I just flew back from visiting,
'Way down in Tennessee,"
Said Wise Old Owl, the Woodland judge,
At court, beneath a tree.

"You Woodland folks, who think you're smart,
And ape the human kind,
Should go to court in Tennessee,
Perhaps you'd change your mind.

Intelligence, they seem to have,
And yet, at times, I think
They bray like asses—maybe they're
The donkey's missing link.

They claim descent from monkey-men,
They talk like monkeys too,
Except that everything is clear
As mud, when they get through.

I heard one fellow called a goose,
A witless, stupid man—
Now, Gander, there's a compliment,
To swallow if you can!

If asses, geese and monkeys were Like all the men I saw,
'Twould make the woods a noisy place.
And I'd give up wild law.

In owlish judgm nt, now I sit,
And blink this ewise report:
I'd sooner hand out Woodland law,
Than mix in that mad court."

POISON IVY CAN BE ERADICATED

Brine or Chemicals May Be Used, But Hoe is Better.

DIG UP ROOTS

Year after year as folks fare forth to camp or summer cottage interest in poison ivy revives. Many have yet to learn to recognize these low, bushy, slightly woody-stemmed plants, rising from long rootstocks at or just below ground level, and bearing the characteristic leaves of triple, smoothish, pointed leaflets, and frequently the old clusters of round, whitish fruits beneath them.

Failing to recognize and avoid the plants, many people, susceptible to poisoning, find themselves presently interested in remedies. Few seem to be aware that on contact with the weed, or even with shoes, tools, etc., that have been in contact, they should promptly remove all traces of its virulent oil by freely lathering the skin with strong soap, and rinsing under hot running, or constantly changed water. Inflammation resulting from unsuspected exposure, or neglect of the above precautions, may be relieved by applying solutions of baking soda or Epsom salts, one or two teaspoonfuls to a cup of water, and bandaging. Various elaborate treatments are offered which are seldom any more helpful, or so readily available.

It is surprising how few efforts are made to clean up ivy from constantly frequented public and private grounds. Though eradication is bound to be laborious, there are plenty of people who could safely work at it. In hard or rocky ground, wherever injury to the soil does not matter, dry salt or strong brine might be applied before growth becomes too dense, or after mowing it with a scythe. Caustic soda and other poisonous chemicals are also recommended. As a rule however, direct removal of the rootstocks from the soil, by means of grubbing hoe, potato hook, digging or ploughing, when possible, is preferable. Sometimes when growing in leaf mold or rich soil, astonishingly long strands of rootstocks can be dragged out intact. This is most safely and easily done before spring growth commences. Small patches have thus been cleared up at one operation, which would have required repeated spraying.

GOLD FOUND.

In the district around Beardmore, a station on the Canadian National about 130 miles east of Port Arthur, a new gold c mp has opened up. Already claims are staked from Warneford station through Beardmore for a distance of 22 miles to Jackpine, a station between Beardmore and Jellicoe.

WILL INTRODUCE GRADING CREAM DURING SPRING

Market Provides for Three Grades, Special, First and Second.

STANDARDS SET OUT

Clean Food, Clean Equipment and Cool Storage Needed for Special.

BY GEO. H. BARR,
Director of Dairying.

Grading cream and paying for it on a graded basis will be introduced in the creameries of this Province early in 1926. It is therefore important that cream producers become familiar with the standards for the different grades and plan how they can produce cream that will bring the highest price. Grading the cream and paying for it on a graded basis provides at once three markets for cream; one for special grade, one for 1st grade and one for 2nd grade cream. It is the farmers' privilege to produce cream to suit any one of these markets.

If he produces special grade cream, he will be rewarded by receiving the highest possible price. If he produces first grade cream, he will receive a slightly lower price. If a second grade cream is produced, a still lower price will have to be accepted. Off grade cream is of little value and should be returned. The care given the cream will decide which market it will sell in. Therefore the cream producer who makes proper arrangements for taking care of his cream will be rewarded by receiving a better price than the man who will not go to any expense in taking care of his cream. The grade standards and the differences in prices are as follows:

Special Grade.

This grade shall include any lot of cream which is clean in flavour, of uniform consistency and suitable for making butter of this grade. Its acidity shall not be more than thirty-one hundredths (.30%) of one per cent. at the time of being graded at the creamery where it is to be made into butter.

First Grade.

This grade shall include any lot of cream which is reasonably clean in flavour, of uniform consistency and suitable for making butter of this grade. Its acidity shall not be more than sixty-one hundredths (.60%) of one per cent. at the time of being graded at the creamery where it is to be made into butter.

Second Grade.

This grade shall include cream that does not meet the requirements specified for first grade cream; such as cream that is bitter, stale, musty, metallic or otherwise unclean in flavour, or has an acidity of over sixty-one hundredths (.60%) of one per cent.

MEXICAN RECORDS SEALED 400 YEARS

Historical Society Seeks To Examine Archieves of Conquistador.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—(Associated Press).—Negotiations are being pushed by Mexican historical societies to secure the revocation of an order by the descendants and heirs of Hernando Cortes, Spanish conqueror of Mexico, prohibiting the examination of the archives of the conqueror. These have been guarded for centures in the ancient Hospital de Jesus, which Cortes founded in Mexico City, and which is still being conducted under the patronage of Prince Pignatelly Cortes of Italy, the present heir to what is left of the vast estates of the Marquea del Valle.

During the Carranza administration an order from the department of the interior to transfer the 300 volumes to the national library brought action from the Italian legation, which sealed the room containing the books on the ground that they were private property. The seals since have been unbroken.

Another discovery which is exciting students of history is that of R. P. Mariano Cuevas, author of "The History of the Church in Mexico," who has announced that he has encountered five unedited letters by Cortes himself in the general archives of the nation, and the last will and testament of the conqueror in his own handwriting.

If you want good egg production next winter, see that your pullets are properly fed and cared for during the summer months. Pullets that have been poorly fed and poorly grown cannot be expected to become good producers. The requirements for good growth are: plenty of house room and range, good feeding, shade, and cleanliness.

Gather the eggs at least every day and better twice a day during the hot weather. Keep them in a dry, cool, well-ventilated place. Never wash an egg because it spoils the keeping quality. Market the eggs at least twice a week in hot weather but keep the small, inferior or dirty eggs at home; they depress the market for good eggs.

LESS GRASSHOPPERS.

Grasshoppers will be fewer this year than last, says C. E. Sanborn, professor of entomology at the Oklahoma A. and M. College. He bases this on the finding that the last winter destroyed more grasshopper eggs than the year before.

Hens That Can't Fly Have Been Developed

There need be no further quarrels with neighbors about gardens devastated by chickens. A breed has been developed which can not fly a fence 30 inches high, yet they are general-purpose chickens of substantial size.

Kiwi (pronounced kee-wee) is the name of this rather new breed, and the reason the birds can not fly is that their feathers, except to some extent on wings and tails, have no mid-ribs. Really their plumage scarcely consists of feathers at all but is a mass of silky hair.

Mrs. H. A. Boener, Lawrence, Kan., is generally credited with having developed the Kiwi fowls. She has not, however, disclosed the nature of her original stock nor the method by which she produced the new type. Occasionally "silkies" are found in other breeds, but these and also the Japanese Silky Bantams are distinct from the Kiwis. So downy are the feathers of the new breed that it seems likely a good demand for them will spring up for the making of mattresses and pillows.

The Kiwis are a general-purpose breed and the hens are fair layers. As yet they are so new that their qualifications have not been rigidly fixed. The present standard as set forth by the Kiwi Specialty Club of America specifies that cock birds shall weigh eight pounds, cockerels seven, hens six and one-half, pullets five pounds.

The plumage must be snow-white, beak yellow, eyes reddish bay, face, wattles and ear-lobes bright red, shank and toes rich yellow, and the entire body covered with a snow-white fluff.

DRESSING DUCKS FOR MARKETING

Better Returns From Dressed Ducks Than From Live Ones.

STEAM THE BIRDS

Green ducks should be marketed just as soon as they have completed their first coat of body feathers. The Pekin duck, which is the best breed for the "green duck" trade, usually attains marketable size in from eight to twelve weeks from date of hatching. Green ducks should be developed as rapidly as possible as there is a co-relation between rate of development and cost per pound, the cost increasing very rapidly as the ducklings reach marketable age.

Ducks may be marketed either alive or dressed. If the market is a local one the birds may be sold alive, but if the market is distant much better returns will be secured by dressing the birds before shipping.

When green ducks are being marketed alive the sale should be made before the birds are shipped as ducklings do not stand confinement well. Ship the birds in roomy, slatted crates and put in dry shavings to keep them clean and dry until they reach their destination. The ducklings should not be fed before shipping, and shipment should be made as early in the day as possible.

To secure the best returns for green ducks they should be sent to market dressed. The birds should be starved for about eighteen hours before killing, but they should be given all the fresh water they care to drink. The water will assist in cleaning out the intestines and thus prevent discolouration through fermentation of food in the digestive tract. When the birds are ready for killing hang them up by both legs. Ducks should be bled in the mouth and then the blade of the knife should be forced into the brain so as to render the bird unconscious. After bleeding has stopped the birds may be taken down, and then they are ready for scalding. Dip each bird in scalding water, leaving it submerged for about thirty seconds, remove it from the water to give it air and repeat the operation. Try to remove the feathers and if they do not come out easily dip the bird again. Wrap up the dead bird in a bran sack and let it steam for three to five minutes. When the feathers have all been removed the birds should be cooled in a barrel of ice water. By leaving the dressed birds in the cold water for five or six hours they will become quite rigid and can be removed and packed for shipment. Boxes or barrels can be used for this purpose. Pack the dressed birds in containers as closely as possible using ice to fill up the spaces and ship the birds to market with as little delay as possible.

HFAVY MANURE

As Food for Dairy Cattle It Gives a Very High Milk Yield.

On May 15, three of us, armed with a yardstick, a scale, and a camera, went to a good field of biennial white sweet clover to learn something.

What we found would make the basis for an interesting guessing contest. Properly fixed up it would add a new turn to crossword puzzles. We have tried it out on a number of people. Some won't even risk a guess; others wish they hadn't said anything.

Here is the question: How much green weight is there in the tops and roots of an acre of biennial white sweet clover on May 15 in Southern Wisconsin? Guess before you read on and see how far off you are.

The man who makes the cross in crosswork puzzles would put it this way: A farm crop, the roots and tops of which weigh 27,527 lbs. per acre, green weight basis, on May 15. The answer is, sweet clover.

"It must have been some job to dig up an acre of sweet clover," someone says. It is quite a job to do this. Our advice is not to try it. We didn't. Theoretically we threw a stone over our left shoulder and where the stone fell we dug up one square yard of sweet clover—roots and all. There are 4,840 square yards in one acre. It's easier to figure than to dig.

Here are the figures for one square yard of sweet clover converted to the acre basis: Total top and root green weight 13.7 tons. Total air dry basis tops and roots 5,445 lbs. Per cent loss in weight, tops and roots combined, 80.3 per cent. This is equivalent to 1,913 gallons of water. To hold this water would require a tank 5 feet in diameter and 13 feet high.

The green weight of the roots on the acre basis was 8,167 lbs. or 4 tons. The air dry weight of roots on acre basis was 1,966 lbs. The per cent loss in weight in roots was 76.

May 15 is earlier than most crops make a showing in the north, and yet on this date this sweet clover would furnish nearly 14 tons of green manure, or 3,479 lbs. of very dry hay for the cows and 1,966 lbs. of dry roots for the soil.

If it's green manure that one wants there is no better way to get it. If it's good cow pasture that one wants we are sure that most cows will not object to an early start. For the 15th of May it's quite a pasture at that, because an acre of it would feed 129 cows one day, 32 cows four days, 8 cows 16 days, 2 cows 64 days, or one cow 122 days, allowing each cow 150 lbs. of green sweet clover each day and assuming that there would be no further growth.

For each 150 lbs. of sweet clover consumed there would be about 13.8 gallons of water and 27 lbs. air dry hay consumed. There are both food and drink in the crop. This hay would supply about 2.94 lbs. digestible protein and 13.69 lbs. total digestible nutrients daily. A 1,200 lb. cow producing 20 lbs. of 4 per cent milk daily would require 1.92 lbs. digestible protein and 16.32 lbs. total digestible nutrients. The surplus of protein added to the carbohydrates in the sweet clover ration would make it only about a pound and a half short of adequately supplying this 1,200 lb. cow with nutrients to produce 20 lbs. of 4 per cent milk daily. A crop that would enable a dairyman to harvest 103 lbs. of butter-fat per acre on May 15 is worth thinking about, in addition to which it waters the cows at the rate of 15 gallons a day.

There were 111 sweet clover plants on the square yard dug up. Surprised again? So were we, but we counted all of them.

Arrangements For Harvesters

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 3. (Special by the Examiner).—If the crops now ripening in western Canada are going to be harvested as they should be, 50,000 harvesters will have to be taken into the three prairie provinces and distributed throughout the farms. This is an unusually large number. In 1923, 3,000 went from Eastern Canada but there is no doubt that the full Quota required this year will be readily obtained.

The return of the harvesters to their homes in the East is arranged for as follows.

On arr val at the destination where the harvesters take up their work, verification certificate of their ticket is deposited with the station agent and when they are ready to return they are sold a ticket through to their starting point at a rate of half a cent a mile to Winnipeg, plus $20.00 to their starting point in Ontario or Quebec.

Milk Flow Falls

BURNBRAE Aug. 3.—The milk flow has fallen off considerably in July due to heat and flies. A few farmers with second growth alfalfa pasture or a few newly-freshened cows are holding up well but most of the spring-freshened herds have dropped. The price of cheese holds steady over the 21 cent mark. June cheese averaged over 20c per lb. and paid patrons for butter-f at as high as 51 3/5 c per lb.

In fertility tests at an experiment station the addition of phosphorus alone has increased the yield of all crops about 30 per cent. This test has been carried on for 15 years.

A "Different" Vacation

By MARY C. McLELLAN, Peterboro.

Having finished supper, a certain family lingered at the table, holding a consultation, or as the son called it, a "pow wow" over the engrossing subject of their annual visit to the Beach.

There was "father," a big handsome man, genial and gentlemanly, full of good humor and the finest type of natural courtesy.

There was "mother," a most delightful woman. Perfect happiness had permitted her to retain all her youthful charm, and her hair of rippling gold had no encroaching silver threads among its heavy coils.

The son was a tall athletic young man, home from college graduation and eager for business, just such a fellow as his father must have been some years before,—the same dark curly hair, fine forehead and dark eyes of brilliance and keenness. The same broad shoulders, and best of all, the same unfailing good humor.

Then there was the daughter, graduated from high school, a dainty bit of femininity, with large blue eyes in whose clear depths one read sweetness and beauty combined with a perpetual bubbling of fun. Her wavy brown hair framed a sweet oval face, full of vivacity, sparkling with life and boundless energy.

As the mother folded her napkin she had said, "we really should plan about our beach trip."

"Oh Mumzie dear, do let's have it different this year," coaxed the daughter.

"Yes," echoed the brother, "that's what I say, too, do let us introduce into our annual pilgrimage something exciting."

"But," queried his father, "how are you going to work up any excitement over a trip to the beach? There are no lions there, unless you develop into one ——"

"No, but," insisted the son, "we get into a rut; we do the same things each summer. We go to Weyburn Beach just because we went there last year. We went last year because we went there the year before. The men sit at the west end of that half acre of veranda, smoke endless smokes, read papers and talk shop; the women gather in squads on the eastern half acre, and 'tat' as they swap notes on measles and chicken-pox, —one tells how Billy's chicken-pox hatched out, Mrs. Jinning Jones tells how far you could hear Johnnie whoop, and how early Jimmie talked or how late he walked and how early he cut his teeth ——"

"You awful boy," interrupted his mother, "we do not, and you don't know 'crochet' from 'tat.'"

"Here! here! Mumzie," chimed in the daughter, then announced firmly, "Motherkins must have some pretty new dresses."

"Mercy, no, child," she replied, "I am so old now, it doesn't matter how I look."

A triple protest was raised in unison, for the mother in that home was the centre around which the family revolved. The son was emphatic in his protest, declaring "you and Dad look just as young as Sis and I do."

"Sis" sat with her elbows on the table, her cupped hands supporting her chin. At her brother's remark, she gazed long and thoughtfully at her parents in an abstracted way, while the trio settled several minor details and decided not to visit Weyburn Beach, but to seek a different beach.

Suddenly "Sis" sat erect, clapped her hands ecstatically, and bouncing up an down on her chair, declared jubilantly, "oh I have the most deliriously delicious idea, oh we will, we will! and it will be different all right."

They skeptically demanded she should lay her plans before them, which she proceeded to do in detail but as a gust of wind sweeping through the house, blew the dining room door shut with a resounding slam, we are not permitted to hear her highly colored plan, but as she finished, the door was opened and we may hear the chorus of remarks her plan elicited. Her father leaned back and roared with laughter, her brother assumed a tired air and said, "good stuff, but I don't see much fun in it for me," and her mother said, "it is the silliest of all silly plans and too absurd for words." Then she giggled like a school girl and looked at her husband who was regarding her with a quizzical smile. He said to her, "you fit the specifications my dear, but me, oh man alive!" Then turning to his son he asked in mock deference, "could I read any at all, just the Amherst Daily News perhaps?"

It was then the little daughter with sweet insistence, honeyed blandishments and adroit wheedling, carried the day, gaining a reluctant and protesting consent, after which she skipped away, closely followed by her brother to "dope it out" as they said.

. . . . . .

It was a warm July morning at Freemont Point,—the spacious verandah of the one hotel, facing the beach, was a pleasant scene. There were a number of pleasant faced mothers there, whose husbands spent week-ends at the hotel, a few married couples spending their holidays together and the usual group of children romped on the beach. As is often the case one or two who might be termed "oddities" afforded amusement for the others.

The guests were enjoying the sea breezes and the many comfortable chairs on the verandah, and were prophesying a scorching hot day; several grew reminiscent, and many tales of extreme heat were in the telling, when the tales suddenly lost point, as a couple drove up in a taxi. The gentleman stepped out and assisted his companion from the car. Her lithe and graceful movements showed this attention to be scarcely necessary.

All eyes were upon the couple as they approached the verandah steps, and Mrs. Phoebe Spicer said to Mrs. Griggs, her fat neighbor, "humph! bride and groom, very gallant he looked a-helpin' her out, but wait ten years and he'll be a-lettin' her climb out by herself, and she won't be a-lookin' at him so gushy mushy."

"Laws!" exclaimed Mrs. Griggs, as soon as Mrs Spicer paused for breath, "everything new, the whole kit and calabash, new hat, new gloves, new suit —what kinda materal is that, Phoebe?"

By this time the smiling couple had entered the hall, signed the register and disappeared.

Mrs. Phoebe Spicer, tall, angular, and eagle eyed, rose and going cautiously into the hall, peered intently at the register, then going back to her former seat announced, "it's Mr and Mrs James J. Stanbury of Frenwick, now where in the time o' nation is Frenwick?"

"It's som'eres around Leschester way, 'pears to me," said Mr. Griggs. "I mind there was a man there had a garden, 'bout the size of that there lawn, and ——" Mr. Griggs paused a moment to stimulate interest, then launched into a complete summary of the amount of vegetables raised on that garden plot, until Mrs. Spicer cut in with—"for the land's sakes, he must'a stood that garden up on edge and cultivated both sides of it."

Then her thoughts, returning to Mr. and Mrs Stanbury, she said, "I suppose now they'll spoon and honeymoon till we'll be nigh about sick."

The other ladies, although not so voluble, were equally interested, and many conjectures were heard regarding the new-comers, their appearance, probable occupation, and especially their ages were discussed in subdued tones.

Little Miss Speers chirped, "oh isn't it romantic having a bride and groom come, and isn't she sweet?"

"Humph!" sniffed Mrs. Spicer, "she'll never see thirty again, and just wait till she confronts the same old dish cloth three times a day for ten years ——"

"Oh, dear," squealed Miss Speers, "a dish cloth would never wear that long——"

"You know what I mean," said Mrs. Spicer, "and you'd profit to steer accordin'ly."

Jolly little Mrs. Barrington assured them she felt positive the bride was not even thirty, but Mrs. Spicer insisted "you haf to allow two to ten years for all them new duds; you dress me all up in them new clothes and I'd look ten years younger."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Griggs meditatively, "dressed up in those there new togs, you'd look to be about ——"

Here Mr. and Mrs. Stanbury appeared on the verandah and Mrs. Griggs' estimate was mercifully cut short.

Mrs. Spicer whispered to Mrs. Griggs, "see her look at him as if he was governor or premier or archbishop."

"Well, she's got someone worth looking at," returned Mrs. Griggs. It may be mentioned the late Mr. Spicer had been an extraordinarily homely man.

"Did you notice," boasted Mrs. Spicer, "how quickly I picked 'em out for bride and groom? I always was the observinest one of our family, an' I just spotted 'em as quick as you'd say scat."

Here they observed Mrs. Stanbury opened a dainty bag of embroidered silk and took from it a handkerchief; as she did so a miniature shower of confetti fell about. Mrs. Stanbury looked up into her husband's face, blushing and smiling, while he bent his head and with shaking shoulders, murmured something to her, over which they both laughed in repressed merriment.

For a few moments she moved amon the ladies, and by her unaffected ways and sweet personality, won every heart among them, although the opportunity to question her was not to be missed.

"How nice your husband seems," said Mrs. Barrington.

"Indeed he is," agreed Mrs. Stanbury, with enthusiasm, "he is just a prince," and her face lighted up as she spoke.

"Have you known him quite a spell?" queried Mrs. Spicer.

"Oh, yes, a long time and ——" but further questions and answers were suspended, as all eyes were turned upon a new arrival, a fine looking young man carrying a shabby suitcase and a shabbier club bag. His clothes were obviously worn and a neat patch adorned the right elbow of his coat sleeve but his manner was nonchalant and buoyant.

He paused and spoke to Mr. Stanbury in a respectful manner, who replied with a careless "hello Roger." The young man passed in to the hall, Mrs. Stanbury joined her husband and together they strolled down to the beach.

Mrs. Spicer again visited the register, and returning, said with assurance, "Roger Stanbury,—now I'll guarantee he's Mr. Stanbury's younger brother. You mind I said I was always observin', —well it 'pears like a gift, but anyway, it's just as clear to me as the nose on your face that this young fellow is Mr. Stanbury's kid brother,—see the resemblance? I noticed it first thing, and there's the name—that settles it. The young fellow is poor—did you notice that patch? You see his elder brother has prospered, bein' in business a few years, then o' course gettin' married he's a-puttin' his best foot forrard in the matter of clothes and such. Then did you notice how respectful like Roger spoke to his elder brother—?"

Mrs. Griggs cut her oration short to say, "he may have spoken respectfully, but Mr. Stanbury didn't seem tickled to death to see him: didn't hand him any bouquets."

Mrs. Barrington's merry voice broke in, "rich men always have poor nephews, and I just guess you'll find this Roger is Mr. Stanbury's nephew, and has come here on purpose to work on the sympathy of his uncle, and try for a job in his store, or warehouse or blacksmith shop—"

"Blacksmith shop!" squealed Miss Speers, "didn't you notice his hands?"

"He's an insurance agent, take my word for it," urged Mrs. Griggs, "every insurance agent has that way with 'em."

"What way, pray tell?" parried Miss Speers.

"Oh, well, they just make you believe in 'em and for the life of you, you don't know why," she answered.

"No, sir-ee," put in quiet little Mr. Smith, "he's got the square jaws of a bank president. He deals in figures,—that man."

The debate suddenly ended as the dinner gong sounded its welcome summons. While they were seated at the table, two young ladies arrived, and after very hasty preliminaries were seated at the table; one a tall dark-eyed girl was seated beside Mrs. Spicer, who soon found her name was Olive Barton; the other, a demure little Miss with wavy brown hair was seated directly opposite Roger Stanbury. She glanced about the table and her eyes rested for a moment upon Roger's handsome face. Instantly a smile flashed across her face, transforming her into a veritable sunbeam.

Roger's expression showed a very evident appreciation of her charm, and when the guests filed out again to the veranda, he managed with adroit carelessness to seat himself opposite her, on the broad upper step.

The men stood about discussing a boating trip, while Mr. and Mrs. Stanbury had resumed their former seats, and as he opened a book several atoms of confetti fell fluttering to the floor, falling beside the demure little lady on the step. She gazed at the specks, then raised questioning eyes to Mrs. Stanbury's sweet face, taking a swift survey of the lady and her attractive attire, glancing also at the devoted gentleman. A light dawned upon her winsome face, and she smiled upon Mrs. Stanbury, who not only smiled in return, but evidently introduced herself and her husband. As they rose and stood together, Roger appeared at the elder Stanbury's side, and more introductions followed, after which Roger and the little lady strolled down to the beach together.

"Well, for all land's sakes, did you see all that?" demanded Mrs. Spicer; "her name's Betty Henderson," nodding her head in the direction of the register. "Just came, and yet wasn't she givin' him the sweet smile at the table? I'll just bet he falls in love with her."

"H'm, yes," grumbled Mrs. Griggs, —"and him with most likely not a dollar ahead. Patches and fallin' in love don't somehow seem to fit in."

"Well," soothed Mrs. Barrington, "his uncle must approve of it, for he introduced them."

"Oh, they are so sweet themselves, I s'pose he thinks it's all right in his kid brother," sighed Mrs. Spicer.

Mr. Stanbury was devoted to his wife. He shielded her from draughts, placing a scarf about her shoulders if a puff of wind sprang up, and anticipated her every wish, while she evidently looked upon him as if he were indeed a prince.

Roger and Bettyb became inseparable companions, and the ladies unanimously agreed it had been a case of love at first sight. Gradually a friendship grew up between Betty and Olive Barton, and very soon Olive accompanied the young couple on their walks, boating trips and other pastimes.

Then Mrs. Spicer, who had proclaimed the flirting of Betty and Roger as "simply sickenin'," took upon herself a new grouch. "Now," she said, "when that nice Betty girl gets herself a handsome beau with a rich brother, that Olive girl comes along and butts in. Just look at the beauty of her,—she'll cut Betty out, you'll see! She's a silly little goose to let her be a taggin' along."

Betty apparently untouched by the slightest thought of jealousy, enjoyed every passing hour; in fact, the three young people seemed to radiate happiness, although Mrs. Barrington once found Betty looking fixedly at the patch on Roger's coat sleeve with a very thoughtful expression on her usually merry face, and privately decided "she's counting the cost of marrying a poor man."

The days had passed all too quickly, until the Stanbury's stay was coming to a close. Their last day, a bright sunny morning with a strong breeze, found the guests planning their days programme. Roger invited Betty to go boating, and they promptly disappeared in the direction of the beach.

"It is so windy, I am going in to write letters," said Mrs. Stanbury; "there will be so much else to do tomorrow."

"I will write a dozen or so, too," her band said, as they went in together.

The writing room was on the sheltered side of the house, and their correspondence occupied the greater part of the morning. Meantime the breeze increased to a heavy gale; great waves were rolling in against the diving stand with angry violence, and the ocean was a mass of seething white-caps when Mr. and Mrs. Stanbury reappeared on the veranda, where they suddenly halted in horror, and Mrs. Stanbury went white to the lips, as clutching her husband's arm, she gasped, "Oh Jim, the sea! the children! oh Jim, the children, they are out there in that awful sea,—oh, they may be lost!"

Tremblingly she hid her face in her hands for a moment, then sprang forward, as if for rescue or death, closely followed by her husband, whose face expressed the gravest concern, when around the corner came Betty and Roger laughing gaily, and running lightly up the steps confronted the deeply agitated couple.

Mrs. Stanbury caught Betty to her convulsively cried, "Oh Betty my darling daughter, I thought I had lost my children," and she looked shuddering at the sea.

Betty, forgetting all else, exclaimed, "Oh, Mumzie dear, I never thought to tell you—the boatman would not let us have a boat,—he knew it was going to be rough, and I am so sorry dear Motherkins, that you were worried."

Roger, standing by in mingled compassion and amusement, turned to the elder Stanbury and said, "Well, Dad, they've spilled the beans at last."

"Yes, my son, but all's well that——" but the proverb was cut short as Betty clapped both hands over her mouth, then squealed, "O-o-oh, what have I —what have we said?"

"I suppose we have let the cat out of the bag," laughed her mother hysterically. "But——"

"Oh, dear!" lamented Betty self reproachfully, "and I had such a beautiful tableau all planned out, for when the car comes for us."

"Oh, well, this will do for tableau daughter," said Mr. Stanbury, as he glanced amusedly at the looks of incredulous astonishment all about them, —from Mrs. Spicer sitting open mouthed, occasionally murmuring to herself "Well, for all land's sakes," to Olive Barton, standing by with heightened color and a perfectly inscrutable expression on her face.

Mrs. Spicer was the first of those who had gathered about the quartet to find her voice. "I thought at first, the bride had gone sorta crazy like," she said.

"Bride!" shrilled Mrs. Griggs,—with grown up young people calling her mother." Then, turning to Mrs. Stanbury, she demanded, "are you their step-mother?"

"No!" cried Betty, answering for her mother, "step-nothing, but my ownest Mothery Mother."

"But," protested Mrs. Griggs, "how can a woman of thirty——"

Mrs. Stanbury's clear laugh drowned the question. "My dear Mrs. Griggs I am forty-one," she said.

Mrs. Spicer turned to Betty, "how about your name—Betty Henderson; ain't a widow are you?"

"No," laughed Betty, but my name is Betty Henderson Stanbury, but it is so much name, I thought a part of it would be enough for this trip." Then with sparkling eyes and glowing cheeks she told of the plan she had evolved a few weeks before, of her insistence that her parents should go as bride and groom, wearing for once, all the new things, "and I do assure you," she chuckled, "I had a time and a half to persuade my dear folks into an agreement. Dad laughed, Mumzie said it was silly seventy-nine times, and Roger thought it would be no fun to flirt with me——"

Here Mrs. Spicer shrilled, "land's sakes, and I was getting jealous fer you, of that Olive girl; I thought you was a goose to allow her——"

"Sh-h," interposed Mrs. Griggs, laying violent hands upon her, "she'll hear you."

Roger, blushing furiously, glanced in the direction indicated by Mrs. Griggs, and met a pair of dark eyes, and if looks are any indication, it would be safe to venture the opinion that Olive did not seem disappointed to find this wonderfully fine-looking young man was only Betty's brother.

As the chattering group dispersed, Mr. Stanbury said to his son, "Roger, the first thing you do should be to shed that patched coat."

"Agreed, Sir Dad," he said, but thoughtfully added, as he glanced again in Olive's direction, "I like to think I made friends in a patched coat."

"Yes," taunted Betty laughingly, "and you were sure there'd be no fun in the plan for you."

Later, Roger correctly attired in outing flannels, spent two whole hours bidding Olive goodbye, and the most casual observer would decide he had found a new rut, and that he would wish to spend the next summer's vacation at Freemont Point because he had spent this one there.

As the Stanbury family left in a big touring car, Betty said, "Oh, I have had a deleriously delicious time, and it was different."

COLIC

CHAMBERLAIN'S DIARRHOEA REMEDY

KU KLUX KLAN DOES ITS STUFF

Above is an exclusive photograph of the reception of a class of new members into the ranks of the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire at Toronto. The Klan has made strides of late and has now branches in Hamilton, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, London, Woodstock, Brantford, Sarnia, Kitchener and other points. Public meetings and a parade in full regalia are planned for the near future. The picture is the only one of an initiation ever taken in Canada.

HER GREAT AMBITION IS TO SWIM THE CHANNEL

Miss Eva Morrison of Pictou, Nova Scotia, although only nineteen years of age, has already performed some feats as a swimmer, which show skill and endurance beyond the strength of most hardy men.

Last year she won the swimming race four miles out to sea to Pictou Light, beating the men competitors, an especially difficult swim because of the cross currents. The water is also very cold, never over forty degrees.

The icy sea forced fourteen men swmmers out of a match at Halifax, but Miss Morrison stayed in and finished the ten mile course.

A few months ago, she went down to Boston to show Americans what she could do in the ocean. When she reached Boston, several men decided to swim the race with her from Charlestown Bridge out to the Boston light house, a distance of twelve miles through rough sea. But the water was very cold, only sixteen or eighteen degrees above freezing, and all the male contestants but one abandoned the swim at once. He swam out a mile and then turned back because of the cold.

But the girl went on and on until she had covered six, eight, ten miles. A half mile farther on she had to give up, though she was within a mile and a half of her goal, because the tide had turned too strongly to make it possible for any human to battle it. A delayed start in taking off for the swim was wholly responsible, but Eva Morrison would not let any such incident prevent her swimming that whole twelve miles in one stretch.

So, just a week later she tried it again, diving off the Charlestown Bridge at three o'clock in the morning in order to beat the tide. This time she swam alone and in seven hours and a half this girl from the north swam the twelve miles to the Boston Light. The row boat that accompanied her was not easy to land on the beach there, and the girl who had been in the water seven hours and a half was still so fresh that she lent a hand in pulling the boat on to the beach.

When she had finished this swim, which is considered a classic test of any swimmer's skill and endurance, and her victory was being acclaimed, she only said, "That is just one more bit of swimming finished. Some day I want to swim the English Channel."

And she is just the sort to think it great fun to try to conquer that choppy sea, this girl who has trained her body so splendidly in northern waters which most people would consider quite too cold to even swim in.

ORGANIZER OF WORKERS WAILS RED ELEMENT IN TRADE UNIONS

George Barnes Says Community Must Reassert Its Supremacy.

ACTION NEEDED.

Men Who Lead Would See Blood Spilled Without Compunction.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Trade unionists of the old school, who are regarded as fossilized by new leaders, such as A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, are shaking their heads over the latest demonstration of power achieved by the unions in connection with the threatened strike of coal miners last week.

George Nicoll Barnes, who served as Labor member of the House of Commons for Glasgow from 1906 to 1922, and who for many years has taken an active part in the co-operation movement, told the Daily Mail that when years ago he helped to organize unskilled workers he never foresaw that they one day would "take the community by the throat."

"In view of what happened last week," he declared, "the community must in some way re-assert itself and become top dog. The Red element, although very small in number, has assumed the direction. It is represented only to a small extent among positions of authority in trade unions, but the leaders are being dragged along by it.

"Among the signatories of last week's order forbidding the transport of coal in the event of a strike, were men who knew the goal to which they were heading and who would see blood spilled without compunction.

The future course of events cannot be forecast. One can only think the country is marching to industrial chaos."

BRITISH PEDESTRIANS UNITE.

Protection Association Formed to Save For Walkers a Few Chances of Living.

LONDON, Aug. 3.— This is the first country to take up the cause of the pedestrian against the motorist. There has been organized the "Pedestrian Protection Association" to save for the folks who walk some chances of living.

The immediate causes which brought this about were the rapidly increasing street accidents. In 1918 there were in Great Britain 36,685 accidents of this kind; in 1921, 26,621; in 1923, 83,101, and in 1924, 96,215. This increase of casualties in proportion to the growing number of automobiles and the pedestrians fear extinction.

America is held up here as an horrible example, for it is currently reported that there nobody is expected to walk. If one persists in being so rash he must take his chances. He is merely putting himself on a par with tightrope walkers and parachute jumpers.

Beauty Transformed.

But the British people like to walk. From time immemorial they have loved their country lanes and have delighted to stroll along them. Now, of a sudden, the country lanes are turned into motor roads and engines come tearing around blind curves and out of hidden driveways without notice.

This is the reason the toll of accidents is heaping up. They are becoming as costly as war, and the number of fatalities is nearly as great.

The motorists were first to realize the enormity of the danger and they took steps to protect themselves. They succeeded admirably and the service given by the two automobile associations of Great Britain is unexcelled.

"Road Hogs" First.

But still there was no one but himself to look out for the fellow on foot, and in the greater number of cases he was the chief sufferer. Now he has his own organization, and among the first fellows he is going to get is the "road hog."

"Every man or woman is a pedestrian," said Norman Gasson, the general secretary of the new organization recently. "We are in no way opposed to the motorists. In fact, we are eager to make matters easier for the careful driver. But we are out to eliminate, if possible, the road hog. We hope to do for the pedestrians what the automobile associations do for the motorists."

The pedestrian's organization will back the automobile associations in their efforts to get better roads and better road markings and in every movement designed to make the highways safer, pleasanter and more serviceable. But in every contention they will have the point of view of the man on foot, and they will see that life is made a little safer and happier for him.

PIPE BAND CONCERT HAD BIG AUDIENCE

Piping, Dancing and Singing Received Favorable Comment.

General comment is usually the criterion of anything pertaining to the concerts in the parks during the summer months, and the following opinions expressed thus, speaks for itself. "I always enjoy the Pipers' concert, and truly a credit to you boys," said a life resident of the city. "A real treat and credit to the city for such an organization," replied an elderly lady, and another gentleman retorted, "I wouldn't miss a Pipe Band concert for anything." If applause and noise from automobiles is any indication of praise, no doubt the city "Kilties" received an abundance of it at the concert given in Victoria park Friday evening.

In full Highland Cameron regalia the Pipe Band opened up the proceedings with two six-eight times.

An appropriate song, "March of the Cameron Men" and encore, given by Mr. John Anderson, was well received.

A very pleasant feature of the concert is the introduction of feminine singers, in which Miss Doyle, a local soprano singer, rendered up-to-date songs and was compelled to respond to many requests.

It is one thing sure, a Highland dancer not on the artist list, would be out of the ordinary, but Miss Isa Thompson gave an excellent account in dancing when she danced the Highland Fling and the difficult Sword Dance, to the strains of the pipes played by Piper Milne, who also played a march, reel and strathspey during the evening.

"Scots Wha Hae," sung by Pipe Major Jack Smith, in dramatic military fashion, appealed to the audience.

"Never Enough," was the chorus flung at Robert Hendry, who was brimming over with mirth in his repertoire of songs and stories. His "Canadian Girls for Me" was given an able setting when a little fair-haired maiden wandered on the platform at the time he was singing and stayed with him until he left her with a "kiss" and a roar of laughter filled the park. Smith and Hendry then sang "Love's Old Sweet Song," and as a special request, Harry Lauder's impersonator gave "I Like the Swagger of Your Kilt."

Throughout the programme the band played "Portree Bay," "Scotland the Brave" and many more to the audience that stayed until the final of a good concert.

Show windows at home

YOU can get a degree of enjoyment just by looking at show windows . . . seeing the clocks, radios, fountain pens you might like to own. But you can't be sure you'd like them till you know their unseen merits. What they do, how well they do it, how long they'll keep on doing it well.

When you look at advertisements, you are looking at show windows that display not only what you see, but what you can't see. The product, its quality, use, pleasure to you. All you want to know about it—yours at a glance. You don't need to walk blocks to see what's new . . . nor look at it in doubt. Nothing doubtful is offered. It can't be doubtful and be widely advertised. You are as sure of a product's worth as if you saw it in a window, asked about it, examined it, took it home and tried it. The facts in advertisements are the facts of actual use.

You can get more than enjoyment out of these show windows at home. You can get solid economy.

Read the advertisements. They make your choosing wise

The Merry Men of the Greenwood had assembled out at the home of Wess Johnson, the now fully acknowledged Robin Hood of the band, for a Saturday in the woods.

The boys had arrived half an hour ahead of time, in order to help Wess pick twenty-four boxes of raspberries for market, a task which the ten boys completed in no time to speak of. Wess was free for the day.

The band had just arrived at the old cedar rail fence, and some were over it, when a thunder storm came up. It was a thunder storm of the all-day variety, so the boys all ran back to Johnson's and our story finds them up in the hayloft of the huge barn, sitting in a circle on some hay spread on the floor, with Robin Hood in the centre, sitting on a knot of pine that proved too tough for the ax, and telling them a Grizzly Bear story which he had heard from one of those queer fellows called naturalists.

The barn doors were open and the rain poured down outside, and the gloomy Merry Men soon forgot they were even in a barn, for their Robin Hood had them hugging their knees and thinking they were away in British Columbia, in the Grizzly Bear Rocky Mountains.

"You see," said Wess, from his pine-stump perch, "this is a true story. It was told to me by one of those queer bird and bug hunters, but you Merry Men will have to meet some of those guys, for they know a few things, those same guys, they aren't half so dry as folks think. Why, this man is an uncle of mine; that's how I came to know him, and when once I got him to tell me some stories, I liked him better than other folks."

The other boys swallowed all this preliminary gusto and looked up to Wess as one who had secret magic and strange friendships among wise men.

"Yes-sir-ee, this is the truth," said Wess.

"Before the war, the German Government sent two of their most stubborn and short-sighted butterfly naturalists out to British Columbia, to visit a strange and beautiful valley, far in the mountains to find some more strange and more beautiful butterflies that were known to live there.

The Canadian Government sent these two silly wise men to my uncle, with instructions to take them into the beautiful valley and keep them from breaking their necks and help them to find the butterflies wanted.

My uncle got an Indian guide, some horses, tents and food, and away they all went, up into the Grizzly Bear country. The Germans were warned about the wild country, but being over wise, they knew it all, and when a man gets that way, you just have to let him lose his head and then find it for him, and he is willing to admit that other folks maybe know something too.

Anyway, the valley was reached in about a week and the Indian and my uncle started to put up the tents and make the camp ready for a good stay. These two were very busy

The two short-sighted and terribly fat Germans started to go in search of bugs, beetles and butterflies, armed with nothing but magnifing glasses and nets. My uncle is just as good as they are at that stuff, but he is human and they didn't think he knew anything.

They started off. They were not missed, for there was so much to do that nobody watched the other guy

One German strayed only a little way, becoming interested in some flowers near at hand. The other German went farther and farther up the sloping ground, toward the rocky heights. He would just miss a butterfly, chase it like mad, miss again and again, and so on, until he was quite far up.

Bears are so very human that they do things we might do ourselves. There was a huge Grizzly Bear up there, but when he saw the German acting so much like a madman, chasing a little butterfly about, he forgot he was a bear and became human for a while, just peeking from behind a rock and wondering what that stupid monkey of a man was trying to do.

Where there are Grizzly Bears, things do not generally die down without excitement. Something generally happens, and this was no exception.

"Wheee!" exclaimed Jimmy, "I wish I had been there, I'd have given that—"

"Ah you keep quiet, Friar Tuck, or we will have little John punish you for interrupting Robin Hood," said Bill.

There was a general rumpus for a moment, then Wess was permitted to go on.

"The Grizzly was sitting there and the German almost poked his goggly eyed glasses in the bear's face before he saw him.

"Wow!" yelled the naturalist, dropping his net and gasping for breath He turned on his heel and started down the mountain yelling like a madman, which he was by this time, hollering for help and the curious bear just running after him in a half curious manner.

But curious bears get angry when their curiosity is not satisfied and the running man made the bear angry and they both came running toward the tent.

The nearest German did not see what was the matter until it was time to run, so he headed the procession, two fat goggly eyed naturalists and a bear, reaching out from behind, trying to hook the clothes of the nearest man. Down they came.

My uncle had no time to get a gun and the Indian was with the horses, and everybody was taken by surprise. Before anyone could do anything to help matters, the procession arrived and was now headed by the Indian, followed by my uncle, followed by two fat men and the bear. The procession went round the single tent, like a whirlwind, until my uncle got behind the bear, slipped into the tent on the next whirl round and got a gun, thus ending the story. The Germans were so scared that they went home that day."

"It has stopped raining, Robin Hood," said Friar Tuck.

In two minutes, the Merry Men were out of the barn.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DEE MEETS A REAL-FOR-SURE FARMER.

When Dee stepped on the smooth place that skirted a little ant hill she was startled by a tiny voice.

"Please, please, don't walk on there," called the tiny voice, and Dee, glancing down, saw a large brownish ant in front of her feet. "Please don't step on my garden. It takes us a long time to plant and keep it looking nice."

"Oh, I beg your pardon," said Dee, stepping back from the smooth place onto the grass again. "I didn't mean to step on your garden. Why, how funny. Is all this land yours? All the smooth place, I mean."

"It certainly is mine," laughed Mr. Brown Ant. "That is, my family and I have cleared it all out and have it planted with juicy grass."

"I'm sorry I'm so big," laughed Dee. "I'd just love to come in and see your place. I sure wish——" But Dee got no further. She began to shrink and shrink and the grasses that were below her feet before towered above her head like giant trees. "Why, I am as tiny as you. May I come in now?"

"Certainly, certainly," laughed Mr. Brown Ant. "Just don't step on my grass. You see, we had to work hard to clear this space around the ant hill. It's all planted with a grain-bearing grass that has a seed something like the rice your Mama cooks for you, only the grains are much smaller than rice."

"It Looks Like a Farm."

"And what do you do with the grain?" asked Dee. "Why, it looks like a little farm, as sure as I'm alive! Are you a Farmer Ant?"

"They call us Agricultural Ants," replied Mr. Brown Ant. "We gather the grain when it is ripe and store it down in our cellars. Never seen the inside of our houses? Well, come right in and you'll see something new," and he led Dee over to the very center of the smooth place to a little ant hill. He ran up the side of the hill and beckoned to Dee.

Several brown ants came out of the opening, each carrying something in his mouth.

"Don't mind them," laughed Mr. Brown Ant. "They are my workers. You see, the rainstorm we had last night just soaked our seeds and youngsters, so everything has to be brought out into the sunshine to dry. Seeds that are not soaked too much we dry and store away again, but those that are too wet we throw away. Come right in," and he led the way down a long hallway, Dee close at his heels several rooms opened off this main hall. These rooms were crowded with little brown ants, every one as busy as could be. Dee peeked into them as she passed, but followed Mr. Brown Ant down to the very end of the long tunnel, where there was a great big room, just filled with grain.

Little ants were weaving in and out, carrying the grain to the sunlight.

"You certainly are a splendid farmer," laughed Dee. "It's a good farmer who has his rooms stored for a rainy days."

"Maybe some day we'll overcome the rainy weather and know how to build so the rains won't make us work. But work, after all, is the only thing to keep us from getting lonesome." Just then there was a terrible rumble and Dee found herself back above the ground, her regular size. A storm was coming and the ants were scurrying every way trying to get their seeds back into the house. Dee smiled and dug a tiny ditch around the farm place. Then she put a great big box right over the ant hill, and when the storm was over Mr. Brown Ant's farm was nice and dry.

PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. JOHN'S.

In 1831 an advertisement appeared in a Cobourg paper calling for estimates for the erection of an Episcopal church. The estimated cost was $1399 but by the time that the St. John's church became an accomplished fact the sum of $2150 had been expended. The first minister Rev. Samuel Armour, was a tutor and schoolmaster as well as a preacher.

In 1892 the church was restored at a cost of $15,000. The chancel was built anew, the interior was finished anew in an exceedingly fine manner, and St. John's was pronounced to be within "the most church-like church" in the province. This beautiful church is built in the Tudor-Gothic style and has the characteristic three pointed arches, lending a pleasing and beautiful effect. All the windows are of beautiful stained glass, among them being several memorial windows.

Within the church are the old colors of the 57th Regiment presented by the ladies of Peterboro, and deposited with military ceremony in the church in 1904.

On the 75th anniversary of the church, 1909, Canon Davidson resolved to make an appeal for funds to instal a peal of bells. Practically all denominations assisted in the effort, and some two years later, on June 22, 1911, the Coronation day of George V the "People's Chimes" were inaugurated in the presence of a large and representative gathering including the Bishop of Toornto, the Mayor and Council, Canon Davidson and the officers of St. John's church, with the 57th Regiment and a troop of Boy Scouts in attendance. The chime of bells cost $6500, and is one of the largest in Canada.

Under the deed of gift the church undertakes to ring the bells on a holiday and to grant to private individuals the privilege of having the bells pealed for weddings free of charge except for a small fee to cover the charge for operation of the bells.

The church is built on the rectory lands bounded by Hunter, Water, Brock and Sheridan Streets, and alongside it is a handsome Gothic school and chapel built some years ago.

St. John's has always been noted for the musical portion of its services, the choir leader having invariably been one of the most accomplished musicians of the city, and the choir, assisted by female voices, one of the outstanding organizations of Peterboro. The services open and close with procesional and recessional hymns. The Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave has been vicar of St. John's since 1921.

WHAT'S IN A PLANT NAME

Continuing the directory of last week, we will find many familiar names, that is, familiar in the catalogues but not familiar in meaning. For urposes of positive designation, the scientific name which is usually Latin of a plant is the most reliable. As a system of nomenclature they are fixed and for the most part universal.

Elatior: taller.
Elatus: tall.
Ericoides: like health.
Excelsus: tall.
Eximius: distinguished.
Exoticus: from another country.
Farmaceous: like flour, containing starch.
Filamentosus: bearing or composed of threads.
Filifera: bearing filaments or threads.
Flabellatus: with fan-like parts.
Flagellatus: whip like.
Flavescens: becoming yellow.
Flavus: yellow.
Florepleuo: with full or double flowers.
Floribundus: free flowering.
Floridus: full of flowers, flowering.
Foliatus: with leaves.
Formosus: beautiful.
Fragrans: fragrant.
Fulgens: shining, glistening.
Fluous: yellow, tawny.
Gallicus, or Gaul or France.
Gandavensis: belonging to Ghent, Belgium.
Glaucus: grayish, with a bloom.
Globosus: spherical, nearly globular.
Glomeratus: clustered.
Gracilis: slender, graceful.
Grandiflorus: large flowered.
Glandifolius: large leaved.
Grandis: large.
Himalaicus: Himalayan.
Hirsutus: hairy.
Hispanica: Spanish.
Hortensis: belonging to the garden.
Humilis: low growing.
Hyacinthus: sapphire colored.
Hybridus: hybrid, mongrel.
Ilicifolius: holly leaved.
Lacetus: milk-white.
Laevigatus: smooth.
Lanuginosus: wooly, downy.
Latifolius: bread leaved.
Longiflorus :long-flowered.
Longifolius: long-leaved.
Lutescens: becoming yellow.
Luteus: yellow.
Macranthus: large flowered.
Maculatus: spotted.
Majalus: of May.
Majoe: larger.
Maritimus: of the sea.
Meleagris: spotted.
Microphyllus: small-leaved.
Minimus: smallest.
Mirabilis: wonderful.
Mollis: soft.
Montanus: of Mountains.
Nivalis: ertaining to snowy.
Noveboracensis: of New York.
Officinalis: medicinal.
Ornatus: adorned, ornate.
Pallidus: pale.
Palustris: marsh loving.
Paniculatus: panicled.
Patens: spreading.
Perennis: living three or more years.
Perspicuus: clear, transparent.
Princeps: princely, first.
Procumbens: lying on the ground.
Prostratus: lying flat.
Prunifolius: plum-leaved.
Pseud: not typical or genuine.
Pubescens: downy.
Pumilus: dwarf.
Punctatus: spotted.
Racemosus: flowers in racemes.
Radicons: rooting.
Repens: creeping.
Reticulatus: netted, net veined.
Rotundifolius: round leaved.
Rugosus: wrinkled.
Rupestris: rock loving.
Sanguineus: blood red.
Semperflorens: ever blooming.
Sessilis: without a stalk.
Sylvaticus and Sylvestris: of the woods.
Speciosus: showy.
Spectabilis: spectacular, remarkable.
Stellatus: starry.
Striatus striped.:
Suffruticosus: slightly shrubby.
Tataricus: of Tartary.
Tenuifolius: slender flowered.
Tinctorius: belonging to dyers.
Vegetus: vigorous.
Vernalis: of the spring.
Versicolor: variously colored.
Verticillatus: arranged in a circle around the stem.
Verginalis: virgin.
Vulgaris: common.

Also there seems to be difficulty in nomenclature of the different kinds of roots and of the five following especially.

Bulb—Composed of fleshy scales packed together, forming an ovoid, oval, round or flattened ball, from under surface and edges of which, roots are produced during growth as:—Hyacinth, Lily, Daffodil and onion.

Corm:—May be superficially like a bulb but is solid as :Gladiolus, crocus, cyclamen.

Tuber:—A short thickened shoot, provided with 'eyes" or buds as:—theJ Caladuim, Calla Lily, Dahlia and Tuberous Begonia.

Rhizome:—A shoot or stem that grows more or less horizontally on or in the soil, producing buds and stem growths as:—German Iris, Lily of the Valley, and Solomon's Seal.

Rootstock:—The thickened fleshy mass that hardy herbacious perennials as a rule form and in which the store of nourishment is carried over in winter as: Peony, Delphinium and Phlox.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

The popular conception of a reporter is of a wide-eyed, nosey, young man wearing horn-rimmed spectacles who wanders around the streets waiting for something to happen. And it would not be surprising if his eyes did pop open wider than usual at some of the stories he hears in the course of a business day. But as a matter of fact most reporters are modest young men who do their day's work in the best way they can, seek advancement when it offers, take what little recreation is available just as other people do, and, generally, live as hundreds of other young men in Peterborough. And if they wear spectacles it is because close application to desk work, which is a part of every reporter's daily routine, makes their wearing necessary, and not as a badge of office.

Reporting is no sinecure. The reporter cannot make an appointment to take tea with you next Monday—or even tomorrow—for at six o'clock on that night he may be assigned to cover a meeting. He cannot plan to visit a picture show until a quarter of an hour beforehand, because he may be called out to do a story. And, contrary to popular opinion, the reporter has not the "Open sesame" to every show in the city. Only the reporter who regularly covers the different shows is admitted free—the others pay their way like ordinary citizens.

The reporter does not meander through the streets of the city waiting for an auto accident to happen, or a house to burn. He never leaves the office without knowing where he is going, what he is expected to get, and when he must report back. Of couse, the wideawake reporter picks up stories on the side, but he always has a well planned route to cover.

And now, having disposed of popular misconceptions that shroud the art of reporting and sometimes give the reporter a bad name he does not deserve, what is the truth about the position? It is the most interesting and exacting game in the world. The reporter must be resourceful, intelligent, well-educated, well-groomed, and must be able to dig out the story he is sent to gather, and then write it in the simplest language. What his personal bias in politics, religion, or any controversy may be, he must report meetings and happenings impartially. He cannot incorporate comment in a report—that is for the editorial columns. He must be accurate—mistakes are inevitable, but the reporter tries to avoid them. He must be quick in getting his story and writing it. The paper goes to press at a specified time every day, and stories must be headed, set on the linotypes, and placed in the forms before that time.

When there is no pressing news, the reporter must write feature stories, and here his genius as a writer appears. Taking a simple event of not much news value, he clothes it in language and turns out, maybe, a masterpiece of descriptive writing.

The reporter is always on duty. An important news event breaking in the middle of the night brings him from his bed to get the story.

And those who have dealings with him will find the reporter a gentleman, anxious to be decent, fair and generous in his reports, willing to see both sides of any question, but resenting any attempt to "use" him or his paper for selfish ends.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY IMPERIL HEALTH WHEN REDUCING?

Isn't it a strange thing what tortures human beings will submit to in order to get thin, or fat, or willowy, or plump? More medicine has been sold for these purposes than for all the real ailments of the human family.

The other night I was a guest at a dinner party. My charming hostess had a great, crescent shaped black and blue mark on her upper arm. Fearing that I might be asking an embarrassing question I did not inquire what had happened, but she saw my glance and the interrogation in my eyes.

Then she told me the story of going to a "doctor" who proposed to "reduce" her by hypodermic administration of some "serum." When the arm turned black my hostess said she took saner advice and proposed to reduce by the natural methods—eating less and exercising more.

I am more and more shocked at the way women dose themselves with powerful drugs which have an alleged value in taking off flesh. Dear friends, it isn't safe to do this. You cannot afford to trifle with your good health by any such methods.

Well, chosen systematically employed physical exercises are of great value. But they are of no use unless used every single day and with energy sufficient to produce what I always refer to as "honest sweat." Simply to perspire is not enough—one can do that in a hot room. You must produce perspiration by the energy of the muscular effort you make. Perspiration of this sort seems actually to dissolve the fat.

You must learn to choose your foods. It is not necessary to starve yourself or to grow weak from the need of food. When you study foods, it does not take long to find out which ones must be taken sparingly because they are rich in fats or carbohydrates. At the same time you will learn which foods may be taken in unlimited quantities.

It is a common mistake for fleshy persons to think they cannot drink water. All the water the system craves may be taken in safety. It is unwise to drink much at meals. The reason for this is not because the water "dilutes the gastric juices," but because drinking a quantity of water helps you to swallow a lot of food you never would take if it had to be put through the process of chewing and mixing with the saliva to prepare it for swallowing.

Water helps to dissolve the waste and to put into solution materials which should be taken from the body. Some of these if retained, may retard the assimilative processes and this may assist the addition of fat.

Don't take drugs to get thin but use common-sense and the natural methods.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. B. C. Q.—How can one reduce?

A.—Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of self-control as regards diet. For full particulars send stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

W. B. Q.—I catch cold very easily and have a sore throat and headache at those times. My tonsils are very small and never seem to become enlarged? Could the trouble be due to goitre?

A.—Your trouble may be due to some obstruction in your nose or in the back part of your throat. Careful examination would determine the source and then proper treatment can be suggested.

* * *

MRS. F. H. Q.—I have a seventeen-months-old baby girl who is perfectly healthy, but who doesn't sleep well at night. She has a nap in the morning and afternoon. What would you suggest?

2.—What should she eat? Everything seems to disagree with her.

3.—What can be used to remove tartar on the teeth?

A.—The baby may be hungry, too warm, or have indigestion.

2.—She should have green vegetables stewed fruits and their juices, baked potato and a little meat, such as rare beef or chicken carefully shredded, and plenty of milk. It is important that her intestinal tract be kept clear.

3.—See your dentist.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, AUGUST 4.

According to the predominant lunar aspects this may prove to be a day of anxieties, losses and disappointments. The health should receive prompt attention lest it be a source of anxiety. Also be on guard against accident or sudden visitation of unpleasant nature. Those in the employment of others are enjoined to be particularly careful not to put their positions in jeopardy. A friendly Jupiter may assist to propitious conditions.

Those whose birthday it is are under a doubtful ruling for the year, but have a friendly Jupiter to assist them. They should be careful of the health, guard against losses and accidents and safeguard this positions. A child born on this day may have some very desirable traits of character, but should be given early training to enable it to overcome many difficulties and obstacles to success in its undertakings.

Question—The war is supposed to be over and everything, and what I want to know is why I am still charged a dime for a shine in the shoe-shining parlor?—Nervous.

Answer—It's Greek to me.

ON CANOE HONEYMOON

During the war Snair commanded a trawler and since then has been an enthusiastic oarsman and canoeist.

Answer: For the same reason that a chiropodist gets up in the world by beginning at the foot.

STREET NAMES

Robinson Street

Robinson Street commemorates the name of the leading spirit of the settlement of this community and the guide, counsellor, and friend of the first emigrants, the Hon. Peter Robinson.

Peter Robinson sprung from an aristocratic stock. One of his ancestors was President of the colony Virginia in pre Independence days. His grandfather owned a princely estate on the banks of the Hudson River and exerted an immense influence on the social and political life of New York. His brother, Sir John Beverley Robinson, was for many years Chief Justice of Upper Canada and his nephew became Lieut. Governor of Ontario. The Robinsons as a family were always noted for energy and brilliancy, were strong upholders of the Family Compact and of Toryism of the old school and were above all things renowned for their integrity and honor at a time when corruption in high places was the rule rather than the exception Peter Robinson was also specially noted for his devotion to outdoor sports and for his splendid physique.

He first became interested in the migration question during a visit to England when he was consuited on the advisability of settling the empty spaces of Ontario with settlers from Great Britain and Ireland. He threw himself into the scheme with characteristic energy. An emigration party was arranged. Robinson went on ahead to Ontario, travelling by the most direct route, sailing to New York, travelling to Toronto via Niagara and from there proceeding to what is now Peterboro county, a rather circuitous route from the point of the present day traveller. He spent three weeks in this neighbourhood making himself acquainted with the location and devising plans to lighten as much as possible the hardships that must inevitably befall the pioneer. In August, 1825, the first batch of emigrants arrived at Quebec sea sick, home sick, and suffering from the effects of weeks of unsanitary conditions aboard ship. Most of their number were housed in tents at Quebec for a few weeks and were then removed to Cobourg. A road was cut out from Cobourg to Rice Lake to permit of the transport of such effects as the settlers had brought with them.

Four houses had been built by Robinson to enable him to transact the business of alloting the land to the settlers. These houses were on the south-east of what is now the market square and fronted on Water street. To every family of 5 persons a grant was made 100 acres with a supply of necessary tools. Rations were served out weekly for 18 months after the settlement.

Robinson appears to have gained to a remarkable degree the confidence and esteem of the people with whom he was in almost constant association for some years after the founding of the community. A commissioner reporting to the British Government on conditions here wrote as follows:

"I was in Peterborough for 2 or 3 days during which time some 30 or 40 settlers came to see Mr. Robinson and the manner in which they met him was quite affecting. It seemed as if they were blessing him as a benefactor rather than welcoming him as a visitor."

Robinson's connection with the settlement continued right to the end of his life and before his death he had the satisfaction of seeing the settlement he had fostered develop into a flourishing town. The more one studies the life and work of this grand old man of the old school one realizes that when those who lived here before us decided to bestow the name of Peterboro on the town in memory of the Christian name of its founder they honoured themselves in so recognizing the labors of Peter Robinson.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horisontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a constant reader, and like your advice so much that I am coming to you for some. Not long ago, myself, two boys and two more girls took pictures. In one of the pictures there were four of us in a row—three girls and the boy in the middle. Another picture was of a boy with a girl leaning in his arms. This boy has developed a great many of the pictures and has scattered my name and the other girl's name. We did not take any vulgar pictures. We two are and were perfectly innocent in the pictures. What shall I do to him for slander? If it is not too much I would like to have a personal conversation with you.

Please advise me as quickly as possible. I appreciate your help.

—BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: The only way to make your acquaintances feel that you are not interested in their idle chatter, is to ignore it completely. Don't bother to discredit these ugly rumors and pretty soon they will die of undernourishment. Continue those friendships which are worthwhile, have a jolly good time and don't forget than an upright character will resist all malicious gossip.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and am greatly interested in a young man of the same age.

Would it be proper for me to speak to him when I meet him or wait for an introduction.? —PRINCESS.c

PRINCESS: I would suggest you ask a mutual friend to introduce you and in this way you will be free to cultivate the acquaintance of the young man in whom you are interested. It would be most improper for you to greet him unless you were properly introduced.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

TODAY'S FASHION

This Blue-Green Homespun Coat Is Designed for Motoring.

Homespun, with a rather loose weave, is the material used for this straightline coat.

The color is a lovely blue-green and the coat is very plain except for a visible seam that extends around the coat up in a square at the front and back.

The brown fur collar is detachable. It simply snaps in place, and when the wearer wishes the collar may be removed to reveal the gracefully sloping collar of the coat material.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

WHEN CLOTHES COMPLICATE A CAMP PARTY.

Beauty, that's the way they spell it, isn't it? But dear me how different it looks from the way it's spelled—sometimes?

There are the young persons in the smart fashion magazine for instance.

What on earth would you do if you met one of them coming down the street looking as she looks in the magazine?

Call for the patrol wagon or run into some convenient doorway and hide?

Why they are six feet tall, at least, every one of them and they haven't an ounce of flesh on their poor bones and their knees are so sharp that you can see them through their poor little skinny skirticoats and their hats are so small and pulled down so tight that they look as if they were queer old-fashioned jointed dolls carved out of wood by some poor old man way up in the mountains who had forgotten how human beings really looked.

And they never stand up straight and they never droop naturally——

"By hook and crook
We try to Look
"Both angular and flat
"To cultivate the trim
"Rigidity of limb
"You'd have to get a marionette.
"And form your style on him."

Rather an unique bit of song, isn't it? I wonder if the man who wrote it ever saw one of the fashion plates in the smart magazines?

And the men—the funny little, small-waisted, big-hipped, long-legged, small-footed men—where on earth do they come from?

They look as if you could knock one of them down with a feather, if you wanted to risk spoiling the feather. You never saw a man who looked like that who knew enough to earn a cent to save his life.

They never sit down on a chair—they roost on the edge of it, both the men and the women. They never step naturally into a motor car—they—well you can fairly hear their joints clock as they try to move. Have you seen the pictures of the latest things for cowboy ranches? The sweaters, the knickers, the funny little coats and the impossible hats—I do hope some of the boys and girls who are going West this Summer will get some of those outfits.

The few cowboys who are left alive really need a little diversion—but I'm afraid they will laugh themselves into such hysterics that they will never be able to get over them at all.

Please, Mr. Artist, won't you be a darling and draw us some pictures of real girls and real men for your fashion plates—Just for a change?

We are all getting cross-eyed looking at the "latest modes" for Summer vacations.

SUMMER RICE DISHES.

Rice is popular and can be made to take the place of a meat dish in warm weather by using various sauces with it

Cheese Sauce.

Melt a heaping teaspoonful of butter in a small saucepan, then stir in slowly a heaping tablespoonful of flour, cooking five minutes. Next, add three-quarters of a pint of rich milk, a little salt and pepper, and a half teaspoonful of sugar. Stir until smooth and cook for about five minutes, then sift in a heaping tablespoonful of grated American cheese. Mound the rice on a hot plate and mask with sauce. Garnish with sliced, fried eggplant, apple fritters, fried sardines, or boiled potatoes.

Cold Reduction Pudding.

Wash a small cupful of rice and put it into a buttered pudding dish. Add a tablespoonful of butter, a cupful of sugar, a teasponoful of vanilla, and two quarts of rich milk. Set in the oven and stir very often as the pudding is cooking adding more milk as the pudding cooks down. When cold set to chill.

And as he rides through the trails and looks off into space, the first thing he sees is the face of his beloved mirrored in the clouds. And Dan Cupid giggles again!

Let's Talk It Over

PROBLEMS IN HOLDING A HUSBAND'S LOVE.

Here's something different to-day. Instead of one big discussion of a problem, I'm going to give you a cross section of my morning's mail. I wonder how you would have answered these letters. Wish you'd write and tell me. Here you are:

I am married. My husband and I take care of my mother. My husband and I go with a crowd all happily married. Now the crowd is a little "peppy." We dance and have a good time "once in a while." My mother has decided that she does not like my crowd and says that I must choose between the two. My husband is satisfied with my doings and enjoys himself as much as I do. Mother can make things very unpleasant. What shall I do? —S. H.

You already "chose between the two" when you married your husband, S. H. The instant he slipped that ring on your finger you cut loose from your mother's life and cast in your lot with him. That doesn't mean that you should forget or neglect her. But it does mean that she no longer has a right to direct your life and that you no longer have a right to break up your marital happiness by letting yourself be swayed by her.

Does this mean that mothers are worthless after a child reaches maturity? It does not. But it does mean that the child is worthless unless he, or she, learns to stand on his own hind legs. Your mother may have much greater sense than you or your husband in judging the value of "peppy crowds," but her sense isn't your sense, and you'll never be worth a hoot until you buy some sense for yourself in the harsh mart of experience. That's why it's "hands off" for Mothers after a girl or boy marries.

Here's a lad who needs large, frequent doses of "peppy crowds":

What do you think of "talk strikes"? I have a husband who, if I happen to say anything that doesn't just please him, will sink into sullen silence and won't speak or notice me until he is good and ready. It is plain torture for me. I love companionship and am a jolly sort. You'll say, most likely, "Go out and leave him alone." Well, I do, but he doesn't care. He goes to bed and goes to sleep. He knows this silence of his tortures me, yet he seems to glory in it. No matter how much I talk he won't answer. I've got to stick to him for many reasons—that's why at first I used to get down on my knees to him and beg him to talk. Life under such conditions stretches out to me so bleak and drear. —M. M. E.

The life of a doorman is hard, as you have discovered, my dear. You've cheapened yourself to a mean-minded bully and he's taking you at your own rating. But why not change that rating? You're living in a big, bustling world. It has jobs in it for ladies. There are thousands of people who will talk, if husbands won't. What's to prevent you getting off your knees, wiping your chin, powdering your nose and beating it out to where the conversation is plenty?

All husbands aren't so unsociable. Mary's, for instance:

Should a married man have certain rights to step out and leave his wife at home? I have been married five years—we have no children—but I do not believe in divorce. My husband went out with girls one year after our marriage. We separated and then came together on his promise to do better, which he did not keep. Things are worse than before. I do everything I can to make him happy. I even pay our rent out of my salary. —Mary.

I'll have to answer you by asking you more questions, Mary. I gather that he spends these "nights off" with other women. If so, you may have the right to complain. But have you the right to complain if he has made it perfectly plain that he no longer loves you, yet you are forcing him to stay with you because you don't "believe in divorce?" Is it fair to hold an unwilling man? If you're checked by religious scruples remember that the church forbids your remarriage, but it does not tell you to force an unwilling man to live with you. Nor does it encourage you to try to buy an unwilling man's love by "paying the rent out of your salary." Think it over, Pal. Face these questions bravely. Is he double-crossing you, or are you double-crossing yourself by insisting on an impossible partnership?

HOME TOWN RECIPE

1 cup brown sugar.
½ cup butter.
1 cup raspberries.
2 cups flour.
2 eggs.

Cream sugar and butter. Add eggs, flour and raspberries. Mix one teaspoonful of baking soda with one cup of raspberries, then mix with water.

ANNUAL PICNIC.

Anglican Sunday School Teachers Spent Enjoyable Evening at Jackson Park.

The annual picnic of the Anglican Sunday School Teachers' Association was held in Jackson Park on Thursday afternoon, July 30. Tea was served at 6.00, and was followed by a ball game and races. In the ball game, All Saints beat a composite team representing the other churches of the city by the one-sided score of 25 to 2. The races produced a number of close finishes and the prizes were well distributed among the various churches. The gathering broke up after three hearty cheers had been given for the president, Miss B. Dawson, who was in charge of the arrangements.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

GIVING THE NAILS BEAUTY.

Beautiful nails are the finishing perfection of the beautiful woman. Have you not occasionally seen a woman who had many claims to beauty, but who for some unforgivable reason, had neglected her nails? Somehow this kind of neglect really hurts the feelings of the beholder.

On the other hand, the woman who is not beautiful can claim a goodly share of good looks if everything about her person is scrupulously fresh and clean and neat. Nails are particularly telling points in this estimate of beauty. And certainly the woman who is not careful of her nails loses an important mark in the beauty count.

Now, keeping your nails scrupulously clean is a requirement of social propriety. Furthermore, the form, color and texture of your nails are very susceptible to improvement. If you persevere with a determined will in the care of your nails, you can do much toward working a lasting improvement in their appearance.

Now the first step in cultivating your nails is to soak them for five minutes in a lather of pure Olive Castile soap and warm water. Next, dry them thoroughly and then set about to push the cuticle all about the edges of your nails down into place. Push it gently with a soft towel. You may moisten the towel occasionally in the water to make the pushing process easier.

After this comes the filing. You should have your nails neither excessively long nor excessively short. I have often seen women, whose nails were otherwise beautifully cared for, allow them to be very long and pointed as to shape. Now a slight point is in good taste, if you wish it, but I think an extra long nail is really a breach of taste.

Shape your nails to the end of your finger—that is, let them be gently curving in outline—and longer that your finger, so as to protect it.

The next step is to clean your nails gently but thoroughly with an orange stick. Any dust particles that cling there should be easily removed in this way after your soaking. A nail brush will help matters, as it renders any stubborn particles softer and easier to remove.

As to nail polish, there are so many good ones on the market that it hardly seems necessary to give you the formula for one. Any good polish, applied to the surface of each nail with your finger tip will impart a slight shine, and a slight shine is all that you need.

Polish your nails gently with your chamois-covered buffer. I say gently, because too brisk polishing will cause too much friction and your nails will burn and gradually become too thin.

If you give your nails careful attention once a week and a few minutes each morning it should keep them in perfect condition. Every time you dry your hands, take care to push the cuticle back into place.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Summer Furs

NEW YORK, August 3 (United Press).—Fur does not play a large part in the Summer fashions but it plays an important part wherever it is used. As a narrow border finish on a chiffon wrap it achieves much smartness whereas if used in quantity on frock or wrap it immediately marks the wearer as out-of-style.

One sees very little of the separate fur neckpiece although the fox scarf is occasionally worn with a sleeveless street frock or with a sports frock or suit.

Leopard is still one of the smartest furs which is used as a trim. This season it is being combined with beige and tan shades rather than with black. For instance, a beige frock of chiffon has a matching jacquette of three-quarter length trimmed about the wide sleeves with two rows of narrow leopard bands. A strip of the fur finishes the scarf collar end which is worn thrown to the back.

Pink and white flannel combination for semi-sports wear are often trimmed with white fox. A white flannel frock may be accompanied by a pink flannel coat collared in white fox. Or, the frock may be pink while the coat is with white fox collar. Both of the above models are numerous at nearby resorts.

The present vogue for black chiffon coats which are worn over colorful figured chiffon frocks brings a call for black monkey fur to be used as a coat collar. The black chiffon coat is very apt to look simple without the addition of monkey fur.

Never do we see the fur neckpiece carried over the arm these warm days. The wearing or carrying of Summer neckpieces have been done away with.

Evening wraps of chiffon often use the white fox collar. But smarter and newer are the slim little brocaded evening coats made on mannish lines with deep lapels and tailored sleeves. Silver lame is a favored material for such a coat.

Thousands Have Banished Gray Hair with this Clean, Colorless Liquid

Make a Test of Kolor-Bak Today

People everywhere praise Kolor-Bak for its remarkable power to banish grayness. The results are really astonishing, for no matter what the original shade was, it quickly reappears when this clean, colorless liquid is used.

According to scientists, grayness comes when age, illness, shock or disease causes a lack in the normal supply of coloring matter furnished to the hair—but whatever the cause, Kolor-Bak soon brings back the former shade, and the shade is uniform throughout—no "dyed" or streaked appearance. Results appear quickly—often in a week. Kolor-Bak is the most satisfactory substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also removes dandruff, stops itching of the scalp and keeps the hair from falling out.

If your hair has turned or is turning, do what thousands of others have done—let Kolor-Bak make your grayness a thing of the past. No need to supply samples of your hair as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Just ask for a bottle of Kolor-Bak. Moneyreturned instantly if desired results do not appear.

"My Hair Was Quite Gray"

"Only a short time ago my hair was quite gray. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared. Kolor-Bak stopped the falling, banished dandruff, and restored all the color to my hair. I look 10 years younger."

Split Double-Header With Braves and Ended Wins at Nine in Row.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press).—The St. Louis Cardinals knocked the New York Giants out of first place this afternoon, scoring an 8 to 1 victory in the second game of the series. The Pittsburgh Pirates, idle today, returned to first place by four percentage points as a result of the New York defeat. Walter Mails, the great left hander, was cheered repeatedly as he let the Giants down with seven hits and corralled a double and beat out a bunt. Rogers Hornsby hit his 27th homer in the fourth inning. Score:

Braves Stop Red.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press)—Boston and Cincinnati broke even in two hotly contested battles today, the second game ending the locals' run of victories after nine straight wins. In the first game Donohue and Ryan were driven off the mound, while Vargus was taken out for a pinch-hitter and Carl Mays retired with a lame arm. Boston outhit Cincinnati, but bases on balls mixed with timely drives gave the locals the verdict 8 to 5. In the second game as in the first, three pitchers worked for each club, Boston winning out, 5 to 3. Scores:

SYRACUSE, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press).—Toronto won its third and fourth straight games from Syracuse here today by scores of 4 to 3 and 5 to 3. Lena Styles bagged the first game in the ninth inning when, as a pinch hitter for Heath, he drove a long home run over the left field fence, scoring Joe Kelly, hit by Day, ahead of him. Styles hit a second homer on his first trip to the plate in the next game.

Myles Thomas allowed only three hits in the first engagement, but erratic support coupled with timely hitting gave the Stars a 3 to 2 lead to start the fatal ninth. Day started the second game for Syracuse, but was driven out with two down in the second. Wilbur Swansboro, Stars' first baseman, then ascended the mound and gave a creditable exhibition, allowing only four hits and displaying fine control. Scores:

Buffalo and Rochester: Game postponed on account of rain.

GILMOUR GIRLS WON

Defeated Bethel by 19 to 7 —G. Blewett Scored Home Run.

Gilmour girls' softball team journeyed to Bethel to play a game with the girls' team there, and came away victors by a 19 to 7 score. Both teams contributed some snappy fielding plays. A feature in batting was a home run by G. Blewett for Gilmour and a three bagger for H. Storey of Bethel. Both batteries turned in good games.

The batteries were:

Gilmour—J. Anderson and B. McGregor.

Bethel—H. Storey and V. Lowes.

LACROSSE PRACTICE.

All the members of the lacrosse team are urged to report at the Oval at 6 this evening.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Saturday's rain was rather costly to the Petes as the Kingston team got as far as Cobourg before being headed off, and a part of the expenses of the futile trip will have to be borne by the local club. The weather was entirely suitable for baseball after about 12.00 o'clock, but the rain all through the night and morning had turned the diamond at Riverside Park into a mudhole, and good baseball would have been impossible.

• • • • • • • • •

In a way the postponement will be beneficial as this is the most critical game left for the Petes to play, and before it can be played now it is probable that Ray Rose will be able to play at second base. Rose has covered the keystone sack in every game this year, and his absence would make itself felt in the smooth working of the infield, no matter who might fill the position.

• • • • • • • • •

The morning of Civic Holiday, which is one week from today, has been mentioned as the probable date for Saturday's postponed game, but nothing definite has been arranged.

• • • • • • • • •

At this time in former years we would be counting the hockey players who had either moved into town or who had felt the urge to seek new fields (or rinks) of endeavor. The change made by the O.H.A. at the last annual meeting has taken all the glamor from the first day of August, transferring it to the fifteenth of May, and hockey players who appeared in any town over the week-end were just on vacation, or some such innocent pursuit. They all had their winter homes picked about eleven weeks ago.

• • • • • • • • •

The Petes travel to Belleville this week, helping the lowly Moguls to celebrate "Old Home Week." That worthy citizen of Belleville, John Oulette, will not take part in the ceremonies, owing to the doubt cast by the C.O.B.I. and the O.B.A.A. on his right to be called a Bellevillian.

• • • • • • • • •

On Saturday Oshawa, minus the redoubtable "Duke" Dainty, will pay a last call on the Peterboro Baseball Club, unless the two should meet in the play-off series. In Lennox and Breckenridge the visitors have two young pitchers, perhaps not in the same class with the Duke, but still apt to beat any team in the league, and they will make it interesting until the last game is played. A win for Oshawa today (Oshawa Civic Holiday) will put the Motors just one game behind the Petes, and they will be in striking distance of second place when they visit here on Saturday, although they may lose to the Ponies on Wednesday evening.

• • • • • • • • •

Tonight's the night—tomorrow either Lakeviews or C.G.E. will hang up the gloves and put the uniforms away carefully in mothballs, after a hard campaign. The third and deciding game of the play-off in the junior series of the City League is being played at Riverside Park tonight. The winners will meet Ken Colling's Belleville team in the near future in the first round of the O.B.A.A. junior series, and will be charged with the defence of the cup held by the Lakeviews for two years in a row.

• • • • • • • • •

Bill Prindible is waiting word as to the dates of the series between his K.C. juveniles and Oshawa representatives in the first round of the juvenile series. Royals will play off with either Kiwanis or Rotary for the right to represent Peterboro in the midget series, with the last games this week. Rotary bantams have a big edge in their series and are likely to bear the fame of Peterboro in that series.

HARVARD-YALE WIN AT TENNIS

Defeated Oxford-Cambridge by 11 Matches to 10 in Tournament.

THREE-DAY FRAY

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The combined Harvard-Yale tennis team Saturday won the three-day international inter-university tournament played against Oxford-Cambridge on the Casino court by a score of 11 matches to 10. Although the Americans had held a one or two match lead at the end of every series since the first day resulted in a tie, it was not until the final match had been concluded that their victory was assured.

With the entrance of the play on the final series, three doubles matches, the Americans needed one match to win the tournament and Captain Arnold Jones and Charles Watson 3d, of Yale, had been conceded an easy match with Jonklaas and Sumner, of Oxford. So it proved in the first set, which the Yale pair won, 6-1, but in the second with the score at 5-3, the British came from behind to take three in a row and the lead. Jones' dashing volleying backed by the skillful lobbing of his partner saved the match, although the game score was deuced twice before the final, 9-7, was reached.

The superior steadiness of the British won the other two doubles matches for them. The match between Lezard and Van Alen, Cambridge and Ingraham and Whitbeck, Harvard, provided the best tennis of the day. The Cambridge men won 6-3, 6-4.

Carleton and Lester, Oxford and Cambrige, easily defeated Briggs and Hopkins, Harvard and Yale, 6-4, 6-3.

MACK BUYS TWO MAYS

Blue Ridge League Brothers Obtained for $2,500.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 3.—Kit and Orie May, brothers, of Staunton, Va., both pitchers for Martinsburg, in the Blue Ridge League, have been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. Martinsburg club officials, announcing the deal to-day, said the brothers would report to Philadelphia at the end of the present Blue Ridge season. The consideration, they said, was $2,500.

JOHNSON TAMED TIGERS, GAINING ON ATHLETICS

Senators Pushed Detroit Into Second Division—Full Game Behind Mackmen.

YANKEES BEATEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press).—Walter Johnson pitched in good form today and the Senators took the second game of the series from Detroit, 5 to 1. Johnson held the Tigers to two hits. The victory moved the Nationals to within one game of the league-leading Athletics, who idled today. Score:

Detroit	00000100	1	2 2
Washington	10002002x	5	7 2

Dauss, Wells and Bassler; Johnson and Ruel.

Cleveland 3; New York 2

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press).—Cleveland broke New York's winning streak of four games by defeating the Yankees today, 3 to 2, Jamieson's double, McNulty's infield hit and Speaker's sacrifice fly giving the Indians the winning run in the eighth. Myatt hit his 10th homer of the season in the third inning, tying the score, and in the fifth his double started a batting rally which netted the visitors another tally. Score:

QUAKER OATS GAIN CUP TIE

Thistle Forfeited Fixture in Replayed Peck Match.

FIVE-A-SIDE GAME

The inclemency of the weather in the early part of the day Saturday resulted in the Quaker Oats obtaining the semi-final of he Peck Cup through the forfeiture of the match by the Thistle who were also unable to get a full eleven through injuries sustained in previous games. Only one Thistle player, Browell, put in an appearance on the field of play while the Quaker boys were out in full force with a first-class eleven. In the previous match these two teams divided the issue by two goals each but this leaves the Canadian Woollens or DeLaval and the Quaker Oats in the final that will be set by the Executive. The Woollens have won this cup two years in succession.

Non-playing of this fixture gave the Quaker Oats two five-aside teams an opportunity to practice the sports pastime by going ahead to make perfection for the G.W.V.A. sports' day on Monday, August 10th.

No. 1 Quaker Oats played No. 2 Quaker Oats in five-a-side which resulted in one being eliminated. A challenge was thrust upon the winners by past masters in the persons of J. Wylie, president, Vincent Stuart, T. Stewart, Frank McKinley and J. C. Russell, who tackled the winners to the limit. Quakers only succeeded in winning by the score of 3 goals to 2 goals and 2 corner. The old tricks demonstrated by Wylie and F. McKinley gave the winners a few lessons in the art of making the mind do the work and saving themselves in too much running. In fact, craftiness many a time prevailed over the fleet-footed who latterly adopted the same tactics but Tommy Stewart finished the game in the opinion that Vincent Stuart sold the game when he let the last goal go through in a slow manner. Don't be surprised if J. C. Russell doesn't trot out an eleven worth watching in .GW.V.A. five-a-side after this display.

HELEN WILLS, IN STRAIGHT SETS, DEFEATED BY ELIZABETH RYAN

U. S. National Women's Tennis Champion Beaten by British Star.

IN DOUBLES, TOO

SEABRIGHT, N.J., Aug. 3—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, returning to the United States with an English accent and a Wimbledon stroke after an absence of thirteen years, Saturday bowled over the queen of the American court.

Playing her first tournament tennis since her arrival here three weeks ago, she defeated Miss Helen Wills, of Berkeley, Calif., 19 year old champion, in the final round of the Seabright invitation tournament, 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Ryan's victory was as impressive as it was decisive. There were no frills attached. Discarding her tennis shoes, she roamed the damp courts in her stocking feet with more aggressiveness than her youthful opponent and accomplished the downfall of Miss Wills in 42 1-2 minutes.

This was the first defeat suffered by Miss Wills in the United States since her meeting here with Miss Goss two years ago and her first setback on any court since Miss Kathleen McKane triumphed over her in the final of the Wimbledon Tournament last year after defeating her shortly before in the Internation Wight Cup matches.

The defeat of Miss Wills was the standing event of the final day of a tournament that has been eventful for the high calibre of the play and the number of its upsets. This has easily been the most interesting week of tennis in the thirty-two years' history of the tournament, and no more fitting finale could have been asked for.

Play in the other finals went according to form. Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N.Y., second ranking star of the United States, defeated James O. Anderson, singles champion of Australia, in the final of the men's singles, 6-1, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0.

Teamed with Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, in the finals of the women's doubles Miss Ryan defeated Miss Helen Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne, of California, 11-9, 6-1.

In the men's doubles, William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, of San Francisco, vanquished Robert G. and Howard O. Kinsey, of San Francisco, 8-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Four thousand spectators filled every seat and bit of standing space Included in the number were members of the U.S.L.T.A. Executive Committee and Davis Cup Committee.

A Remarkable Feat

When one recalls the disaster that has overtaken women players in this country in the last few years, the achievement of Miss Ryan is remarkable. Mlle. Lenglen found it impossible to overcome the handicap of transferring her play across the ocean in 1921, going down before Mrs. Mallory in their one set of play at Forrest Hills, and two years ago the best players of England could not win a single match in the international series on the same courts. When these same players completely reversed the results of the 1923 series in England last year it was generally accepted that women players were placed under too great a handicap when competing on foreign courts for them to rise to their best flights.

Miss Ryan proved the fallacy of that contention. There was nothing in the way of fluke about her victory, and it can be said that it did not come as a total surprise. Her crushing defeat of Miss Goss followed by her triumph over Miss Mary Browne in the semi-finals made it evident that Miss Wills was in for a stiff fight. Miss Ryan had one thing in her favor and that was the dampness of the courts. In a way, it can be said that she found herself more at home than did Miss Wells, for playing on wet turf in England is a common experience.

Miss Wills Worried

After the downpour of Friday the Seabright turf, w hich was imported from England, was very heavy Saturday morning when the match was played. This suited Miss Ryan's chopping game to a tee. Miss Wills was aware of this and worried about it a lot. Her fears were well grounded for it was Miss Ryan's short chops that brought about the Berkeley girl's downfall.

Again and again throughout both sets Miss Ryan caught her opponent flat-footed at her base line with a sliced ball just over the net, using a beautiful change of pace. In the first set she took the first four games in rapid seccession, scoring on trap shots with such regularity as to stun the gallery. In the last game of this set she won, the last three points with the same shot, two of them off service. Miss Wills appeared to be helpless against these tactics. She was anything but keen, and certainly not the brilliant player she was at Boston and Manchester or in crushing Mrs. Mallory here in the semi-finals.

CANADIANS THIRD.

British Women Rolled Up Big Total in London.

LONDON, August 3. — Great Britain on Saturday won the women's international track and field meet at the Stamford Bridge athletic field with 56 points. Czechoslovakia, with 26, was second, and Canada, with 23, third.

HELEN WILLS

DE LAVAL DEFEATED THE CAN. WOOLLENS

League Leaders Still Hold Their Top Position in the Table.

A hard-fought tussel was waged on Saturday afternoon between Canadian Woollen juveniles and the league leaders, De Laval juveniles, at Nicholls Oval before a fair attendance. The latter won by three goals to one.

Both elevens started off at a fast pace, which ended in Goldie trying to force the issue against De Laval, but Jones, at centre forward, sent his namesake down the wing, who transferred the ball across again for the centre to beat Vinette all the way. Time and again, the Woolly boys went down in the De Laval area, but they were too anxious to score close in, instead of shooting at first chance, which gave the big tall fellow—Hope—every chance to frustrate their attacks. This period was intertwined by spasmodic attacks by De Laval forwards, who gained an offside goal by Jones that seemed to discourage the miniature Woollens. Half-time, De Laval 2, Woollens 0.

Second Half.

On resuming, Mitchell and Sturgeon had the heavy full-back in queer street when they went right through, but an illegal tactic against them, when referee was not looking, spoiled their effort. But a few minutes afterwards, the four feet, 6 inch McFeat had them in a quandry in front of goal which ended in a tally against De Laval. No doubt, at this period the eussel, excitement was running high, in fact, some of the boys were inclined to take the man instead of the ball, and De Laval were using their weight, perhaps, too much, against the little fellows. Both goals went under serious bombardments. Just before the end, Goldie was injured and retired, but he should have told his team mates when he went home. Also, R. Jones, getting a goal as the Woolly boys were yelling "offsides," but referee gave his decision. Full time, De Laval 3, Woollens 1.

Goal scorers: W. Jones 2, R. Jones 1. Woollens, McFeat.

Woollens—Vinette, goal; Goldie, back; Pammett, Saunders and Walsh, half-backs; Sturgeon, Mitchell, McFeat, Walton and Barney, forwards.

De Laval— Parkins, goal; Hope, full-backs; Grady and Griffine, half-backs; R. Jones, Dyer, W. Jones, Downer and Watkins, forwards.

TILDEN CHECKED ON INTERVIEWS

Infringed Amateur Rule, But Promises Not to Offend Again.

WERE SYNDICATED

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association yesterday adjudged William T. Tilden, 2d, national singles champion, guilty of violating the player-writer rule in giving exclusive interviews to a press syndicate, but allowed him to retain his amateur status upon his agreement to comply in the future with the requiremens of the committee.

The committee made public its findings after a four hour closed meeting Saturday night at which Tilden was heard. The officials ruled that there was no difference between a player writing a current article on a tournament in which he was participating than in giving an interview for syndication. On the basis of this decison, they found Tilden subject to suspension and disqualification, but withheld punitive measures upon Tilden's promise to strictly observe the rule.

The champion informed the committee that he had not intentionally violated the rule as construed at Saturday nights' meeting and assured the official that in the future he would not be guilty of a similar offence.

COLBORNE TEAM DIDN'T SHOW UP

Roseneath Players and Fans Were Badly Disappointed.

NO WORD SENT

ROSENEATH, Aug. 3.—Roseneath ball team and fans were badly disappointed on Wednesday when Colborne failed to put in their appearance for the regular scheduled game. The ball team was all on the field and the crowd ready waiting for what they expected would be a real game. Thirty minutes after time for the game to be called, Manager Thackeray phoned Colborne and was informed by Secretary Gale that the team was not coming. This was considered a very unsportsmanlike act. Colborne might have at least phoned, notifying Roseneath that they could not appear and this would have been satisfactory, but never to send any word is a very poor idea of a joke.

Nevertheless a game was arranged for the benefit of the fans between the married men and the single men of the team. It was a real good game, and was enjoyed by all. The single men, with Wilson and Dunnett for a battery, had the best of the argument during the first part of the game but after the third and fourth inning when the married men took the lead, Leach proved practically invincible to the Bachelors. The game ended 6-4 in favor of the married men.

Standing of the Northumberland League August 1st

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Brighton	7	0	1000
Hastings	5	2	.714
Roseneath	3	4	.428
Frankford	2	6	.250
Colborne	1	6	.142

If the game between Hastings and Frankford is not protested, a thing which is likely to happen, Brighton will finish first and Hastings second regardless of the outcome of next Wednesday's games, and these two teams will play off for the championship.

Next Wednesday's games are: Colborne at Brighton; Roseneath at Hastings.

GIRL FOURTH IN MARATHON SWIM

Lillian Harrison, From the Argentine, Swam 26 Miles in the Seine.

AGAINST 11 MEN

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Lillian Harrison, the Argentine girl swimmer, yesterday finished fourth in the marathon swim of 26 miles from Corbeil to Paris on the River Seine.

Joseph Ledriant, a French sailor, won the race. His time was 12 hours, 36 minutes.

Georges Poilley, a Parisian and former French national champion, was second, ten minutes behind Ledriant. Michel, France, came in third.

Miss Harrison's time at the finish was 14 hours, 37 minutes, or 2 hours 1 minute slower than that of Ledriant.

The Argentine girl appeared to be exhausted when she reached the finish line.

Eleven men and Miss Harrison comprised the field, but seven of the swimmers abandoned the race before twelve miles had been covered. The race started at 2.10 a.m. in abominable weather. There was a heavy downpour of rain which continued with unabated fury until daybreak.

Miss Harrison swam steadily and courageously throughout. On reaching the city walls of Paris she was in fourth place, but sprinted and succeeded in overtaking her nearest competitors. She apparently was seized with weakness between the Austerlitz bridge and the Chamber of Deputies, however, and fell back. She took nourishment here and swam on gamely and finished the race.

A crowd of fifty thousand shouted "Vive Lillian," as the girl swimmer finished and climbed up the ladder to the landing stage without assistance.

Last night Miss Harrison was the toast of the boulevards who hailed her feat in finishing a race was to omuch for T. W. Burgess, the English Channel swimmer, and seven other strong men.

STENROOS BEATEN.

Finnish Distance Runner Loses in Boston Race.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Jimmy Henigan, of the Dorchester A. C., Saturday won in one hour, 25 minutes, 54 1-5 seconds, the 15 mile marathon run under the auspices of the 72nd annual Scotch picnic at Caledonian Grove. He led Albin Stenroos, Finnish distance star, by half a lap, and Clarence De Mar, of Melrose, by three laps. The race was run on a track with eight laps to the mile.

STATION AGENT DROPPED DEAD

Would Have Retired Next Month After 58 Years' Service.

AT GODERICH.

GODERICH, Ont., Aug. 3—(Canadian Press). — George H. Lauder, 76, local C. N. R. station agent, dropped dead at his home here yesterday morning.

He was to have retired on September 25, after 58 years' service. Starting while quite young with the Grand Trunk Railway as an operator at Kingston, he filled many positions in Toronto, Belleville, Stratford and Montreal as dispatcher and agent. Prior to his appointment here he was station agent at Thedford.

STATUE STOLEN.

Chalk Model Substituted For Famous Statue of Redeemer.

NAPLES, August 3. — (United Press). — Thieves penetrated the Church at Procida to-day and substituted a chalk model for the famous statue of the Redeemer, valued at 1,000,000 lire.

The original has been found in Florence, and Andrea Fusconi and Antonion Mediani, dealers in antiques, have been arrested.

CHANGE DATES IN E.P.B. LEAGUE

All Four Teams in Rural Series in Running For Second Half.

Playing dates of scheduled games were advanced by the East Peterborough League at a meeting held on Saturday night. Lakefield will play in Keene on Tuesday evening and the two teams will play in Lakefield on Friday evening. Lakefield will meet the Cogs here on Tuesday, August 11th, and Curve Lake will play in Keene on the same date.

On Wednesday evening of this week, Curve Lake will meet the Cogs at Exhibition Park. As all the teams are in the running for second-half honors, this game will be of more than ordinary interest. The Indians will bring their strongest line-up and that means a bunch of trouble for the Cogs.

Tomorrow evening at Exhibition Park, Royals and Raybestos will play the fourth game of their play-off series. The count is two wins for Raybestos and one victory for Royals. Anything is liable to happen in this series and Royals are figuring on a win. Royals have been unfortunate in that one bad innings has helped Raybestos win several games.

MANY MOTORS IN PETERBORO

Transportation Marks the Progress of the World.

TIMES INDEX.

What is the index of prosperity? As far back as history reaches it has been recorded that modes of travel have drawn the distinguishing line between noble and peasant, between rich and poor. Distinguished men must have distinguished equippages and they have had them. The jinrickshaw, the palanquin, the howdah, the coach and four, and the palatial limousine of the modern day are efforts to show the world its social and financial forces.

What can be judged when motorized transportation is becoming so common that the person who does not own an automobile has become an object of curiosity and comment. Tourist remark on the number of motor vehicles in the city.—Americans who come from cities where they turn them out in countless thousands—they are surprised at the number of motor cars in our city.

In two pictures, actual photographs, of the City of Quebec, seen this morning there was a surprising lack of motor vehicles, there not being more than twenty visible.

In Peterborough there are approximately 2,400 automobiles, and as the population is 22,000, that means an automobile for every 9 persons. Should all city folks wish to go on a picnic together, they might do so by means of the privately owned vehicles.

These automobiles are not all flivvers, either. Parked on George Street today at 11.30 were 62 cars between Brock and Charlotte streets, thirty-five of which were not of the light car type. Every car counted bore an Ontario license plate and only one of these was a relic of the antediluvian engineerng period.

This must surely mean that a period of comparative prosperity is visiting the city and that much of the hard times propaganda is bunk.

The Cow Jumped Over the Moon' Was Only a Myth, But This Bull Attacked and Wrecked an Airplane

PARIS, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press). — Air passengers from Paris to Brussels had a rare thrill yesterday, when an infuriated bull attacked and demolished the airplane in which they had been travelling. The airplane was forced by minor engine trouble to land in a farm pasture. A bull, irritated by the rumbling of the motor, charged the machine. The pilot and the passengers none of whom had been hurt when the plane landed, fled to the nearest fence. The bull was left alone with the airplane and when he finished with it on ly wreckage remained.

BRITISH SCIENTISTS DEFEND TITLE TO CANCER DISCOVERY

German Follows U. S. In Endeavour to Claim Credit From Them.

SAY STOLEN.

Keysser, of Berlin, Says Gye and Barnard Filched Their Find.

LONDON, Aug. 3 (United Press) —German insinuations that Dr. W. E. Gye, and J. E. Barnard filched their discovery of the virus of cancer from Prof. Keysser of Berlin were strenuously denied today by the two British scientists.

Keysser had intimated that he had made the discovery considerably ahead of the Britishers, and that his work, submitted to the English Royal Board of Health, had been the foundation for the work of Gye and Barnard.

"Our work," said Dr. Gye, "was done entirely without the aid of outside sources of information. If the Germans publish their results, and substantiate their claims, we shall be quite ready to say they are right also."

J. E. Barnard, who divides his time between selling hats in his fashionable store and prosecuting marvellous microscopic feats, declared, "Our work has been our own. I know absolutely nothing about Prof. Keysser's experiments, theories or achievements."

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Speaking from the account given in the 12th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles of the delivery of St. Peter from prison by angelic agencies, His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, expatiated on the attributes of St. Peter as head of the Church, at the morning services at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday.

The promise of Christ to St. Peter that He would make him the earthly head of His church was fulfilled from the start, and was evidenced in the solicitude shown by the faithful when St. Peter was held in prison.

"Humanly speaking, St. Peter was the least fitted of all the apostles for such an exalted office, but God makes use of the weak to confound the strong."

When St. Peter made his sublime confession of faith in the Master and in His Godhead, Christ gave to him supremacy over the Church and its people. He said, "my church," not "churches," and promised that the gates of hell should not prevail against that church. "Through the centuries, the words of Christ have been fulfilled in this regard."

The Emperor Diocletian, in the height of his power, struck a medal to commemorate, as he thought, the absolute destruction of the Christian Church, but then, and on down through the ages, through schisms and heresies, the Church, ever old, yet ever young, battered and beset by her enemies, has never faltered or failed in the fulfillment of her Divine mission.

The members of such a Church should realize the prerogatives and privileges of membership, and also the duty and responsibility devolving upon them to demonstrate its teachings in their daily lives and to bring to their fellow-men a belief in the truth. "Do we not only too often look upon some person as being narrow-minded and bigoted, because he knows nothing of our church and her constitution?"

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

The auditorium of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday morning was almost filled by the congregation assembled to hear the inaugural sermon of Rev. William Allan, of New York, who has accepted the pastoral work as stated supply for one year.

Mr. Allan was the anniversary preacher this year, and with his two weeks' special mission, made a favorable impression. The period since the recent church union vote in St. Paul's has been an anxious one, and the meeting of the congregation a short time ago granted the session power to call Mr. Allan under these conditions.

The sermons at both services were of the sound principle which is to be expected of all Presbyterian ministers now, and the themes were well taken and greatly appreciated.

The morning text was from the second chapter of Malachi, verse six: "He walked with me in peace and equity, and did turn many away from iniquity," Mr. Allan pointing out clearly the way of the righteous, which demands the following of God in all His statutes, and confessing Him before men. This was the means wherein men walked with God, day by day, and showed their true faith in Him through lives of consecration.

The evening sermon was based on the first seven verses of the second chapter of Ephesians, where time, said Mr. Allan, was divided into three tenses—past, present and future—where God is set forth as a God of mercy and grace to all sinners, for the sins of the past, the duties of the present, and the life and work in the ages to come. Through all these periods of time and eternity, he said, God is our only hope and salvation, in Whom we can trust and put our faith.

Mrs. Walter Byers is the soloist for the month of August, and yesterday was assisted by Mr. D. Milton, from Cobourg.

REPORT SHOWS ADVERSE FACTS

Investigation Over 18 Months Indicates Industrial Depression Exists.

NOT PUBLISHED.

LONDON, Aug. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Is industrial Britain going to the bow-wows? That seems to be the conclusion suggested by the economic staff of the Federation of British Industries in a report covering an investigation lasting 18 months that has just been completed. This report, which covers the whole industrial world, will not be made public until the grand council of the Federation has considered and approved it, with or without modification.

COMMONS ADJOURNS.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — Canadian Press.)—Premier Baldwin announced to-day that the House of Commons would adjourn next Saturday until November 16th.

CARRIES BASKET EASILY ON HEAD

William Stott Bewilders Passers-by on Hunter Street Bridge.

Crossing Hunter Street Bridge today at 1.30 was a man carrying a basket balanced precariously on his head. He was William Stott, a Scotsman, who came to Canada about ten months ago.

He explaidned that while that peculiar mode of carrying goods is now dying out, still many of the older school practise the art and find it an easy method after it has once been acquired.

Mr. Stott said that Congo women easily carried huge burdens on their heads and bore them quite gracefully.

In his younger days he had been a seaman, and his travels took him to many strange lands, where he had frequently seen natives transporting goods for many miles carried on the head which a white man could never have moved.

Many of the older school in Scotland were proficient in head carrying while ancient Egyptian pictures show maids balancing great urns in an apparently careless fashion.

Modern transportation is rapidly relegating this to the ranks of lost arts.

MANY TO HEAR GREAT SPEAKER

The Pathway of the Soul Was the Subject of an Interesting Address

AT CHAUTAUQUA.

"The Pathway of Psyche" was the subject of a very interesting lecture delivered in the Chatauqua tent last night by Dr. Julian B. Arnold, traveller and scholar, under the auspices of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of the city. A good speaker, with a clear voice, Dr. Arnold was followed with interest by the large audience which gathered to hear him.

The pathway is a long one, said the speaker, and cannot be limited to one short life. The valley from which the soul has climbed is far down, and the height to which it aspires is far way. Only a hundred years ago people believed that the world had been created some 4,000 years ago, but remains have been found showing that even 10,000 years ago the men of that time had culture, and elementary men existed 300,000 years ago.

The stages of progress, said Dr. Arnold, might be taken under six steps. The first is the mastery of fire, and the man who first tamed the much feared flames and used them was a great man. Next came pottery, which was first made by moulding clay in a basket, and then came bows and arrows. The domestication of animals was the next step and then came speech, when the race passed from the utterance of mere grunts and howls of pain or pleasure to the delicate shading and expression of to-day.

Writing was the sixth and greatest step, and Dr. Arnold traced it down from the date of the first story, written on a reindeer horn in pictures, to the books of the present day. A book, he said, is the best of the man that wrote it. When writing first started the epics of the race, which had been handed down by speech, were written out, and then they were added to by the different ages, which the speaker mentioned as the inspirational age, the age of philosophy and the period of history. Then came the dark ages when everything was hidden, until the Arabs invented paper. Printing followed and books, which had formerly been the property of the wealthy, as they cost about $1,300 each, became the property of everybody.

The first books were histories, then people wanted books of philosophy and then of romance. There were persecutions and troubles, and men still differ, but all are on the same broad pathway. Newspapers were then started and became a power in the land. Forty years ago, said the speaker, the editors looked on their power as something entrusted to them for the good of the world.

People now don't usually know how to read a book. They rush through from cover to cover, instead of reading a few pages and then stopping to think until they get the man who wrote it beside them, as it were.

"Where are we going?" is a question many people are afraid of as they are afraid of death. Dr. Arnold compared fear of death to that of the man who held to a ledge as long as he could, without looking down, and when his fingers gave way, dropped three inches into a bed of geraniums. The speaker said that he didn't believe everything that was in the Bible because he loved God, and thought that such things as the Jewish law which ordered the stoning of disobedient children did not come from God.

A motto he gave to go over a dining-room was repeated by Dr. Arnold. It was, "I thank God that a smile is more catching than the measles," and he urged his hearers to smile and help their fellows, instead of putting stones in the road.

MOTOR COMPANIES SEND BUS FOLDERS

Opportunities Quickly Seized Upon and Radial Substitute Offered.

Automobile manufacturers have been quick to seize upon the opportunities which have been indicated as existing in this city. Already a folder has been received at the Chamber of Commerce debicting a motor bus, and outlining the advantages certain to result by its use, a full list of specifications, and the wholesale patronage which will result from its adoption.

This but serves to show the alertness of modern business organizations which spread their tentacles over the globe and seize upon the slightest suggestion of commerce.

A short week ago the possibility of the adoption by this city of a motor-bus system was mooted, and on the first of this week communications arrive illustrating types, advantages and prices of the vehicles in question.

TROUBLE BREWING.

Greece Sends Troops to the Frontier and Ultimatum to Bulgaria.

PARIS, August 3. — (Canadian Press).—An Athens despatch to-day says Greece has sent two regiments to the Greek-Bulgarian frontier, is drafting an ultimatum to the Bulgarian Government and expects to send Greek troops into Bulgaria if the ultimatum is rejected. The despatch says the Greek Government has demanded reparations from Bulgaria for the murder recently of M. Nicolaides, a Greek citizen, at Stanimaka, Bulgaria. The Bulgarian reception of the demand has not been favorable.

BEBE DANIELS IN HER BEST COMEDY, "THE MANICURE GIRL" TONIGHT

Imagine Bebe Daniels as the cutie who cuts your cuticle!

She's just that in her latest Paramount starring picture, "The Manicure Girl," which opens today at the Royal.

"The Manicure Girl," directed by Frank Tuttle, who made "Miss Bluebeard" and "A Kiss in the Dark,' is an original screen story, adapted by Townsend Martin. Bebe, as Mafia Maretti, is a manicurist in an exclusive New York hotel. Her daily duties bring her in touch with "the four hundred, one of whom, a wealthy married business man, played by Hale Hamilton, becomes interested in her.

Edmund Burns, who was Gloria Swansons leading man in "The Humming Bird, plays opposite Bebe in this one. As Tony Luca, Burns builds up quite a business of manufacturing and installing radio receiving sets. Bebe—as all women do—loves beautiful things, and before Burns, her fiance in the picture, "strikes it right" he is unable to keep pace with her. A failling out is the result, during which time Bebe sees the wealthy James Morgan (Hamilton) quite a bit—until she learns he is married, that is.

A call from Morgans wife for a manicurist brings Bebe to her home. Some great scenes follow when each learns the identity of the other. The two women hold a council of war and by a clever plan straighten things out for all concerned.

Other big names in the cost of the picture are Dorothy Cumming, Charlotte Walker, playing Mrs. Morgan; Ann Brody, Marie Shotwell and Mary Foy.

G.W.V.A. NIGHT AT ROYAL THURSDAY

Katy," "Tipperary," "I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," "Pack All Your Troubles," etc., also comic military songs and monologues.

AT THE REGENT

"EVE'S LOVER" IS ONE OF THE BEST FILMS OF SEASON.

Excellent Entertainment in Story of Business Woman's Love.

"Eve's Lover," the Warner Brothers picture that opened to-day at the Regent Theatre for a run of 3 days, is fine, solid dramatic entertainment, excellently acted by a cast that includes Irene Rich, Bert Lytell, Clara Bow and Willard Louis.

The story concerns a millionaire business woman, who, at 30, finds herself falling in love with a dissolute Baron. She is swept from her brainy moorings on the wave of his romantic love-making and she learns to love him in turn with all the pent-up fervor of an emotionally barren life. Their marriage is extremely happy until the treacherous scandals of the Baron's pre-matrimonial career reach the wife's ears. Then she returns to business, and it is not until the Baron has an opportunity to rescue her, and her steel plant, from a frenzied mob of strikers that she realizes he loves her worthily.

Irene Rich is the heroine. Eve Burnside, and she plays with a tensely repressed force that carries a terrific dramatic effect. Incidentally, she never looked more lovely.

Bert Lytell plays the Baron, Eve's lover, and he makes the fascination that conquered all female hearts fully understandable. It is in rakehelly roles like this that Mr. Lytell is at his best. Clara Bow, as a tigerish little siren, and Willard Louis, as a big business man, afford delicious comedy relief.

The picture was perfectly directed by Roy Del Ruth. It was adapted to the screen by Darryl Francis Zanuck from Mrs. W. K. Clifford's novel.

AT THE CAPITOL

FIRST PICTURE EVER MADE IN ALASKA IS COMING TO CAPITOL.

"The Chechahcos" Booked After Extended Negotiations; Is Real Novelty.

Following a lengthy exchange of telegrams between Manager Crowe of the Capitol Theatre and the Associated Exhibitors, arrangements have been completed for the early showing here of "The Chechahcos," the only motion picture ever actually made in Alaska. This is a feather in the cap of the popular local manager as the distributing organization was contemplating restricting showings in this to the road show theatres at prices ranging to $2.00. However, it will be shown here at no advance in prices.

"The Chechahcos" is the production that opened without any great trumpeting at one of the leading New York theatres and inside of a week was the talk of the town. Critics raved over it and pointed it out as a proof of their oft repeated demands for a real northern picture, not one made in the mountains of California. The general opinion is best summed up in the words of brilliant Mabel McElliott in the New York News when she says:

"This vivid melodrama of the Klondike has that desired something new which frenzied producers and directors are ever seeking.

The production was six months in the making, the cast of 40 artists being virtually buried for that period in the heart of the frozen north.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS ACT FOR THE MOVIES.

Constance Talmadge declares that high school girls are prettier than any of the girl "extras" who come to the studios looking for work.

"And they are more intelligent, too," adds Constance.

Constance has a high school sequence in her latest First National comedy, "Learning to Love," and from 300 Hollywood school girls she selected 40 of the most beautiful for her picture.

"I dont believe I could find forty such beautiful girls in all the thousands of extras around the studios," the star declared.

In "Learning to Love" Constance shows modern girls the various ways to capture a husband. The new comedy is a First National attraction, written by Joseph M. Schenck Productions by John Emerson and Anita Loos, and will be shown at the Capitol Theatre to-day. Antonio Moreno is Constances leading man.

FREIGHT WRECKED.

Traffic Over C. N. R. Line Disorganized Yesterday By Derailment.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Traffic over the Canadian National Montreal-Ottawa line was badly disorganized for the greater part of the day yesterday by the derailment of part of a freight train about two miles east of Carlsbad Springs early in the morning. No one was injured in the accident, but about a dozen cars loaded with coal and freight were piled along the right-of-way.

FIREMEN ARE HOPING

Expect That Suddenly Mellowed Council Will Supply Apparatus.

Things are sure looking up in the Peterborough Fire Department. Last month we got a Reo Speedwagon, and as a fire truck she looks good. This month we have a new special six roadster for the Chief, and if in the months to follow we get a new triple combination pumper, motorized ladder truck, sub-station for the south end of the city, etc., etc., why in six or seven months the city fathers could sit back in their chairs, smoke a big cigar and say to themselves, "Well, Peterborough is now efficiently equipped to meet the fire demon, and that will keep Chief Gimblett satisfied for a while, until we grow a little larger."—From the Ontario Fire Fighter.

SUSPEND SENTENCE ON YOUNG SALESMAN

Was Charged With Obtaining Funds By False Pretences.

George I. Kettle was brought before Magistrate O. A. Langley in the police court this morning, and was allowed to go on suspended sentence, after tendering a plea of guilty on a charge of obtaining by false pretenses.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., who appeared on behalf of the accused, explained that Kettle was a lad of 22 of respectable, hard working parents. He had absolutely no business experience, but was ambitious to earn money, and set out to develop a business in selling used automobiles. He soon found out he was not a good salesman, and when hard pressed he gave a cheque for a car, without having any funds at the bank. He was arrested on a charge of obtaining and thus made his first appearance in a court.

His Worship in announcing his decision cautioned accused as to his future behaviour, pointing out exactly the signification of suspended sentence, and suggesting that for the immediate future he should endeavor to content himself on the farm.

Dies Comforting Grandma.

Boy Visitor Victim as Aged Widow Killed Herself.

CLIFTON, N. J., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Theresa Kreutz, 65 years old, and Frank Nick, 11 years old, her grandson, were found dead from asphyxiation Saturday in Mrs. Kreutz's home at 92 Lake Avenue, here.

Paper had been stuffed in keyholes, doors and windows, and gas was flowing from wall jets and from the range in the kitchen when Stephen Charko, the janitor, broke in a transom and entered the apartment. The police, who recorded Mrs. Kreutz's death as a suicide, said they believed she got up in the middle of the night while the lad was asleep in the bed where he was found, prepared the rooms for death and then turned on the gas. She was found on the kitchen floor.

Frank did not live with his grandmother, but with his mother, Mrs. Lena Nick, at 85 Arthur street, nearby. Because Mrs. Kreutz had been dispirited and alone since the death of her husband three months ago, Mrs. Nick sent the child over each night to stay with her. He was thus comforting his grandmother by his presence when he died.

VITAL STATISTICS

During the past month 54 births were registered in the city, 22 marriages and 30 deaths. These figures show an increase for all departments over the returns for July of 1924: 43 births, 13 marriages and 23 deaths.

MORE OUT OF WORK THAN GET POSITIONS

Adverse Balance at Bureau of 47 Applicants Against 41 Placements.

With 47 new applicants against 41 placements, the figures for last week at the Employment Exchange show an adverse balance.

Employment at the beginning of last month showed a further increase in Canada of 2.3 per cent. This gain caused the index number of stand at 96.8, as compared with 94.5 in June last and with 95.9 on July 1, 1924.

This increase, however, was less than in the preceding month of June, but exceeded that indicated on the same date of any other year of the record. Since employment at the beginning of August, in three of the past four years, has shown an increase over July, further improvement may be looked for in the next report. The 5,940 firms making returns on July 1, 1925, employed 797,463 persons, or 19,524 more than on June 1.

With the exception of logging, in which there was a seasonal decline, and trade, which showed no general change, all industries registered increased activity on the whole, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The construction group, however, reported the greatest gains.

Improvement in employmen conditions took place in all provinces, that in the Maritime Provinces and Ontario, being most marked.

15,000 IN PARIS STRIKE.

Bank Clerks Fail in Plea to Employers.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—The latest strike of bank clerks, which started several days ago, is beginning to assume formidable proportions. Strikers in Paris now number more than 15,000, and the movement is spreading to the provinces. Nantes, Bordeaux and several smaller cities are affected.

Minister of Finance Caillaux, according to a deputation of strike leaders, told them he failed to understand the refusal of the bankers to recognize their legitimate right to organize, adding that he approved their claim for increased pay and the establishment of a sliding salary scale.

The Minister, however, up to the present has been unable to bring the bankers to the same opinion. They refuse to give more than a part of the increase demanded by the clerks.

AIDING REFUGEES.

Bulgaria to Spend $4,000 For Relief.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 3.—Bulgaria has begun to grapple with the refugee problem, the Director of the National Bank being instructed by the Finance Ministry to place at the disposal of the Refugee Committees an appropriation of 20,000,000 leva (normally about $4,000,000) recently voted by Parliament.

The sum is considered inadequate to the task of settling the thousands of men, women and children who have been flowing over the Greek frontier for the last few years. The committees estimate that to complete the work sums ranging into the billions will be needed.

The Macedonians are demanding the creation of a Ministry of Refugees to deal exclusively with the formidable problem. Efforts to raise a national loan to finance refugee work have been without success.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Motors Unsettled Due To Sharp Break In Nash

NEW YORK, August 3. — Canadian Press. — A sharp break of 29 points in Nash motors unsettled some of the other motors before midday, and brought about irregularities in other sections of the Wall street list, but the main trend continued upward. Heaviness of equipment was in anticipation of poor earnings for the first half of the year because of the low rate of operations of some of the larger companies. Speculative interest in rails was confined largely to southwestern carriers, particularly those in which favorable dividend developments are believed to be pending. A sharp advance in several specialties indicated a scanty flowing supply of those stocks.

United States Cast Iron Pipe jumped five points, Brown Shoe 4½, and Great Western Sugar, International Harvester and Frank G. Shattuck selling 3 to 3 1-2 points higher before the end of the second hour. New York Canners fell back 3 points on profit taking. Call money renewed at 4¼ per cent.

Crop Estimates Boost Chicago Market Prices

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Unofficial crop estimates suggesting a total yield of about 660,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States this season gave a decided upward swing to wheat prices to-day. The amount named is only a little in excess of the domestic requirements; another estimate put the total at 672,000,000 bushels. Crop damage reports from Saskatchewan tended also to lift values and led to buying in which houses with foreign connections were prominent. The opening, which ranged from a half to 2c higher, September 154¼ to 154¾ and December 154 3-4 to 155¼, was followed by a further advance that carried September to 152 and December to 155¾.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. After opening at half a cent to one cent higher, September 104 7-8 to 105 1-8, the noon market continued upgrade, September touching 105 5-8.

Oats started at a shade to 1-8c higher. September 41 3-4 to 41 7-8. Additional upturns ensued.

Influenced by a rise in hog values, the provision market was firmer.

This Enterprising Youngster In New York Ingeniously Makes His Hay While It Showers

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Jimmy does not pray for rain himself, but he's glad when the farmers do. Other boys of 10 or 11, especially boys about the streets, may wish that all Summer, from the last day of school right up to the first ringing of the big gong in September, might be one long, parching drought. Jimmy sees things otherwise.

The recent frequent afternoon showers have filled Jimmy with joy. As soon as the big black clouds begin blowing over from Jersey City and the storm wind starts to rustle stray papers up the street, he quits the chaps that are playing handball against the garage wall.

At home he seizes his dingy and battered umbrella, then jogs off to the nearest subway station. The first big drops have come pelting down. Everybody is scurrying for the shelter of shop doorways. The traffic cop has retired to get his waterproof coat. Jimmy simply puts up his umbrella and waits for what may happen.

He does not mind the rain. Besides, he has taken the precaution to leave off his shoes and stockings. These come in handy in sunny hours when the pavement underfoot is sizzling hot, but just now he is better off without them. He is wearing a shirt and a pair of trousers which do not in the least mind getting wet, and he is holding up his apparently superfluous umbrella.

Amid the roll of the thunder overhead there comes a rumble from underground—a train. Jimmy turns around facing the steps as if expecting somebody. Young men rush up the subway stairs and sprint for doorways, clutching their straw hats against their breasts.

Two young women with newspapers over their hats come up the stairs. They never dreamed they would need their umbrellas. They are in haste, but two blocks in this downpour is too dreadful to think of. Their trouble is Jimmy's opportunity. He steps forward with the modest smile of a lifesaver and with the umbrella.

Presently Jimmy is scooting back to the subway with it. He also has somewhere about his person a dime that was not there before. Jimmy is a rescuer of distressed ladies and gentlemen, but he is rescuer by profession, not for his health. The faster he gets back to his post from each trip, the more coin he can collect. If he meets many people on the street on his return trip, he thinks nothing of furling his umbrella so that he may travel quicker.

Women are the best customers of the emergency umbrella, but men are glad to borrow it, too. In a "good" shower, one, for instance, that comes on suddenly about 4 in the afternoon, as the shoppers start home, and keeps up, with successive spatters, through the thick of the homeward rush from business, an active boy with constant attention to business can "lend" his umbrella as many as a dozen times. BUILDING PERMITS

Thirty building permits were issued by the City Engineer during the past month, involving an estimated total expenditure of $36,751. The majority were small jobs, repairs, reroofing and re-shingling.

One large contract was sanctioned, the erection of a new $8000 workshop at one of the locks on the Trent Canal.

In July, 1924, 29 permits were issued, representing an outlay of $75,281, more than double the cost of last month's operations.

LASSOES A RATTLESNAKE.

Jersey Farmer Takes Four-Foot Reptile Home For a Pet.

SUSSEX, N.J., Aug. 3. — Rattlesnakes are reported in great abundance in this vicinity this summer. Samuel Cole, who lives on a farm near by, was entering his barn on Saturday to get his horse when he noticed a rattler 5 feet long coiled on the stable floor behind the horse and poised to spring. Cole got a rake and killed the reptile.

Elliott Tranger, another farmer, lassoed a rattlesnake 4 feet long on the highway near here, and took it home for a pet.

DR. ARNOLD TELLS LIFE PHILOSOPHY

Chautauqua Speaker at Rotary Club Luncheon To-day.

LAUDS PRESS.

"A Wanderer's Philosophy" might well have been the title of Dr. Julian B. Arnold's address to the Rotarians at their weekly luncheon today. Dr. Arnold discoursed on life, death, nationality and the part man has to play in the great scheme of things ephemeral and eternal. He spoke with earnestness and conviction from a mind enriched by scholarship and refined by a varied experience in many lands.

He began by acknowledging his great indebtedness to his distinguished father, Sir Edwin Arnold, scholar, antiquary poet, scientist, and editor of the London Daily Telegraph which is still one of the journals that count in Great Britain.

Dr. Arnold refuses to be a pessimsit. Bobbed hair, jazz and excessive commercialism are only part of a passing phase he says. These are merely indications that God is ploughing the ground and a rich harvest is approaching.

The agnostic is wrong, says Dr. Arnold, but not so hopelessly wrong as the pessimist. The pessimist requires very much to be forgiven. The optimist is always right. "You rise out of bed and your head hits the bed post. You see stars, but oh, how beautiful are those stars."

Dr. Arnold created a ripple of laughter by telling his audience he had lived in 20 different countries, including one night in the heart of Africa and had met savages in one place only—Chicago.

Making apt use of the contests of the surrounding tables, as illustration of his point that neither man nor country lives alone, the speaker traced the interdependence of one country upon another for its essential requirements. For the products consumed in one land, another had to toil and plan, in a possibly far distant country. So too the news events in one country were in a comparatively short time within the knowledge of those in other lands by means of the wonderful institution, the penny newspaper. The heralds in Rome, he said, dashing post haste across river and province to bring the news to Caesar were fools when their work as contrasted with that of the newspaper.

Passing swiftly from one phase of life to another he touched on the problems of pain, the miracles of healing, and on religion which he said he conceived of as being a big splendid thing.

We were all here together, he said, our lots having cast us side by side. If we endeavored to help one another reach the higher goal in a word, if we carried out the ideals of service, which animated the Masons Rotary, Kiwanis and kindred societies we could rest assured that when we passed out of this life into the next we would be included in the cricket eleven, or the football twenty-two, of those who were marked for distinction on the other side.

CHURCHILL'S ECONOMY EFFORTS WERE NULLIFIED BY SUBSIDY TO MINERS AND BY NAVAL PROGRAM

Surrender to Miners' Union May Prove Death Knell of Government.

YIELDED TWICE.

Gave Sea Lords Their Way Last Week—$400,000,000 Estimated Cost.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(Special by United Press).—Heavy clouds streak the political horizon of Parliament's final week before the summer recess. The Government's decision for purchase of temporary peace in the coal mines dispute by means of a subsidy which may entail the expenditure of fully $100,000,000 is widely held to be nothing less than a surrender to organized labor and may prove a disastrous precedent as well as the death knell of the "Tory" Government as at present constituted. At the beginning of the session the Government had hope of a great economy wave in administration and substantial cuts in taxation.

Within the last week, however, the Government has surrendered to the sea lords to prevent a Cabinet upheaval, and the decision almost immediately afterwards to grant a subsidy to the mining industry seems to have brought all of Chancellor Churchill's Herculean efforts to cut expenses and taxation to naught. The building programme and the coal subsidy will cost the State, or the taxpayers, fully $400,000,000. An influential industrial group of the Tories meets to-day to discuss the new situation, which, it is said, arises as a result of the mines subsidy. It is feared by the industrialists that a momentuous precedent has been set up by the Baldwin Government in averting the strike by means of the subsidy.

Some effort will be made during the highly important debate on Thursday on the subsidy issues to obtain assurance from Baldwin that no further subsidy will be granted to purchase peace in any industrial districts.

EMPIRE TRADE MARK PROPOSED

Suggestion By Secretary of State For Dominions to Individualize Products.

SEVERAL IDEAS.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press Cable).—In the House of Commons Monday a member suggested to Lt.-Col. L. C. Amery, Secretary of State for the Dominions, that he should recommend to the Dominions the adoption by all the manufacturers in the Dominions of a trade mark for the whole empire or a trade mark for each dominion, and request the dominions to give their views with regard to a trade mark for goods manufactured in Great Britain.

Col. Amery replied that he doubted whether the suggestion in the form it was made would be a satisfactory or practical method of achieving the object in view.

Replying to a supplementary question along somewhat similar lines, Col. Amery said he did not wish to commit himself to any specific suggestion, but he hoped that it might become possible for the people of Great Britain in buying manufactured goods to know which were British or dominion-made goods and which were not.

Thief's Conscience Made Him Surrender to Police

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 4.—After three sleepless nights, during which he said his conscience would not let him rest, Harry Morrison, of Scranton, Pa., walked into Police Headquarters here and declared he had robbed the local lodge-rooms of the Eagles, on South Michigan Avenue, and had buried the loot in the sand on the bathing beach.

He directed detectives to the spot and $584 in bills wrapped in paper and partly destroyed by the salt water was found just beneath the sand surface where thousands of bathers had walked during the three weeks the money was hidden there. Morrison was held for the Grand Jury.

KAWARTHA PARK ANNUAL REGATTA DREW BIG CROWD

Close Finishes in All Races, Which Were All Well Patronized.

FINE WEATHER.

Two Winners Had Four Victories Each, and Forfeited One Prize.

The annual regatta of Kawartha Park Cottagers' Association took place yesterday, and proved to be a very successful event, with splendid weather, a good crowd, and an excellent series of events on the programme, all of which were well contested. A great degree of enthusiasm was manifested by those taking part and by their audience, who applauded the winners, many of whom came in by an extremely close margin, to the echo.

Don Fitzgerald of Lakefield was one of the major winners, getting four firsts. According to the rules of the committee, no contestant shall be awarded more than three prizes, so Mr. Fitzgerald forfeited his victory in one class, the men's crab race, to the second winner. This rule also caused Miss Helen Edmondson, winner of four victories, to forfeit first place in the girls' crab race.

All of the events were exceptionally well contested, with six or seven entries in the majority. A popular victory was that of Grant Gillespie, who had a great deal of dif-

Victoria Heights Select —No Stores Are Allowed

H. J. McCannan, representing the Hamilton Realty Co., applied to the City Council last night for the removal of trading restrictions on lots on Monaghan Road at Victoria Heights. This section in the west of the city was set aside as a residential district, and Council believed many of the property owners took up holdings there on that understanding.

PREMIER URGES UNITED CANADA WITHIN EMPIRE

Mackenzie King Returns to Kitchener For Old Boys' Re-union.

DOMINION FIRST.

Canadians Should First of All Consider Their Native Land.

KITCHENER, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Premier King returned to his native city today to join with the other Old Boys" in an Old Home Week Celebration.

He was given a warm reception at the station when he arrived at nine o'clock and was later tendered a civic welcome by the Mayor and Council at the city hall. A feature of Canada Day" of the celebration week, was the dinner, attended by seven hundred, at which the Premier delivered an address in which he emphasized the importance of Canada's position in the British Empire and the importance of being loyal to Canada first of all.

As Canadians are true to Canada's highest interest," he declared, "so will Canadian citizenship mean most for Empire citizenship."

The Premier continued:

Tho those who think we should have no national citizenship, and that ours should be only Empire citizenship, I would say, with Sir Walter Scott: Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said: This is my own—my native land.

"You cannot speak of an Empire such as the British Empire is, as your own, your native, land. You dissipate all virtue and power of patriotism in attempt."

"I dismiss as unworthy of consideration any change which contemplates the break-up of our Confederation. In what better position would the people of Canada-East or Canada-West be than as citizens of a United Canada? What schism can be imagined that would not work injury to Canada as a whole and greater injury to the part more immediately concerned?"

MEMBERS OF THE STAPLES CLAN DECORATE GRAVE OF FOUNDER OF THE FAMILY IN CAVAN CEMETERY

Service Held on Sunday in St. John's Church, Ida, Largely Attended.

BURIED IN 1825

Thomas Staples Came to Canada in 1823 — Many Descendants at Ceremony.

(Written by One of the Clan.)

CAVAN, Aug. 3. — St. John's church, Ida, was more than filled to capacity on Sunday, August the second, when the "Staples Clan" gathered from far and wide to decorate the grave of the father of the clan, Thomas Staples, who came to Canada in 1823, died in 1825, and was buried in St. John's cemetery.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Fierheller, Bethany. It was opened by the singing of the hymn, "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past."

Mr. Fierheller then led in prayer, afterwards reading the Scripture lesson. "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was then sung.

Mr. Wellingtotn Staples, Baltimore, president of the committee which arranged for the gathering of the clan, then spoke a few words of welcome. He was glad so many had accepted the invitation and were present on this occasion. He said he had just met a man who had come from British Columbia in order to be present. He was proud to be the president of such a clan. He said Cobourg and Baltimore were well represented and hoped that all present and many more would find their way to Cobourg on Wednesday, August the fifth. To come early, by ten a.m. at least and enjoy a good long day, renewing acquaintances and making more.

A Great Family.

Mr. Wellesley Staples, Lindsay, next gave an address, in his usual good style. He said he very much regretted that this weather was not as pleasant as could be desired, a heavy shower having come up quickly, and developed into a severe electrical storm. He also regretted that Rev. Canon Allan was unable to be present, but was very

FONTAINE AND MEIN REQUEST FRANCHISE FOR BUS SERVICE TO TAKE PLACE STREET CARS

Offer to Put in Equipment Amounting to $60,000 at Least Estimate.

FORM COMPANY.

Say Flexible Bus Line Would Serve Public Better Than Radials.

Application was made to the City Council last night for an exclusive franchise to operate a bus-line service in the city, to take effect when the street railway ceases to operate. The applicants are two well-known Peterborough men, Joseph Fontaine, of Fontaine's taxi service, and Gordon Mein, proprietor and driver of the Chemong Comet" bus. The application was referred to the committee of the whole council without debate.

The letter read as follows:

"We beg to make an application to you for an exclusive franchise to operate a bus-line service throughout this City and suburbs for a term of twenty years upon and subject to such reasonable terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, such franchise to take effect when the Peterborough Street Railway Company ceases to operate.

We propose to form a joint stock Company to hold the franchise and have the assurance of ample capital to purchase and equip the necessary busses, garages and necessary equipment to operate a satisfactory and efficient bus-line service.

We require an exclusive franchise for a period of twenty years owing to the fact that the cars, buildings and other equipment will involve an investment of between $60,000 and $75,000 and therefore if the franchise were only a temporary one and were not exclusive the investment in busses and other equipment might unexpectedly become junk in the hands of the Company proposed to be formed.

If the municipal corporation has not the necessary statutory authority to grant such a franchise, then we would submit for you favorable consideration that either general or special authority be obtained to grant such a franchise.

After having looked very carefully into the matter we are satisfied that owing to the flexible character of a bus-line more satisfactory service can be furnished to the general public, to the many employees in our many factories and to our schools, churches, and other patrons of a bus-line service, than the Peterborough Street Railway has done in the past or is reasonably capable of doing in the future.

We will be pleased to meet a committee of the council to discuss our proposed proposition in more detail and at as early a convenient date as possible."

LIKE THE OTONABEE.

Big Crowds Boat, Swim and Dance at South End of City.

Judging by the crowds at the river bank at the south end of the city, people are coming towards a fuller appreciation of the splendid playgrounds that line the courses of the Otonabee as it passes through Peterborough. Over 100 pleasure boats were counted on the river last night besides great numbers of swimmers. It is estimated that 1,700 people were at the river's edge, including the large attendance at the hockey club's dance in Rye's Pavilion.

A man at Grand Rapids has been arrested for going to the John Ball Park and poking a monkey with his cane. And, as the saying goes thereby hangs a tail.

British Beer May Pay For Governmental Subvention

LONDON, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—That beer be made to pay the cost of the Government's promised subvention to coal mines, is the suggestion that is being discussed in political quarters. It is reported that Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is considering the question of an increased tax on beer, which would enrich the Exchequer to the extent of £20,000,000 sterling a year, on the basis of the country's present consumption.

Traffic Regulation Will Be Talked By Committee

Safety measures to protect pedestrians and motorists were on the agenda at last night's meeting of the Council, but the discussion progressed no farther than the appointment of Mayor Turner and Alderman Crowe to look further into the question.

Alderman Crowe strongly advocated the stopping of automomiles at important street intersections before crossing. The preservation of the public safety is a live question in other municipalities, he said, asking that all Aldermen co-operate by gathering ideas. He asked for a delegation to visit Hamilton and other places to gain experience, and His Worship suggested that Alderman Crowe be sent.

Alderman Denne agreed that some action is necessary, but counselled waiting for the outcome of the international effort to frame uniform traffic regulations.

KILL PAVEMENT PROGRAM AFTER HOUR'S DEBATE

Rubidge Street, at Trinity Church Again Passed For Economy.

NEXT YEAR.

Suggestion Made to Prepare By Laying Storm Drains and Gutter

After over an hour's debate last night the City Council decided not to do any paving this year. This action was taken on a proposal to pave Rubidge Street from Trinity Church to Charlotte Street, a section that has been promised attention for some years, and other small sections.

Alderman Crowe was spokesman for the opposition, saying he opposed doing the paving because of his desire for economy. He was seconded by Alderman Hancock, who thought the taxes are high enough. "No paving at all this year" was his slogan.

Alderman Greene told of the great need of the section under discussion, especially after rain storms in the spring.

A by-law was introduced and was piloted safely through the committee stage by a vote of six to three, but was lost in the third reading by an affirmative vote of only 5 to 4, a two-thirds vote in favor being necessary to pass the bill.

A suggestion that met popular approval was put forward by Alderman Turner, who would plan the paving programme ahead and have surface drains, gutter and curb built the year previous to when the paving is to be done, to allow for settlement. No action was taken.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press).—The strength of an automobile top saved five persons from death or serious injury when a car owned by Richard E. Williams, of Bell's Corners, took to the ditch and overturned a short distance from Bell's Corners, early Monday morning. The occupants of the car were Gordon Williams, aged 10 years; Ernest Byrne, 26; Patrick Byrne, 30; Rita Byrne, 16 years, and M. Belford, 17 years. They were returning from a visit in Carp, Ont.

INJURED MEN BETTER.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 4. —(Canadian Press). — Supt. John Alder of the Peter Lyall Construction, who was seriously injured at Lock 5, Welland Ship Canal, when two men were killed by the collapse of a huge Blaw form, was reported to be somewhat improved at the General Hospital last night, though not out of danger. The other eleven injured are making rapid progress.

September Wheat Closed At $1.57¾ in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat again did a balloon ascension Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade, the close being 3½ cents to 4¼ cents above Saturday's finish. Corn ended 7-8 to 1 1-8 cents higher, oats were up 7-8 to 1 cent, and rye finished 1 to 1 3-8 cents.

Wheat advanced early in the day and held most of its increase although a large increase in the visible supply caused some selling. September showed the most strength, going to a premium over December. Bears were not so aggressive and shorts covered freely.

September wheat closed at $1.57¾, September corn at $1.05⅛; September oats at 42⅝ cents, and September rye at 99 cents.

DAIRY INDUSTRY LAGS IN BRITAIN; IMPORTS GROW

Production of Best Quality Cattle Has Declined, But Increased Esewhere.

BIG FOOD BILL

Britain Importing Too Much Produce, Lloyd George Declares in House.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The estimates of the Department of Agriculture were adopted in the House of Commons without division. In the course of the debate Lloyd George suggested that a systematic survey of the country's agricultural resources be made and declared that last year Britain imported £380,000,000 worth of food which this country was capable of producing.

"We imported £57,000,000 worth more of meat, butter, eggs and other dairy produce last year that we did in 1913 after allowing for the changed value" said Lloyd George. He said that while Britain could produce the best quality cattle she had gone back in this respect while other western countries had increased their production considerably.

A. V. Alexander (Labor) said that the British bill for imported food between 1922 and 1924 had increased by a hundred millions sterling. Rt. Hon. Edward F. L. Wood, Minister of Agriculture, said that it was time the level of farming in charge should not be laid exclusively to the farmers. He announced that he intended to hear the policy and proposals of the National Council of Agriculture this week and incorporate them with other ideas in his own mind as the foundation of advice he might tender the government in the course of the next few months.

BOLD DAYLIGHT ROBBERY NETS BANDITS $60,000 IN JEWELRY; CLERKS AND CUSTOMER BOUND

Cash Amounting to $11000 Also Taken By Four Men.

USED REVOLVERS.

Pawn Shop Cleared Out and Daring Quartette Makes Getaway.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press)—Four robbers held up the pawn shop of Patrick Clancy in Grand Street, East side, today and escaped with cash and diamonds estimated to the value of $70,000 after binding two clerks.

A woman customer, who entered the shop during the robbery, began to scream when the men drew their revolvers. She was silenced with a blow across the mouth. Then she was forced into the back office where she was bound and gagged, with the store employees. The loot consisted of $11,000 in cash and nearly $60,000 in jewelry.

Break Coal Negotiations Say Miners At Conference

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press) — Anthracite scale negotiations will definitely be broken off on resumption here this afternoon, "barring unforseen developments," according to an opinion voiced by high authorities among the miners today. What grounds would likely be adduced for such a break were not indicated.

RECEIPTS DOWN BUT INCREASE IS IN NET REVENUE

Sir Henry Thornton Tells of Improved Status of Railways.

EXPENSES REDUCED

Measures Taken to Increase Efficiency Are Producing Results.

JASPER, Alta., Aug. 4.—Commenting upon the financial statement of Canadian National Railways for six months period of January 1st to June 30th inclusive issued this week, Sir Henry W. Thornton, chairman and president of the company interviewed here today said an analysis of the improvement in the cumulative position of the net earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the first six months of this year indicates that the result has been obtained through a subsantial saving in operating costs. The gross receipts show a decrease of $9,318,815.00 or 8.11 percent compared with the same period of last year but the net revenue is $1,129,916.00 ahead of the same period. To bring about this result all forms of operating expenses have been substantially reduced conducting transportation showing a reduction of over five million dollars or 9.12 per cent. This reduction in transportation expenses being in greater ratio than the decline in operating revenues indicates that the measures taken to increase operating efficiency are producing encouraging results and in producing these results the property of the company has been maintained to a satisfactory standard commensurate with the traffic handled. The increase in gross receipts shown during the weekly periods of July might be accepted as indicative that conditions have now shown a turn for the better.

SMITH'S FALLS RE-UNION.

Mayor and Controllers of Ottawa Were Guests.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press). — The blasts of whistles and ringing of bells at eight o'clock Monday morning announced the opening of Old Home Week in Smith's Falls. Never before has such a sight been witnessed in the little Ontario town. With the arrival of Mayor J. P. Balharrie and Comptrollers of Ottawa, Smith's Falls, "Ottawa Day" was a huge success. About one hundred guests were present at the banquet held in the Masonic Hall.

HEAT HITS REGINA

Mercury Stood at 96 Monday Afternoon—Cutting General Next Week.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Crops throughout the province are good, fair and poor in patches. So stated F. H. Auld, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, yesterday.

Reviewing the situation, the Minister said that there was promise of a big crop with a small percentage of failures. Lately, he said, the crops had been maturing rapidly and in some districts cutting would be commenced this week, while next week it would be general. Most of the damage had been caused by hail.

Estimates of the yield, he said, ranged from 8 bushels in parts of the south to 35 bushels in parts of the northern districts. The district in the extreme southwest of the province would have the poorest crop. Reports of failure there were frequent. Ten bushels was the best estimate received.

Accompanied by a scorching south wind, a heat wave struck Regina during the week end, and, yesteday, the city sweltered under a temperature of 96 degrees at 1 o'clock.

AVOID DIABETES WALKING ON TOES

Osteopaths Say Body Has Its Own Drug Supplies.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press Cable). — Dr. Hubert J. Pocock, of Toronto, osteopath, lecturing on insulin at the annual convention of osteopaths which opened in the Savoy Hotel here yesterday, attended by nearly 200 delegates from various parts of the world, said that insulin undoubtedly was a success, and the hope of all people suffering from diabetes as a relief, but not a cure.

Dr. Pocock said:

"We believe the body has its own drug stores if the doctor knows where to press the button to release the secretion required. We as osteopaths have found the cause of diabetes to be in the middle of the back, between the 10th and 12th dorsal. We can produce sugar diabetes by a forcible injury in that area and can correct it by adjusting the structure."

Dr. Pocock said that Dr. Fred. Ashton, of Manchester, had made this discovery on the human frame and they had proved it on animals. In order to maintain this correction, he added, men must learn to walk on their toes.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Nearly 300 animals are affected in an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease at Fawley, near Southampton. Officials are slaughtering the infected animals and burning the carcasses. The landing of foreign cattle at Southampton has been stopped and vessels carrying livestock will be diverted to other ports.

CORNS TENDERNESS SWELLING — GET RID OF — ACHING CALLOUSES BURNING
ALL YOUR FOOT TROUBLES

"You will never see them again after using Reudel Bath Saltrates. No excuse now for suffering from corny, calloused, tired, tender, aching feet."

Cutting the top of a corn off with a razor or burning it off with caustic lotion, plasters, etc., doesn't do any good. The root just sprouts right up again, and soon your corn has a brand new top on it, bigger than ever. The top is only dead skin anyway. The business end of a corn is the little pointed part, or core, that extends down into the toe, That is what hurts when it presses on sensitive nerves, and it is the part you have to get out.

Cutting the top off an aching tooth wouldn't stop the ache. Same way with a corn. Don't worry about the top. Get the root out permanently by using a good big handful of Reudel Bath Saltrates (you can get a half-pound at slight cost from any druggist) dissolved in about a gallon of hot water. Just soak your feet in this for fifteen or twenty minutes, then take hold of the corn with your fingers, and out she'll come root and all, like a hull comes out of a strawberry. Only a little hole or depression is left in the toe, and that soon closes, so there is nothing left in there to sprout a new corn again. It doesn't affect the surrounding flesh at all, but soon softens the whole of the corn. No burning or soreness, no pain, no danger, no trouble, and no days of waiting to see whether that old corn is going to leave for good or come back to stay with you a while longer. Softens callouses the same way, then scrape off, and I don't dare tell you how quick this medicated water, made with Reudel Bath Saltrates, will always drive aches, chafes, blisters, etc., away, and even cure rheumatic or gouty pains. It would sound too good to be true, but thousands can tell what wonderful stuff "Saltrates" water is.

Obtainable at most drug stores for 50c. or direct from the distributors Macnamara Limited, New Birks Building, Montreal

GIVE AND TAKE IS WELL LIKED

Play Night Drew Large Audience to Chautauqua Tent Last Night.

SPARKLING COMEDY.

Play night at Chautauqua has always drawn the largest crowd of the week, and last night was no exception. Every available seat was occupied and there were people standing at the back. The comedy, 'Give and Take,' was well worthy of the large audience, which fairly rocked the tent with laughter at times.

The story concerns a young man, Jack Bauer, who returns from college and proceeds to talk industrial democracy among the workmen in his father's cannery. The part was taken by George Ertell, and he put his plan up to his father in a most convincing manner, although the threat of a strike made Bauer, senior, agree to the plan. The spokesman for the men was Albert Kruger, for years foreman of the plant, who was the cause of much comedy. The actor playing this part had not seen it until yesterday, having been called hurriedly into service owing to the illness of Joseph Clancy, who was stricken with apoplexy at Woodstock last week, and died yesterday. Kruger's business knowledge was shown when he told Bauer that the men wanted half the profits from the beginning of the fiscal year, and when told that there was a deficit of $75,000, he said, "We want half of that, too."

Kruger's daughter, Marion (Isabel Travers), refused to take part in the plan, and stood by Bauer.

In the second act, Bauer's business has gone all to pieces. The men are always stopping work for cabinet meetings, meetings of congress, or other organizations of "Bauer Company Industrial Democracy." The banker, Daniel Drum, (William Marsh) with his everlasting complaint, "Money's tight, awful tight," is looking the place over to see what it will bring when he forecloses, to realize the note for $150,000 which he holds. Thomas Craig, a millionaire, arrives and tells Bauer all about a scheme to put a fleet of motor stores on all the roads of the country, and gives an order for a million and a half cases of canned goods. The men are told of the note that is due, and march in a body to Drum's bank to withdraw their savings to pay the note. Bauer starts out to buy fruit, and just after he leaves, some papers left by Craig are discovered, which reveal that he is an escaped lunatic.

Act three shows the return of the fruit buyer. Jack and Kruger are just preparing to tell the men about the crazy man, who had caused them to lose their savings, when Bauer returns. He is elated over his success in buying fruit, but comes down to earth quickly when told that Craig is crazy. Craig returns and has a hard time convincing Bauer and Kruger that he had been confined to an asylum because his relatives didn't like the way he spent his money. His order is good and the first fleet of motor stores arrives that night. Jack and Marion become engaged and everything ends happily.

Taken From Bandit Chief, Gland Was Grafted to Idiot Girl.

IS NORMAL NOW.

PARIS, Aug. 4 (United News).—A thyroid gland removed from Oliver, chief of a gang of bandits recently executed at Lille, has transformed a half idiot girl into a normal child, according to dispatches from Lille. The surgical feat is described as a scientific miracle.

Dr. Rene Iefort, a member of the Academy of Medicine, performed the sensational transplantation several months ago upon Denis L'Young, a physical and mental weakling. First results of the operation were encouragig, but the snurgeons watching the case desired to await definite results before making any announcement. The result of the operation was announced Monday.

The girl was pronounced to be healthy, gay and possessed of an awakened intelligence.

DISCONTENT IN ITALY JUST NOW

Prices of Food Have Risen From Ten to Fifteen Per Cent.

TOLLS RESTORED.

CHIASSO, Italian-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Although newspapermen living in Italy dare not say so lest they get expulsion orders. Italy is again passing through a period of discontent. The reasons are both economic and political. Prices of bread and macaroni have risen ten to fifteen per cent., according to locality, following the action of Finance Minister Volpi in reviving the city tolls on cereals. Volpi declares it is to encourage Italian farmers to grow more grain and lessen the purchases from the United States which, according to him, are responsible for the drop in the lira's value.

FAMOUS ECONOMIST MARRIED TO DANCER

Professor J. M. Keyes Wed to Lydia Lopokova in London.

LONDON, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Science and Beauty were joined here today when Prof. J. M. Keynes, renowed British economist, was married to the captivating Russian dancer, Lydia Lopokova.

Their wedding was the outcome of a romance which began when the professor met the dancer at a social event. It was "love at first sight" for the man who had hitherto been known to the world for his mastery of dizzying figures and dry economics.

Keynes has written much on the Versailles Treaty, opposing many of its provisions.

LOCK CAR DRIVERS WITH THEIR VICTIMS

Automobilist Who Kills Man Must Stay in Room With Body.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—A new form of punishment for those responsible for the deaths by automobile has been planned here. Herman E. Rikhoff, superintendent of police said yesterday, that hereafter, they would be locked up for an hour alone in the morgue or death chamber with their victims.

This is devised especially for drunken drivers. The same punishment will be meted out where persons are injured seriously.

HER COMEBACK

Aunt Julia.—What under the sun did your mother send you over here to visit for?"

Little Teddy.—"Because she is trimming a hat."

Aunt Julia.—"Well, you go right straight home and tell your mother that I am dyeing a skirt—and—er—take my Freddie with you."

CAMPBELLFORD LOST BOWLING TO PETERBORO

City Rinks Win All Honors at Annual Doubles Tournament.

FORTY PLAYERS.

T. C. Elliot, J. Cullen, Walter Oke and George Gimblett First.

CAMPBELLFOD, Aug. 4.—Peterboro bowlers won all the honors at the annual tournament of Scotch doubles held here by the Bowling Club on Monday. T. C. Elliott and James Cullen, and Walter J. Oke and George Gimblett won the two prizes in the primaries, and will play off in Peterboro to decide which rink takes the first and which the second trophy.

In the consolation series play ended at 3.15 a.m., with Seymour and Chenhall and Bacon and Howden tied for first place, after W. Delaney and Dr. Ferris of Cobourg had defeated Dr. Allen and Mark Stephens of Peterboro and then defaulted. The two Peterboro rinks will also play off the tie on their home green.

About 40 players took part in the tournament, three of them ladies—Mrs. W. Delaney of Cobourg, Mrs. F. J. Smith of Campbellford, and Mrs. Seymour of Peterboro. One of the most exciting games of the day was that in the consolation between the two latter and A. J. Meyers and Joe Poulton of Cobourg. The ladies played even up to the tenth end, but in the two last lost out by four shots. The following was the result of the preliminary round in the finals:

Delaney, Cobourg, 11; Elliot, Peterboro, 15.
McCarthy, Campbellford, 7; Bacon, Peterboro, 13.
Wise, Peterboro, 14; Dr. Allen, Warkworth, 6.

BURNS FATAL TO AGED LADY

Mrs. Thickson Was Burned To Death When Bed Clothes Ignited.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

WELCOME, Aug. 4.—Fire of unknown cause ignited the bedclothes and caused fatal burns to Mrs. Thickson, an old lady living with her son-in-law, W. Wilkins, about six miles west of Port Hope, on the highway. The fire occurred yesterday afternoon.

The funeral will be held from her son's resident to Port Hope Cemetery.

PERCY TAX RATE.

Council Passes Increased Levy Due to Uncontrollable Calls.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, Aug. 4. — The Percy Townschip Council at its August session Monday set the tax rate, with the different amounts to be raised as follows:

County rate, 11½ mills, one and two-fifth mills greater than last year, the amount to be raised being $11,441.15.

Township rate, to raise $6.979, 7 mills, half a mill less than last year.

General school rate, to raise $7,515, 8 2-10 mills.

For payment on Memorial Hall, $1,000, or one mill on assessed value of the township.

In addition to the above rates there will be a special levy of one and one-half mills on the police village of Warkworth.

The increase in the county rate is due to the fact that the township of Percy's share of the $16,000 owing on the bridges built in Northumberland County during the past five years is $13,000 or, a fraction over one mill on the total assessment. This is a matter over which the council has no control.

MANY MURDERED IN CHICAGO THIS YEAR

Total For 211 Days Has Reached 227—More Than One Every Day.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press)—Persons are being murdered in Chicago at the rate of more than one each day. A total of 227 have been murdered to date this year. If that pace of 211 days continue for the next 154 days, the murders at the end of 1925 will number 391.

NORTH BAY HAS BECOME A CITY

Charter Was Presented Yesterday by the Minister of Mines.

OLD HOME WEEK.

NORTH BAY, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—North Bay's charter of cityhood was offiticially presented to Major J. H. MacDonald, at 12 o'clock yesterday by Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines in the Ontario Government. The largest gathering ever seen in North Bay assembled at Memorial Park about 11.30, where ex-Mayor John Ferguson, president of the Old Home Week Committee, introduced the minister to the citizens of Ontario's youngest city.

TANKS CAUSED RAPID FLIGHT

Riffs Fled in Disorder From Strong Position in Hills.

MANY KILLED.

FEZ, French Morocco, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Several French flying columns well supplied with tanks have carried out operations on a large scale with the object of cleaning the northern and northwestern regions of the battle area, where Riffian tribesmen have been filtering through in large numbers recently and making raids on isolated villages and farms. In the course of operations, the enemy was attacked in the Asejen Range where he was strongly entrenched. Completely taken aback by the tanks, the Riffians are reported to have abandoned the position and fled in disorder, leaving 60 dead on the ground.

KILLED IN CRASH.

William Madden's Auto Collided With Radial Car at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press) — William Madden, an employe of the city, died in the hospital last night from injuries received when his auto and a radial car collided when Madden was on his way to the Beach. Edward Muldoon of Owen Sound and Edwin Willison of Hamilton, who were in the car with Madden at the time of the accident, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

CHILD BURNED.

Matches Ignited Clothes — Five Year Old Girl Died of Injuries.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press) — Resulting from terrible burns she received when her clothing took fire when she was playing with matches, Fannie Palef, aged five, died early this morning at the civic hospital. The child was found early yesterday afternoon at the corner of Lawrence and Preston streets with her clothing a mass of flames.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARY BOYLE

The death occurred at noon yesterday of Mrs. Mary Boyle in St. Joseph's Hospital. The deceased lady had been a lifelong resident of the city.

She leaves to mourn her loss one son, Martin, of Peterborough. One son, Gunner Richard Boyle, was killed in the Boer War. Her husband predeceased her by about 40 years.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning from her late residence, 133 Stewart street at 8.45, to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemetery.

FRENCH TROOPS GATHER AT TAZA

Fifty Thousand Men of All Arms Are Mustered There.

AIRMAN WOUNDED.

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press) — Fifty thousand French troops of all arms, native, Moroccans and French regulars are concentrated at Taza, the pivotal point in the battle zone northeast of Fez. This information is contained in advices reaching Melilla from the French zone. A strong French column has left for Taza to protect the transfer of supplies from Chachui.

Three Spanish airmen, among them Captain Spencer, have been wounded by rebels, who fired on their planes while they ere exploring the Bulherif sector. The aviators, however, were able to land inside the Spanish lines.

NEW SYNDICATE TO CONTROL DIAMONDS

Will Succeed DeBeers in South Africa at End of Year.

NEW YORK, August 4. — Canadian Press. — A new diamond syndicate composed of the Morgan interests in New York, the Barnato interests of Cape Colony, and the Dunkelsbuhler interests of Germany, has been formed in London to succeed the present DeBeers South African syndicate, on December 31st, it was announced by Lee Reichman, head of Reichman Bros., the leading American diamond importers.

According to Mr. Reichman, the syndicate will have control over the production of the Premier and the Jaegersfontain fields for five years, and will also supervise the output of the principal mines in Angola and the Congo.

BRIAND WILL GO TO LONDON

Will Discuss the Reply to Stresemann's Security Note With Chamberlain.

ON WEDNESDAY.

PARIS, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press). —If it is convenient for Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary to receive him, Foreign Minister Briand will go to London on Wednesday to confer with him on the subject of the reply to be made to the note of Dr. Stresemann, German Foreign Minister, on the subject of security. Mr. Chamberlain was informed to this effect by M. Briand, yesterday, and the latter expects a favorable response today.

WHEAT HARVEST IS UNDER WAY

Weather Intensely Hot, With Grain Well Filled and Healthy.

AVERAGE 30 BUSHELS.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat is being harvested all over Southern Manitoba and Alberta. For three days the weather has been intensely hot, with machines in the field through most of these provinces south of the C.P.R. main line. Little, if any, rust damaged grain has been discovered. Some say fly damage is reported through Saskatchewan fields but none in Manitoba. In most cases the heads are filled out well and the berries are large and of a fine color. Many fields are averaging 30 bushels per acre along the southern sections close to the United States border.

THE WAYS OF ARGUMENT.

This Canada of ours is a vast country. Many of our Provinces are larger than the largest kingdoms of Europe. It is impossible, in such a country, that public policies of any kind shall be equally well suited or equally profitable to all parts. One part may benefit most by some public course, another part may benefit most by another public course.

But what all of us in the Canadian brotherhood should look to and have a right to expect all to look to, is that in discussion of public policy, while each of us argues his own view, he shall not accuse those who differ with him of differing because they dislike him, want to hurt him or are narrow-minded, jealous and selfish.—Ottawa Journal.

LIGHT READING.

The Dean of St. Paul's has commented unfavorably on the widespread taste for reading novels, which he describes as "literary dram-drinking." . . . Scholars like Dean Inge, to whom literature is a business, do not seem to realize that to a large part of humanity it is only a relaxation. In vain does he claim that because he is virtuous there shall be no more cakes and ale. Even university professors have been known to unbend sufficiently to enjoy detective novels; some are connoisseurs of this type of fiction, which they claim refreshes their minds after concentration on serious study. . . . The ordinary man is wiser in following in moderation the simple philosophy of Rosalind's reply to the melancholy Jacques, "I had rather have a fool to make me merry than experience to make me sad."—Glasgow Herald.

A TIP TO THE MARRIED.

Donald B. MacMillan, on his way into polar regions, says the biggest difficulty in the way of such an expedition is not cold, loss of food, or lack of modern conveniences.

It is solitude.

The men get talked out. They learn all the little details in each other's life history and there is nothing new to tell. The men bore each other and the solitude preys upon them.

So MacMillan has forbidden the men to talk except at certain times and has told them to keep apart for periods during the day.

Here is a good hint for the married.

When two people get "talked out" they bore each other. When intimate family history is repeated over and over again it becomes unbearable.

The more progressive interests a man and his wife have the less danger there is of their becoming "talked out." The more active interests they have in common the more they have to talk about, and the longer they are liable to enjoy each other's company. —New York American.

NEW BRUNSWICK NEXT.

There is considerable interest all over Canada now as to the result of the New Brunswick Provincial elections. It is a local contest, but the trend of the Maritimes may be further indicated by the vote on August 10. It is not probable the Conservatives may sweep New Brunswick as they did Nova Scotia, because the Liberals have adjusted themselves since and are attempting heroically to stem the flowing tide—or dam it. New Brunswick has had a Liberal administration for eight years. The standing of the parties at the dissolution of the Legislature was: Liberals 29, Conservatives 12 and Farmers 7. The fight of the Conservatives is expected to be an uphill struggle, but this Province also has called a leader from Ottawa, and Hon. J. B. M. Baxter has inspired a new confidence among his followers. It is not a test of Dominion issues in New Brunswick, but a Conservative gain or victory will have considerable effect on the future after the Nova Scotian influence. The political sentiments will assuredly be made clear in a couple of weeks. Both parties are to be fully represented in the forty-eight contests.—St. Catharines Standard.

LESS CLOTHING, BETTER HEALTH.

Medical opinion is coming to the rescue of those who for various reasons are advocating the wearing of less clothing. While the scantiness of women's apparel may be superficially attributed to a flippant tendency, it may really be the best thing possible in the interest of health.

Dr. Leonard Hill, at the meeting of the British Medical Association at Bath, England, said that lack of exposure to the sun's rays had done a lot of damage to people's health. He urged the wearing of more rational clothing which would permit the body to be exposed to the sunshine and the air as much as possible. He believed that the wearing of long trousers and collars by men was decidedly detrimental. He commended the women for adopting a much more rational garb, and he even suggested that in summer they could profitably abandon stockings. Varicose veins, he said, would be less frequent if the legs were regularly exposed to the sun.

It is pointed out that the Indians of this continent were immune from tuberculosis until they adopted the white man's house as a place to live in. When Julius Caesar first came to France on a military expedition he was struck by the outdoor habits of the people. In his history he wrote that the Romans were amazed at the circumstance that the Gauls only partly covered their bodies in skins and that they bathed in the rivers even in winter. Incidentally these enthusiasts for the outdoors were about the hardest nuts the Romans had to crack and they were really never conquered.

Getting back to a regime where the elements are less feared than now is bound to take some time. People have become accustomed to the ultimate in comfort. They are averse to enduring hardships in the matter of weather and so they have become flabby. The campaign to make the race stronger and healthier by more exposure to the weather will have to proceed slowly because a too sudden reaction to primitive habits might do more harm than good. If people can be convinced that their health will be benefited by greater exposure they are likely to gradually adopt the experiment.—Sarnia Observer.

CRIME HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

That is a very interesting story that comes from Washington to the effect that while England has been closing her prisons on account of the decrease in crime there has been at the same time a remarkable increase in crime in the United States. According to Alfred Nutting of the staff of the American Consul-General at London, practically one-third of the total prisons in England and Wales have closed since 1914, whereas in the United States there are more prisoners and criminals than ever before, largely due, it would seem, to auto thieves, bootleggers and tax dodgers.

The change in conditions is a remarkable one and not without real significance. Certainly it is an amazing state of affairs that in three of the largest prisons in the United States there has been a jump in the number of prisoners from 2,500 in 1912 to 7,107 in 1925.

Some people undoubtedly will argue that this is due to prohibition in one country and not in the other. But the argument will hardly hold good in view of the fact that in Canada, where there is prohibition, there was actually a drop last year in the number of prisoners in our penitentiaries from 2,480 to 2,225. Perhaps the real explanation is that in Canada and in Great Britain law is law and criminals know that if they are apprehended they will receive swift and stern justice. In the United States, on the other hand, where so many of their judges are political creatures and creations the proportion of convictions to arrests is distressingly small.—Kingston Standard.

"BIG BROTHERS" IN IMMIGRATION.

Of American origin, the "big brother" movement is being extended in a rather unexpected way by Great Britain and some of its autonomous colonies.

Thanks to an enlightened Australian, Richard Linton, juvenile emigration from Great Britain is being organized with the aid of "big brothers" in Australia, who pledge themselves to act as parents or guardians to the boys seeking opportunities in the new land. Leading citizens have joined in the movement. Thus each boy immigrant is practically assured of protection and sympathetic interest from the day of his arrival till he reaches manhood.

It is worthy of note that no city boy and no boy who prefers city life and looks for a job in a factory or office is to be nominated for the privilege in question. Australia has all the city population it requires, in the opinion of its "big brothers" and high officials. It wants more farmers. So farm boys and other boys who promise to take up agriculture and pursue it industriously are to be encouraged in every way to avail themselves of state and private aid under the supervision of the "big brother" organization.

The boys, however, in return for the proffered protection, are required to bind themselves to certain conditions. They cannot leave an employer without the permission of the "big brothers"; they must write at least once a week to their parents and to the "big brothers"; they must seek and follow the advice of the "big brothers" in every emergency or unforeseen situation; and, finally, they must promise to refrain from gambling, drinking and other dissipations till they reach the age of 21.

Desirable boys whose parents are unable to pay the expenses of emigration to Australia may apply for a loan to the Australian bureau in London. They will be expected to repay this loan out of their earnings, for each boy is to open an account at the bank nearest his place of residence.

In September 250 English boys are to be sent out under this unique plan. Others will follow them. It is reported that Canada, South Africa and other British dominions are planning to emulate the Australian example.—Chicago News.

PROSPERITY RETURNS.

The keynote of the Brantford Expositor's special edition is optimism, and it is persuasively demonstrated that the optimism is justified. Special messages are printed from Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, Mr. E. W. Beatty, head of the C.P.R., and Sir John Willison, the well-known Canadian journalist. The purport of all these messages is the same—the certainty of improved times for the country and the evidence that those times have already set in. In the first place, there is the splendid wheat crop of Canada, coupled with the good prices the farmers will secure for their product. Cities like Brantford feel the effect of such prospects well beforehand, and it is reported that "the universal testimony of the local manufacturers and business men is that the conditions in the commercial world are steadily and substantially improving, and that, as a result, confidence and courage are taking the place of uncertainty and timidity." What is true of Brantford is true, also, of other Canadian industrial cities. Hopes have been so frequently disappointed in the past, that one hesitates to venture on prophesying, but there surely has not been, of recent years, a time when optimism was more justified than it is at present.

It is heartening to read the practical, first-hand testimony of the manufacturers of Brantford that conditions in their various industries have improved greatly in recent months. It is still more encouraging to read the many excellent reasons why the future should show still further advance. Taking Canada as a whole, in addition to the great harvests about to be garnered, there are the extraordinary mining activities which are just now attracting world-wide attention to Northern Ontario. With the new gold discoveries near Port Arthur, and the reported existence of great zinc deposits in the Sudbury district, this Province may well feel satisfied with its lot. In connection with the Western wheat harvest, too, direct relief is afford to Eastern cities in the labor requirements on the farms. It is expected that 25,000 harvesters will go out to the prairies this year from Ontario points. "Fifteen or 20 per cent. of those who go West for the harvest remain out there," declares Mr. W. Fulton, Toronto district passenger agent of the C.P.R. Moreover, many of them take out their families with them.

Brantford does well to foster this cheerful spirit of optimism at the time of its civic celebration. It should help much to contribute to the success of the event.—Hamilton Spectator.

TEACHERS GET CONSIDERATION

High Standard of Professional Etiquette Advocated and Maintained.

OVERCROWDING

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—In an advance survey published in connection with the sixth annual convention of the Canadian Teachers' Association, to be held in Toronto Aug. 10-15, Lieut.-Col. W. C. Michell, President of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, points out that Canadian teachers have reason to be proud of their achievements during the last five years. Where previously there was no organization authorized to safeguard their interests and express their views, there are now 16,000 in fraternal bonds.

Public recognition of the profession is now a reality. Departments of education are co-operating with teachers' representatives; few cases of injustice are reported. Fear of unfair criticism is removed, a high standard of professional etiquette is being advocated and maintained and the reward of the teacher is more commensurate with his or her service than formerly.

"Much remains to be done," the survey continues. "A remedy for overcrowding must be discovered. Unfair contracts must be discarded. Equitable pension schemes are to be evolved and plans for the temporary exchange of teachers between the Provinces arranged so that Canada and its resources may be known to all Canadians."

For the period of the convention in August Toronto teachers will be hosts to teachers from all Provinces of Canada. There are 11 Provincial teachers' associations in the Dominion, Ontario has three. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are expected to enter this year and complete the Dominion-wide organization.

Business sessions of the association in the Senate Chamber of the University of Toronto will be lightened by a number of social events, including an afternoon visit to one of the local golf clubs, followed by supper, a reception at the Roya Museum, the convention dinner, and a probable outing to Niagara Falls and the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. The Board of Education, the Mayor of the city and the Prime Minister of Ontario will welcome the visiting teachers.

These prices are f.o.b. cars at Belleville for shipment to Montreal and are higher by 3-4c per lb. than last week's prices.

QUEBEC BUTTER AUCTION

MONTREAL, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press.—At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society sale of butter held here today, 2,000 packages of pasteurized No. 1 creamery sold at 38 1-8c per lb.; 1,000 packages of No. 1 creamery at 37 1-8c per lb; and 500 packages of No. 2 creamery at 37 1-8c per lb.; and 500 packages of No. 2 creamery at 36 1-8c per lb; which prices on the two former cases are an advance of 3-4c per lb. over last week and in the case of No. 3 creamery, an advance of 1-2c per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press). — With sensational crop damage reports at hand from Canada and with an outlook that the 1925 yield of wheat in the United States will be only a little in excess of home needs, the wheat market today took a fresh upward jump of 5 1-2 cents a bushel. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled at 3 1-2 cents to 4 1-2 cents net gain including September at $1.57 3-4 to $1.58, and December $1.57 1-2 to $1.57 3-4. Corn finished 3-4 to 1 1-8 cents up, oats showing 7-8 to 1c advance, and provisions ranging from 5 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Rapid upward swings in the value of wheat began as soon as the market opened, and they continued until shortly before the close. Pessimistic crop advices from Canada, vouched for by the foremost crop expert of that country, were current here before trading began, and it also was confirmed that new unofficial estimates of wheat production this season in the United States had been reduced about 17,000,000 bushels as compared with a month ago. Inasmuch as figures on domestic yield already were far below last year's harvest total, the latest shrinkage of the aggregate had an immediate disturbing effect when taken in conjunction with reported severe crop losses in Canada.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 5-8.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3—(Canadian Press).—Little business was done locally in the millfeed market. Owing to the closing of the Canadian exchanges in Ontario and Winnipeg and the English buyers being on holiday, the market was somewhat affected. Few sales were made and prices were unchanged from Saturday. Sales of rolled oats were limited, a few being made locally at prices varying between $3.65 and $3.75 per bag of ninety pounds.

The local egg market continued firm and prices were unchanged. There continues to be a good demand for local consumption and the volume of business showed an improvement. The receipts were 1,300 as compared with 1,027 on Saturday and 932 on the same day a year ago.

The export of butter from the port of Montreal last week were 32,785 packages as compared with 26,527 last week, an increase of 8,258 packages. Last week's exports were over four times the exports of the corresponding week last year, which totalled 6974 packages. The total shipment since May 1st were 153,492 as against 16,199 packages for the same period last year.

The receipts of butter in Montreal today were 6,787 packages as compared with 5,991 on Saturday and 8,296 on the same day a year ago. There being a good local demand for butter, trading was strong, but there was little business done in exports. Prices advanced ½ cent per pound at the auctions this morning. Other prices remain steady with the advice that there will probably be a little advance during the next few days.

The exports of cheese from the port of Montreal for last week were 57,815 boxes, over ten thousand increase of last week's exports of 47,312, an increase of 7,604 over the amount of exports during the same week last year. The total exports since May 1st, 560,939, show an increase over the corresponding period last year of 149,104.

Receipts of cheese in Montreal yesterday were 6,787 as compared with 5,991 on Saturday and 11,890 on the same day a year ago. There was little change in the trade today in the cheese market. The steady demand continued from local buyers and there was a fair amount of export business done. Prices remained unchanged.

A FINE RECORD

Dutch Girl, Out in December, Passed Her Entrance in June.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Hard to equal and almost impossible to excel is the scholastic record which has been hung up by Betsy Bloom, a 15-year-old Dutch girl, now living in Weston, who arrived in Canada last December and passed her entrance examinations in June. A strongly built, blonde type of girl with large, intelligent light-brown eyes, Betsy intends to become a stenographer. She had had a few lessons in English grammar in the secondary school she had attended in her home village of Aalsmeer, in Holland, but that was the only advantage she possessed over any other new arrival in Canada.

MEMBERS OF THE

glad that the Rev. Mr. Fierheller had been able to come and conduct the service. He said that he, in speaking, represented a great family, and he was proud to belong to it. It was a great privilege to see so many descendants of the Staples family. Our forefathers, one hundred years ago, came from Ireland, accomplishing the hazardous journey across the ocean. At that time the journey took weeks and was not the pleasant, comfortable voyage that it now is. They came to the virgin forest of the township of Cavan to find and hew out homes for themselves and their families. Where St. John's now stands, a church has stood for more than one hundred years. Those pioneers who built a temple to God on the site of the present building, performed a service to humanity which was inestimable. It was a lasting memorial to a lasting God and a lesson well worth learning by their descendants, to be true to God and His church. The bell rings, calling men to worship, calling the descendants of the Staples and other pioneer families. Bryan says, "There is a power calling us to heaven, just as the power of gravity draws earthward. Christ said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me." This bell, may it, all down through the ages, continue to call men to worship. Our fathers left us the legacy of churches and church bells. We should remember that, in these days, when there is so much to call us away, and hold fast to the essential things of life and stand safe and secure.

Life Complex To-day.

We know life is complex to-day. We are weaving a fabric, where threads become twisted and the colours faded. We are weaving life's picture. We are either daubing it, or painting it in the brightest colours of the rainbow. Our forefathers placed this temple on one of the highest pinnacles in Cavan, typical of the high place in our lives, which Christ and His church should occupy. We are painting a picture and that picture will hang in "the many mansions." Christ said, "In My Father's House are many mansions."

Members of the Staples family, what kind of picture are you painting? Some day we will be judged by our conception of life.

On behalf of the Staples family, Mr. Staples expressed thanks to the wardens of St. John's, who had so kindly allowed the use of their church for this service.

Mr. Staples regretted very much that he would be unable to be at Cobourg on Wednesday. He had to leave for New York on Tuesday with a number of eastern buyers. He hoped there would be many records of the family added that day to those already gathered, to assist in making a real family history. The committee have a family tree, marked out, where any desiring to do so can trace their lineal descent.

The service closed by all singing "Shall we gather at the river."

A Numerous Family.

Before closing his remarks, Mr. Staples read a few items of family history, showing what a large connection there is in the Staples clan. John, one of the sons of the first Thomas Staples, had twenty-one children. One man, by actual count, had 96 first cousins. He himself had 26 first cousins in the Staples family..

In the cemetery is a flat marble slab over two graves. On it the following names are inscribed:

But Jesus, had called us in faith to arise
In hope to regain you again in the skies.

Jane Staples died and was buried at sea, but her epitaph was placed on the monument with her husband's.

Jane, wife of Thomas Staples, died May 1, 1823. Aged 56.

Thomas Staples, died May 8, 1825, aged 77 years.

In memory of Thomas Staples, who died May 4, 1871, aged 94 years.

Respect to your memories, how sacred the trust,
Hath raised this pale marble, an emblem of dust

There were representatives of the Staples families from very many differen places, British Columbia, London, Chicago, Vancouver, Hamilton, Lindsay, Toronto, Orono, Clarke, Peterboro, Bexley, Baltimore, Cobourg, Manvers, places in the United States, and many other points.

At Cobourg Wednesday.

On Wednesday, in Cobourg, it is expected that there will be a great gathering. All who wish will take lunch and enjoy it picnic style. Tea and coffee will be provided on the grounds by the committee in charge. Those not wishing to take lunch can buy it there. The picnic will be one of the pleasing features of the gathering, it providing opportunity for a social time.

In the evening amusements and entertainment is being provided.

CANADIAN EXHIBITS TO SOUTH SEAS EX.

Manufacturers Urged to Get Products Ready in August.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Urging the importance to Canadian manufacturers of New Zealand and South Seas international exhibition to be held at Dunedin, New Zealand, this fall, the president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has circularized the members warning that exhibits must leave Canada during August to be in time.

It is hoped to make the Canadian court at Dunedin as outstanding a feature of this New Zealand exhibition as the Canadian pavilion is at Wembley. It is recognized that the exhibition will prove a wonderful opportunity for the furtherance of trade between Canada and the far-off dominion, which has already been stimulated by manufacturers desirous of improving inter-Imperial trade.

Would Die In Jerusalem: Wife Pursues To Prevent

NEW ROCHEDDE, N.Y., Aug. 4.—(United Press)—Benjamin Cohen, prosperous local merchant, is determined to die in Jerusalem, his wife is determined he shall not, and the two are now racing for the Holy Land by separate steamers to settle the dispute.

Cohen after several years deliberation decided to go to Palestine to die. He left by steamer via Spain. Mrs. Cohen, undismayed that she had failed to dissuade him here, pursued him by steamer via Liverpool and hopes to overtake him at Jerusalem where she expects to persuade him to return to his seven children, his home and business here.

Meanwhile their friends are assisting their children, the oldest of whom is 15, to operate the Cohen stores here, at more than $200,000.

FLIES are troublesome, filthy insects. Get rid of them quickly by spraying with Flit.

Flit spray clears the house in a few minutes of mosquitoes and disease-bearing flies. It is clean, easy and safe to use.

Kills Household Insects

Flit spray also destroys bed bugs, roaches, ants, and insect eggs. The cracks and crevices where insects hide and breed are readily reached by Flit spray. Spraying Flit on garments kills moths and their larvae which eat holes. Extensive tests showed that Flit did not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics.

A Scientific General Insecticide

Flit is the result of exhaustive research by expert entomologists and chemists. More than 70 formulas were tested on various household insects before Flit was finally perfected. Flit is a 100% effective insecticide containing no inactive (inert) ingredients.

A DEGENERATE

Weird Ritualistic Seance at Midnight Terrified Spectators Near Rimouski.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The French-language newspaper "La Presse" yesterday prints a strange story from Rimouski dealing with the trial there of one Francois Valcourt, before Magistrate Couillard on two counts—one of sending defamatory letters to priests and the other of committing a statutory crime. Valcourt was found guilty Monday and will be sentenced later.

Valcourt, according to 'La Presse' was apparently a devotee of devil-worship and a degenerate of whom his neighbors went in awe. The newspaper says:

Valcourt has an interesting past. Now 70 years old, he had lived a long time in the United States where various activities brought him in conflict with justice and forced his return to this country where he settled at St. Gabriel De Rimouski. Owner of a good farm, for a long time he led an exemplary life to all outside appearance. Then his base instincts gained the upperhand. He claimed a healer and a mesmerist, and he lived during the last ten years the life of a Charlatan, although believed in by many people of the district.

"When he was arrested his belongings were seized and it was found that they contained an uncommon collection of curiosities. Dentist's pincers, unguents of all colors, pills of his own manufacture were mingled with treatises on medicine, religious books, notebooks in which were inscribed the names and addresses of his clients. Valcourt passed also as a magician and he possessed an original apparel comprising a black velours cap on which were embroidered the words "bonne fete," yellow and red belts, a sort of Soutane (priest's robe) with a cross reversed, trousers with cross-stripes, a sort of red-silk mitre—the whole in a state of repulsive dirtiness.

"He had many means of making money. During conscription times he had considerable money paid to him, claiming to have the power by his incantations of obtaining exemption from military service. His chief specialty was to impress on the credulous that he knew of a hidden treasure which he could find with the aid of his diabolical ceremonies. Some time ago he persuaded certain persons of a parish adjacent to Rimouski that a strong-box full of money was at the bottom of the river and that he could conjure the evil spirts to bring it to the surface. He installed an altar on the river side and placed on it a huge cauldron in which he lighted a fire, at midnight. After a ritualistic dance accompanied by every kind of a yell to prove to those who accompanied him that hell was going to open up, he threw a quantity of bengal fire into the blaze. The effect was the immediate flight of the terrified spectators.

"Valcourt had already been sentenced to two years in prison by Magistrate Fiset in 1918."

Housekeeping As Usual Is Slogan Of Shanghai

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—An Englishwoman resident in Shanghai opens her letter to the London Mail in a recent issue, "Housekeeping as Usual." She says: "That is the slogan of the Englishwoman resident in Shanghai. Even though bullets have spat across the Yangste, it is difficult to look from the house on the Bund and believe that one is in danger. You will soon learn to enjoy Chinese dishes if your cook is good—as he probably will be. He will spare you shark's fins with crab sauce and sliced sea slugs. Fried dishes are the masterpieces of the Chinese cook."

STUDENTS WALK OUT

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Although the use of violence against foreigners in West China did not spread far beyond the one city, Chunk-king, the Chinese Christians and native students have been and are undergoing severe tests in some places. A letter to Rev. James Endicott, D.D., General Secretary of Methodist Foreign Missions, from Penghsien says that Christian prayer meetings have been interfered with and students assaulted or intimidated. Penghsien is the most remote station of the Canadian mission in West China and the letter is written by Rev. G. E. Rackham.

"Before repairs on the church were completed we ran upon the rocks of anti-Christian hostility," writes Mr. Rackham. "The beginning of the trouble was insignificant, but the person or persons behind the students were active, and finally accomplished their walk-out. We have kept our district school running as usual, though pressure was used on the students there. The Government schools are behind our students here, in their Students' Union, and many false and misleading statements are going around."

The situation had its comic-opera incidents, but became ugly, the letter narrates. Three times bills were posted all over the city demanding that all dismissed students be reinstated or the foreign teachers packed off. Other demands were "no church services for students in mission schools," and no Bible study.

"I learned that students armed with clubs paraded the streets around the church last night to prevent our people going to prayer meeting," he adds. "Last night also those students beat up another student who had come to the school for an examination."

EIGHT HURT IN AUTO SMASH-UP

One Lady Sustained Fractured Skull When Train Hit Sedan.

MANY BROKEN ARMS

TWEED, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Cronk of Sulphide is in Belleville General Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, and several others are in the same hospital with broken arms or ribs, and severe cuts and brusies as the result of an accident at a crossing three miles east of Tweed yesterday afternoon at 1:15. A Dodge sedan, owned by Mr. Myatt of Picton, and driven by his son of the same town, was struck by a west bound C.P.R. freight train. The car was completely wrecked and all of the occupants sustained more or less severe injuries, five having broken bones. The occupants were Mr. and Mrs. Myatt, senior, of Picton, the owners of the car their son and grand-daughter, Mrs. Cronk and her daughter, both of Sulphide, and Mr. and Mrs. Fulford of Trenton.

WORK FOR COOKS

Girl Trained in Keeping House Need Never be Out of a Job.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—When speaking of a shortage of trained cooks, Miss J. T. Dunn, superintendent of the Domestic Branch of the Employment Service of Canada, drew a comparison between the industrial and office workers who were continually dodging the shadow of unemployment or drastic wage cuts and the trained cook who, she said, was always assured of a good home, good wages, good board and a high degree of consideration from her employer. The best cooks obtainable now, it has been said, are those trained in the old country. "If a girl has been brought up to cook and take care of a house, she need never be afraid of being out of a job," was Miss Dunn's comment.

CAVAN DELUGED.

Sunday's Rain Like Cloudburst in Places.

CAVAN, August 3. — A very severe storm passed over on Sunday. A great amount of rain fell. It seemingly was much heavier in the south of Cavan than at Ida church. On the eighth line it was almost like a cloud burst. The water just poured over the roads. It seemed to those going hot from the Staples services that it was like driving their cars through a large creek to hear the swish of the water as they passed through it. The hills on that line were cut in great ruts.

A barn belonging to Mr. Moore, Zion, was struck by lightning, and burned, with about forty loads of hay; also a quantity of peas and a calf.

The rain came so unexpectedly that chickens in many places were caught in the deluge, could not get to their usual shelters, and perished in numbers.

QUAKE REVEALS HUGE SKELETON

Scientists Undecided as Yet Upon What It Is.

MAY CHANGE THEORY

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Aug. 4 (United Press.—A gigantic petrified skeleton, which scientists have not yet decided was a mastodon or prehistoric toothed whale, has been discovered on Green Mountain, highest point on historic San Miguel Island, 30 miles from Santa Barbara's shoreline.

San Miguel Island was badly rocked during the recent earthquake and many of its tall cliffs tumbled into the sea.

The skeleton's tusks measure 15 feet in length, and together with the mammal's skull were found protruding above ground at the summit of the mountain. The balance of the bones were buried in the earth's surface, but the entire skeleton was virtually intact.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

Accidental Drowning of Montreal Woman of 85 Years.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press)—The body of the woman found floating in the St. Lawrence River on Sunday was yesterday identified as Mrs. Frances Stillamon-Grabble, 85, who disappeared last Thursday from her home. The identification was made by a son who could not account as to how his mother had fallen into the water.

A verdict of accidental death was returned.

$2,000,000 DAMAGE BY DETROIT STORM

DETROIT, August 3. — Police and Fire Department officials fixed $2,000,000 as the approximate damage caused by Friday's rainstorm in and about Detroit. The rainfall was 4.71 inches between 6.20 a.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday. The greatest losses were reported by industrial plants, where the machinery in basements was flooded, and by the city, due to damage to the pavements. Many merchants lost heavily as a result of the water flooding stocks stored in basements and scores of homes were inundated.

At the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company thousands of men turned from motor car making to manning the pumps in the basement of two buildings where the waters rose and put the two great electric motors out of commission.

Much office furniture and machinery stored in the flooded basements were ruined, but officials would make no estimate of the loss.

Hamtramck suffered heavily. Joseph Campau avenue, a main artery of the city, was a basin into which the torrents rolled from intersecting thoroughfares. Three of Hamtramck's four theatres were flooded. Valuable records of the city were found under two feet of water that filled the city hall basement.

Scores of persons were driven from their homes on the east side of Detroit when Connors Creek rolled over its banks.

Richard Krell, 35, was overcome, when he attempted to turn off the gas in the basement of him home, and was drowned before neighbors found him.

Mrs. Thelma Goulding, a telephone operator at Redford, was seriously shocked by lightning which came through the instrument she was using.

VISIT ENJOYED

Lady Haig Was Surprised at the Bigness of the Dominion.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—"I never thought Canada was so nearly big before," Lady Haig said during her visit here. "Your lakes and mountains are wonderful. I think I will always remember Jasper Park." When she made her hour-and-a-half flight to Niagara Falls she was quite matter-of-fact about it. "I enjoyed every minute of it," she said.

ICE CREAM CARRIES DREAD FEVER GERM

Comestible Handled by Youth Transmits Scarlet Fever.

LONDON, Aug. 4.— (United Press)—Eating ice cream handled by a boy suffering from scarlet fever has given the disease to 83 persons at Portsmouth, England.

The outbreak of the epidemic was followed by a rigid investigation by health authorities. It was disclosed that all the patients had recently eaten ice cream purchased at a certain firm.

Inquiry there revealed that a boy who handled the ice cream, now seriously sick with scarlet fever, had during the early stages of the disease continued at work.

CAN'T KEEP WIFE ALWAYS AT HOME

Magistrate Ordered Man to Let His Wife Go To Dances.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(Canadian Press).—"Let her go to dances if she wants to, you can't expect to take a wife and then lock her in the house," was the statement made by Magistrate Margaret Patterson in the Women's Court when Joseph Gittens, colored, was hailed to court following an allegation by his wife that he had struck her because she attended a dance. The accused husband admitted having struck his wife, but pleaded he was justified in having done so when she attended dances against his wishes. The court after instructing the accused he was not entitled to stop his wife from dancing, adjourned the case to see how the couple got along in the interval.

COMMUNION SERVICE.

Well Attended at Millbrook United Church.

MILLBROOK, August 3. — Considering the holiday season the number of communicants present for the sacrament service at the United Church on Sunday morning was most encouraging.

Under the constitution of the United church the elders dispense the elements as a part of their official duties. Those assisting on Sunday were H. A. Earle, H. W. Johnston, W. Fred Fallis, A. J. Brown, T. H. Aikenhead and J. Whitfield. Rev. F. H. Howard and Rev. Jos. Wilkes were in charge of the impressive service.

The solo, "Somebody Loved Me Long Ago," sung by Mrs. Walter Williamson, if Leader, Sask., was apropriate for the occasion, and much appreciated by the congregation. Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Williamson (nee Bertha Locke' was one of the soloists of the local choir.
